DESPITE CIVIL WARS.

Modernize Her Legislative To Insure Protection To Foreigners.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—A hopeful view of China's struggle toward modern and responsible government, despite civil wars and present political chaos, was disclosed in the report of the thirteen-power commission on extraterritoriality, made public yesterday by the State Department.

The commission recommended, however, only a progressive surrender of rights under extraterritoriality treaties with China, as fast as she is able to modernize her legislative and judicial machinery to insure adequate protection to foreigners.

Grave abuses of extraterritorial privileges by foreign nationals in China were admitted shortcomings in the systems by which the powers apply their treaty rights were pointed out for immediate correction, and the growth of national sentiment among the Chinese for abolishment of all unequal treaties as infringing upon Chinese sovereignty, was given significant place.

But the commission held that extraterritorial protection in China for the 254,006 foreign individuals and 6,473 foreign firms, the great majority in both cases being Japanese, cannot be relinquished except as China substitute suitable laws, judicial procedure and courts to which that protection can be entrusted.

The report was signed for the United States by Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, chairman of the commission. The Chinese commissioner, Wang Chung-Hui, signed with the reservation that his approval of the recommendations did not imply approval also of the statements made as to facts found.

The document is now before the Governments for study. The commission, created under a resolution of the Washington arms conference of 1921-22, was authorized only to study the subject and advise. It had no power to commit the governments to any course of action.

Attached tables showed that 98 per cent. of all extraterritorial foreigners are Japanese, British, American, Portuguese and French in the order named, Japan leading with 218,351, a majority of whom are in Manchuria. The British total is 15,247; American, 9,844. The Japanese Commissioner placed the 1924 total of Japanese nationals in China, Koreans and Formosans included, at 1,032,716.

Russia leads among the non-extraterritorial foreigners with 83,235 individuals and 1,270 firms.

SIX PRISONERS ARE TO HANG FOR MURDER

Sentence Passed Upon Convicts For Shooting of Deputy Warden.

RESULT OF BREAK.

JOLIET, Ills., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Six lives were forfeited to the State Saturday for the taking of one when a jury here returned a verdict of guilty and decreed hanging for the convicts who killed Peter N. Klein a deputy warden, in the new state penitentiary, near Stateville last May, as a step in a short-lived break to liberty. None of the convicts displayed emotion as he was named. Formal sentencing and fixing of the date for hanging them was postponed until after a hearing on a motion for a new trial December 10.

One Still Free

Immediately after they were sentenced the convicts were chained in pairs and under armed guard were rushed back to their prison cells. One of the men who broke prison, James Price, remains at large. The others were captured shortly after their escape.

Those who must hang are, in the order of the verdict: Charles Shader, 19, the youngest of the six, who is serving a life sentence for murder; Charles Duchowski, 25, who is serving a sentence of 25 years for murder; Walter Stalesky, 37, serving ten years to life for burglary; Bernardo Roa, 24, Mexican, serving a life sentence for murder; Roberto Torrez, 26, Mexican, ten years to life for murder; Gregario Rizo, 20, Mexican, ten years to life for burglary.

Single Precedent

Klein was killed in his office in the cell house devoted to solitary confinement. The seven convicts formed ranks and forced a captain of guards to march at their head across the prison enclosure, aid them in passing through the gate, and in escaping in the slain deputy warden's motor car.

So far as was known here last night there is but one precedent for the sentencing of six men for the murder of one, a half dozen men having been hanged in Louisiana two years ago for a slaying in a bank robbery.

DENIES SHE HAD ANY CONNECTION WITH SLAYING

Mrs. Hall Takes Stand as Beginning of Final Phase.

WAS AT HOME.

Sat in Sober Silence Through Most of the Cross-Examination.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press). — Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall to-day will complete her denial that she had any connection with the killing of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, bringing the Hall-Mills case to the beginning of its final phase.

For two hours Saturday afternoon the widow of the slain minister detailed her movements before and after the double slaying, and for an hour or more she will be cross-examined to-day.

Mrs. Hall is the third defendant to be heard, her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, having preceded her to the witness stand to say that they had no part in the slaying and were not near the spot where the bodies of the minister and choir singer were found.

Mrs. Hall is telling her story in a court for the first time. She was not called as a witness before the grand jury returning an indictment against her, her brothers and her cousin, Henry De La Bruyrere Carpender, and with the exception of a statement made to authorities soon after her husband and Mrs. Mills were slain, and a newspaper interview, she has kept her own counsel.

The widow moved through her direct examination and the brief cross-examination of Saturday with a decided economy of words. Many of her answers to questions were restricted to "yes" and "no," and she made no attempt to add an explanation of her answers as many witnesses in the case have done.

She sat in almost sober silence through most of her stay on the stand. There were a few smiles. She was asked on cross-examination after she had said that she knew nothing of firearms, if as a matter of fact she had not once said that she could "shoot the head off rattlesnakes." She seemed to see amusement in this feat of marksmanship attributed to her by the question of Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, and smiled her denial.

There was a flicker of a smile when she was questioned as to the "discharge" of a dignified former state senator, William E. Florance, as her attorney. Senator Florance had testified that he was summoned by Mrs. Hall after her husband had failed to return home, and at her request communicated with the police, later withdrawing from the case in favor of Timothy E. Pfieffer.

These were only fleeting lights of her austere face, far removed from the broad smile, almost a laugh, with which Willie Stevens confided to the court and jury that "everybody" objected to his pipe.

Mr. Simpson's opening questions Saturday indicated that he will conduct his examination in a very loud voice. He was shouting his questions as the day closed but the witness was replying in the same even tones used throughout her direct testimony. Mrs. Hall insisted throughout her testimony that her husband carried with him to his

Canadian V. C. Dies In London Hospital

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Captain George B. McKean V.C., M.C., M.M., a Canadian officer, died in the Potters Bar Cottage Hospital, near London.

Captain McKean had his skull fractured when a circular saw broke at his sawmill and a piece struck him in the head. He won his Victoria Cross in 1918 for a single-handed fight during a trench raid, at which time he killed two of the enemy and captured four and drove the rest of the opposing party into a dugout.

GROSS REVENUES OF RAILWAYS SET NEW RECORD

Were Largest Ever Earned During Month of September.

WHEAT CROP SMALLER.

Earnings for the First Nine Months of Year High.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Gross revenues of the railways of Canada for September this year were the largest ever earned in September. The earnings for the nine months January to September, amounted to $344,843,425, which was $17,416,219 greater than the gross revenues of the first nine months of 1923, the previous high record, and $33,302,317 greater than those of the same period last year. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics made this announcement Saturday.

The increase in gross revenues for September last over the previous September was $960,468. This increase, it is stated, would have been considerably greater, but for the slow movement of grain in the western provinces.

Wheat Crop

The wheat crop in the Prairie Provinces this year was officially estimated to be only a half of one per cent less than last year's, and other grains were average crops, so the remaining three months of this year should show a heavy movement of western grain.

OBITUARY.

SENATOR RICHARD BLAIN

BRAMPTON, Ont, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Senator Richard Blain, who suffered a paralytic stroke about two years ago, died here on Saturday morning at the age of 69 years. He became critically ill on Friday when he suffered a heart attack.

Senator Blain was a Conservative and was appointed to the Senate in 1917. The late Hon. Richard Blain was born in Vienna, Ontario, in 1857. He was educated in the public schools in that town and elected to the House of Commons for Peel in 1900. He was re-elected in 1904, 1908 and 1911, in 1907 being appointed Whip of the Conservative party For some years he acted as chairmany of the Railway Committee in the House of Commons and also in the Senate.

He was the mover of a resolution in 1900 for enactment of a law prohibiting the importation manufacture, and sale of cigarettes.

The death of Senator Blain of Brampton, Ontario, creates the third vacancy in the Senate. The two other vacancies are for the Province of Quebec, brought about by the deaths this year of Senators H. L. David and Alfred Thibaden. The senatorial vacancy is the first to occur among the quota for this province in the Upper House since the appointments by the King Government in September, 1925.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The onyx is today's talismanic gem. If worn around the neck it will cool anger, hot-headedness and untamed impulse, according to an old Indian legend.

The topaz is the natal stone for this day. It should be set in gold to exercise its full powers; likewise it should not be purchased but should be a gift. A girl wears a topaz can make a bashful suitor speak, so the superstition runs.

White is prescribed for wear today.

Yellow roses are potent today.

"I talked him out of it—"

"IF I had only known this would happen! So suddenly! So unexpectedly! And when everything looked so promising!

"And to think that time after time he wanted to increase his life insurance and I talked him out of it. How hard I worked against myself and against my own interests. I wanted a bigger house. I wanted luxuries! I wanted everything except the protection he was urging me to accept.

"I got my own way, of course. The Life Insurance was not taken. I robbed the children of their education, of my care, perhaps of their future success in life. I robbed myself of the children's companionship. For now I must leave them to earn the money needed to keep our little family together—the money that Life Insurance would have given me if he had had his way—

"—and I talked him out of it."

It has been truly said that, "If every wife knew what every widow knows, every man would carry adequate Life Insurance".

And too often it is the children who must pay the penalty of the wife's prejudice.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

The issue with regard to temperance in the pending Provincial Election is between two temperance policies.

In this connection I would like to make clear two points :

FIRST, I was a member of the Hearst Government which put in force the Ontario Temperance Act in 1916. During the ten years it has been in operation I have been a Member of the Government of Ontario for nearly six years. My position, therefore, has given me opportunity to study conditions under the Ontario Temperance Act at close range. The Act has undoubtedly, in some respects, done much good. Unfortunately, however, it is quite apparent that it no longer commands the support of a sufficiently strong public opinion to secure satisfactory enforcement and observance.

SECOND, under the Ontario Temperance Act the Government has been operating twelve liquor stores. Our policy is to abolish the farce of medical prescriptions and substitute an official permit to purchase with proper restrictions and safeguards.

The whole question is between these two methods of handling liquor. Shall we continue to allow it to be uncontrolled, or shall we insist upon controlling it ?

I urge upon you to put aside the details and consider only the real issue. We are all desirous of doing the best thing for Ontario. We must have public opinion behind the Law to insure its existence and observance. Only in this way can advance along true temperance lines be achieved.

(G. Howard Ferguson)

Then, apologizing for the cold which made public speaking difficult for him, Mr. Sinclair plunged into a discussion of the redistribution of 1925, which, he averred, reduced the voting strength of rural Ontario and increased the vote in urban centres, the latter, of course, favoring the liquor policies of the Premier. "In 1925 Premier Ferguson had in mind the policy on which he is now going to the country, and he took care to reduce the voting strength of those opposed to his policy. Then he chose a season of the year favorable to his plans. It is the same season as when he refused to hold by-elections in seven vacant ridings, for the reason, he said, that the rural voters would be inconvenienced in getting to the polls. It is just another move to prevent rural voters from casting their ballots. There is no reason for holding the election in December. The Government had a big majority in the House, and had another session to run, but Ferguson forces an election. If next Wednesday is a stormy day, one can imagine the Premier looking out of the big windows at Parliament Buildings, with that pleasant smile of his, thinking of all the city voters, with their conveniences, rolling up to cast their votes for Government control, while the rural voters are snowed in.

"You see the type of mind of Premier Ferguson, and the plans he has been laying to secure, if possible, a favorable verdict for the policy he has decided upon. He has concocted a policy—it is not the policy of the Conservative party, but a policy he is imposing upon all his candidates, willy-nilly. We are not fighting against the organized Conservative party, but against Premier Ferguson and against the law he proposes for the Province."

The situation is unique in Ontario, Mr. Sinclair said, in that the Premier is not acting along the lines approved by his party, but is chasing a will-o'-the-wisp policy of his own, which he is trying to foist on the people of the Province.

"What Is It?"

"What is his policy, or what does he say it is?" the speaker asked rhetorically. "He said it was a proposal in aid of temperance — (laughter) — that the O.T.A. had broken down. Great emphasis was laid on the bootlegger, and one of the main objects was to eliminate the bootlegger. So he announced on October 18 the sale of liquor in shops and the sale of beer in hotel parlors. But on November 2 he had veered with the shifting wind and then proposed the sale of both hard liquor and beers in Government shops. And, on the night on which he announced that the beer parlors had been dropped, his Attorney-General was exhorting an audience to support Government control on the ground that the sale of beer in hotel parlors was the important part of the programme. (Laughter). And yet Premier Ferguson tells us he had given this matter long and careful consideration.

"In a short time it became apparent to the people of Ontario that the Premier had not given the question the long and careful consideration he claimed, or that if he had, he had found that it was not working out as he had expected." The speaker went on to tell of the different statements made regarding the policy by the Premier and by members of the Cabinet, indicating, he said, that not even the Government knows what is coming if the Premier gets his mandate on December 1. "Ferguson is endeavouring to get a blank order from the people of Ontario. He is endeavouring to get a majority of members in the next Legislature on the indefinite proposals on Government control that he has given out. He will then be at liberty to introduce the sale of beer by the glass; he can bring in any form of Government control or Government sale he wishes, because he has not told the people anything definite.

"Therefore, all the people of Ontario, of every class and shade of politics, are justified in rejecting the proposals the Premier has put before them, unless he lays down his hand and shows the details of the scheme before election day."

Referring to the Premier's speech at Palmerston, as reported in a Conservative newspaper, the speaker pointed out that something bad for the people is proposed, since the Premier promised there, "The people will be protected and a minimum of harm can ensue." "Surely the people are not going to adopt any legislation that will harm any of the people!" Mr. Sinclair exclaimed. "We've had Ferguson promise rigid enforcement of the O.T.A., and yet he has failed to enforce the O.T.A Now he says, 'I'm going to enforce this new law.'"

Mr. Sinclair: "I wasn't. I don't know how you're getting on." And then, as the heckler was silenced by laughter and clapping in the audience, "Here's what Ferguson says at Picton about the bootlegger. He says respectable people would rather buy from a Government store than wait, as he knows they have been waiting, behind a tree to catch the bootlegger as he passes on his regular route at 11.30 at night. He has not been able to catch the bootleggers operating on time-tables, even sitting behind a tree waiting for them. Now he says, 'I'll enforce this law.' If the Premier was unable to catch the bootleggers when they were operating on schedule, how will he be able to catch them when they change their time-tables?" (Laughter and applause).

"In Toronto on Friday," he continued, "Premier Ferguson said that with the 1924 plebiscite it immediately occurred to the Government that you can't impose the will of half the people on the other half, and if legislation has not the public behind it, it can't be enforced."

The speaker was interrupted again, and offered to let the heckler assist him on the platform

"Right from the 1924 plebiscite, therefore, the Government started to let up in the enforcement of the law. From that very day began the dropping down of the O. T. A., and the laying of the foundations of the arguments against the O.T.A. that are being used in this election. The Government has not even this law the sympathetic attention warranted by its promises at the plebiscite.

"In face of these broken promises, Premier Ferguson said at Chatham this week that the Government was never more serious and earnest than today. 'Government control means Government control,' he told his audience, threatening dire punishments for violators of the Government regulations. Just imagine what terrors are in store for violators of this new law! Just imagine the Premier, with the O.T.A record behind him, trying to inspire people with the conviction that he can enforce this far more dangerous programme!

"He says he is going to do away with private stills. It will be far more difficult to locate stills under Government control. He has not been able to locate the source of illicit liquor under the O.T.A.; but he must make promises."

The Financial Appeal.

"The financial side of the question has its appeal, too," Mr. Sinclair remarked. "Each of us who owns an automobile gets a chance to make $5 a year for the next four years. This is to be made possible, said a circular letter we received, through the revenue which is expected to be made out of the sale of liquor.

"But the circulars had hardly got out into the country before Ferguson spoiled it all At Leamington he announced a cut in liquor prices. Here you have a Government starting out in aid of temperance, and with a plan to make a little revenue out of liquor, and someone asks the Premier to make it a little cheaper, and he promises. (Laughter). You can see just how much this proposition is going to be in aid of temperance.

"He calls this a plebiscite. A plebiscite is a vote on a question. It is a settlement by the people of a question submitted to the people, and that is the way these temperance questions should be settled. What Ferguson wants is to have interjected into it the party bias of those who are liable to allow political affiliation to cloud their better judgment. How can the calm judgment of the people be used in the midst of an election campaign? But Ferguson expects to capitalize that. If he had been sincere he would have had another session, passed a bill through the House subject to the approval of the people, and then submitted it.

"This is just an attempt by Premier Ferguson to obtain office on Government control and then after he is elected to give whatever he thinks at the moment."

"Certainly Not!"

Mr. Sinclair quoted the Premier as saying at Lindsay, "I'm not going to be Premier if the O.T A. is sustained," and remarked, "Certainly he's not—(laughter)—and there's nothing like realizing it several days before the election." (Applause).

The speaker blamed the interjection of the Government control policy into politics on the Premier himself, and recalled a speech by Canon Cody in which this is admitted. "Canon Cody said the Premier could easily have been re-elected on the record of his Government, indicating clearly that he is not going to be re-elected on the Government control policy placed in the election manifesto by the Premier himself.

"Regarding enforcement of the law, it is interesting to look at Ferguson's views on laws in general. He says, 'If the people are not prepared to observe the laws, then the laws should be wiped out.'

"I should think," Mr. Sinclair declared, "that the people would say, 'We'll get rid of the man who says he's not going to try to enforce the laws.' It's no wonder the O.T.A. has fared as it has in the past two years with the Premier upholding that doctrine of law enforcement."

An interruption by someone, apparently under the influence of liquor, brought the response from Mr Sinclair, "You're not a public speaker, I can't hear you." The voice was loud enough, but the heckler did not appear to be using English.

Continuing, Mr. Sinclair remarked on the way in which Mr. Ferguson is going to guard the morals and welfare of the people. The Premier told an audience that under the system he proposes he will know within 48 hours every bottle sold to anyone in the Province. But the total sales per day, calculated on the amount of revenue the Premier says will be received, will be 20,000 bottles. "And Premier Ferguson is going to read them all over and learn in 48 hours who has been buying liquor!" (Laughter).

"Surely the people want something sensible, definite and final, and not statements such as this! The more you go into the speeches of the Premier the more you realize that he doesn't know anything about what he is promising. There is no guarantee of what he will do, because we know how close he keeps to his promises. All he asks is that you place him in office again and then you will have nothing to say about what system he brings in. The people of Ontario have indicated twice their desire for the O. T. A., and as long as the people by their votes declare to retain the O. T. A. that act should be enforced. On the one hand you have what you have experience of, on the other the Premier has not told you what is to replace it.

About Canon Cody.

"Canon Cody declared in Toronto that the government's proposed law could only be an experiment. He is the man who went away to report on the effect of government control in other provinces, but now he says it will only be an experiment. He says that even if government control failed to relieve the conditions, the necessary reaction would set up a renewed spirit in favor of the O.T.A. He intimates that conditions under government control will be so bad that temperance people will be inspired to get busy and retrieve their lost ground. The same argument was used in reference to the 4.4 beer experiment Now experiment number two comes along. Premier Ferguson said in 1925 he was going to tour the province in order to convince everybody that the 4.4 beer experiment was the best thing that ever happened. He went to Ottawa and locked horns with Sir George Foster in one meeting, and then Premier Ferguson went back to Toronto and never held another meeting. And now I believe that the people of Ontario are rallying behind Sir George Foster again, and that on December first you will see Premier Ferguson defeated.

"The O.T.. is the policy expressed by the will of the people in 1924, and the O.T.A. is the policy upon which the Liberal party stands. We invite all who agree with us to line up with us so that the will of the people will be maintained. If the will of the people is not sustained we shall soon lose our right to be called one of the portions of the free willed nations of the British Empire."

J. J. Duffus.

The speaker expressed it as a great pleasure to him to support G. A. Gillespie in this campaign and also to appear on the same platform as the Liberal leader of this province, W. E. N. Sinclair. "After December first Mr. Gillespie will be the member of this riding and Mr. Sinclair will be Premier of this province of Ontario," said Mr .Duffus

"I have been acquainted with Mr. Gillespie for a great many years for he was born in the township of Otonabee, and he has had a splendid opportunity of learning the needs of the rural part of this riding. He has always taken a keen interest in all public affairs and I had the pleasure of having his association and good judgment when he was a member of the city council. He was a member of the legislature for this riding for five years, when he showed that he had an interest in everything that aided the welfare of the people. I am sure that when he is elected on December the first he will serve this constituency with the same effort and interest as that with which he did when he was a member before.

With Mr. Sinclair as Premier the people of this province will be given sane legislation. You will agree with me that if any Prime Minister has ever broken his word to the people of this province the present one certainly has. I have travelled throughout the whole province lately and I have learned that Liberal, Conservative and Progressive alike distrust Mr. Ferguson. He has broken his word to the people of this province and for this reason alone I think he will be defeated on December first. He has broken his word on the liquor question and I claim that the will of the people should rule and when it is given on a specific vote it should so remain until the people by a similar vote wish it changed."

"I am opposed to him because he made a statement slandering the boys and girls of this province. He also says he will not hide behind women's skirts, but I believe before election day he will be glad to hide behind the women of this province.

"Both Sir Oliver Mowat and Sir James Whitney said that this moral question should be settled when there is no political issue at stake and I hope if it ever comes up again that it will be settled by a direct vote of the people when there is no political election."

Mr. Duffus severely criticised Mr. Ferguson for bringing on an election at this time of year when by a great part of the vote of this province will be disfranchised and discriminated against. "This time last year Mr. Ferguson said it was no time of year to hold by-elections and that he would bring them on when the going was good. I ask him if it is fair to bring on an election at this time of year. I say that he should have regard for all people so as not to take advantage of a particular section of the electorate, especially when he knew that on this issue they would vote against him."

"I believe Mr. Ferguson's activities do not merit the endorsation of the people of this province. His wobbling positions have so placed him in a position that the people do not trust him any longer."

Old Age Pensions.

Speaking directly to Mr. Sinclair the speaker hoped that when he became Premier he would put into effect the Old Age Pension Act in this province as Premier King has promised to reintroduce it at the coming session of the Dominion Parliament, when the aged people of this province will not have to be sent to homes but they will be permitted to remain in their own humble dwellings and spend the remaining years of their lives among the ones they love.

"In the year 1905 when the Liberals went out of office there was no debt, but to-day the debt has grown to three hundred and twenty millions of dollars. The expenditure which was so severely criticised by the Conservatives in the Drury government days has increased during the Ferguson regime and still a minister of the Crown appeared on this platform and said there was nothing to be said about the administration."

"I have known Mr. Sinclair for ten or fifteen years and in that time he has acted as financial critic of the Liberal party and with that position I claim he is the man to put at the head of the government of this province, for if there ever was a time when careful financing was needed it is now.

In conclusion Mr. Duffus made a plea to the audience to elect Mr. Gillespie so that the will of the people would be carried out and that there would be prosperity in this province such as has never been seen before.

G. A. Gillespie.

"I am proud to be a candidate in this election and proud to be a candidate of the kind of men and women who are supporting me. In 1914 I was elected under somewhat similar circumstances when men and women of all political views supported me. I realize that it is going to take hard and careful work to bring back prosperity to Ontario and the Dominion of Canada, but if we can believe the signs we are the verge of better times.

"This is a riding of city and country interests and the farmer must be helped, for it is the resources of the farm and the mine that are going to pay the war debt of this country. There is no province that can produce better goods than Ontatrio, but for the overseas market we must have quality. In this present campaign, as Mr. Nickle has said, there is only two issues at stake, whether Mr. Ferguson is going to put over his will or if the people of the province are going to have their will carried out."

"In 1914 we agreed that this issue should not be brought into politics and in 1916 the committee of One Hundred petitioned the government and as a result the O.T. A. was put on the statute books. The Conservatives were in power at that time but it was with the help of the Liberals that the Act became law, for there was not a dissenting voice in the house. It was said to be a good measure in war time, so it is a good measure at this time when the finances of this country need to be brought back."

"Mrs. Fallis stated the other night that the government took the responsibility that it would be be voted on by the people when the soldiers returned It was voted on then and again in 1924, the majority was not so large, but the Premier promised that he would enforce it. If it had not been for the breaking down of the word of a man in high office I would not have been a candidate to-day. It is not the Conservative party that has introduced this policy but it is the will of a single man."

In closing Mr. Gillespie promised if elected he would support every issue that would benefit the constituency of the City of Peterborough.

Those on the platform were: G. A. Gillespie, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., J. J Hartley, J. J. Duffus, W. E. N. Sinclair, Dr. J. J. Craig, J. Wearing, J. Dewart, J. E. Adams, J Ellis, R. J. Kidd, H. G. Walker, W. G. Shiner, T. H. Shields, A. B. Cunningham, Dr. A. H. Allen, M. J. Duffus, R. Morrison, William Stevens, James Allison, Mrs. (Dr) Morrison, Mrs. R. Harstone, Mrs. Charles Banks, Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Mrs. G. A. Helson, Mrs. William Stevens, Mrs. A. Fielder, Mrs. John Speer, Mrs. A B. Cunningham, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie and Miss L. Jobbitt.

grave her unfaltering faith in fidelity and devotion to her, although the State insists that she must have known that he was in love with another woman, and was writing ardent letters telling Mrs. Mills of his affection for her.

The State has indicated that it will stress what Simpson construes as a lack of anxiety over the welfare of the missing minister in the Hall household in the interim between his disappearance on a Thursday night in September, 1922, and discovery of his body the following Saturday. Mrs. Hall and her brother, Willie Stevens, have testified that there was grave worry for his safety manifested by inquiries Friday and Saturday following a visit of the sister and brother to the church, of which Mr. Hall was rector, in the early hours of Friday morning.

Both brothers have claimed to have been far from De Russey's lane, near New Brunswick, in the vicinity of which the bodies were found, and Mrs. Hall has now added her denial of her presence there. Henry Stevens has heard a dozen of his neighbors testify that he was at Lavallette, N.J., the night of the crime, and Willie Stevens said that he was in his bedroom at the Hall home.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, tiny, beautiful, is playing the love game with a dozen admirers, including BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; old MR. CLUNY, her present employer; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman, and CHRIS WILEY, a man of bad reputation.

FAITH LANE, unselfish and womanly, is in love with Hathaway, who comes to Faith for comfort when he discovers that Chris Wiley is also making love to Cherry.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich amateur artist, proposes to Faith while the two are on a Sunday outing, but she refuses him. That evening Faith finds that Cherry has disappeared, taking most of her clothes with her. Before Faith can decide what to do, Mrs. Albert Ettleson, appears, and tells the Lane family that she has reason to believe that Cherry and Ettleson have met in Darrow, fifty miles away, and are eloping to New York.

Mrs. Lane suffers a severe heart attack and is near death. Faith summons Bob Hathaway, and he drives Faith to Darrow, breaking all speed laws, in time to board the limited to New York. A porter conducts Bob and Faith to the stateroom he thinks the runaways are occupying, and just as they reach it, Cherry's voice in a loud scream is heard.

CHAPTER XIX.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Faith! Faith! Make him let me out!" Cherry's voice, shrill, rising on the crescendo of a scream, was muffled suddenly, as if by a hand placed over her mouth.

"Let me there, Faith!" Bob Hathaway shouldered her out of the way, and flattened his body against the door of the stateroom. "Open the door, Ettleson! Open right now! We're going to hold this train till you do Let that girl out, or you'll wish yo! had!"

"Shall 1 call a cop, Boss?" the frightened negro porter whispered through dark blue lips. "He may have a gun, Boss. 1 wouldn't monkey with him, if 1 was you—"

"We don't need a cop," Bob Hathaway said grimly, hurling his strength against the solid, unyielding door.

There was the grating, hoarse sound of a curse, then a hand fumbling at the inside of the locked door. As the lock gave, Hathaway pressed forward into the small room, his face mottled red with anger and exertion.

The tableau held for a moment—Cherry, her silk blouse torn open and half dragged from one shoulder, her topaz eyes wide with horror and fright, the knuckles of one clenched hand thrust into her distorted mouth, whose rouge was grotesquely smeared on upper lip and cheeks; her short copper-and-gold curls dragged forward across her forehead, as if brutal fingers had clutched them; her skirt twisted awry on her slender, boyish hips. And, crouching low against a berth, a big, heavy man, in a peach-colored silk shirt and white flannel trousers, a monogrammed belt buckle pressing into his soft, bulging abdomen; his straight vaselined black hair falling in dank strings over his blood-strutted forehead; his rage-reddened black eyes popping out of a fat, porcine face; his big, startlingly white teeth clamped over his lower lip; the bristles of his short black mustache standing out rigidly like the bristles of a black tooth brush. And in his rigid, outthrust right hand a dark-blue, snub-nosed, deadly automatic.

Then Cherry, against the bitten knuckles of her hand, screamed again, and Albert Ettleson released his gnawed lower lip to growl a curse at her, without taking his bloodshot black eyes off Bob Hathaway.

"Give me that gun, you damned fool!" Bob Hathaway spat the words at him.

Faith darted under his outstretched arm, into the crowded, narrow stateroom and flattened her body against his. For she knew that she loved him enough to take gladly any bullet that Albert Ettleson, crazy with fear, might aim at him.

"Faith! Faith!" Cherry's fear-frozen body came to life, brushed against the crouching form of the man she had run away with, flung itself into Faith's arms.

"Give me that gun, Ettleson! There's not going to be any shooting hullabaloo to round out the mess you've made of things. Get out of the way, Faith—and you!" he threw the word at Cherry, as if he hated the sound of her name.

Faith leaned forward, without exposing Bob's body, although his arms were straining at her, and quite simply took the gun from Albert Ettleson's hand. She dropped it, as if it had been a vanity case, into the wide pocket of her white flannel suit.

"Get your things into your bag, Cherry, and put on your coat and hat," she said in a curiously matter-of-fact voice. "Mama's sick. She wants you to come right home. I told her you were visiting a friend over here."

"Well, what are you going to do?" Albert Ettleson rose to his full height, stiffly, as if he had been half paralyzed. His popping black eyes had not left Bob Hathaway's face.

"Not a damn thing—now," Bob Hathaway said with grim regret in his even tones. "For two reasons—you've got a mighty decent wife waiting for you in the Cooper Hotel, and if 1 killed you—as 1 would thoroughly enjoy doing, you fat swine—I'd kill this girl's mother, too. But if you ever show your ugly, bloated face in this neck of the woods again, I'll damage it so your wife won't know you. And 1 don't mean maybe!"

"Did he hurt you, Cherry—darling, darling?" Faith's queer matter-of-factness had melted into tears, as she watched her trembling sister hide the torn, ravaged blouse under the smart little coat, and adjust the saucy little brown velour hat to the mauled copper curls without a glance into the strip of mirror between the windows.

"No," Cherry quivered. "I didn't mean—Faith, 1 wasn't going to be bad honest, I wasn't! He tricked me, Faith—"

"Tricked! God, that's good!" Albert Ettleson hitched his white flannel trousers higher upon his soft, belt-dented paunch. "I'm the bird that's been tricked, I'll tell the world! Played me for a sucker, she did! Scheming little hussy! She didn't have no intention of coming clean with me—the little—"

"That'll be about enough, Ettleson!" Bob Hathaway seized one of the man's big arms and twisted it cruelly, so tha Ettleson writhed with pan and spat foul curses at him.

"Well, 1 guess I've got a right to tell my side of the story, ain't 1?" Ettleson demanded, rubbing his abused arm with a shaking, too-white, too well-manicured hand. "1 was gonna play square with her—crazy about her! Played me for a sucker, she did! Told me she'd go to New York with me—I was going to get her a chance with Feinbaum, in musical comedy. Sent her a coupla hundred dollars 1 did, that she blew in on clothes! Played me for a grand little sucker, she did!

"Then raised hell when she found I'd taken a drawing room. Babbled about the Mann Act! Pulled the I'm-a-good-girl stuff on me! 'Touch me and I'll scream for help!'" he mimicked bitterly. "I was shooting square with her, too—had already seen a lawyer about getting a divorce from my wife. Had it all fixed up. We'd a-been married in six months. Told her so in a letter—she knew what I wanted! She ain't no newborn kitten! She's been around—believe me, that baby's been around! Getting a coupla hundred bucks and a trip to New York for a hug and a kiss!"

While he talked, Cherry's clenched fists were pounding him upon chest and paunch, and her rage-strangled voice tried vainly to stop the flow of his bitter accusations.

"Faith! Make him stop! He's lying, Faith! Bob! He's lying. I didn't promise him anything! He—he said he was going to lend me the money for my things and for a trip to New York! I didn't agree to travel with him! I swear I didn't! Believe me, Faith! Oh! Oh! I want to go home! I want Muggy!" She flung her arms about her sister, burrowed her head, like a child, against that deep, splendid bosom.

"All right, Cherry, darling! We're going to take you home! Don't cry so, dear. Bob has his car. We're going right now."

"Can't hold this train all day!" the conductor bawled at them from the aisle, summoned there by the fear-stricken porter. "Wanta make a charge against this man, Mister?" He tugged at Bob Hathaway's sleeve.

"No," Bob answered shortly. "No. Let him go. No serious damage done, thank God! Come on, Faith—and you," he scarcely glanced at Cherry. Stooping, he picked up her heavy suitcase, and strode down the aisle with it.

"What about my coupla hundred bucks and this gold-digger's ticket to New York?" Albert Ettleson bawled after him, his cockiness coming back to him, now that danger had definitely passed him by.

"You go to hell!" Bob Hathaway flung over his shoulder and strode on without stopping.

"That awful man!" Cherry shuddered, when Bob Hathaway's car was again headed toward home—and safety. "Oh, Faith, darling, you and Bob came just in time! He was—awful! I never dreamed—I thought he was a perfect gentleman. Honest... I did, Faith! I'd have killed myself before I'd have let him—"

"Shut up!" Bob commanded her sternly.

"Bob—" Cherry began. pitcously. reaching out a hand that gleamed ghost-white in the darkness. "Don't you — don't you — love me — any more?"

"Oh, for God's sake, hush!" His voice was like the lash of a whip across her face. She drew back, moaning.

"Of course you don't." Hathaway said more quietly, as if he could not bear to lay the weight of an unkind word upon the gentleness of her love for Cherry. "But Ettleson was right. That's the reason—one reason—I didn't kill him or scramble his face for him. She tricked him, planned to work him for all he was worth and keep the only coin with which she could pay him back—her virtue. What's virtue like that worth—that's been bought and paid for but not delivered? Oh, God!"

Cherry sobbed herself to sleep during the last ten miles, and had to be shaken gently, like a limp child, when the car drew up at the curb before the Lane house in Myrtle street.

Her round, sleep-flushed face was as innocent as a baby's when she walked into her mother's room. Faith, behind her, clenched her hands with futile anger at the cooing, sweet music of her solicitude as she bent over the stricken woman whose eyes blared open suddenly, then filled with a very glory of love.

"Cherry, honey! Your Muggy's sick! I hope I didn't spoil a good time for you—ought to have told Muggy where you were going, honey." Mrs. Lane talking weakly, held up her heavy arms for an instant, then let them drop with a groan.

"Cherry's sorry, Muggy! So awfully sorry! You and Dad were asleep, and I didn't want to disturb you. Bob couldn't take me out this afternoon, and Fern Bostwick drove over from Darrow and wanted me to go over to her house for supper—I won't do it again, Muggy! Feel better, darlingest?"

Faith could stand it no longer, ran blindly to the living room, where Hathaway was waiting to take her to the hotel where poor little Mrs. Ettleson was waiting for news.

"I can't stand it, Bob!" She flung an arm across her streaming eyes. "I'm sick of lying—for Cherry! But what can I do? Oh, Bob, what can I do?"

"Marry her off as quick as you can!" Again Bob Hathaway put his arm around her shoulders. "I believe she's engaged to me, among others."

HON. T. M'GARRY AT LAKEFIELD

GOOD MEETING

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 29.—A meeting was held in the Lakefield Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening, in the interests of Col. T. D. Johnston, the Conservative candidate for the Provincial Legislature in the coming election.

The attendance was not large, but the audience lived up to the custom of the village in being an orderly one, with no attempt at heckling.

Reeve J. C. Strickland occupied the chair and addressed the audience for a few minutes before calling on the candidate. Mr. Strickland endorsed Col. Johnston and expressed the utmost confidence in Premier Ferguson, whose interest in each and every department is constructive and well advised. Ontario has never had a Premier like him. Mr. Sinclair appears to have only one plank in his platform, viz., the O.T.A., and that is a question requiring deep thought, and more especially from the ladies, who don't know the evils of the bootleggers to the same extent as the men do. The speaker does not think any measure will bring total temperance, only education can do that, and Premier Ferguson, in backing Government control, feels it will be a greater step toward true temperance than the O.T.A. has been. There is not one single thing in the administration of the Ferguson Government that its opponents can criticize, said the speaker.

Mr. Anderson, on Saturday at the nomination, referred to what he hoped to accomplish, if elected, for the high schools. The speaker recalled Mr. Anderson opposing every motion in the County Council to give a grant toward the high schools.

The Candidate.

Col. T. D. Johnston was the next speaker, and announced himself as a supporter of Premier Ferguson's platform. The record of the administration has been an economical and efficient one, and while there spent, good value has been given for every dollar. There have been mistakes, but neither Mr. Ferguson nor any of his colleagues claims to be a super man. Mr. Price has, with his Provincial audit of revenue, accomplished wonders in the Treasury Department. The debt of Ontario is very large, but Mr. Price has a plan whereby the 346 million dollar debt will be wiped out in 40 years. Mr. Price has promised a four million dollar tax reduction for the Province, and one item of this is the $5 reduction in the license fees on motor vehicles; doing away with the amusement tax on entertainments, costing 25 cents or less was another item, and also there was a substantial increase in the municipal income tax exemptions.

The county roads received from the Drury Government 40 per cent. of their cost, and the township roads 20 per cent. Under the Ferguson regime the county receives 50 per cent. and the township roads 30 per cent. Also half the road superintendents' salaries are met by the Provincial Government. The Reeve of Otonabee told the speaker that this increase of help meant $1,000 more for that township. Mr. Ferguson was much more generous in his treatment of the people than Mr. Drury. In the sparsely settled parts of the country there is the colonization roads system administered under the Department of Lands and Forests. This system received some sixteen thousand dollars from the Drury Government, while more than $375,000 has been spent by the Ferguson Government, besides $5,000 on bridges in the sparsely settled districts.

In spite of Mr. Drury's poor treatment of the people of the province, he had a fifteen million dollar deficit, while Mr. Ferguson's Government presents a balanced budget.

Mr. Ferguson's grants to rural schools amount to more than $46,000 more than that received under the Drury Government. In the Department of Highways, Mr. George S. Henry found the salaries of the Highway Department in 1923, when he took office, to be $140,100, and without reducing the efficiency of the Department, the salaries now amount to $67,750. And all this in spite of the fact that the U.F.O. had pledged themselves to reduce the Civil Service and weed out all unnecessary assistants, taxation has increased or has been changed, but no one can say but that the gasoline tax is equitable and just, and it is here to stay.

speaker felt it should be discussed calmly without bigotry or the introduction of the personal element. No one doubts that the O.T.A. has done good; it did away with the bar in one fell stroke, but each year has seen a large increase in the cost of enforcement and greater infringement of the law. Mr. Raney, who was Attorney-General with the Drury Government, could not enforce it, nor could his successor, Mr. Nickle, who was Attorney-General under the Ferguson Government. Mr. Nickle said in February, 1925, that unless some relief was afforded the O.T.A. was doomed, for the vote of 1924 intensified the difficulties of enforcement. Now Mr. Nickle is a "dry" candidate. Mr. Johnston said he admitted the sincerity of the prohibitionists, and asked the same courtesy for ourselves.

Rev. A. W. MacKenzie.

Rev. A. W. MacKenzie was the next speaker, who spoke as one of the majority of people who believe in the enforcement of the law, but "we have a law on our statute books which is not enforced, viz., the O.T.A."

The question is Government control vs. the O.T.A. The speaker referred to his being sandwiched in between the other two speakers as mortar between two stones, and "the mortar is wet and so am I," said the speaker, amid applause, "in the sense that I do not believe in prohibition. I am an Anglican parson, and within the last two or three weeks the Anglican Church has come out for Government control, because it believes in law enforcement, but you must have public opinion behind the law before you can enforce it."

The speaker spoke too as a school master, who has had many years' experience in teaching boys, and as the years ago by he sees the distinct improvement in the fact that the sense of moral responsibility is coming earlier now to the boys than in former years. "The world has been growing more temperate, but the O.T.A. has set back the hands of time. When our Lord was on earth He was at a marriage feast, and when the wine ran short He made more, for wine maketh glad the heart of man. Later, just prior to His death, he said: 'I will drink no more wine with you till I drink in the kingdom of Heaven.' Wine and whisky were given us by God for man's use, but not for abuse."

The speaker said he knew that in speaking openly against the O.T.A. himself in the position of being classed by the prohibitionists with the disreputable, but "this O.T.A. is a product of Puritanism, which is a direct descendant of Phariseeism. We are in great danger of becoming like the Americans, who make many laws and then proceed to break them. In the British Isles few laws are made, but they are obeyed, and we must remember that we are British subjects and don't let us bring up our boys to smile at law breaking.

"The great question is, will we have Government control or O.T.A.? Will we submit to prohibition or will be declare that we can look after ourselves? In Lakefield, Peterborough and other places many will vote for the O.T.A. who have whisky and beer in their cellars, and they are Pharisees. If people are honest in being prohibitionists we can respect them, but if they talk one thing and practice another we can only regard them with contempt."

Hon. T. A. McGarry.

Hon. T. A. McGarry was the last speaker, and he delivered a forceful address. He paid a tribute to the address of Rev. A. W. MacKenzie, saying he had never listened to a more eloquent address or one more to the point than that of the reverend gentleman. Mr. McGarry entered the Ontario Legislature in 1905 at the same time as Premier Ferguson, who was his desk mate for the next fourteen years. These men entered Parliament at the time Sir James Whitney became Premier. "There is no man with more legislative ability and sincerity than Premier Ferguson," he said, "and all through his political career he has given of his best. He was a great aid to Sir James Whitney. Messrs. Sinclair and Raney can't point to one act which is open to opposition in the three and a half years of the Ferguson administration.

"There are 52 Liberal candidates nominated, and if every one of them is elected you could not have a Liberal Government, and so on with the smaller groups which make up the total of those seeking election in the coming campaign. If you wish to have a consistent administration you must consider more than the O.T.A."

Mr. McGarry paid a high tribute to the Cabinet Ministers selected by Premier Ferguson to assist in carrying on the government of the province. John S. Martin has carried on the Department of Agriculture most creditably, despite the fact that he followed an administration of farmers which had an especially able man as Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Martin is a self-made man, who has made his name a household word, and whose report on his investigations on intensive farming as he studied it in Europe should be in every farm home.

Hon. Charles McRea has done his duty so well in the interests of Northern Ontario, where most of our mines are situated, that he has been re-elected by acclamation in Sudbury district. He brought to his Department a full knowledge of the possibilities of Northern Ontario.

The speaker spoke on the O.T.A. at some length, referring to the vote taken by Sir George Ross, where, out of 400,000 total vote, there was a majority of 81,000 for prohibition, but he would not impose it, for he said the majority was not large enough to afford sufficient backing, and in 1905 he went out of office, leaving unperformed promises of prohibition.

Sir James Whitney brought in the local option measure, which had to have 60 per cent. of the vote to be enforced, and on this measure 800 municipalities went dry, and in 1914 only 300 municipalities had licenses. In 1914 Hon. N. W. Rowell went to the country as a Liberal leader of the province on the "abolish the bar" issue, but to retain the privately owned liquor store, and "Ben. Spence and Messrs Drury and Raney and probably Mr. Nickle supported him. Now these same men who were willing to support the liquor stores are howling against Government control."

The speaker lived six months of each year, from 1920 to 1924, in when the Liberal Premier, Hon. John Oliver, introduced Government control, which has brought in such splendid revenue to the province. The Liberal Government of Saskatchewan also has introduced Government control, but when did you see the Toronto Star, Rev. Ben. Spence, or Messrs. Drury and Raney say anything of these Liberal Governments? It was only when Premier Ferguson brings in his bill that they claim the country is going to the bow-wows.

The O.T.A. was introduced in 1910 after two years of war as a war time measure, when the country was making enormous sacrifices of both men and money, and people were ready to give up luxuries. It was a war time measure, and it was understood that a vote would be taken after the war, and in 1919 the Government of Sir William Hearst, who brought in this measure, was turned out. Hon. I. D. Lucas was Attorney-General under the Hearst Government, and he was succeeded by Hon. W. E. Raney, who held the office for the four years of the Drury Government, and in his time the number of bootleggers increased hugely, as thousands and millions of dollars were to be made by this illicit traffic.

In 1924 Premier Ferguson granted a plebiscite, with the result that the majority in favor of the O.T.A. had shrunk to 33,000 out of a million and a half votes.

Thirty years ago Rev. Dr. Potts and Rev. Dr. Carmen said that at least 70 per cent. of the people should be behind a law to allow its proper enforcement, and Premier Ferguson found not 1 per cent. majority. "If he is re-elected on December 1st he will change the O.T.A. in this way, instead of bootleggers we will have Government stores, which will have licenses, and every owner will be registered, and because the Government stores will sell lower than the bootlegger, he and his business will disappear, for men won't buy an inferior article from a bootlegger when they can buy the best at a Government store."

Mr. McGarry referred briefly to the frightful trail of death which resulted from a cargo of poisonous liquor coming in from the U. S. last summer, when there were 50 weaths in one week, a tragedy unequalled in Ontario's history.

"It is not fair that men should abuse Howard Ferguson because he introduced Government control; it is not a retrograde step, but an advance where, instead of millions spent with bootleggers, the province will derive the benefit," he said.

Mr. McGarry closed by urging the return of Col. Johnston to the Legislature, where he had done so much and would be in a position to do more in the future.

PROHIBITIONISTS HOLD MEETING

Dr. Robertson and Others Speak at Bensfort Hall.

SUPPORT O.T.A.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 29.— A temperance meeting was held by the Prohibition Union of this township in Bensfort Hall on Wednesday evening The candidate, Dr. Robertson of Colborne was present, and delivered a brief address previous to attending another meeting on the same evening at Cobourg.

There was a splendid crowd present, and Mr. David Dodds was chosen chairman for the meeting. The speakers of the evening were, Rev. R. T. Richards of Mark Street Church, Peterborough, Dr. Robertson, of Colborne; Mrs. Dudley of Cobourg, and Rev. H. W. Foley of Fraserville. Mr. V. Boorman of Peterborough also added greatly to the program by rendering several well-chosen vocal solos.

The first speaker of the evening was Mrs. Dudley of Cobourg. The speaker stressed the point that when it came to bringing prohibition into politics, it was high time that women must come into the fray and work to decide which measure was the best for the betterment of the province. "We believe" stated Mrs. Dudley, "that the Ontario Temperance Act can be enforced by a sincere government; we know that it is not perfect, but we are working and planning to improve the Act to the best of our ability, and for the protection of the homes and the welfare of the state, and we know that the sale of alcohol through the Government Control would be a backward step. We have already voted and obtained prohibition, and it is up to the government to enforce the Act as they claimed they would.

"Government Control is nothing more or less than a freer sale of alcohol, and we have no desire to see our government make money out of the sale of intoxicating liquors."

Comparing the Province of Ontario with the Western Provinces that are now under the legislation of Government Control, she said it would be a complete failure. If liquor is put in plenty before the people they are going to use it more freely. In Manitoba every citizen can secure twelve bottles of whiskey a week by having a permit. Many do not use all they secure by their permit, and what they do not use for home consumption, they sell out by the glass, to those who cannot afford to buy it in a quantity.

Bootleggers in Manitoba today are doing a flourishing business. Plenty of boys in Ontario do not know where there is a bootlegger doing business, but if the liquor store was right in front of them they could easily secure the liquor.

In concluding her address the speaker stated that the Ontario Temperance Act, although passed in legislation, had not had the support of the leader, Hon. Howard Ferguson, and "I implore the audience tonight to stand behind and elect one who has pledged himself to enforce the O.T.A. in the person of Mr. Sinclair. Dr. Robertson, your temperance candidate has pledged himself to stand behind the Act and it is up to us as temperance advocates to elect Dr. Robertson as our candidate, because it would be a sad day for Ontario if people allowed themselves to be fooled and miss the chance of sustaining the Ontario Temperance Act."

Dr. Robertson was the second speaker of the evening, and in opening his address stated that he considered it unfair to the County of Northumberland that the Premier should allow the re-distribution bill to make this riding so large. The debt had also greatly multiplied greatly year after year since the Ferguson Government went into power. Premier Ferguson also allowed several ridings to go without a member, some for more than a year. The speaker stressed the point that Premier Ferguson had been flirting with the Ontario Temperance Act, and had brought it on, giving the people of Ontario only forth-three days to consider it, while he had been studying it for over two years. "If he is returned to power he will owe the wets for putting him there, and as he is in league with the wets he will use his power to give the wets what they ask for," he said.

"Because Major Belford, the ex-member for East Northumberland did not fall in line with all the Premiers' policies, he was actually driven from the party. Also, Mr. Nickle scarcely had a chance to become a member because he would not back the Premier up on all his steps. He is having a hard fight because the wets are very much against him, and all because he has a principle and states he believes the Ontario Temperance Act could be enforced. I hope that if Mr. Nickle is defeated, that some member will give his seat to him, as it is men with principles who are needed to run the Ontario government. If I am elected as your member I will certainly support Mr. Sinclair, or if Mr. Nickle is elected I will support him. (Cheers.)

"If Ontario does get Government Control, the people will get the liquor, and then they will control the liquor instead of the Government. When a man becomes blue or downcast that is the time when he will buy a bottle of liquor. That takes five dollars from the home. A man cannot drink liquor today and carry on as he could twenty years ago, not in this age of motor cars and other modern inventions."

The speaker severely condemned men who are supporting the Ferguson Government Control policy and call themselves dry conservatives. "Major Belford kicked over the tugs and voted against the Premier's 4.4 measure," he said and the consequences were, they kicked him out. They forced him from the situation. They brought out another man who claims to be a temperance man, and I believe is, but still he intends to support the Ferguson policy.

"If you people care to send me up to Toronto as your representative I am sure I can do something to enforce the Act, and to help the County of Northumberland in general. I feel that the O.T.A., if returned, will be so enforced that bootlegging will almost entirely be done away with."

Rev. H. W. Foley then made a brief address, explaining that this meeting was not a political meeting, but absolutely a temperance meeting. "We have a right to stand up for the best interests of our country," stated the third speaker, "we who love our God and do our best to follow in his footprints."

Mr. Foley stated that Dr. Robertson was his dentist when he was stationed at Linton, and he knew him quite well. He always found him to be a great worker in the church of God, and a staunch supporter of prohibition.

All temperance organizations now belong to the Temperance Union, and the members of the Union require two things of the candidates they support in Parliament. First, that they will take the stand as prohibitionists and, second, that they will do all in their power to enforce the O.T.A. and Dr Robertson coming out as a prohibitionist will secure the support of the Northumberland prohibition Union.

In the last election the township of South Monaghan voted strong for the O.T.A., and members of the Prohibition Union feel they are doing right to stand behind and vote for Dr. Robertson, as the candidate on the opposite side has publicly declared his support of the sale of liquor under Government Control.

Rev. R. T. Richards was the fourth speaker of the evening and held the audience in perfect order for almost two hours with his interesting and inspiring address.

The speaker stated that in the last prohibition election, South Monaghan voted four to one in favour of the O.T.A., carrying the election with one hundred and eighty of a majority for the O.T.A.

"Many people are critizing we minis

but I feel that it is exercising my duty by coming out in a public meeting of this kind and speaking on behalf of the Ontario Temperance Act. Many are also opposed to we ministers taking this stand in the election, but the question of prohibition is a question to be dealt with by the churches as it deals with the welfare of our people.

"In 1911 the O.T.A.; was first put into the books in the legislature. Premier Hearst was then the leader and Hon. N. W. Rowell was leading the Liberals. Ten years have gone by and what has the O.T.A. done for Ontario. Some have become discouraged because it has not done all it might have done. Has it done any good? Yes! It has taken away the village drunkard. The bar-room, with its noisy rabble and fights, and has left almost all of our homes in comfortable circumstances. It has entirely changed the conditions of our villages and homes. In days when liquor was plentiful; a large percentage of the bread-winner's earnings went to the bar-tender, and the consequences were—the homes suffered. Conditions are entirely changed today.

"You remember what a disgraceful day fair day used to be, and the 12th of July, no matter where you looked there was nothing but drunken men and a public holiday was a day when many men would celebrate by getting real drunk. But today we go to the 12th of July celebration, the baseball games, etc., and although we may smell alcohol off an occasional man's breath; still, the general atmosphere of the gathering is most respectable.

"Some of the wets say, 'Ontario is getting to be a queer place when we cannot have our personal liberties.' But we cannot have our personal liberties in many things (especially you men who are married know this). Many of the people here this evening live near Rice Lake, and I quite frequently see in the paper where a man has been fined for catching a fish out of season, or killing a deer out of season. It would not do for us to be allowed to have our liberties to go ahead and slaughter the fish and game; and it is true that there are many things in Ontario that it would never do to have our liberties to do with them as we choose.

"If the Ferguson policy does carry; they are going to change the O.T.A. They will allow anyone over 21 years of age to get a permit. The permit system, in other provinces, have not worked, and we have no guarantee that it will work out in any different manner in Ontario.

"We are living in an age of high-powered motor cars, and if Government Control is brought in people would quite easily get the whiskey from the government stores, even though they were 20 or 30 miles distant.

"Hon. Mr. Nickle stated that the O.T.A. could be enforced and he knew whereof he spoke. Mostly all the laws are violated by a few who refuse to keep the laws of Ontario. The game laws, the motor vehicle law, and others, so it cannot but be expected that there are the thirsty few who will try and violate the Ontario Temperance Act. And just because there is a great deal of difficulty in enforcing the O.T.A., that is no reason why it should be wiped off the statute books.

"One would think to hear the wets talking that there was a bootlegger behind every hedge and corner, and this reminds me of the story of the soldier in France who happened to get bugs on him and didn't know what they were. One day a friend asked him what was the matter with him and he said he didn't know but it was something like arithmetic, because they added to his troubles, they subtracted from his pleasures, they divided his attention, and they multiplied like the devil, so this reminds me of the story the wets tell about the numerous bootleggers. If we change our Act we are going to have more bootleggers; according to other provinces. Vancouver has about one-third the oppulation of Toronto and there are between seven and eight thousand bootleggers in that city.

"There are three reasons why bootleggers will flourish under the Government Control:

"Liquor stores will close at a certain time and the working man returning from work will not be able to get his liquor and so will patronize the bootlegger.

"Many will abuse their privileges and will have their permits taken from them, and they will fall back on the bootlegger.

"The young people under 21 years of age will secure liquor from the bootlegger, and thus the bootlegging will not be eliminated.

"Is it good business to obtain a revenue from the sale of alcohol? In Quebec they tell the people that the revenue on the sales of liquor pays for the upkeep of the roads, but at the same time when the money is going into the beer parlours it is keeping it away from the shoe dealer, the clothing stores, etc. Quebec school houses are like wood shacks compared with the splendid schools of Ontario, and while Ontario spends nine millions of dollars annually on education, Quebec spends two millions of dollars on educating the youth of the province. Where Government Control exists the taxes have not been lessened.

"There are 400,000 motor cars in the Province of Ontario, and allow men under the influence of liquor to drive these cars, and our roads would be in a most unsafe condition to travel upon.

"In the forthcoming election it is the duty of the people of Ontario to leave party affiliations aside, and vote to build up higher ideals and a better Ontario."

PRESENTATION MADE BY CHOIR MEMBERS

Mrs. Vincent Cranley Given Silverware on Her Wedding Day.

DOURO, Nov. 29.—On the day of her wedding, Mrs. Vincent Cranley received a very handsome gift of a silver sugar and cream set with tray, from St. Joseph's Choir, of which she was a member. Mr John Sheehan, speaking said that on mariages of other choir members they held presentations, and they could not leave this occasion pass without doing the same.

Mr. Cyril Lee read the following address, Miss Mabel Allen making the presentation:

To Miss Hazel Heffernan, Douro:

Dear Hazel,—We, your fellow members of St. Joseph's church choir, are gathered together to-day to enjoy the hospitality of your parents' home, and to wish you well on this the great day of your life.

We cannot let the occasion pass without expressing our regret that your marriage will probable mean your ceasing to be a member of the choir. We also, as a body, wish to extend our best wishes for your future happiness, and we extend congratulations to your husband.

We are pleased that you are not leaving the parish, that you will still be living amongst us.

You were always ready to assist with your voice in singing God's praises and with your cheerful and genial personality you were always a pleasant companion. We shall miss you from amongst us, but life is full of partings.

That your married life may be bright and happy is the sincere wish of the members of St. Joseph's choir, Douro.

We ask you to accept this small gift as a token of our esteem and as a memento of your fellow choir members

Signed by Organist, Miss Mabel Allen, also Choir members, Miss May Whibbs, Miss Clara Condon, Misses Kathleen and Isabella Towns, Misses Mary, Rose and Margaret Whibbs, Miss Mary Walsh, Miss Agnes Sweeney, Mr. John Sheehan, Mr. Cyril Lee.

Mr. Cranley responded in behalf of his bride, thanking the choir for their kindness and hoping that they would all be having similar occasions before this time next

SALES AND BAZAARS

BAILIEBORO, November 29th.—On Thursday afternoon and evening the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church held a pie social in Bateson's Hall. A delightful supper was served to a fairly large crowd and the ladies of the Society also held a sale of aprons, home-make candy, cooking, and other small articles which found eager buyers awaiting their turn to get what they desired.

After the supper the crowd congregated in the church, where an excellent programme was enjoyed. Rev H. W. Foley acted as chairman, and in his opening address spoke briefly in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Among those who so ably assisted in entertaining the delightful audience, were Miss Jean Hawkins, of Canton, who kept the audience in continuous laughter, with her comic readings, Mr. Frank Dawson, Superintendent of the United Sunday School, with several vocal solos, which won hearty applause; a mixed quartette, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. N. Thompson, Miss D. Falls and K. Lang, which added greatly to the evening's programme. Little Elva Jewison gave a splendid reading, while Misses D. and M. Falls sang a duet which also won it: hearty round of applause.

A fee of thirty cents for adults and twenty cents for children was charged, and the treasurer gave the report of the money taken in at the end of the programme, which went to show the receipts amounted to over $50.

There were quite a number present from the Fraserville congregation.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

That highly popular idiom, "Be Yourself," with which so many young people greet each other nowadays, is replete with some valuable philosophy. Most of the "uncomfortable" people I know are trying to be something and somebody else.

Take Ada, for instance, who is a bright women of about 35 who has built up a unique business. Ada is no lady but she is a first-class automobile mechanic, as good as any of the half dozen young male chauffeur-mechanics she fires.

For Ada runs an automobile renting business and owns a dozen imposing cars of the best makes. She started ten years ago with one car, which she rented out to people who preferred a private car to a taxi. She has now built up a big business, and has specialized in providing handsome cars for funerals and weddings, or for well-to-do visitors in town who wish a private car on call. Ada's husband, although theoretically the head of the firm, is really one of the chauffeurs. He drives people on long trips, up to, say, Canada, or down to Mexico—where it is essential that a responsible member of the firm takes charge.

Business Was Ada's Idea.

But the business was Ada's idea and Ada stays at home and runs it, and works as a mechanic herself, and hires and fires the help, buys the new machines, trades in the old ones, manages all the finances, and is altogether a most interesting and capable personage—in working overalls. When they lived in a small house in a modest neighborhood, they were the king-pins of their set.

But now that the business has proved so successful, Ada has decided to break into society. She has begun by buying a 20,000 house in a fashionable neighborhood—and trying to run it on the sort of help she hired to mind the little girl and run the modest house in the cheap neighborhood.

And when she gets out of her working overalls, she gets into imported French gowns and ermine coats and ropes of pearls, and dresses the little girl up in "exclusive creations for fashionable misses" . . . and waits in vain for the society women in her new grand neighborhood to call.

An Imitation Lady.

With the grand clothes, Ada adopts a grand manner, which she fondly hopes is "society." Last year she and her husband and the small girl "Did Europe." She ached to see the information in the society columns, with picture—and made the error of offering to pay a society editor to put it in for her. The society editor was quite unpleasant about it.

So now the once capable, remarkable, admirable Ada is a second-rate society aspirant, breaking her heart trying to be anything but herself. She is a marvellous business woman and automobile mechanic but a very punk society lady. Both her old friends and her new are laughing at her. Her new ones are spurious "society" people—and in her heart the shrewd Ada knows them for such, although she gushes over them as the best obtainable at present. In her overalls, overhauling a balky engine, Ada commands respect. She is somebody. In her French gowns and ermine and jewels, she is an imitation lady, self-conscious, ill at ease, and talks in a false voice and imitation highbrow English. And Ada's little girl, who was once a bright, merry, natural child, is fast growing into an impossible cheap little snob.

Now that sort of thing is rather heart-breaking—it is turning all Ada's success to dress. Nothing can save Ada's happiness now that she has decided to be anything but herself—outside of business hours.

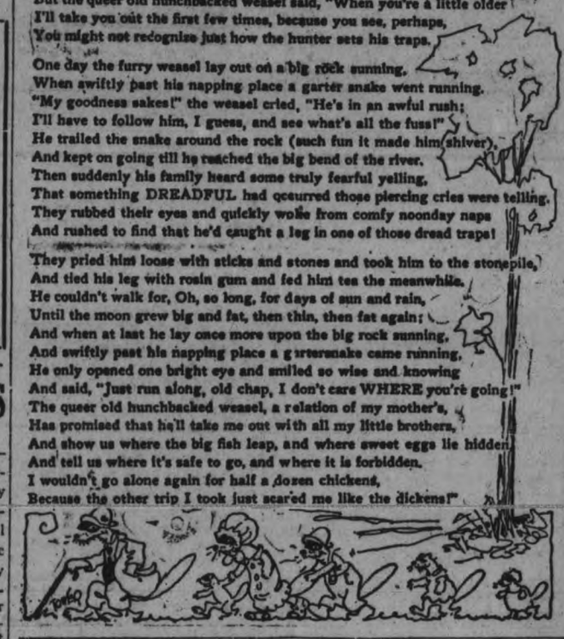
The Weasel

By SHIRLEY ROWMAN WILLIAMS.

HUMAN nature has a distaste for being obviously improved. We are perfectly willing to profit by the other person's mistakes—that is if the moral isn't pointed out too plainly. Children enjoy animal characters in stories, and these characters afford an excellent vehicle for interesting story material as well as character building experiences.

DOWN beyond the forest, where the trees grow big and tall,
In a stonepile in the shadow of a splashy waterfall,
Lived a furry little weasel with his parents and his brothers,
And a queer old hunchbacked weasel, some relation of his mother's.
And the queer old hunchbacked weasel told them stories that were thrilling,
Of a henhouse full of chickens, and the turkeys he'd been killing;
Of the fish that leaped the rapids, of the wild quail in the brushes,
And the luscious, juicy duck eggs hidden in their nests of rushes;
Till the little furry weasel felt himself grow bold and bolder.
But the queer old hunchbacked weasel said, "When you're a little older
I'll take you out the first few times, because you see, perhaps,
You might not recognize just how the hunter sets his traps.
One day the furry weasel lay out on a big rock sunning,
When swiftly past his napping place a garter snake went running.
"My goodness sakes!" the weasel cried, "He's in an awful rush;
I'll have to follow him, I guess, and see what's all the fuss!"
He trailed the snake around the rock (such fun it made him shiver)
And kept on going till he reached the big bend of the river.
Then suddenly his family heard some truly fearful yelling,
That something DREADFUL had occurred those piercing cries were telling.
They rubbed their eyes and quickly woke from comfy noonday naps
And rushed to find that he'd caught a leg in one of those dread traps!
They pried him loose with sticks and stones and took him to the stonepile,
And tied his leg with rosin gum and fed him tea the meanwhile.
He couldn't walk for, Oh, so long, for days of sun and rain,
Until the moon grew big and fat, then thin, then fat again;
And when at last he lay once more upon the big rock sunning,
And swiftly past his napping place a garternake came running,
He only opened one bright eye and smiled so wise and knowing
And said, "Just run along, old chap, I don't care WHERE you're going!"
The queer old hunchbacked weasel, a relation of my mother's,
Has promised that he'll take me out with all my little brothers,
And show us where the big fish leap, and where sweet eggs lie hidden,
And tell us where it's safe to go, and where it is forbidden.
I wouldn't go alone again for half a dozen chickens,
Because the other trip I took just scared me like the dickens!"



U.F.O. CONCERT.

Stewart Hall Young People Put on Splendid Play.

The concert held by the Peterborough U.F.C. Club, in the Temperance Hall, Fourth Line of Smith, on Wednesday evening, was a huge success. The play, "The Colonel's Maid," in three acts, given by Stewart Hall Young People, was the best ever given in Smith township. A solo by James Petrie, an address by Rev. W. S. Edgar, guitar instrumentals by Misses Ivy and Mae Petrie ;also recitations by Miss Phylis Moore, were much enjoyed. E A. Scott, the president, acted as chairman.

The annual business meeting of Peterborough Club will be held on Dec. 7, in Simcoe street hall, Petreborough.

THE HOME KITCHEN

(By Jeanette Norton.)

FISH AS A STAPLE ARTICLE OF DIET.

Besides protein and fat, fish contains sulphur, phosphorus, iodine, iron and chlorine, all of which, in their balanced quantities, we need in our food rations. The fat of fish is easily digested and the proteins as digestible as those in meat. Not only is fresh fish recommended by diet specialists, but frozen fish that have been frozen fresh is favored.

The freezing of fish is done at the place where they are caught. They are dressed, placed in boxes with cracked ice, then sent to the freezer, where they are frozen solid, then glazed with an ice water bath that makes a glaze over the entire fish, then kept at that temperature until sent to market. Many dealers thaw the fish before selling it. If this has not been done there are two ways to do it at home. First, lay the fish on ice over night, where it will thaw naturally and retain all its good table qualities. If, however, it is needed for immediate use, lay it in a large pan of cold water and the moment it grows pliable prepare it for cooking.

In preparing the thawed frozen fish, rinse it off and dry it. Remove the head, tail and fins, clean and wipe out the entrail cavity with a little water, to which a small amount of baking soda has been added, and wipe it with wipe it with a bit of clean cheesecloth. Remove skin, bones and fillet the fish if desired.

There are a few signs to judge the condition the fish was in before it was frozen if we look carefully. The skin should be shiny and the scales closely adhere to it. The gills should be a bright red, the eyes transparent and bulging, the mouth and gills closed and the fish rather stiff, even after being thawed.

In the white-fleshed fish the fat is found principally in the liver, and this is why these fish are recommended for invalid cookery. In the dark-fleshed fish the fats are distributed throughout the body. A considerable amount of the protein is in the form easily digested as fresh fish, for the salting hardens the fibres, salt cod, perhaps, being the only exception, as, when properly soaked and carefully cooked, it is a valuable and inexpensive protein food.

Halibut, haddock, flounder and cod are in season the year round, but the other fish should be watched and eaten at the peak of their season to be at their best.

Though the oyster season is waning, it might not be amiss to say that they also have a content of protein, fat, carbohydrates and water which makes them a valuable food during their season. Clams are good all year round, and, while their tougher portions are not as easy to digest as the soft parts, the juice, on account of its digestibility and stimulating properties, is invaluable in the sick room.

GOOD-NIGHT STORY

BETTY PEEKS INTO A QUEER LITTLE HOME.

"Oh, dear!" Betty grumbled crossly as she picked up the broom. "I just wish I lived where- —"

"Wait a second, wait a second," whispered a tiny voice and a tiny hand caught hold of Betty's apron as she was whisked into the air. "It's a good thing I happened along just then."

"Gracious me! I'll say it was, Gocomeback," Betty laughed. "Where are we going?"

"Don't ask me," replied Gocomeback. "You did the wishing that time. Catch hold of that broom and swing upon the handle."

Betty caught hold of the broom and they both flew through the air.

"My, I'm glad you happened along," Betty shivered to think what might have happened if she had made the trip alone. She was glad when the broom began to sink towards the ground.

She and Gocomeback jumped down on the ground in front of a group of queer little houses.

A little brown girl came running out to meet them and Betty asked her where they were.

"Why, you're in India, of course," replied the little brown girl. She invited Betty and Gocomeback into the house. They entered the little low opening used for a doorway. Such a funny house. Betty thought of the wish she had just about made when she was whisked off the porch in North America.

There was neither a chair, table or bed in the whole place. Betty was at a loss what to do with herself until the little brown girl invited her to sit on the mud floor.

"See how nice it is to have no chairs and tables to dust?" she laughed. "I know you'll like it here with us. I never have to sweep or dust. We don't even have beds to make every day or tables to set like you children in America do."

"But where do you eat?" asked Betty. "Where's your dishes? Where do you sleep?"

"We eat on the floor," replied the little brown girl. "Not from dishes like you do, but from plantain leaves laid on the floor. We don't have to wash them afterwards. But we do have to go out and gather the leaves before each meal. Bed, did I hear you ask about? No, we don't have any beds, either. Just a mat made from palm leaves. This we unroll every night and roll up again in the morning. No work like you have to do. No sweeping, no dusting and no dish washing."

Betty thought of the dishes piled in the sink, the beds unmade and floors all mussed. She turned to Gocomeback with a smile.

"Guess we'd better be going home," she whispered.

Gocomeback smiled and once more Betty stood in her own kitchen in North America. Bidding the elfin goodby, Betty gathered up the broom and began sweeping. That was the last time anyone ever heard Betty wishing she lived any place but in good old North America.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Everyone knows by this time that thin women can be made to look fairly plump and stout women to look almost slender by the appropriate cut and drapery of their gowns. Not so many people realize that the proportions of the rooms of a house may be made to appear other than they really are simply by the design of the wall decoration.

An apartment or house looks more spacious and roomy if all the connecting rooms are papered or tinted alike. For this reason, in most of the new small houses, we find the same type of wood work and wall covering throughout. In a large, barn-like house an effect of coziness may be gained by papering and decorating some of the rooms unlike the others, but nowadays we usually prefer the effect of spaciousness in the rooms themselves and like to get the cozy, intimate effect by means of hangings, furniture, book shelves, lamps, etc.

If the ceilings of a room are too high, as is sometimes the case in old-fashioned houses, then they may be "brought down" by leaving a frieze above the paper or side tint of two or three feet. This frieze should be left to match the ceiling. Sometimes the ceiling may be made to seem lower if it is tinted or papered to match the rooms. A light blue tint is said to give the ceiling a higher effect since it suggests the sky Sometimes the ceilings of churches are painted a lovely dark blue like the sky when the stars are out and this gives a wonderful effect of spaciousness.

Striped papers, they say, make walls look higher just as striped frocks make women look taller. But stripes are rather hard to handle whether in wall papers or frocks. However, there are some wall papers with a satin stripe of the same tone as the rest of the paper that will give this heightened effect satisfactorily.

They say that the reason dining-rooms used to be covered with red wall paper a generation or so ago was to make them look warmer. That was before the days of steam heat, when meals were apt to be pretty cold sessions in winter time. Now we prefer the sort of warmth that a yellow wall paper gives. A room with plenty of sunshine should not be papered in yellow. Gray tones are good for very light rooms and quite recently green wall coverings have been brought back into fashion.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

FOOD THAT GO INTO OTHER FOODS

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

Every builder knows how important it is to have proper materials in building a house. He knows that bricks and mortar, and iron and steel, and a thousand and one other materials that enter into the composition of modern buildings must be just right, both in their own quality and as they appear in relation to other materials that make up the abric of the building as a whole.

Similarly, every food student knows that foods are primarily the building stones of the body. The illustration of food as building material is so common as to be trite. The figure used in this connection is, however, worth pushing a bit. It is not enough, if one aspires to know something about food and nutrition, to know what each foodstuff does in the body, important as that is. Really efficient knowledge calls for information about foodstuffs that enter into the composition of our commonly used products.

Take dry milk, for example.

This product may be used as prepared from whole milk or from skim milk. It goes without saying that when dry milk is prepared from whole milk all of the original ingredients of the milk are present. Just as it is always true economy to use fresh skim milk in soups and in puddings when these will be supplemented by fresh butter and whole milk, it is also true economy to use powdered milk prepared from skim milk.

One of the advantages of using dry milk in commercial cookery is that it adds so much food value to certain products. For example, bakers are experimenting with the use of these milk powders and the housewife should make careful inquiries as to the composition of the loaf that she buys. She may be surprised to find how high it is in food value. She will learn how the baker has taken pains to bring up the food flour, yeast and sugar, but also by using powdered milk.

Then, powdered milk plays a very important part in the making of ice-cream. No one needs to be reminded of the popularity of ice-cream. Every, one, including Johnny and Johnny's father, enjoys it, and mother knows that she is getting a real food if she is buying it from a reputable dealer. As to the products that enter into the composition of this, dry milk plays a very important part. In making ice cream it is best to use powdered milk made from whole milk, as this ensures an ice-cream rich in food value.

The point I am trying to make is this: When you buy foods for your family's table learn all you can, not only about the foods themselves, but also about the products that go to their composition.

There might almost be a slogan adopted for such a self-educating campaign. "Foods within foods," would express the idea and would also help the housekeeper to realize what a fertile field she has for study and how such study will improve her meals to say nothing of the health of her family.

WINTER FLU-PNEUMONIA DUE TO BAD LIVING HABITS.

There was almost no flu during the war. Immediately thereafter it killed millions. War compelled simple feeding on natural foods. Peace brought an orgy of feasting on meats, sugar, refined flour, part-grain cereals and other unnatural foods.

Prof. Hindehede, Denmark's food director, reduced the death rate one-half by cutting out meat, white flour, fancy cereals and sugar and substituting whole grains, milk, vegetables and fruit. There was no flu at all. But return to standard foods brought a terrible toll of death from flu to Denmark and the civilized world

Keep the blood non-acid and there will be no flu. Dr. Jackson's dietary, nuts, fruits vegetables, Roman meal, milk, will keep the blood non-acid.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LUMP CUSHION

There is no use," said the Woozie to the Fuzzy Fox; "trying to that Uncle Wiggily rabbit by s."

believe you are right," agreed ox. "I tried the trick of catching en he was getting his shoes shin- it didn't work."

sun was too bright," went on the f. "But I have another idea now.

is it?" asked the Fox, as he ran ed tongue over his white teeth to se there was anything on them to ea But there was not a crumb. "What is your idea, Mr. Wolf, if I may be so bold as to ask you kindly to tell me?" Oh, the Fox could be very polite when he wished.

"My plan is this," growled the Wolf. "We shall go boldly up to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow some evening, ring the bell, walk in and bring him out to nibble him."

"But if we go there in the evening before the little rabbit children are in bed," objected the Fox, "they will see us, and they will scream and cry and the Police Dog will come."

"That's just it!" said the Wolf with a smile. "The reason I think it will be best for us to go in the evening is that all the rabbits will be awake. They will be playing games, singing and laughing for there is no home work to do Saturday night. The Police Dog is used to hearing loud shouts of the rabbit children in the hollow stump bungalow on Saturday night. If there are a few more yells, when we take Uncle Wiggily away, that will not matter. The Police Dog will only smile and say it is Uncle Wiggily's bunnies playing.

"Perhaps you are right," said the Fox.

"I know I am right," declared the Wolf. "Come on. It will soon be evening and we'll have a rabbit for a late supper."

When the two bad chaps reached the hollow stump bungalow they could hear the merry shouts and laughter of the rabbit children. Oh, such a jolly racket as there was.

"What did I tell you?" whispered the Wolf. "A few yells, more or less will make no difference. Come on now, we'll boldly ring the bell and go in to get Uncle Wiggily."

"He is playing a pillow game with the little bunnies," softly said the Fox looking in a window. "Jingle and Jangle and the other rabbit children are throwing pillows and cushions back at them. Hear them yell!"

"The more they yell now the less they will yell when we carry off their father," said the Wolf. "Come along!"

Boldly the two bad chaps walked up the steps and rang the bell. Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy answered, and when she opened the door the Fox and Wolf impolitely and rudely pushed right past her.

"Where are you going and what do you want?" asked the muskrat lady.

"We are going to get Uncle Wiggily!" snarled the Wolf, and then he pushed open the door where Uncle Wiggily was having a pillow and cushion fight with the rabbits.

"Oh, Daddicums! Look!" yelled Jingle and Jangle and Tumble and Bumble and all the others. "The bad chaps are here."

"Oh, are they?" asked Uncle Wiggily, showing not the least sign of fear. "Well, they don't belong here. You must go right out!" he said to the Fox and Wolf.

"What if we won't go?" asked the Wolf, sneering like.

"Then I'll throw my chair cushion at you!" said Uncle Wiggily, picking it up off the floor.

"Pooh! Who is afraid of a soft cushion?" laughed the Fox. "Throw away as much as you like!"

"I'll not throw a soft cushion at you—I'll throw a lumpy one;" exclaimed the rabbit. With that he hurled his cushion, and it struck the Fox and Wolf on the head with such a hard bang that they saw stars and a moon and part of the sun and they thought it was going to rain; so out of the bungalow they ran, a bit dizzy like, but not taking Uncle Wiggily with them.

"Oh, Daddicums, what made your soft cushion so hard and lumpy like all of a sudden?" asked Jingle.

"Because, my dear," answered her father, "I put a flat iron inside through a little hole I ripped as soon as I saw the bad chaps. It was a hard flatiron that made my cushion lumpy!"

"Oh, what a good joke!" laughed the little bunnies. But the Fox and Wolf didn't think so. Anyhow that's what happened, and if the slice of toast doesn't slip on the lump of butter and slide into the sugar bowl, I'll tell you soon about Uncle Wiggily and the ink berries.

SHORT STORY

(By H. Irving King.)

Betty Walmer announced publicly, without reservations, that she would never marry a man unless he had "distinguished himself." But Charlotte Joslin forced her to add a codicil to her pronouncement. "For," said Charlotte, "a man may distinguish himself as a bootlegger, or a high-jacker, or a holdup man. You surely don't want to marry a high-jacker, for instance, do you Betty?"

"I mean distinguished in a lawful way," replied Betty. "Oh, nonsense, you know what I mean well enough; what's the use of talking?" But Charlotte was persistent: "Any particular line of lawful achievement which you would prefer the fortunate individual to be distinguished in?" she inquired. "No," replied Betty with an air of large generosity; "as a soldier, a sailor, a scientist, an educator, a diplomat," and then, blushing just a little, "or an author."

When she had added "author" to the list Betty had had in mind one Robert Isham. Bob was a young man of wealth and family, of good character, and all that sort of thing, but none of his acquaintances, in their moments of wildest flights of fancy, ever pictured him as becoming distinguished. That is, nobody but Betty. In sooth the youth was a commonplace young man, with a Class C mental equipment, warranted to make a good, steady-going husband, cast by nature for a leading part in the Darby and Joan drama of married life. That he and Betty were in love with each other there could be no doubt. But with Betty a principle was at stake; so, when he proposed to her, she told him just where he got off. He must win distinction first—the rest followed automatically.

"But how can I distinguish myself?" objected Bob. "There isn't any war, just now, for me to go to, and I don't know the first thing about science or diplomacy; as an educator I see myself foredoomed to failure." "There's authorship," replied Betty. "You can write a play, or a book. Everybody writes things now. And when you can bring me a newspaper with a review of your work in it, in which you are called 'Distinguished'—why then, Bobbie dear, I am yours."

It may seem strange of Betty to have taken this little crank about her husband being distinguished, but the fact was that she was tired of hearing her parents make remarks like, "Oh, Bob Isham is well enough, as far as he goes—but there's nothing in him," and all her acquaintances who knew of the intimacy existing between her and Robert saying the same thing, only in a less direct and brutal way. Betty was of the opinion that there was a great deal in Bob, if it could be brought out. With her fair hand as an incentive she felt assured that Bobbie would do things which would confute and confound those who persisted in regarding him as a mediocrity. She was so much in love with Robert that, rather than not marry him at all, she would have annuled, repudiated and foresworn her announcement regarding her resolve to marry none but a distinguished man—and let her friends laugh at her all they pleased. But she did want her husband to be a distinguished man, and was sure Bob could become one if he only tried.

Robert could work a typewriter—after a fashion—and this fact it was that first gave Betty the idea of turning him into a great author. To be able to operate a typewriter was, she understood, the foundation of all successful authorship. Boldly as Marmion charged at Flodden Field, or Pickett at Gettysburg, Robert Isham charged the English language. But the English language is a shifty, lawless, merciless foe; as everyone knows who has ever tackled it. Robert started out with plays, but, somehow, could never get one accepted by a manager or publisher by a publisher. Then he tried his hand at scenario writing for the movies with no better results. At last he turned his hand to fiction and produced a novel They all do it. Betty read all his manuscripts, of course, before he tried to sell them—and pronounced them wonderful! It was the stupidity of managers and publishers only that stood between Robert and fame.

At last, from one of the myriad publishers to whom Robert sent his novel, he got back a letter saying that they would give the immortal work to the public—if Robert would pay the cost of publication and a trifle of a bonus to themselves for putting it on the market. Did he bite? He did. "Florag's Revenge" was put in book form and copies sent around to the newspapers for review. Robert subscribed to a clipping bureau. "Florag's Revenge" was almost bad enough to be a best seller—not quite. All the newspapers except one ignored it. That one gave it a paragraph. The paragraph read: "An aspirant for literary fame named Robert Isham has distinguished himself by putting out the worst novel of the season—absolutely the worst, which is saying a great deal."

Robert received a shock as he read it, but not a violent one. The word "distinguished" was there—and Betty would not be unreasonable. He rushed to her with the clipping. "You have distinguished yourself, Bobbie," said she. "I always knew you would. They admit it. As to their nasty fling don't you care. Think of how the Edinburgh Review lambasted Byron when he first published." And Betty kept strictly to the letter of her engagement which was, it will be remembered, that when a newspaper called Robert "distinguished" she would marry him.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

POTS AND PANS

Not all the melody life can hold
Must all be played on a harp of gold.
I am glad that my ear has caught the tunes
In things like dishes and forks and spoons.
There's lots of music, I often think,
In the clatter of pans in a kitchen sink,
And every morning a broom goes swish
With all the melody heart could wish.

Why, the finest music that ever I heard
Was not the call of a crimson bird,
But a peddler passed with a creaking van,
And I almost went with that roving man.
For his swaying pans and his swinging pails
Rolled and rattled and ran the scales,
And filled my soul with their gypsy song
Till I nearly followed that van along.

The gypsy van dropped over the hill,
But it left its music behind it still.
I wipe the silver, I rattle the pans,
And I make a tune like the gypsy man's.
It's really remarkable what is in
A pot, a kettle, a plate of tin,
For the hand that works with a heart that sings
Finds many a tune in the commonest things!

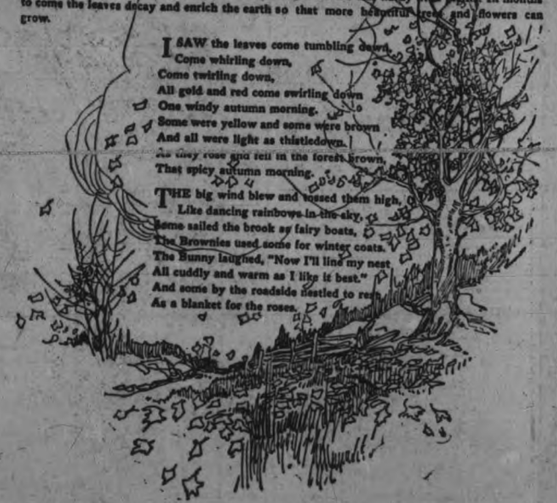
Autumn Leaves

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS.

BEFORE the leaves are all gone, don't fail to treat yourselves and the children to a walk in the woods. If no Little People live with you, borrow some and make them happy. It's such a glorious experience to see the leaves falling, and to scuff one's feet in their crispy fragrance. It's a good time to explain to the children how beautifully Nature plans and uses everything. The leaves have done their work for the trees and bushes. Plants will rest a season now, so the sap recedes into the roots to be stored till spring, and the leaves become dry. As the leaves change color from lack of sap and from the frost, they loosen their hold and fall off, only to form a warm, protective blanket for the less hardy little plants. In months to come the leaves decay and enrich the earth so that more beautiful trees and flowers can grow.



I SAW the leaves come tumbling down,
Come whirling down,
Come twirling down,
All gold and red come swirling down
One windy autumn morning.
Some were yellow and some were brown
And all were light as thistledown
As they rose and fell in the forest brown
That spicy autumn morning.

THE big wind blew and tossed them high,
Like dancing rainbows in the sky,
Some sailed the brook as fairy boats,
The Brownies used some for winter coats.
The Bunny laughed, "Now I'll line my nest
All cuddly and warm as I like it best."
And some by the roadside nestled to rest
As a blanket for the roses.

HOROSCOPE

'The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1926

This should be a fairly fortunate day, for Venus and Mars are both in benefic aspect. Uranus and Neptune are adverse.

This is held to be a lucky day for weddings and for all sorts of romance, for both men and women will be able to appear at their best.

There is a good sign for constructive work in theatres and other places of amusement.

Building that requires extraordinary engineering and architectural talent is subject to the best sort of planetary direction.

Europe and South America will call on our experts and there will be great prosperity for all who have mechanical training.

New honors for army officers are foreshadowed and there is to be an access of interest in military affairs, the seers prophesy.

Theatres and those who are connected with them may expect a season of unprecedented profit, for while there will be many plays that fail there will be much work, the stars indicate.

Under this way there may be unrest and discontentment, which affect not only the home but the place of employment.

Much deception and double dealing are foretold at this time when both individuals and nations are likely to be deceitful.

There are aspects making for tendencies to act without due consideration and to live from day to day without vision of the future.

Again serious storms at sea are presaged by the stars and there may be danger of shipwrecks.

Something embarrassing to the American nation is foretold and it may create a serious diplomatic situation.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect a quiet year with a moderate amount of success. Friends will be exceedingly helpful.

Children born on this day probably will be intelligent and industrious. These subjects of Sagittarius usually enjoy great prosperity.

OLD MASTERS

On thy cold gray stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanish'd hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!

But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

LIBERAL MEETING AT BETHANY

BETHANY, Nov. 29.—On Monday evening, Nov. 22, the town hall was three parts filled, when the Liberal candidate, Mr. W. J. Bragg, of Bowmanville, and party, spoke in the interests of the prohibition union and the O.T.A. By vote of the people Mr. William Lee was appointed chairman for the evening. Rev. Mr. Howard, of Millbrook, opened the series of addresses by explaining their policy and what their thoughts were on the issue of the day.

He was folowed by Mr. Bragg, the candidate, who said he was pleased to see so many interested in the question which caused them to be present. Mr. Bragg said it was thirty years since he had first made the acquaintances of the people of this township and never would forget their hospitality.

He said at the present time every home is a parliament and this important question of the day is being discussed. "Are we going to go forward or backward?" Among the things he said was that it was an exceedingly rare thing to see an intoxicated person on the street, on a train, or at public affairs since the O.T.A. came into force Mr. Bragg also said, "We are told that all our money from the province is going to enrich Quebec, yet how is it there are 50 per cent. more commercial failures in Quebec than Ontario?" He asked the people to consider the question carefully and prayerfully and mark their ballots on December 1st in the best interests of the province.

Mr. Meldrum, of Port Hope, was the next speaker. He cut his talk short on account of the late hour and another speaker to follow, but among the chief things he said was that the hope of the province was in the young people and he was glad to see so many young men present. He said it was well when they started right to keep going right. He asked the people of Ontario to be careful not to follow in the footsteps of Western Canada, because the biggest part of the population of the west were foreign born and were accustomed to strong drink in their own land. The people of Ontario, Canadian born, should be an example and should show their neighbors an example of what was right and what was wrong. "Keep the fair province of Ontario clean of the liquor traffic," he said in closing, "and help enforce the O.T.A. and do away with the bootlegger."

The last speaker, Mr. N. W. Galbraith, of Port Hope, was well known to the biggest part of the audience, having at one time been a citizen of the village. He said it felt good to get back home again once in a while and meet with friends. He compared the village and township around in the present day with what it was before prohibition came to the province. The older portion of the audience could well follow him in his reminiscences, but the younger part could say that very few had ever seen a person in the village or township the worse for strong drink. "So why should we want this evil thing back in our midst again." It was a matter for consideration and a matter for the people themselves to decide.

Mr. Lees, the chairman, then rose and said that after the various addresses heard he felt that no better closing could be used than the Doxology, which was heartily sung by the larger portion of the audience

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

(By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.)

That it is always possible for business concerns of the home city to sell more and expand their trade territory.

That it is always better to do that than to have the concerns of some other city come into their trade territory and do it.

That cities cannot afford to wait for business. Business won't wait—it will go where it is invited and stay where it is well treated.

That no business concern can afford to carry dead stock. Dead stocks will stay dead until they are properly advertised and moved.

GOLDBERG TELLS ABOUT BUSINESS OF CARTOONING

Cartoonist Who Draws Strip For Examiner Gives Advice.

START YOUNG.

Higher Education and Knowledge Technique Are Necessary.

By RUBE GOLDBERG

Second Vice President, American Association Cartoonists and Caricaturists. Examiner Cartoonist.

I have no illusions on the subject of advice. People have been getting good advice for thousands of years, and yet repeatedly — I should say deliberately—make the same mistakes. It's human nature to take the long shot—to figure that maybe you will somehow get by after all.

If the rankest amateur hears on all sides that he has absolutely no talent at all, he still believes he will eventually succeed as a cartoonist. Maybe he has read that General Grant as a youth was fired out of West Point; possibly he has imbibed the philosophy of grim determination from Browning's "Childe Roland to the Dark Tower Came."

I am not condemning this persistence—on the contrary, it is the biggest factor that turns ambition into realization—but the ability to take advice gracefully also is an asset worth cultivating.

I say all this by way of explaining that the editor of Cartoons asked me to make a few suggestions to beginners and others from out of my own experience. I told him I thought advice was usually futile anyhow, but he said, "Good! Include that in your story."

People who know me personally will admit that I claim no distinction as a soothsayer. Although I have been rather fortunate in the cartoon business, I have never felt qualified to point out the road that he has absolutely no talent at all, he I realize there is no substitute for individual experience and plenty of it.

Nevertheless, I do suggest that the best way to start in any trade or profession—particularly cartooning—is to start young.

This is important. When you are older your mind and body are less resilient, you cannot stand so well the wallops that are inevitable. With advancing years responsibilities increase and initiative declines. Start very young.

A popular fallacy is that the cartoonist and comic artist doesn't need higher education or a knowledge of technique. We have all met the type which insists that the grotesque complex is the only thing really necessary ;just draw the figure out of proportion and you will get a laugh out of most anybody, thus ensuring fame.

Well, Aunt Martha may fall for that, and Uncle Ned, and the grocer's boy, and the fond Sunday School teacher, but without a well-stored mind and trained hand you can never reach professional success or meet the strain of grinding out new ideas continually from your cartoon-factory.

By all means, get a high school education and go through college also, if possible. You can't get too much education. Of course, I am familiar with the fact that some students spend practically their whole lives at Heidelberg University, stuffing their heads with facts and theories that they never even assimilate, and certainly not apply. That isn't education.

Remember that the wider your knowledge, whether it be taught or self-gained, the more you will get out of life and the more you will be able to put into your cartoons.

If you really have talent, the best way to actually break into the cartoon profession is to hang around a newspaper office. Get a newspaper job, preferably in the art department. Absorb the atmosphere of men who are continually doing the things you want to do. Even if you are only an office boy or layout man or letterer at nothing a week, you have taken the first big step toward success. Practice all the time, and some day your big chance will come.

By doing art work in a newspaper office you keep close to the sources of supply and distribution. You learn at first hand how cartoons are actually made, sold and printed.

It is possible, of course, to play the lone wolf game successfully, i. e., draw your cartoons at home and peddle them to the syndicates—but to do this is to miss very valuable training and friendships.

About half of my work I do at home and the other half in my office at the McNaught Syndicate, Room 1512, Times Building, New York City. I could work entirely at home if I cared to, which I don't. I need the office atmosphere and contact with associates to keep me from going stale.

I hesitate to disclose my studio-home address because of various agents who may want to sell me something, but have never thought to find this information in the telephone book.

Confidentially, I live at 317 West 75th street, New York City. But, agents, please notice: I have a book. Also an automobile. Also insurance of all kinds. I have no capital to invest in real estate booms, oil stocks, or ignorantly happy heathens in Liberia. If I should ever want an agent for anything at all, I'll send for him. But that isn't likely to be soon, as there has never been any case of softening of the brain in our family.

At the risk of alienating any Bohemian admirers, I admit, rather brazenly, that I am happily married and I cheerfully yield to Doug Fairbanks the palm for receiving bushels of fan letters from the opposite sex.

My romance is not good copy for press agents. In fact, I had some little job in persuading Miss Irma Seeman to become Mrs. Reuben Lucius Goldberg. You see, it was this way:

Ten years ago I tried my hand at animated cartooning in a studio near Times Square. Some of my stuff was running at the Strand Theatre and I was emboldened to exhibit my films in a charity affair at Delmonico's. It was there I met Irma, and was formally introduced. She had first seen me, however, at a restaurant where we were in the habit of dining separately.

Well, Irma was the daughter of a New York wholesale grocer of White Rose Tea fame, and I was just a cartoonist. You know the reputation cartoonists had B. P. (before prohibition). All newspaper men, in fact, were regarded by some folk as more or less disreputable saloon loungers—hard-boiled and soulless. So, when I telephoned Miss Seeman asking if I could see her at her home, she replied rather loftily: "I wouldn't have a cartoonist in the house."

Finally, she agreed that I should be paraded before the family for inspection. After I had gone through that ordeal and left the house, Irma quizzed her sister, Kitty, but the only thing the latter had noticed about me was a hole in my sock. Despite this flattering remark, the marriage took place in Sherry's, ten years ago this October.

We have two sons, Tom, eight, and George, six. They both draw well. I encourage them all I can. I will be tickled if they eventually beat me at the game. They like to watch dad at work, and they draw at the same time. Incidentally, I have two brothers and a sister; none of them draw.

The question is often asked: "How did you get a start?"

There's nothing thrilling about my career, but here it is, with everything except Bertillon measurements and police court record:

I was born on the Fourth of July, 1883. (The reader who expects me to make a wise crack at this juncture will be disappointed.) I have always had a grotesque slant on life. I used to practice on the blackboards in school and was very proud when one of my drawings was hung in the Board of Education rooms. I liked Zim's stuff immensely and looked up to him with profound respect as—I still do.

At the age of eleven I studied art at night under Charles Beals, the best sign-painter in San Francisco. If Beals had had more initiative he could have become a great figure in the art world. Write your own moral.

I studied mining engineering at the University of California, to please my parents, and contributed freely to the California Pelican and the Blue and Gold Year Book. In my senior year, 1904, one of my sketches won a trip to Yosemite Valley which brought me considerable local notoriety as a cartoonist. Candor compels me to admit, however, that I was fired out of classrooms for caricaturing the profs.

After graduation I worked for three months as a city engineer in San Francisco at $100 a month, which wasn't bad in those days, but I noticed that a white-haired veteran in our office was doing the same kind of work at only $150, so I said to myself, "Rube, this is no place for you."

Cartoonists, as I stated a few paragraphs back, were not highly regarded at that time, but "the Destiny that shapes our ends" impelled me to take a newspaper job at $8 per week. That was my Rubicon. I have never since regretted becoming a cartoonist.

By a lucky break, I landed the first job I went after, on the San Francisco Chronicle. Ernest Simpson hired me, probably because his son had been familiar with my atrocities at school. I was soon raised to the munificent salary of $12 a week!

In those days editorial cartoonists were at their zenith, and all comic artists aspired to do political cartoons. The position, curiously enough, has since been reversed, due to the birth and popularity of the comic strips.

I cast longing eyes at the San Francisco Bulletin, because the cartoonist there had page-width space to play with—this looked mighty good to me. I applied many times before I finally landed the position—at $10. Please note, if a young fellow hasn't vision enough to sacrifice part of his salary for a bigger opportunity, he won't get very far as a cartoonist.

One day the Bulletin sports writer fell down on an assignment. I was to go to Reno to cover pictorially the Marvin Hart vs. Jack Root fight, and was instructed to write the story for my paper as well as draw the sketches.

I have been writing ever since, chiefly sports stuff, often illustrating my own manuscripts. Incidentally, I covered the Gans-Nelson fight and, together with Bill McGeehan of the New York Herald-Tribune, gave Tex Rickard his first newspaper publicity.

I was on the Bulletin staff during 1905, 1906 and 1907. Although I was making $50 a week then, I did not feel I had reached my limit. I wanted to go to New York. So I went, and became connected with the New York Mail, which connection was severed only five years ago, when I branched out into syndicating.

I have written for the American Magazine, Good Housekeeping, Vanity Fair and a number of other magazines, as well as newspapers. One story in Vanity Fair had to do with the chandelier in my studio. It is a grotesque thing which I designed with a jazz-band motif, Boob McNutt leading the band. It has been endowed with rare artistic qualities by several critics, but I assure you it is merely a gag.

Outside of drawing, writing and as well as the incomes of Bud Fisher, Sidney Smith, Claire Briggs, Fontaine Fox, George McManus and a few others, has been widely advertised, the average cartoonist's salary is modest compared to the topnotches in great industries and theatrical arts.

I believe the high-water mark in big salaries for cartoonists has been reached. The syndicate can only pay so much, and cannot operate at a loss. My guess is that the cartoonist of the future—of course, with the possible exception of some rare genius—will not get great big money.

It may be heresy to make this prophesy in a cartoon magazine, and I anticipate some indignant replies from correspondence schools, but any strong-arm delegation that lays for me in Manhattan at the time this story is published will be out of luck, for I'm taking a three-months' vacation with the family in California and other points west. I'm pretty well up on my regular work now, so I can loaf and play golf. Of course, I'll have to do some comic stuff while I'm away, but not enough to take me out of the temporary class of the unemployed.

I pointed out that the cartooning field has changed in the past two decades because the comic strip has come to the fore. Recently the comic strip has changed also. There is less broad humor and more educational features, and more serials.

This reminds me that my own style has changed, too. I used to be wilder than I am now. I remember one cartoon I drew, showing a banquet of undertakers to celebrate the expected boost in their business due to "The Opening of the Football Season." Even then it caused a howl of protest.

I like to draw complicated and humorous machines for doing all sorts of impossible things. This mental aberration may be traced to my college days, when I secretly got many a laugh out of the barodik—a machine for weighing the earth!—which was in one of the physics laboratories at the University of California. I'm always interested in mechanisms. The first thing that impressed me at the Whiteley-Broady Studios, where I had my picture taken the other day, was its large assortment of light-and-shadow machines. The photographer told me proudly it was the best electrical equipment of any studio in New York City. Until then I hadn't realized how complicated was the taking of high-grade portraits.

Photography, by the way, is a big help to the art student. If you can't get a model, the next best thing is to learn form and lines and shadows by copying photographs.

In digging up ideas, it is important to keep abreast of the times. Make your stuff seasonable. Every summer I have to draw so many pictures of vacation time, ice men, hot weather, etc. This may sound like old stuff, but it's perennially new. Besides, I try to make it novel by the use of curious twists and angles.

The big aim in this work is to create laughs. You must mingle with all classes as a "regular fellow" and give people what they're familiar with. They will not laugh at something over their heads. Don't pitch your fodder too high. The ordinary reader isn't a giraffe. No matter how well you have been educated, you must learn to keep your cartoonistic point-of-view in line with that of the average clerk. It's a mistake to presuppose knowledge on the part of readers.

To my mind, one of the best training grounds of the future cartoonist is the college comic. These publications contain much clever work. I can easily understand why the magazine Cartoons has a subtitle "and Collegian Fun."

Cartoons was not published in the days when I was breaking into the game. I wish it had been. It would have helped me, as it is now helping the younger generation. No one trying to gain a foothold in this profession should miss the stories by and about cartoonists which are published every month in Cartoons. I hope the subscribers get as much pleasure out of reading this article as I got out of writing it.—Cartoons and Collegian Fun.

INTERNATIONAL CITY AT MOUTH OF TIBER

Part of Mussolini's Plan To Revive "The Glory That Was Rome."

(By NEA Service)

ROME, Nov. 29. — An "international City" — a world center of wisdom and culture, a "laboratory of civilization," the home of glory and grandeaur—such a city is in the building as part of Benito Mussolini's plan to revive the Rome of old.

Its location is Ostia, Rome's ancient seaport. Its stones and timbers, its walls and towers, are but dream-stuff so far. But an American sculptor has brought to Mussolini a vision of this "International City" as a thing of tangible substance and form, and the modern Julius Caesar has voiced his approval.

More, he has provided the necessary ground.

Philanthropists over the world are being besought to lend the project their moral and financial aid.

First—the Foundation.

"It will take years," says Hendrik Christian Andersen, the American sculptor. "But the city will be built. It is being built now. It is being built in men's minds. The rest is simple."

Andersen has given 20 years of his life and his entire fortune to the "International City" dream. He plans it as a magnificent symbol of world-wide civilization.

Its temples and palaces are to house the crystallized heritages of the human mind through all the ages.

Spiritually, the city is to be a fountain whence endless streams of enlightenment and brotherhood will flow.

Forty international architects have advised with Andersen. They have prepared designs for such structures as the "Temple of Arts," "Conservatory of Music," "Palace of the Governments," "International Institute of Letters and Science," "Seat of the International Red Cross," "Palace of Scientific Research," "Palace of Medicine and Surgery," "Temple of the Religions," "International High Court of Justice," "International Library," and "Tower of Progress."

Exhibits For Every Nation.

Every nation would have on exhibit its own victories of mind, its own spiritual conceptions, its own culture, as Andersen delineates the "International City."

Its currents of inspiration, he believes, will guide mankind away from selfish materialism—from all baser motives—and "harmoniously unite the great soul of the world."

There was no hesitation on Mussolini's part in endorsing Andersen's profound scheme.

In the Mussolini scale of values, glory is life's most worth-while goal. And so there was quick response as the sculptor pictured to the dictator his grandiloquent dream:

"An International City; a fountain of everflowing knowledge, to be fed by the whole world of human endeavor in art, science, religion, commerce, industry, and law; and in turn to diffuse through the whole world of humanity, as though it were one grand, divine body conceived by God, the vital requirements which would renew its strength, protect its right, and enable it to attain greater heights through a concentrasion of world effort."

Setting Dates Far Back.

Ostia, the proposed setting of the "International City," dates back to the Roman civilization's earliest days. It was the first of the Roman colonies.

Lying at the mouth of the Tiber, on its left bank, the port was connected with Rome by the "Via Ostiensis." Traces of the rude pavement and ancient bridges of this primitive road are preserved along what is now a modern highway.

History mentions Ostia as a trading place as early as 354 B.C. It was a naval base for Italy during the Punic Wars. Its commerce grew steadily with the growth of Rome and the decay of Italian agriculture.

Silt from the Tiber forced Claudius, Trajan and other Roman emperors to excavate new basins for Ostia's ships, and these troubles, along with the marauding pirates, led to the port's gradual abandonment as the centuries sped by.

DOG GIVES LIFE FOR CHILDREN

Pet Collie Drowns Trying To Save Two Girls.

BODIES RECOVERED

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press. — Despite heroic efforts of a pet collie to rescue them, Jean and Marjorie Smith, aged 14 and 9 respectively, were drowned here on Saturday, when the ice on which they were skating collapsed. The barking of the dog gave the alarm. By the time help arrived, the dog had also disappeared.

When the bodies of the children were recovered from the water the teeth mark of the canine were found on the younger child, showing that the dog had attemped to drag her to safety. The body of the dog was also recovered in eight feet of water close to the scene of the tragedy.

Mrs. Marshal Field, 3d, as she looked on her return from the Brazilian jungle.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—"It was perfectly thrilling. Frightened? Not in the least."

That's what Mrs. Marshall Field, 3d, says of her experiences as a big game huntress in the wilds of South America. She has just returned from a three-months expedition of the Field Museum.

Mrs. Field shot a huge, black-spotted jaguar after a perilous trip into a Brazilian jungle.

"We started on horseback, before sun-up, riding over the prairies with our dogs and Indian guide," she said. 'Our jaguar led us into a swamp. When the horses could go no further we dismounted and made our way on foot, sinking into the mire up to our knees.

"We trailed along for about 500 yards, through almost impossible going, and saw the jaguar crouched in a tree.

"It was a beautiful creature. I shot, and it fell. It stumbled along for 25 yards or so and then dropped dead."

VARSITY SHOWS SUPERIORITY IN QUEEN'S GAME

Four Times Champions Are Defeated in Final Game 8 To 0.

THREE INJURED.

Blue and White Scores Field Goal and Five Singles.

TORONTO, Nov. 29—Within the ast ten years the political situation throughout the world has been continually changing, monarchies being overthrown and dictatorships established, and, with few exceptions, the lives of governments have been short; and this unrest has spread to the sporting world, with the present year being noted for the many upheavals that have occurred. One of the longest reigns in Canadian sport was terminated on Saturday afternoon at Varsity Stadium, when Queen's University, champions of the Intercollegiate Union since 1922 and holders of the Canadian title for three consecutive years were deposed from their lofty position by the University of Toronto, who defeated the Tricolor in the second game of the play-off series for the title by the score of 8 to 0 before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a similar sporting fixture in the Dominion.

The defeat, which was the fifth sustained by the ex-champions in scheduled games in the past five seasons, was not unexpected, but not even the most enthusiastic supporter of the Blue and White anticipated that the locals would show such a decided margin over the squad from Kingston. Queen's were never in a scoring position; in fact, only three times during the game were the losers in possession of the ball on the Varsity side of centre field, the nearest that Tricolor was to the Blue and White goal line being in the third period, when they advanced as far as the 38-yard line.

Varsity, in overthrowing Queen's supremacy, clearly and convincingly demonstrated that they were the better team, inidividually and collectively, and as a result the game was unproductive of the thrills that accompany a hard-fought, close struggle between two evenly-matched teams. After the first ten minutes of the game the Blue and White's supporters were certain of the result, the only chance that the Tri-color had being based on the possibility of the local defence breaking down on one or two occasions and giving the visitors a chance of capitalizing on mistakes. One of the greatest factors in the Tricolor's series of successes has been their ability to make the most of their opportunities, but while the winners made a few fumbles on Saturday, not one of them proved costly, and the "opportunists," without the aid of breaks, were unable to make anything that looked like a real threat.

Field Goal Decides Issue.

The losers were battling in a lost cause from early in the first period. Warren Snyder's field goal from the 15-yard line against the wind in the initial quarter being the only count necessary to win the game. But the winners added three singles in the second and two more in the fourth to make the victory decisive enouhg to suit anyone, and at all times they looked to have the game well in hand. Varsity entered the game with a strong feeling of confidence and while three of the starting dozen were forced to leave the field with fractured bones in the first period the blue and white at no time faltered. Harry Bales was helped off with a broken ankle; then Frank Hutchinson retired with a fractured arm, and was soon followed by Manager Ryckert with a broken wrist, but the team's strength was kept up to par by the strong substitutes available.

The defeat ended a brilliant record for the Kingston team In 1922 they lost at home to Varsity but finished on even terms with Blue and white and then won the play off in Montreal. They continued their series of consecutive victories through 1923 and 1924, and it was not until the final for the Eastern Canada title in Ottawa last fall that they again tasted defeat. This year they lost in Toronto and Montreal, to McGill and Varsity respectively, but as the other two teams also lost their away-from-home games a three-cornered tie was created. Toronto showed their strength by winning in Montreal in the first of the play-offs and then came through with a victory at home to clinch the title.

Many expected Saturday's clash to be a sensational struggle but they were doomed to disappointment owing to the winners' all-round superiority. On the line, in tackling, in kicking and in running back kicks, the Blue and White were the better team. They also showed a more diversified attack and made yards 12 times to the losers' four. The strong wind from the northwest had a great deal to do with determining the style of play adopted. The team with the wind behind them invariably kicked on the first down, while the wind made little difference to the locals, they scoring three points against the breeze and five with its assistance.

COUGARS DEFEAT N. Y. AMERICANS

Stalwart Defense and Clashing Attack is Responsible for Victory.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov 29. — (Canadian Press.)—A stalwart defense and a flashing attack gave the Detroit Cougars a 4 to 2 victory over the New York Americans of the National Hockey League on Saturday night. The Cougars scored one goal in the first, and another in the second period and put in two to win in the third, although the Americans opened the final period with a two goal rally. There were eleven penalties.

ARMY AND NAVY TIE IN BATTLE FOR SUPREMACY

21-21 SCORE

Cadets Make Gallant Attempt for Touchdonw in Last Minute.

Soldiers' Field, Chicago, November 29. Canadian Press. — In as throbbing, sensational a struggle as any gridiron has ever seen, the stalwart elevens of the Army and Navy battled into the darkness on Saturday to a 21-21 tie before a throng of 110,000 spectators, the greatest and most colorful outpouring in American football history.

Coming to the middle west for the first time to play the star parts in a dramatic spectacle that has had few parallels in the annals of any sport, the midshipmen and cadets supplied a smashing climax to it with a pulse-stirring fight for high stakes.

For sheer thrills it has never been surpassed in the long record of Army and navy battles, and heart-breaking though it was to rival hopes of triumph, there was something of poetic justice to the fact that honors were divided at the finish between these fighting forces.

The final scores was a fair division of the spoils of this record-breaking gridiron conflict, but it was the army that came nearest to triumph as the warring forces struggled through the finish in a pall of darkness that made the players and the play almost indistinguishable. Counter-attacking in the last few minutes of the game after Alan Shapely had rushed to the Navy's rescue to score the touchdown, and Tom Hamilton had kicked the tying point, West Point headed for the middies' goal in a last desperate charge.

Harry Wilson, the blonde ace of the cadet backfield, who had shared the brunt of the attack most of the afternoon with the fleet Keener Cagle led this final onslaught, carrying the ball almost single handed in a succession of dazzling dashes to with in striking distance of the navy goal. But when the Annapolis line held at last on its own 18 yard line and pushed back the cadet charge, Wilson failed in his last resource, an attempted field goal from the 25 yard line.

The kick from placement, with Harding holding the ball, went wide as the mighty throng stood, stilled in stirring suspense. Echoed then a roaring cheer from the blue coated brigade of midshipmen, and the last real chance of breaking the deadlock had gone.

With the end in sight in the gathering gloom, Army advanced a short distance around midfield, before being forced to punt. Then Murrell, Army full back, intercepted a forward pass well into Navy territory, but the final whistle blew as he was tackled on the 35 yard line. The defense of the navy in the final analysis was equal to the task fo warding off possible defeat, just as its offensive, in an earlier crisis, had rallied in the same period to square the count.

PIRATES OUTCLASS CHIC. BLACKHAWKS

Scored Enough Goals in First to Put Game on Ice.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates outclassed the Chicago Blackhawks in a National Hockey League game last night and won, 5 to 3. Pittsburgh scored enough goals in the first period to put the game on ice.

It was a busy evening for the goal defenders of both teams, Laymen of Chicago scoring 39 stops and Walters of Pittsburgh scoring 37.

LES CANADIENS ARE OUTPLAYED BY N. Y. RANGERS

Signalized Their Initial Appearance in Montreal by Whitewash Victory.

SMARTER HOCKEY

Use Superior Weight to Wear Their Opponents Down.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—Signalizing their initial appearance in Montreal, New York Rangers, who came here headed by Col. J. S. Hammond, and Tex Rickard, defeated Canadiens at the Forum on Saturday night, by 2 to 0, in a National Hockey League fixture. Rangers won because they played the smarter hockey, using their superior weight to wear their opponents down, and after they had accomplished that ,they went on to score. Their defensive was better planned and forced the Canadiens to do the greater part of the work.

Although the match was not a brilliant exhibition of hockey it was productive of thrills throughout.

Twelve penalties were imposed by Referee Cooper Sweaton, nine of which were earned by members of the visiting team. The greater number of penalties were gathered by the New York defence men, Abel and Johnson who invariably roughed it with the lighter Canadiens until they had them played into submission. In the closing period Morenz and Lebuc were so worn out that they signalled for relief.

Canadiens were unable to force their way past the weight of Abel and Johnson, and were forced to shoot from far out, while Lorne Chabot took care of all of the shots sent to him from difficult angles.

The most thrilling moments of the play came in the early stages of the second period when, through penalties, Rangers were forced to play three men against the full Canadian team. Abel, Johnson and Mackey were penalized for roughing it, leaving Frank Boucher, Bunny Cook and Lorne Chabot alone. Even with this marked advantage Canadiens were held scoreless. Boucher and Cook played well back with Chabot, and as the Canadiens closed in, their only efforts were with poke checks. The French players swarmed around the New York net. To Chabot must go a great deal of the credit of stalling of the attack for almost three minutes, as he made stops that were almost miraculous, turning aside shots with his feet and hands that looked to be tagged for the net.

With the teams at full strength, Canadiens' chances had faded.

In the opening twenty minutes six penalties were handed out, two of them majors. Shortly after Rangers had made their first attack and were extending Canadiens to the limit to hold them out, Joliat broke away and on reaching the opposing defence went in to shoot. Bill Cook cut over on him and the pair came to a fistic encounter.

After securing their first counter in the beginning of the second period on a close-in shot by Johnson, Rangers played at a purely defensive style. Against this Canadiens gave a better exhibition of combination play than in any match this season. They tried to work their way inside the visitors' defence by passing the puck, but were either skated into the corner or forced to shoot from far out. Coming out for the final twenty minutes Rangers opened the attack and again carried the locals off their feet until Fred Cook assured his club's victory by scoring on a pass from Abel who carried the puck up the ice.

The line-ups:

SPORTS NIGHT AT LAKEFIELD

Fair Attendance at Final Night of Softball Season.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 29. — The Sports Night, which closed the softball season in the Rink, was held on Thursday evening with a fair attendance in spite of numerous counter attractions. The president of the Rink company was in charge of the sports and was assisted by Messrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, W. H. Stabler, R. J. Jory, C. F. Webster, and Dr. J. C. Smith.

The Citizens' Band was in attendance and gave a delightful programme of music.

The entries were good in every race and each one was closely contested, the girls' race was almost a tie, and also both boys' races. The hurdle race was run in two heats and was worth seeing. The following are the winners:

Girls' Race, 16 Years and under, 50 yards).—1, Miss Gwyneth Northey; 2, Miss Olive Northey.

Boys, 12 Years and under, 50 yards.—1, Dominick White; 2, Garnet O'Neill.

Running Broad Jump.—1, George Hefferman; 2, Jack Ridpath.

Running High Jump.—1, George Heffernan, 4ft. 9 in.; 2, Babe Wannamaker, 4 ft. 8 in.

Pillow Fight.—1, Frank Payne.

Special Hurdle Race; Boys 16 years and under.—1, Hector Edwards; 2, Bill Wingett.

A softball match was scheduled between the Benedicts and Cubs, but the former team were short of three of their team, so they picked up a composite team and a snappy five innings game was played, which was won by the Cubs, 5 to 2. R. C. Chittick was at the plate and E. M. Grier at bases. The following is the line up:

Benedicts.—E. H. Northey, p; G. Nicholls, c; G. Heffernan, 1b; Dr. Smith, 2b; George Graham, 3b; W. Trude and W. Blewett, ss; H. Wingett and K. Junkin, f.

Cubs.—F. Madill, p; R. Payne, c; H. Stabler, 1b; C. F. Webster, 2b; A. Emerson, 3b; B. Wannamaker and E. Northey, ss; F. Payne and J. Ridpath.

Score by innings:

Cubs.... ....02102—5
Benedicts ....01100—2

This closes the season and as soon as weather permits the rink will be put into shape for the ice season.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

THAT a newspaper is a public trust. Not merely because the publishers desire it to be so, but because the very nature of the institution so decrees. While there are various kinds of trade publications and class papers devoted to certain specific interests, the force of responsibility compels editors to recognize the public rights.

THAT both the popular and the professional understanding of the newspaper has changed vastly in the past fifty years, the personal organ having disappeared with the passing of such dominant characters as Greely, Dana and Watterson. In one respect, the newspaper is now a composite product of all those who are engaged in its preparation, but in a broader conception of its functions it is found to emanate from the public itself, a more or less accurate reflection of the thinking and the progress of the world, the nation, the state and the community.

Because of this intimate relationship between newspaper and the people whom it serves, the people have a keen interest in the newspaper and must accept a certain degree of responsibility and credit for its failures and successes. The vast majority of publishers today are striving to raise the level of journalism, and they can wholly succeed only with united popular support.

MAROONS LOSE TO SENATORS BY ONE GOAL

Lower World Championship's Pennant and Lengthened Their Undefeated Record.

OVERTIME SCORE

Many Penalties Given in First Period for Stick Slashing.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press). Ottawa's Senators lowered the world's championship pennant of the Montreal Maroons by a one goal to nothing shut-out here Saturday night and lengthened their undefeated record, in a National League fixture that sparkled with rough and tumble tactics. The lone tally came from the stick of Jack Adams, newly acquired wing man for the locals, after eight minutes and forty seconds of overtime play.

For the first two periods of the the contest, both squads used slashing, bruising charges in an effort to break into the scoring list, and the result was that a continual parade was kept headed in the direction of the penalty pen. Two feuds cropped out—two shoulders felt the sting of descending hockey sticks—two jaws absorbed the punches of gloved fists, and four major penalties were issued—two to players of each team.

It was late in the first heated session and after Referee Jerry Laflamme had sent a half dozen players to the bench for roughing, that "Punch" Broadbent and a Senator utility man, Ed. Gorman, tested the durability of their sticks over each others' shoulders. Gorman carried a splintered bludgeon as the two combatants skated to the box to serve five-minute terms.

"Hooley" Smith and Nels Stewart drew the other majors for staging a fist fight in the second period. The tussle broke out when the star centre man for the champions hooked Smith in the ribs with his stick. The Senator wingman slashed back, Stewart retaliated with a hefty right to the jaw, and "Hooley" duplicated his opponent's slugging performance. Players and spectators gathered menacingly and for a moment a free-for-all fight threatened to break out but Referee Laflamme with the assistance of attending policemen, dispersed the gathering before any serious damage was done.

It was impossible to play real, honest hockey during these periods so heavy was the checking. Lone man rushes had to be resorted to and these, for the most part, ended with the would be scorer sprawling on the ice from a stiff body or slashing check. Once in the opening period when two Maroon players rested in the penalty pew together, the locals opened a withering bombardment on the visitors' cage, but Clint Benedict stemmed the tide with many spectacular saves.

In the third frame, the visitors appeared to have weakened a little from the gruelling, and the Senators clearly out-skated and out-played them. Stewart and "Red" Dutton did break away on numerous charges that menaced the Ottawa citadel, but always they were turned aside. Frank Nighbor, the poke-checking peer, had his stick working in perfect unison and the Maroon charges that trickled past him were always run down by the local defence. It was Benedict again, however, who rose to spectacular heights in this period. The slim goalie killed a total of eighteen Senator shots that came his way during this twenty minutes of play and many of them appeared next to impossible to stop.

The overtime session witnessed a desperate struggle with a belated Maroon combination attack predominating. But the Senator defence tightened, and finally after "King" Clancy had taken the puck far back in his own territory, he went through to test Benedict, and the struggle really ended there. "Benny" had been shaken by the stiff shot and when Adams rushed up to take the rebounding puck and send a low dribbler in, the champion's tender had no chance to save. The rubber careened into the cage of his skate.

VARSITY THIRDS ARE ELIMINATED IN TITLE HUNT

Lose to Montreal A.A.A. in Spectacular Game on Saturday.

WINTRY WEATHER

Smart Work on Fumbled Balls Responsible for Victory.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—A sustained offensive for the first fifteen minutes, smart work on fumbled balls for the remainder of the half, and an impregnable defence throughout, were the chief weapons employed by the Dominion champions, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association Junior rugby squad, in eliminating University of Toronto from this year's title hunt by 10-2, in a thrilling and spectacular struggle on the snow-covered gridiron of the Westmount grounds Saturday afternoon.

The wintry weather numbed the players hands and made it impossible to handle the ball properly, so that after the first quarter the game resolved into a punting duel.

Each squad was placed in practically identical position at the start of the first and second halves respectively and the Wheelers turned their advantage into a touchdown, while the "T" could only force a rouge. The Red and Blue's early onslaught forced breaks and gave them the ball on a fumble on the "T" 10-yard line, and with Captain Pip Potter, and Len Hutton serving time in the penalty box, Willard O'Hara was called on to knife the line. The stocky half hurtled through the "T" front rank, off middle, staggered past the second defence and placed the ball over the line. At the start of the second half Varsity forced the same kind of break but could not make good. Hallan hoisted a punt to O'Hara which the latter fumbled on his 25, and Varsity pounced on the ball. Hallan kicked again on the first down and O'Hara fumbled again, this time on his 3-yard line and Varsity recovered. The first play was thrown for a loss, and Hallan gained but a yard on the next. Kirkpatrick and Hallan sneaked out to the sideline, while the teams were lining up, and Westwood attempted an onside but the Winged Wheel backs recovered the ball first and it went for a point.

M.A.A.A. then abandoned their plunging, and half-frozen hands and a slippery ball had Kirkpatrick and Hallan fumbling two out of three of Peel's long boots. When they did catch it they were dropped in their tracks by Hutton, Decarie, Hayes and the other local downfield men while when they dropped it, invariably a half-dozen Wheelers swooped down to smother it. In this manner three rouges were counted by half time. After the rest Varsity's new lease of life held them on even terms with the Wheelers, and Peel's longer punts, and M.A.A.A.'s intercepting of onsides were counteracted by clever runbacks by Kirkpatrick, who broke away consistently. Just before the teams changed for the final session Hallan skirted the right end for 30 yards to the 25-yard mark and on the first down kicked for Varsity's last score. With the game almost over, the Wheelers again took command when their wings smothered a Varsity onside 20 yards out and Peel kicked for a rouge. They continued to force, and Kirkpatrick ran one kick out but was nailed on the next as the whistle blew.

The teams:

M.A.A.A.—Flying wing, Haynes; halves, O'Hara, Peel, Kendrick; quarter, Monty; snap, Tiellier; insides, Nichols, Jacques; middles, Potter, Gabarino; outsides Hutton, Decarie; subs, Fletcher, Hutchison, Ayer, Adams, Seale, Giles, Allan, Murray.

Varsity — Flying wing, Mooney; halves, Sinclair, Hallan, Kirkpatrick; quarter, Westwood; snap, Keith; insides Christie, Wesley; middles, Little; outsides, Smith, Jeffrey; subs Dawell, Davey, Thomsonl, Zieman, Finlayson, Seagram, Stronger, Scott.

ASKS MR. FERGUSON HOW HE WILL PROTECT BOYS

A Lindsay Manufacturer Addresses Open Letter To Premier.

PROSPEROUS NOW.

Threat of Depression If Bars Went Found No Fulfilment.

The following open letter to Premier Ferguson has been handed to The Star for publication by the writer, Alex. Horn, president of the Horn Bros. Woollen Company of Lindsay.

An open letter to Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario.

My Dear Mr. Ferguson,—I was one of those pained by your recent address in Lindsay. Many in the audience were of the opinion that your plans for improving conditions will have the opposite effect; that you are endeavoring to force certain laws upon us that we have already rejected; coercing us into a partnership with the disgusting liquor business which is distasteful to all right thinking people, Conservative, Liberal and Progressive.

Did any of your Conservative friends in this riding write you saying they were dissatisfied with the improved condition which the O. T. A. has brought us?

You are forcing this question on us, Mr. Ferguson, without having a mandate from your own party, and contrary to and in opposition to the expressed will of the people.

You propose giving the municipalities the privilege of carrying local option in their respective districts. Why? This will open up a field in which the bootlegger can flourish, carrying wet goods from Lindsay, Peterboro or Toronto into the dry townships and villages. You assured the mothers that you had the interests of their boys at heart, and you propose having some plan whereby the boys cannot secure any of the liquor which is to be sold under your so-called Government control by men "carefully selected" for the purpose. Now, Mr. Ferguson, how are you going to prevent the boys from securing all the liquor they wish from a third party who will act the bootlegger, buying it from a Government store and reselling it to minors? You claim you are going to drive the bootlegger out of business by selling all the booze yourself, but the immoderate husband, "whose wife will send you a nice letter requesting that you sell him no more liquor," when put on the Indian list will also require a bootlegger to secure his supply from a Government control store.

Most of us remember the deplorable conditions which existed under the old license system. Every employer was handicapped by inefficient workmen, especially after holidays, pay days, and during Fair time. These were the occasions for waves of drunkenness in our town resulting in misery and unhappiness in many homes. Under the O.T.A. we have seen these things practically eliminated; our town is prosperous; we have sober husbands; and fathers supporting their families in comfort. When we were voting to abolish the bars the liquor interests prophesied that, without the hotels, the grass would grow in the middle of Kent Street; the town would be ruined, factories closed and store windows boarded up. What was the result? Not a vacant store in town, some factories in operation day and night, and miles of paved streets instead of the grass. The change has afforded our workmen and their families an opportunity to enjoy themselves with an improved home and a car. Do you insinuate that the citizens of this province have too much comfort and happiness?

Mr. Ferguson, you are asking us to return to the system of selling alcoholic liquors. You are asking us to vote for booze, for drunken fathers who will spend their wages on whiskey, leaving hungry children, broken up homes and wretched families; all from which you will reap a profit. Oh no, Mr. Ferguson, I have seen the results of Government control in Quebec and cannot accept your impractical suggestions and lose all the advantages we have gained in years of striving and fighting against this blighting curse. We have the strangle hold on its throat, and by God's help we will not let go until finally we will be able to chop off its ugly head and deliver our Canada from the worst evil that has ever blighted any nation.

Yours sincerely,
ALEX. HORN.

STUART CARR WINS ELECTION

Campbellford Boy Will Represent East Northumberland.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29.—Stuart Carr of Campbellford was elected to represent East Northumberland in the Older Boys' Parliament of Ontario, by a majority of 60 over his nearest rival, William Brown of Brighton. Carr polled 187 votes and Brown 127. Charles McColl of Wooler, the third boy in the field, was just nine votes behind Brown with 118.

Probably due to the inclement weather of Friday and Saturday nearly one-third of the boys failed to exercise their franchise, only 432 of over 600 registered with Returning Officer Rev. C. D. Daniel, marking their ballots.

In the election of Stuart Carr, East Northumberland has a worthy representative in the Older Boys Parliament. Part of his programme already outlined, is to secure more members for the Junior Society of the League of Nations of Canada.

To make a survey of the whole constituency to ascertain the number of groups, camps, and organized Sunday School classes within its bounds, have them registered so that the Ontario Boys' Work Board can keep in touch with them, and send them material to aid them in their work. To institute a vigorous bond-selling campaign with Father and Son banquets, held all over the constituency, setting forth the ideals of the boy movement; the need of funds and the means of getting them.

The organization of a county work board to have charge of the promotion of C.S.E.T. work; organizing groups, boys' work in Sunday schools, and establishing boys' camps. The establishment of leadership conferences, whereby the leaders can get together under the directions of a capable instructor from the National Boys' Work Board, who would give them further practical knowledge of Canadian Standard Efficiency Training.

The results by polling subdivisions:

FRANKIE COLLINS TO REMAIN HERE

Crack Centre Player Is Not To Be Moved To Toronto.

Hockey fans will be glad to learn that the Imperial Oil Company has decided to allow Frankie Collins to remain in Peterborough, instead of transferring him to Toronto, so that the fast centre man will be with the Petes as usual. The local crew took advantage of the cold dip to get in a useful practice on the canal, and is expected that they will be in fair shape when they stack up against Kitchener in the S. P. A. series a week from to-morrow night

SALE OF WORK.

Guild of Arts and Crafts Exhibits Many Novelties.

An exhibition and sale of the handiwork of members of the Guild of Arts and Crafts of the Women's Art Association was held in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, on Saturday afternoon, with a good attendance, and a very fine display of various types of work was on view. The most interesting characteristic of work of this type is the fact that it is all done locally, and is aimed to present to the public examples of just what can be done in an artistic way by members of a society that has for its chief object the furtherance of artistic endeavors in the community.

A large portion of the showing was composed of pieces of hand-painted china. These were executed in all manner of dainty small articles, in vases, trays, pepper and salt combinations, cups and saucers and ornamental bits, done in free and conventional designs, in solid and floral effects, in various colors, and in pretty lustres and enamels. Contributors to this section were Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, convenor of the Guild of Arts and Crafts; Mrs. B. L. Barns, Mrs. P. L. Allison, Mrs. F. C. Webber, Mrs. F. Hooper, and Miss Mamie L. McCarthy, who had a large assortment of dainty things in china, also a display of lovely Christmas cards.

A number of pretty small scenes in oils were shown by Mrs. T. Cruikshanks, and novelties in the new Gesso work, in which raised fruits and flowers, painted in colors, are formed of paste and attached to pasteboard boxes and waste paper baskets, were the work of Miss Cameron Edwards, who also exhibited dainty lacquered boxes and candlesticks and hand-woven bags. Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge had sealing-wax ornaments on small vases and candles, and crystalline lampshades, in the scissors point work, were shown by Miss Grace Reinhardt and Miss Linden Hall, who also had on view a lovely orchid beaded bag.

Mrs. J. E. R. Munro was the exhibitor of several telephone and memorandum book covers, done in water colors, and Mrs. N. Rockwell showed some novelties in black oilcloth runners, stencilled in bright colors, Chinese lacquered trays, and a Russian crash runner.

Mrs. N. H. Sutton's work in needlepoint was much admired, special attention being given to the chair covers done in colored flowers and the unique bell-pull worked in shades of navy, green and pink. Mrs. Sutton also showed an old-time piece in what used to be called Berlin wool work, with colored flowers on a purple canvas backing. Mrs. J. John also showed a hooked rug, done in green, grey and black, and Mrs. I. Kennett had some hand-woven bags and a finely-worked woven purple scarf.

Embroideries were exhibited by Madame Masson, in several pieces of old French needlwork, including an old cushion cover done in ribbon embroidery, and by Miss A. Lancaster, who had some exquisite bits of silk embroidery, satin stitch and filet, with a century-old piece of tambour work, done on very fine white mull. Madame Masson also showed some examples of old-time fancy work, in a flower-worked fire screen and a wall valance. Mrs. H. E. Connolly had a grey woven woollen work bag of interesting design.

MISS DOROTHY TIPIT, England's prettiest revue comedienne, with the new Originals revue, "Across Canada," playing at the Grand Election Night, Wednesday, Dec. 1st. Election returns will be given from the stage.

WINTRY WEATHER TIES UP SHIPPING

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press.) — Lake traffic is beginning to feel the pinch of cold weather. Ice is forming rapidly in Mud Lake in the lower St. Mary's river. Last night a fleet of vessels was caught there and moored for the night. All are expected to-day.

The steamer George Ingalls, of the Holland and Cornelius line, which went aground at Point Aux Pines on Friday, was released this morning, after 800 tons of coal had been taken off her.

There was little activity in marine circles in the gale and snow yesterday and all vessels were reported in shelter up lake.

ROBBERS TAKE $2,400.

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press). — Two armed men walked into the Calfield Dairy here shortly before noon today and held the two girl clerks up at the point of revolvers. The men escaped with $2,400 in cash.

The hold-up was a very daring one. Walking into the office occupied only by the two girls, the men, both carrying guns, commanded the two clerks to hand over the money. While one man stood at the door of the office, the other walked around to open the safe and seized the money. They then fled down the narrow staircase and on to the street. The two girls collapsed and are under medical attention.

AN EXPLANATION FROM E. MASSEY-COOKE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: After I had written you my first letter, I observed an advertisement by the Peterborough Prohibition Union, under the heading "Despicable tactics."

Why will our friends, the Prohibitionists, so often jump to conclusions and impute wrong motives to anyone who does not see eye to eye with them on the much debated liquor question I feel I owe it to Mr. Bradburn and his committee to absolve them from all knowledge whatsoever of my attending the Prohibitionist meeting or of asking Mrs. Gordon Wright any questions.

«I rather object to the title of "would-be heckler," as I put my request to the chairman—or should I say "chairwoman"?—in as courteous a manner possible, asking if I might have the privilege of putting two questions to Mrs. Wright before we heard her address us. On my request being denied I sat down, and, without further interruption, Mrs. Wright spoke. It appeals to me as being rather humorous that people raise no objections to interruptions arising from applause, but immediately any one has the temerity to disagree with the speaker, the interrupter is termed a heckler. May I say that in my estimation, the Prohibitionists are doing more harm than good to the O.T.A. by implying any motive but the right one to the many people who honestly consider government control an advance on the O.T.A.. Mrs. Gordon Wright tacitly acknowledged that Prohibition and Temperance are not synomous—which was the point I wished to make before she spoke on the question. Apologizing for the length of the addition to my letter.

Yours sincerely,
E. MASSEY-COOKE.

COATED TONGUES AND TONGUE SCRAPERS

Among the relics found at Mount Vernon, the home of Washington, is a silver tongue scraper used by the Father of his Country to clean the coating from his tongue each morning.

History does not record all of the causes which might have led to his coated tongue. Prohibitionists would probably say that the "Demon Rum" was responsible for it, while some doctors believe that the little liquor that Washington drank, he took for his stomach's sake and it should, therefore, have assisted in removing the toxicosis responsible for the coated tongue.

Some authorities claim that too much acid in the stomach is the cause, while others equally prominent contend that the absence of acid is the real cause.

The bacteriologist is apt to believe that small micro-organisms are responsible, as the microscope reveals moles, yeast and bacteria and even colon baccilli and streptococci are found in scrapings of the tongue when examined under the microscope.

At least ninety per cent. of you who are reading this article look in the mirror each morning and find a coated tongue. You probably wipe it off or scrape it off with your tooth brush, but seldom pay enough attention to ascertain the real cause of its unsightly appearance.

Toxemia is the condition which is immediately responsible for every coated tongue. There are many causes which lead up to this toxic state of the body. Lowered vitality may be stated as one of the principal causes which leads to a poisoning of the system by its own toxemia.

When energy is wasted upon late hours, overwork or excesses of any kind, there will not be enough energy left to operate the necessary vital functions of the body. The elimination of poisons is retarded and metabolism is interfered with so that the normal tissue change does not take place as nature intended. This allows morbid material to accumulate in the various tissues of the body while the lungs, kidneys and liver struggle to throw them out.

Our assimulative and eliminative organs all have their limit of endurance, and after they have been overworked for years, they become weakened to such an extent that the normal elimination of poisons cannot take place, and thus toxemia is increased. The amount of poisoning can always be measured by the quantity and quality of the coating on the tongue.

When you look at your tongue in the mirror tomorrow morning, if it looks like a wheat field in June, start at once to get rid of the poisons in your system which are producing the toxemia directly responsible for the coated tongue. Learn all you can about the following rules and learn to apply them to your own case.

(1) Eat plenty of cooked and raw greens.
(2) Walk four or five miles daily.
(3) For one month take one enema daily.
(4) Take setting-up exercises morning and evening.
(5) Eat only one-half the amount of food that you have been using.
(6) For some time use only one egg daily.
(7) Do not use over one-quarter of a pound of meat each day.
(8) Take a daily sweat either in the gymnasium or by hard work.
(9) Take deep breathing exercise each day while walking.
(10) Eliminate toxemia from your system in every way that you know how; regulate your habits so that you do not build up another set of toxins.

RODDEN STILL COACH.

Has No Intention of Giving Up Two Year Contract.

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Michael J. Rodden is still coach of St. Patrick's hockey team in the National Hockey League, in spite of rumors that he had resigned. "I have a two-year contract and am living up to it," the Irish manager said today.

Charles Querie, manager of the team, who handled the Irish in their last game, would not comment upon the rumors, neither confirming nor denying them.

THEATRE AT THE REGENT

IRENE RICH TO BE SEEN IN "COMPROMISE"

Irene Rich, beautiful Warner Bros. star, will be seen in the stellar role of "Compromise," Jay Gelzer's powerfully dramatic story that is opening to-day at the Regent Theatre for a 3 day engagement.

The role is said to afford Miss Rich the most striking opportunity of her remarkable career, combining the gracious poise of an idealistic woman who has kept all her illusions intact, and the dramatic bitterness of a woman who can no longer struggle against compromise with the world.

Joan Trevore, lovely of face and spirit, has known only unhappiness because of her half-ister, Nathalie (Pauline Garon) whom their mother (Helen Dunbar) has always favored. Alan Thayer (Olive Brook) had continued his childish defense of Joan into manhood, and their marriage is a source of extreme annoyance to Nathalie. Trevore (Winter Hall) has warned Alan than Joan's idealism requires goodness and Nathalie has warned Joan that she can take her husband from her if she chooses.

Hilda, Joan's Swedish maid (Louise Fazenda) constantly interferes with Nathalie's plans to spoil her sister's happiness, but in spite of them all the petty girl arranges for Alan to be kidnapped on a gay yaching party. Joan is deeply hurt and humiliated and her father takes her to his home to stay.

Meanwihle Nathalie exerts every feminine wile to win Alan from Joan, and when she has lost interest in the game, brings him back to her sister. In a frenzy of anger and grief, Joan lashes the girl with a whip; and the turmoil in their hearts is matched by the frightful tornado that sweeps over the village. Later, realizing that compromise is essential if she is to go on living, Joan forgives the repentant Alan, and husband and wife are re-united.

"THE NEW ORIGINALS" STRONGER AND BETTER THAN EVER

Every season the theatregoers of Peterboro look forward to the return of Canada's brilliant entertainers, "The New Originals" as the company is now called, are coming this season bigger, stronger, and in every way better than ever, with pretty and talented girls doing the female roles The company has dispensed entirely with female impersonators this season and introduced Ladies into the show with tremendous success Crowded houses and highly enthusiastic audiences have greeted the company in every town and city they have already appeared.

"Across Canada" is the timely title of this season's delightful revue which the New Originals will present at the Grand theatre on Wednesday, December 1st with every form of good entertainment that will delight the eye and ear of the most discriminating Magnificent musical settings, graceful dances, singing that has put the New Originals away in the front lines of singing companies and all kinds of unique comedy situations that keep the audience in screams of laughter throughout the entire show.

As usual, much of the good material used in the production has been specially written by Mr. Albert Rees, the company producer and others which proves that New Originals certainly have a resourceful groupe of people in the organization. Several exceedingly beautiful musical settings are offered in "Across Canada" that make people always want to come back and see them again "The Cornich Floral Dance" and "Something Oriental" and "The Fairy Pipers" the latter number sung by the brilliant New Ladies quartette followed by a toe dance, are but a few of the sparkling, musical features of "Across Canada".

No expense has been spared by the management to make this season's show the banner one in the history of Canada's great theatrical company. Old friends everywhere are delighted with the precedent created by introducing girls into the revue in place of female impersonators—new friends are even more delighted than the old ones at the unique and novel features.

AT ALL SAINTS'.

Tribute was paid to the memory of the late Harry Rush, as a good citizen and friend of the church, by the Rev. J. D. Paterson, in his morning sermon, at All Saints' Church yesterday. The sermon was suitable to the season of Advent, the beginning of the church year.

ALL SAINTS' GUILD.

Ladies who assisted in the various booths at the annual bazaar of the Women's Guild of All Saints' church held in the parish hall on Thursday and Friday of last week, were Mrs. E. Beatty, in the W. A. Booth; Mrs. Adams and the Misses Sproates, Sisson and Worboy, in the sale conducted by the Evening Branch of the W.A.; Mrs. Meek, in the sale of aprons and quilts; Mrs. Holmes, in the sale of ice cream; Mesdames Fitzgerald, Seymour, McCloud, and Miss Detcher, assisting in the service of afternoon tea and Mrs. Seaman in the sale of home made cooking. These names supplement the list of convenors which appeared in the account of the bazaar in Saturday evening's paper.

THE OVERSEAS LEAGUE

(Contributed.)

This important society has been in existence for some years, but since the war its name has been changed to the above. "It is a non-party society of British subjects residing in all parts of the world. Its underlying motive is to promote the unity of British subjects. Its four chief objects are:

1—To draw together in the bond of comradeship British people the world over;

2.—To render individual service to our Empire;

3.—To maintain the power of the Empire, and to hold to its best traditions;

4.—To help one another.

The members' creed is:

"Believing the British Empire to stand for Justice, Freedom, Order and Good Government, we pledge ourselves, as citizens of the British commonwealth of nations, to maintain the heritage handed down to us by our fathers."

The league thus unites in a sacred bond of Imperial sentiment subjects of the King, not only within the Empire, but anywhere throughout the world. It also takes care of its members when visiting in the Old Land. There are three houses: Vernon House, the headquarters, where also there are reading, writing and smoking rooms, dining room, drawing room and ladies' rest room, and information office, to all of which members have free access. Overseas House provides sleeping accommodation at reasonable rate for both sexes. There is also a Club House for men in which, besides the usual activities of a first-class club there are several bedrooms. Members also receive a monthly magazine called "Overseas," which keeps them in touch with news of the Empire and in which names and addresses of all new members appear. It is a very interesting and valuable magazine. The Rev. R. C. Blagrave, Vicar of St. John's, is local secretary for the Overseas League, and will be glad to enrol new members, who are prepared to subscribe to the objects of the League.

"We sailed wherever ship could sail,
We founded many a mighty state,
Pray God our greatness may not fail
Through craven fears of being great."

Alcohol Leads Market; Unlisted Stocks Active

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—While Alcohol led the Toronto Stock Exchange today in point of activity, the issue closed unchanged at 27 1-2, with 2,200 shares changing hands. The market was steady, with gains and losses being equally distributed over the list. Abitibi was up 1 1-2 at 90 3-4, Barcelona dropped 1 1-2 at 33, and British Columbia Fishing was up 1-2 at 95 1-2. International Nickel, also an active issue, was up 3-4 at 38 1-4. Page Hersey Preferred and Common both registered gains, the common being 3-8 higher at 57 7-8 and the preferred 1-2 at 118. Port Hope Sanitary was five higher at 128. Winnipeg Railway was up 1-4 at 63. The unlisted market received a lot of atetntion, Noranda registering a gain of five cents at 20.20. British American Oil was up 1-4 at 69 3-4, Seagram up 3-8 at 16 7-8, and Gooderham and Worts up 1-8 at 58 7-8.

Dome Mines Takes Rise Prices Generally Higher

TORONTO Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—Dome Mines was 90 cents higher on the Standard Mining Exchange today, the rise being attributed in some quarters to rich finds of ore on Dome property. The issue opened at 11.25 but closed at 12.05, gain of 90. Prices generally were higher on the market. McIntyre was 60 cents higher at 24.80 and Nipissing 20 higher at 6.15. Argonaut Consolidated was 1 1-2 higher at 57 1-2, Barry Hollinger 1 1-2 up at 85 1-2 and Beaver up one at 63. Castle Tretheway was two higher at 114 and Kirkland Lake up one at 80. Mining Corporation declined one at 275, while Wright Hargraves was five lower at 825.

MINING PROFITABLE FIELD FOR SPECULATION

Kirkland Lake District Offers Attractive Opportunities

Within the short period of fifteen years, interrupted by the war, the Kirkland Lake Mining Camp has changed from a small section of Ontario's vast forest hinterland to an enormously rich producer of new wealth. Its production of gold is today runnning around $635,000 every 30 days. Mining authorities state that today's producton will appear very small when compared with the figures 5 years hence. It is no mere figure of speech to say that millions have been made during the time Kirkland Lake has been forging ahead and apparently many more millions will be made as additional mines come into production. Far seeing speculators, who a few years ago purchased Teck Hughes, Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves at so many cents a share, have seen their purchases advance to five, ten and fifteen dollars a share. Equally good chances are available today, awaiting the man of patience and foresight. Perhaps today's opportunities are better than yesterday's because knowledge and experience have eliminated a large part of the risk.

Among the mines arriving at the stage where the question is not will they be good, but how good will they be, are Sylvanite and Tough-Oakes Burnside. Sylvanite is identified with Wright Hargreaves interests and with its 200 ton mill nearing completion will be next producer in the camp. Ore reserves already blocked out are sufficient to keep the mill running 2 years. Tough-Oakes Burnside has turned the corner after an uphill fight against unfortunate and unusual physical conditions. The mill is today treating 175 tons of ore a day and there is two years ore supply ahead. Management is good and costs are low so that a good profit is being made. Recent work at the deeper levels holds out promise of larger and richer ore bodies and it is confidently predicted by those in touch with the situation that developments now under way will make the stock worth several times its present price.

Another property attracting a great deal of attention among North Country residents is Macassa, situated immediately to the West of, and adjoining Teck Hughes and Kirkland Lake Gold. While work only commenced about 6 months ago, the efficient manner in which it has been handled has opened up possibilities that Macassa will compare in wealth with its famous neighbors. Some mining men say that Harry Oakes, who is President of both Lake Shore and Macassa, knows the district too well to make a mistake profiting by his past experience, he will quickly bring Macassa to the producing stage. Operations are at present in progress on the 500 foot level where a long drift in the Main Break is being run to the West. The 'Main Break" is the ore producing zone of the camp and Macassa has over 4000 feet of this formation.

The foregoing are a few instances of legitimate mining speculations whose shares will likely graduate from the "cents class" to the "dollar class."

WEDDING BELLS.

CONDON—EAGAN.

DOURO, Nov. 29.—Holy Trinity church, 205 West 82nd street, New York City, was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding when Joseph Ignatus Condon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barth Condon, of Douro, was united in marriage to Mary Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Eagan, of St. Johns, New Brunswick. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father R. J. Cushman, P P., assisted by Rev. Father Charles Breslin.

Miss Marguerite Hickey acted as bridesmaid, Mr. Patrick Hill attended the groom. A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williams for the young couple. On their honeymoon they motored to Niagara Falls and western points.

CUMMINGS—SMITH.

The marriage took place at St. James Parsonage, 163 Romaine St., on Saturday, November 20, of Miss Elizabeth Smith, recently from England, and Nathan Cummings, of Harvey Township.

The sacred rite of holy matrimony was performed by the Rev. J. D. Richardson, minister of St. James' church.

The young couple were attended by Mr. Stanley Heard and Mrs. Eva Halpin, a sister of the groom, both of Peterborough.

They will reside in Harvey township, where the groom is a well known and successful farmer.

WHEELER—POLLARD

The wedding took place on Saturday at the home of the Rev. N. R. McLeod, of Edith Pollard and Roy Wheeler. They were attended by Mr and Mrs. Eldon Sisson. After the ceremony they left for Belleville. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will reside in Smith Township.

OBITUAR

MRS. R. E. HARDING.

The death occurred yesterday at the family residence, 308 Park street, of Mrs. R. E. Harding, at the age of 68 years. Mrs. Harding had been ill for almost a year and was predeceased by her husband who died on Aug. 26, 1923.

The funeral, which will be private, will take place from the family residence to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 p.m., to the Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose will officiate.

VOTERS SWING TO BRADBURN

In Spite of Bare-Faced Attempt to Pretend That Ontario Will Have Beer Parlors

No political party in the history of Canada has been guilty of such sheer trickery and deliberate attempts to deceive the electors as have featured the campaign carried on by the Peterborough Prohibition Union in this contest.

That may be considered strong language, but it is none too strong to use in connection with the latest attempt of the Prohibition Union to becloud the real issue.

Peterborough has been flooded with circulars entitled "Government Control in Alberta—an official report of conditions by its own Liquor Control Board."

"From this official document we make extracts," reads a Prohibition foreword to the Control Board's letter. "They describe what happened in Alberta and what we might expect to happen in Ontario if we adopted a method that seems to have the approval and blessing of several 'transient' visitors to Alberta."

At the conclusion of the report, the Prohibition Union asks: "Do the voters of Ontario want these conditions repeated in this province?"

And what do you think the document is?

It's a letter from the Alberta License Commission to the licensees of hotels in the provinces where beer is allowed to be sold, instructing them to remedy certain conditions reported to the Commission.

If it proves anything, it merely proves that the Alberta Commission is determined that its licensees shall obey the law.

But in the name of common-sense, what has it got to do with us in Ontario?

The people of this province are not voting next Wednesday on the licensing of hotels, not voting on beer parlours or the sale of beer by the glass.

The letter quoted by the Prohibition Union is as foreign to the issue, before the people of Ontario, as a report from Mussolini on the constitutional status of the Italian people.

Why has it been brought before the attention of the voters then?

There can be only one explanation, and that is that the use of this document is a deliberate attempt to deceive the electors of this and other ridings.

The responsibility for the publication of the pamphlet rests upon the shoulders of the Ontario Prohibition Union; the responsibility for its local circulation must be borne by the Peterborough branch of that Union.

Is the Prohibition Union afraid to face the real issue; afraid to discuss the question before the people on its merits?

Resorting to sharp practice and trickery such as are shown by this attempt to deceive the people into thinking that beer parlours would follow the return of the Ferguson Government to power, would surely indicate that the Prohibitionists have given up hope of convincing the electors that the O.T.A. with all its cloud of evils, is a better plan of handling the liquor evil than the Government plan of sale through Government vendors.

Voters of Peterborough City, we call your attention to these facts. Keep them in mind, for there is no way in which we can anticipate what you may be told next by the Prohibition Union:

(1) This Alberta "official document" has not the slightest bearing upon the issue you have to vote upon.

(2) The Ontario Government's policy of Government control that you will vote upon does not include beer parlours.

(3) The Ontario Government's policy of Government control that you will vote upon is simply the sale of liquor and malt beverages through government vendors.

(4) Any talk of beer parlours is camouflage intended to deceive you as to the real issue.

In spite of persistent efforts to delude them, we are satisfied that the majority of the electors know these facts; yet we emphasize them as to protect the few voters who may not be familiar with the real issue.

For honest supporters of the O.T.A. we have every respect, but we maintain that those responsible for such barefaced attempts to deceive the voters deserve the condemnation of every fair-minded elector.

ISSUE STRIKE ORDER BY DEC. 10 UNLESS GOVERNMENT RE-OPENS NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN FACTORS

Rumors in Ottawa That Railwaymen's Unions Are Liquidating Securities.

TIE-UP BY 15TH.

Understood That Negotiations Will Be Resumed on Dec. 2.

OTTAWA, Nov 30.—"There is hope that negotiations will be resumed," said Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways yesterday afternoon following a conference with representatives of the Railway Brotherhoods arranged by Mr. Dunning in an effort to avert a strike of trainmen and conductors.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30. — If the Government does not succeed in re-opening negotiations between the railways and the conductors and trainmen, a strike order will be issued before December 10, it is reported in Ottawa. The effective hour is reported to be set for some time between Dec. 10 and 15. The Government is at present endeavoring to reconstitute the Board of Conciliation, it is said. Hon. C. A Dunning, Minister of Railways, has taken charge of the situation during the continued absence of Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, who is aiding the Opposition against Ferguson in Ontario.

All sorts of sensational rumors are current here, one that the railwaymen's unions are liquidating bonds and securities in which their funds are invested.

In an interview here yesterday L. L. Sheppard, Chicago, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, who is in Montreal keeping in close touch with events, pointed out that the Managers' Committee of the railroad in an official statement on Friday had intimated that the door was open to further negotiations through approach of the railroad executives. "We are waiting on the railroad executives now," he said.

The men, 15,000 conductors and trainmen, have voted in favor of a strike if their six per cent. increase of wages, which would bring their rate of pay on a par with that received by similar workers in the United States, were refused by the Canadian lines

Birkenhead Believes He Knows Lord Raingo

LONDON, Nov. 30. — Lord Birkenhead has once more added to the gaiety of Great Britain in a letter to the Daily Mail yesterday, in which he replies to Arnold Bennett's declaration that the character, Lord Raingo, in Bennett's latest novel, did not represent any member of the War Cabinet, by saying: "I find it necessary to make quite plain that I do not accept his assurance." He charges that Bennett kept quiet while Lord Beaverbrook's papers boomed his book, which appeared serially in the Evening Standard, on the grounds that Lord Raingo was a member of the coalition cabinet and was well known in the night life of London.

The turkey had been purchased through a packing house, but its origin is unknown, though it is believed the bird came from an Idaho farm.

UPPER LAKES IN BLIZZARD'S GRIP PORTS TIED UP

Fear Expressed For Safety of Hunters in Michigan Woods.

SHIPPING SUFFERS.

See Premature End to the Lakes Shipping Season.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 30 (Canadian Press). — The upper Michigan peninsula district continued yesterday in the grip of a blizzard which has trapped hundreds of hunters in the storm area, as well as tied up shipping along the St. Mary's River and the Lake Superior district.

So severe has been the blow to navigation that marine men forecast a premature end to the lakes shipping season.

With weather bureau officials predicting much colder weather, accompanied by a continuation of the snowstorm, some apprehension is felt regarding the safety of scores of hunters snowbound in the district.

A 50-mile gale which blew the snow into great drifts along roads made those lanes impassable for automobile traffic, and hundreds of hunters who journeyed to the wood district in machines were forced to abandon them and were reported attempting to make their way afoot to the nearest railway centres. It was estimated that more than 500 hunters were trapped in the sparsely settled district by the storm.

Heavy losses will be sustained by lake shipping interests due to the storm, it is believed. As the result of low visibility caused by the snowfall, practically every ship in the region was forced to tie up at anchor.

All are moving now, however. Two tugs and a lighter working on the steamer Cottonwood, which went on the rocks near Copper Mine Point two weeks ago, nearly succeeded Sunday in freeing the vessel from its precarious position. It was on the point of being moved when the wind veered to the north-west and operations had to be suspended.

The George H. Ingalls, of the Boland and Cornelius line, which went aground at Point Aux Pines on Friday, was released after 800 tons of coal had been taken off.

There was little activity in marine circles in the gale and snow and all vessels were reported in shelter up the lake.

On Lower Lakes.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—The blizzard which has raged in the Upper Michigan peninsula district a'so held up navigation on the lower lakes Sunday. Navigation in the Welland Canal was practically tied up, few boats being able to make the difficult passage because of high winds and cold weather.

The motor ship B. B. McColl, bound light for Buffalo, was forced to return to the harbor here on Sunday, after going three miles up the lake. The east wind and heavy sea pounded the tanker heavily.

During the night weather conditions moderated and, with the wind dying down, it is expected that there will be no difficulty in canaling.

A sudden turn in the market puts some store in a position to offer you goods of the highest repute and quality at a bargain price. Read the advertisements and save money.

CHINA FACING GRAVEST CRISIS IN RECENT YEARS

Sir Austin Chamberlain Sketches Situation to House of Commons.

POOR NAVY SUPPORT

Government Maintains Same War Attitude Throughout Prolonged Chinese Troubles.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press)—"The gravest crisis since the Boxer Rebellion," is how British correspondents in China describe the present situation there and their concern is fully reflected here in official quarters.

The government, however, maintaining its wary attitude which has prevailed throughout the prolonged Chinese troubles, is still declining to be hurried into any precipitate action based on what may possibly develop as inadequate information.

Former Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, making his first appearance in the House of Commons yesterday since a holiday for his health, asked Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain to give the House information on affairs in China.

Sir Austen, in reply, outlined the serious developments which have occurred in Hankow during the past week, growing out of a threatened general anti-foreign strike and boycott there. He said that the commissioner of customs hoped that it might be possible to keep the customs house opened and to maintain a light service for the foreign nation in Hankow, but admitted that this might be difficult if the customs house, which is within the Chinese city, should be picketed.

According to the latest reports, he said, the situation appeared easier. The Chinese union had presented its demands and they were understood not to be of an impossible nature. Sir Austen added, however, that perhaps this was only a preliminary move.

He then asked Mr. MacDonald to repeat his question on Wednesday, when he thought he would be able to give further information.

Replying to further questions, the Foreign Secretary said that he had received a communication from the British community of Hankow expressing fear of untoward incidents involving bloodshed and stating that the protection afforded by the British naval forces there were considered inadequate. The Admiralty and ministry, Sir Austen said, were giving this matter attention.

Apparently the government has no present intention of ordering further naval units to China, since officials consider that there are sufficient British units on the Yangtse to deal with any crisis. Twelve destroyers and an aircraft carrier, sent to China from Malta in September are ready for eventualities in addition to the regular river patrol. One difficulty at the present time is the fact that the waters of the river are so low as not to be safely navigable for naval vessels.

It is understood that the situation will be left largely to the chief naval commander on the spot and it is hoped that if any action should become necessary, it will be of an international character. There is considerable interest as to what action the United States will take if the threatened general strike should affect United States citizens.

The recommendations of the extra-territoriality commission concerning the position of the foreign nations in China were published here in full, but in the presence of the grave situation in Hankow, have attracted but little attention.

The advance of the Cantonese forces and the resignation of the Peking government have resulted in close attention to this phase of the entire Chinese situation. Whether the Cantonese government can become a concrete governing body with which the foreign nations can properly deal, is a question on which opinions differ widely.

The prevailing view and that accepted generally in official quarters is that the Cantonese government, should it gain control of all China, is too completely Bolshevist in its inceptions and aims to be trusted and that it will force an anti-foreign policy, including denunciation of foreign treaties to the utmost extent.

On the other hand, the opinion in Liberal quarters as expressed by an editorial in yesterday's Star, favors an attempt to negotiate with the Cantonese.

Boy Of 11 Kills Brother Of 5 Accidentally; Then, In His Grief, Takes His Own Life

BAKER, Ore., Nov. 30—Accidentally killing his five-year-old brother with a pistol which he believed to be unloaded, Orville Williams, 11, then turned the weapon on himself and ended his own life here last night.

Arthur, 4, another brother, was the only witness to the shooting, which took place in the boys' home while their mother, Mrs. O. E. Williams, was out for a few minutes.

Orville took an automatic pistol from a sewing machine drawer, and Edward, the five-year-old brother, asked him to shoot at a design on the wall-paper at about the level of his head, according to the police.

The bullet hit Edward, killing him instantly. Orville then shot himself in the heart.

There were only two bullets in the pistol. Arthur told police that his elder brother believed it was empty.

RIGHT REV. J. FIELDING SWEENY, LORD BISHOP OF TORONTO, SAYS:

"Once more a grave responsibility confronts us in connection with the O.T.A. and knowing as you do my views in regard to the whole question as set forth in previous pastorals notably that of April 7, 1921, which views have not changed, I would urge you in the discharge of the duty of franchise, to make the matter a subject of prayer that all may vote with a due sense of responsibility, both to Almighty God and to their neighbors.

"Let it be granted, as statisticians assure us, that if war has slain its thousands strong drink has slain its ten of thousands.

"Let it be granted that if war has devastated and destroyed homes and hearths and households, strong drink has outdone it through the long centuries, many times over.

"Let these few terrible cumulative facts be granted and the agitation of an awakened Christian consciousness, of an aroused civilization becomes at once understandable. The first great law of nature in the individual becomes the first law of the community, and for self-preservation in this direction, as in countless others, society enacts that the menace must and shall be removed.

Depends on Facilities

"It is a commonly accepted axiom that 'drinking and drunkenness with all their concomitant evils are in direct proportion to the facilities afforded for the obtaining of intoxicating beverages.' We are reminded of these familiar words from King John, 'How oft the sight of means to do ill deeds makes ill deeds done.' The Ontario Temperance Act sets out to remove the facilities and therefore to lessen the opportunities and correspondingly the consequences of the liquor traffic. It is for those who cannot restrain their appetite, a measure of restriction, for others a self-denying obligation to be borne in the spirit of St. Paul (1 Cor. VIII. 13). I plead with my clerical and lay brethren to consider carefully the responsibility involved in connection with this revived question of the O.T.A., and only after deep study of the question in all its bearings to let conscience with the vision of its accountability before it, determine the course that each for himself shall pursue."

Election Bulletin

NOV. 30, 1926 PETERBOROUGH, ONT. No. 14

Rev. Father Minehan Supports O. T. A.

STRONG support for the O.T.A. has been given by Rev. Father Minehan, who knows conditions in Toronto thoroughly. He says, in part:

"Never was there a more clear cut issue than that before the electors of Ontario today. It can be crystallized into two words: merit and humbug. Of the former W. F. Nickle is the personification. I am proud to be behind a cause of which he is the embodiment.

"Mr. Nickle knows that the present fight is against an enemy more treacherous, more dangerous to liberty, more ruthless in its greed a thousand times, than the mailed fist of all the ages put together.

GOVERNMENT "CONTROL" HAS FAILED

"We had that policy (Government Control) in the license system and the government did try to control by regulating the number of licenses, the selling to minors, addicts, etc., and the hours of sale. That was a terrible and universally acknowledged failure. Now it is proposed that the government be proprietor, vendor, in fact, everything. By so doing it will dispose of the bootlegger. Yes—if it sells to everyone that comes keeps open house day and night, in a word, becomes chief bootlegger, supplying plenty of cheap and adulterated liquor for all and sundry.

A Terrible Indictment

"If anyone wishes to have every word of this terrible indictment verified, let him read the death-bed protest of Cardinel Begin over the havoc wrought in his diocese by poison brew which sprang up under so-called government control, or glance at something later, viz., the latest report of the liquor commission of Quebec and the confession of its chief officer.

"If anyone reading this statement and many others pouring in from the highest authorities in our western provinces can conscientiously support so-called governent control, his political hide ought to be invaluable for the formation of burglar-proof safes."

PREMIER FERGUSON'S STRANGE SILENCE

"Not in one public speech has Premier Ferguson attacked the brewers and distillers. He has scored and slandered the preachers and the church, the young men and young women of Ontario, but not a word has he said against the brewer and the distiller."

IF IN DOUBT—VOTE FOR THE O.T.A.

If in doubt how to vote one thing is certain. The only advancing temperance legislation that can be had will come from those backing the Ontario Temperance Act—first, last and all the time they are working for this. The O.T.A. is not perfect but it can be made so. The backing of Government Control by brewers and distillers means ever more and more booze. They never work for temperance

WHO BACKS THE TWO PARTIES ?

If Premier Ferguson and his party are returned to power they will be put in office mainly by the wet vote of Ontario—the brewers, distillers and all their crowd. The government will be absolutely in their power and will have to give them practically everything they demand. Note the Kuntz brewery announcement on this page.

If the Liberals, with prohibition support, are elected to govern Ontario, their supporters will be the out and out opponents of the liquor interests. They can be depended upon to strengthen the O.T.A. and to enforce it in every possible way. Under these conditions support the O. T. A.

ELECTION RETURNS

Arrangements have been made for supporters of the O.T.A. to receive the election returns tomorrow night in the Reid St. Sunday School Hall, near Charlotte St. The C.N.R. will supply an efficient service with half hour summaries.

THE BREWERIES SAY— VOTE FOR FERGUSON

A PLEA FOR FERGUSON AND BOOZE

Here is the vote-for-Ferguson-and-liquor appeal which hung in the window of the Toronto warehouse of the Kuntz Brewery, Limited, 261 King street west, on Saturday. It was removed Sunday night. The poster, topped by a picture of the premier himself, was an eloquent and unmistakable plea for support of the premier and his government sale policy.

Vote For Bradburn!

THE CONSERVATIVE VICTORY COMMITTEE (Advt.)

True Liberalism!

SIR ALAN AYLESWORTH SAYS:

"I have been voting now for more than fifty years in parliamentary elections, and I have never given a Conservative vote, but I am going to do so this year, because I think that any measure of prohibition by law as opposed to prohibition by education is the very reverse of what I have always considered were the true principles of Liberalism. As well might one try to advance the interest of religion or Christianity by legislation that would compel the people to go to church."

THOUSANDS OF LIBERALS WHO NEVER VOTED CONSERVATIVE BEFORE ARE VOTING GOVERNENT CONTROL!

TRINITY CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Capt. T. D. Robb is Special Preacher For Occasion.

RECITAL GIVEN.

The forty-fourth anniversary of the foundation of the Sunday School of Trinity Church was very successfully observed over the week end, with special services conducted on Sunday by Rev. Captain T. D. Robb, of Glebe Road United Church, Toronto, who also gave a very fine dramatic recital, "Ben Hur," in the church last evening.

On Sunday morning the reverend speaker addressed the children from the New Testament story of "setting the child in the midst," a message to childhood which was well illustrated by stories gleaned from the personal experience of the speaker. In the evening, when another large congregation welcomed the visiting minister, the special message was based on the story of Esther: "Who knoweth that thou are come to the kingdom for such a time as this." The possibilities of youth were dwelt upon in this timely message, in which it was pointed out that youth had arrived at this particular time of Provincial crisis.

The choir of Trinity Church rendered very fine music for the occasion, led by Miss Mabel Clarry.

Last evening, the church was filled to hear Rev. Captain Robb give his noted dramatic recital based on the story of "Ben Hur," the story being told to the accompaniment of music playing by Miss Clarry. This recital proved a rare treat to the audience, the notable rendition of General Lew Wallace's famous story holding Rev. Mr. Robb's audience spellbound for over an hour and a half. The thrilling tale demonstrated to the full the outstanding histrionic powers of the elocutionist, who was wonderfully effective in his delineation of the chariot scene.

During the evening, vocal solos were given by Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Jean Padget. Mr. A. B. Gates, superintendent of the Sunday School, presided over the entertainment, which brought to a close a very successful anniversary celebration.

Two Fair Questions

HERE ARE TWO FAIR QUESTIONS:—

If Government Control is not working well in other provinces, why has it not been attacked by one or other of the political parties in those provinces?

If Government Control is a failure in Alberta, why was not the question an issue in the last provincial election?

The truth is that the majority of the people in all five Government Control provinces are so satisfied with the system that it would not be used as a political question with any profit to anybody.

The only evidence to the contrary is offered by Prohibition extremists, and their lack of knowledge of conditions make them untrustworthy guides as to results elsewhere.

STRUCK BY CAR; SLIGHTLY HURT

Wesley Manley Hurled Against Side of Own Vehicle.

ABLE TO GO HOME.

Wesley Manley was slightly injured in the chest in an automobile accident just in front of Woolworth's store about 5 p.m.

The injured man, who is employed by Cameron and Matthews as a truck driver, had stopped his car in front of Woolworth's as he had a parcel to deliver across the street. At that moment a street car was proceeding north, and Mr. Manley apparently was watching it as he failed to notice an automobile driven by George Robertson, which was proceeding south. The car brushed him to one side, throwing him violently against his own truck.

Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield, who was in a nearby store, had Manley removed to McLeod's Drug Store, where he examined him. No bones were broken, however, and he was able to proceed home.

SEE THAT THE LIVER IS ACTIVE

You've heard it today—the story of the bright young woman, whose energy is sapped by bilious headaches and constipation. Complexion blemishes or sallow skin perhaps give the first warning. Then the attacks of headache become more frequent, and a chronic state of nervous depression ensues.

Women in business and in the home, in need of a gentle tonic and laxative that assists Nature in cleansing the system of poisons, and keeping stomach, liver and intestinal tract in a state of healthy activity find prompt relief and permanent satisfaction in the use of

MATTHEWS MAY BE LT.-GOVERNOR

Successor To Cockshutt May Be Man Well Known Here.

MULOCK MENTIONED.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30. — Several important appointments will have to be made upon the return to Ottawa of Premier King, including a Lieutenant-Governor for Ontario and two Senators from the same Province.

For the Lieutenant-Governorship, the name of Albert Matthews, of Toronto, is the latest mentioned, though it is said that another effort will be made to induce the Chief Justice, Sir William Mulock, to accept the appointment. In the event of Sir William declining, it is stated that Mr. Matthews will be requested by the Prime Minister to succeed Mr. Cockshutt, who has consented to carry on for a few months until his successor is selected.

Mr. Matthews is a prominent Baptist layman, and was head of the world-wide organization of the Baptist Church. He has had a successful career in the meat-packing industry, and was Liberal candidate in Northeast Toronto in 1925.

Mr. Matthews is uncle of G. S. Matthews of this city, and brother to T. F Matthews.

...TIVES ...RKWORTH

...peakers Uphold Liquor Policies of Party.

WARKWORTH, Nov 30.—The Liberal-Conservative meeting held here Saturday evening in the Town Hall, at which J. F. Boland, Gordon Shepherd, and Miss Belle Thompson, all of Toronto, gave addresses, was not largely attended, the total audience was about one hundred including from twelve to eighteen ladies

Warden McCubbin.

John McCubbin, Warden of Northumberland and Durham Counties, was the chairman. In his remarks, Mr. McCubbin said, he did not know why the public spoke of the campaign as wet and dry. Fred McArthur was a dry man in every sense of the word, with nothing to mar his character. He had lived a quiet life, was not very well known, but was fearless. The O.T.A. was a household word for years because of convictions. It was a prohibitory law and could not be enforced.

Mr. McCubbin complained of doctors issuing scripts and stated this was done without an examination of the person. "Is the doctor to control liquor or the Government", he asked. "What we want is better control. A young man any age can purchase it from a bootlegger and become intoxicated. Liquor is bought illegally in Warkworth because it cannot be gotten legally. I am told," said Mr McCubbin "although I was not there to count it, that ninety bottles were sold here just behind the tent where preachers were holding a camp meeting.

"What class", he asked, "are the ...tters who go around searching f... bootleggers. It is men of poor r...utation, who are trying to en...ce the O.T.A. As long as dis...ries run there will have to be an ...outlet. I can see no reason ... Government Control should no... be better than doctor's scripts. I ... called a Liberal but I am an inde...endent and when I make up my ...ind I do not change easily. The ...O.T.A. has so many holes in it, th... it will not hold water. I am su...porting McArthur because I think ... Government Control is the only ...emedy. You are the jury", he sai..., "and every person should think well over the subject."

J. F. Boland.

Mr. Boland opened his remarks by saying, "It is rather unfortunate there are not more present, but I know you who are here will weigh the matter well. We, who are with Mr. Ferguson and Mr. McArthur are in good company and have with us outstanding men in high walks of life." He then named such as Aird, Flavelle, Bishop Thornloe and Canon Cody. "Restriction of will power is not a road to success," he said. "Some people think they can legislate men into heaven and by their footstraps get in themselves. If Government Control does not carry we are prepared to abide by the decision of the majority."

The speaker then reviewed the O.T.A. under Hearst, who he stated was the father of it. He traced the history to the present and charged Hon. W. F. Nickle with being the founder of 4.4 beer. He introduced the Spracklin case under Drury and spoke of how Mr. Raney gave instructions to magistrates in his day of office, as Attorney General. The speaker reminded his hearers of the trouble in the house at the time of the last session of the U.F.O. regime. He stated that public sentiment in favor of the O.T.A. was gradually lessening and someh... be done. He reviewed h... Nickle's handling of the ... and said, "It cannot be enforced."

Reference was made to conditions in the United States and figures quoted to show that the Volstead Act was a great liability. Mr. Boland declared crime was on the increase in the United States, and a commission had been appointed to deal with crime. He read testimonials from Mrs. Murphy of Alberta confirming Government Control in that Province. He stated it was not fair that people in Ontario should be counted criminals for doing in this Province what was allowed by law in other Provinces." The only proposed change in the liquor law," said Mr. Boland, "is the abolition of the doctor's prescriptions. Doctors make liars of themselves," he said, "because in order to hold their customers they are given scripts when not needed and without any examination. They also favor their friends by giving scripts to them. Sooner or later," the speaker said, "the liquor so prevalent now in the cities will affect the country people. Election day was placed on Wednesday so we could get back at the clergy for taking an unfair advantage of us in pulpit."

Gordon Shepherd.

The audience had become materially depleted by the time Mr. Shepherd came to the platform and only about fifty or sixty persons were presnet

He began by stating that the prospects for the return of the Ferguson government were oright indeed, and remarked that the people who were now opposing the Premier were the ones who had always opposed him. Some of them, he said, made that work a pastime. Nearly half an hour was spent reviewing the records of Messrs. Raney, Nickle, Drury, Roebuck, and the Rev. Ben Spence and, said the speaker, "we will put Sinclair in with them."

"Raney," he said, "tells a falsehood if he denies knowing of the carousals on the last night of the Drury regime. Ben Spence had been arrested for high treason and fined $500.00. Drury could not find a seat anywhere, did not even receive a nomination, and Raney scoured the country and finally where he was not known. The O.T.A. was made by biased hands and means one thing to the po... and another to the rich. What the Government is trying to do" said Mr. Shepherd in closing, "is to get something good out of the O.T.A. to save the child they have created."

Miss Thompson.

Miss Thompson said, "This is housecleaning time. The Drury Government," she continued, "left the country in a terrible state, but landed in Prince Edward County Mr. Ferguson has been able to reduce the debt. He is greatly interested in the young people as evidenced by correspondence school courses for the children of school age who live in back sections of the country, the itinerating school cars, the boy's correction school at Bowmanville, and dental clinics. The O.T.A. is not temperance and I resent Mr. Raney placing people working for Government Control in any other than a class with temperance people. I am a prohibitionists. "The O.T.A. abolished the bars and did away with the treating system. Ferguson is teaching the churches something because he never retaliates. The temperance people are out to beat Hon. Howard Fergusan who is going to ammend the O.T.A. so we shall have liquor under control."

Mr. McCubbin as he called for the National Anthem said he knew of a man who had unloaded big shipments of liquor not 35 miles from Warkworth.

DRY MEETING CAMPBELLFORD

Closes Election Campaign Around Campbellford With Final Liberal Rally.

AUSPICES OF P.U.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30—Dr. W. G. Robertson, Liberal candidate in Northumberland, virtually closed the election campaign in this section last night, when he spoke at the temperance rally in the Regent Theatre under the auspices of the Prohibition Union. Mayor George A. Kingston presided, and with him on the platform were Mrs. L. B. Glover, Mrs. R. W. Scott, Mrs. D. W. Douglas, Mrs. J. H. Bell, Mrs. W. H Ashton, Deputy-Reeve C W. Palliser, D. W. Douglas, J. A. Irwin, W. G. Armstrong, George Van Volkenburg, Rev. C. D. Daniel, and Rev. W. Elliott.

Can you make Ontario drier by making it wetter," Mayor Kingston asked. Everybody, he said, professed to be for temperance in this campaign. The electors would have to make their own decisions. Extravagant statements have been made by both sides. The government candidates contended that the control measure was a panacea for bootlegging, drunkenness and other evils. Mr. Kingston said he had always supported the O.T.A.

"Let us stand true to our principles," he said, "and vote as our consciences dictate."

Dr. Robertson said he sympathized with those temperance Conservatives who found their principles clashing with their political affiliations. It was regrettable that the O.T.A. had been thrown into politics. To Liberals who favored government control, he said that he respected their opinions, but at the same time he asked them to respect him on December 1st. The phrase "Government control' had an appealing, impressive sound, and another such phrase was parental control, but experience had shown that often it was hard to enforce that control.

Dr. Robertson said that Campbellford was especially interested in the results of this election, because it was an industrial town with many workers who should be efficient, not only for their own benefit but also for the good of the industries and companies with whom they were engaged. With some improvements to the O.T.A. Dr. Robertson believed that it could be made the best temperance legislation ever put on the statute books of Ontario. He was confident it could be made a success, especially under the administration of a man like W. F. Nickle backed by a sympathetic government.

Rev. Dr. Laidlaw of Erskine Street Church, Toronto, asserted that the people of Ontario were engaged in no mere political fight, but that the supporters of the O.T.A. were opposing the liquor forces of the world. It had been shown, for example, that the French wine exporters had spent large sums in Canada to defeat prohibition movements.

As to conditions in the western provinces under government control, Dr. Laidlaw said he had a friend in Winnipeg who had told him that conditions in the Manitoba capital had become worse since the permissive liquor legislation had been adopted. This informant worked in the poorer quarters of the city and was in a position to see and know what the effects had been.

"I place more credence in the statements of men who spend their lives in the hearts of big cities than I do in the statements of itinerant observers, who cross the continent and publish articles purporting to be the truth about the liquor situation in the western provinces," said Rev. Dr. Laidlaw. He declared that the liquor trade regarded prohibition as it implacable enemy and consequently was striving to defeat the O.T.A. The people realized that the liquor trade was behind government sale, as the speaker referred to the control policy.

"If they ever get the government into their clutches we will have a terrible difficulty in dislodging them. As a Christian, I refuse to exercise my franchise for a trade that fattens on the debauchery of homes."

Dr. Laidlaw appealed to all temperance men to use their ballots for for the retention of the O.T.A.

Rev. Dr. Brace of Toronto said he was proud of those citizens who put aside their party for their principles and for the good of the province. The Conservative party was not wet, and this election might be the means of ridding the party of its wet element. The speaker quoted the British bulldog's motto: 'What we have we'll hold," and urged all temperance people to vote for the maintenance of the O.T.A

A Last Word

What shall the harvest be? What will the Province reap from to-morrow's sowing? Shall it be a new crop of drinkers, and if so whose young people will they be? Will they be yours or will they be your neighbor's? Whoever they are, can Ontario afford to sacrifice them to drink?

A clear-cut issue is before Ontario. It is prohibition or liquor.

There is no escape from that alternative. Mr. Ferguson's Government Sale proposal cannot be disguised as "advanced temperance legislation." The indisputable fact is that Government Sale makes easier and simpler access to liquor, which results in greater intemperance.

This is no party fight—this battle at the polls to-morrow. It is a contest for the upholding of a prohibitory law on one side and the bringing in of legalized liquor sale on the other.

A vote against a Ferguson candidate is a vote to retain a law which has eliminated drunkenness, increased temperance and benefitted homes and industry. A vote for a Ferguson candidate is a vote to return to drunkenness and intemperance and broken homes and handicapped industry. The choice leaves no room for party politics.

Compare by any standard, but without party bias, Ontario under liquor license and Ontario to-day. If the comparison be honest, and judgment not blinded by party politics, the verdict will be for the Ontario of to-day.

Let us keep to the road we know is good—the road that leads away from the liquor traffic. Let us not vote ourselves into the thraldom of liquor.

There is no compromise—no halfway measure—in dealing with the liquor traffic. Either you win or you lose. Either Ontario wins or loses to-morrow.

PHOSPHOROUS GLOW STARTLES VILLAGER

Awakes to Find Wood Box Apparently on Fire.

HIAWATHA, Nov. 30.—The other day one of the residents of the village was cleaning up some old brush and roots of trees. One root in particular did not seem to be any different to the rest only it was once bearing wild plums. He was using the old trees, etc., for fire wood. This particular piece of wood was placed in the box for wood by the stove, along with other sticks. Next morning he awakened and discovered that there was a fire in the wood box but there was no heat or smoke. He was greatly surprised and had never seen any thing like it before and was at loss to know what it was.

His wife and he were both pleased that it was harmless. It was a remarkable phenomenon and one not often observed in Ontario. Some of the older people called the fire "Fox fire" and others said it was "Wild fire." The luminous shades on the decayed root lasted several days.

A possible explanation is that on the wood there must have been a gathering or body of phosphorous, which would give a fire like appearance to the root.

The friends of Mr. James Howard will be sorry to know that he fell last week and hurt himself very seriously.

Mr. Arnold Sexsmith of Cavan was helping his brother a few days on the threshing machine, in the place of Mr. R. Cowie.

. . . CHRONICLER OF FACTS . . . SIFTER OF RUMORS AND OPINIONS . . . MINISTER OF THE TRUTH THAT MAKES MEN FREE.

NO SLACKERS DESIRED.

There should be no slackers in Peterboro tomorrow.

Every man and every woman on the list should face the issue and register an opinion as the questions that have to be decided at tomorrow's election.

It is an individual responsibility that every voter should have the moral courage to discharge.

The duty cannot be left to others; along that path lies danger to the whole social fabric.

It is only when men and women recognize that fact and resolutely set themselves to the task that their title of citizen brings them that a clear verdict can be obtained on any important question.

Surely when not only the selection of a Government but the choosing of a policy of such moment as the best method of dealing with a great evil have to be decided by the votes of Ontario's citizens there should be no holding back.

"On to the polls" should be the slogan here and everywhere tomorrow.

RADIO CAMPAIGNING.

That the radio is likely to play an increasing important part in election campaigns in this country is demonstrated by the use that has been made of broadcasting facilities by the Conservative party in the present fight.

Speeches of Premier Ferguson have been put "on the air" from various parts of the Province, largely through the Toronto stations, although his address a Chatham last week was transmitted through one of the powerful Detroit stations.

Other Government speakers have also had their speeches broadcast, the latest being Mrs. Howard Fallis, of Peterboro, whose remarks at London last night were sent out by both London and Toronto transmittin stations.

The establishment of more powerful stations in Toronto is a development of the near future, and with their advent the use of the radio for political purposes will undoubtedly be greatly increased, with good reception assured in Peterboro and other districts which under certain conditions now have difficulty in picking up Toronto broadcasts.

Thus a political speaker's audience will not consist of the thousand or two in front of him, but many thousands of electors in all parts of the country.

BUY IN PETERBORO.

Citizens of Peterboro during the last few days have received a copy of a letter issued by the Peterboro Typographical Union calling attention to the desirability of local people becoming "Buy-in-Peterboro" boosters.

This action, taken by the local printers on their own initiative, should receive the earnest consideration of the citizens generally.

It reads as follows:

'We are vitally interested in the welfare, growth and prosperity of our fair city, its citizens and institutions—we want to see general expansion and prosperity for all—so, we spend our earnings at home, thus helping to make our aim possible and, at the same time, 'practise what we preach.' However, we cannot accomplish this worthy ambition single-handed; therefore, we ask your whole-hearted co-operation, for 'in unity there is strength.'

"Being engaged in the printing and publishing industry, we are immediately concerned regarding its welfare and progress. We have recently completed a comprehensive survey of the city to ascertain the volume of printing used. In this connection, we find that a large quantity of printing is sent out of the city, while about 99 per cent. of it could be done at home. This action retards general growth and expansion, because money that should be circulated in Peterboro is sent away.

"The Peterboro Typographical Union is composed of members employed by The Peterboro Examiner, Limited; The Review Printing Company; The Merchants Press (operated by The Peterboro Paper Box Company, Limited), and The Standard Press.

"The combined payroll of these firms is now in excess of $100,000.00 a year. This represents a big spending power. Practically all of this money is spent with the merchants and manufacturers of Peterboro—the balance is placed with our banking institutions.

"Think what it would mean to us all to double this spending power. It can be done if you, one and all, will become 100 per cent. 'Buy-in-Feterboro' boosters. It is most certainly worth your while. Get on the band-wagon now and—boost.

"Perhaps you may have a grievance that rankles in your bosom—a thorn in the flesh—if so, let us get together, talk things over, straighten out the kinks and help yourselves and ourselves and Peterboro.

"These offices guarantee fair treatment to all—this is exemplified in the Union Label, which, in itself, is a sign-post of fair treatment and conditions to all, as well as progress—demand it on your printed matter.

"Won't you please advise us that you are in back of us on the public-spirited, co-operative movement by return mail?

"We need you and you need us—let's get together—NOW.

"Be a 'Buy-in-Peterboro' booster."

There is little The Examiner can add to this convincing message, except to point out that a general compliance with the request to buy at home, not only when printing is desired but in the case of all needed commodities, would make Peterboro a busier, more prosperous city, and everybody would in a measure share in that prosperity.

AMERICAN WEALTH.

Napoleon shrewdly looked forward to a time when the progres of America would out-rival that of "the nation of shop-keepers." Indeed, it was long ago apparent that a sub-continent, stretching from ocean to ocean, and two-thirds the size of all Europe, was bound sooner or later to attract a considerable population, and to advance to a high place in the order of nations. America, a land flowing not only with milk and honey but with that extraordinarily potent fluid, petroleum, and stuffed to repletion with gold and silver, iron and copper, lead and timber, is naturally the richest country in the world, and it would be very surprising if much were not made of the prodigious gifts of nature.

In point of size, of course, we of the British Isles compare, not with all America, but with one of the forty-eight American States. Pennsylvania, for example, has an area of 45,000 square miles, against the 58,300 square miles of England and Wales. Pennsylvania is a very rich State, exttraordinarily well-found in hard and soft coal, and yet its population at the census of 1920 was about nine millions, or little more than that of Greater London. England and Wales in 1921 had 37,900,000 people.

This is at once a reminder of the great growth we may expect in the American population, which is now about 117,000,000, and of the measure of our own success in finding a livelihood for so many people on so comparatively small an area as that of England and Wales. Our phenomenal growth has already slackened, and will presently cease altogether under the influence of systematic birth-control combined with emigration. The rate of American growth is also slackening, but it is probable that by 1950 the United States will have a population of at least 150,000,000.

It is probable that the American industrial output is now about four times as great as ours, quantity for quantity. Thus, a much bigger real wage fund, head for head, is produced in America than is produced here, and American real wages are undoubtedly higher than those drawn by our own work-people. We have to look this fact clearly in the face, and to ask ourselves to what extent it is due to (1) American national natural resources and (2) difference of industrial method.

We cannot dismiss the first of these factors. If two men of equal gift and industry possess equal areas of land, while the first has coal and oil beneath his area and the second has not, it is quite idle to reproach the man with inferior resources for not doing so well as his neighbor. The Americans would be duffers, indeed, if they could not create more wealth than we do seeing that they have twenty times as much coal as we have, and that they possess within their own territory splendid stores of timber and minerals which we can only come by through purchase from abroad.

On the other hand, if we regard our island as a workshop, we see it as exceedingly well placed for industry, and better favored in some respects than the greater part of the American area. The British workshop has more than enough coal for its own purposes, and owns an exceptionally favorable geographical position in a temperate climate, with a magnificent natural canal, the sea, all round it, so that every part of it is near tide-water, and has easy and cheap access to the world's materials.

The liberal use of our economic advantages built up our great population, and our wealth may yet be continued and enlarged. When, therefore, all allowance is made for American natural superiority, we have no reason whatever to deplore our national position, or necessity to regard our future as threatened. Indeed, if more cannot be made of our British resources, what can be expected of a country like Italy, which comparatively has few resources?

So far from emulating the Fat Boy, we can by thought add much to our industrial stature. And while we can produce much more, we can also have the abiding satisfaction that the British Isles constitute not only an extraordinarily fine workshop but an extraordinarily beautiful home-place. Who that has traveled in the long winter from industrial town to industrial town in North America can have failed to long for the green fields of England? Even in April the North American plain is for the most part a dun and dreary expanse, what time the verdant soil of England is putting on new beauty. In comparing British and American wealth we must not forget such facts as these. All America is not by any means like California or Florida.

Nor must we in comparing Britain and America forget the exceeding wastefulness which has marked the American economy. There have been no greater instances of economic prodigality than have occurred in the United States. The late President Roosevelt was so struck with the squandering of the American natural resources that in 1908 he spoke of them in a message from the White House as "being consumed, wasted, and destroyed at a rate which threatens them with exhaustion." The waste continues to this hour.—Sir Leo Chiozza Money, in Barron's.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Well, it's about all over but the voting.

Every elector should use his or her franchise tomorrow. Let us in Peterboro show that there are no slackers when important questions are to be settled.

We are almost ready to hear from municipal candidates. And when we get the civic sweepstakes out of the way, let us hope that we will be able to forget elections for a while. There has been little else since mid-summer.

That storm of applause you hear is the enthusiastic reception given a resolution proposed by the Ontario Conservative party thanking Sir George E. Foster for his services during the present campaign.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—The dullness that characterized the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market last week was continued in yesterday's opening session. Several bids were received from foreign buyers for wheat but they were all below exporters' views. The trade in coarse grains was also quiet but values were steady.

The feature of the local flour trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market for Spring wheat grades and prices were reduced 10 cents per barrel. This was attributed to the weakness in the Winnipeg market.

Prices for all grades of Winter wheat flour were well maintained under a small enquiry.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were unchanged. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

The cheese trade was decidedly more active than it has been of late and prices were fractionally higher. The receipts were 789 boxes.

Considerable business was again transacted in fresh and storage eggs and prices were steady. The receipts were 122 cases.

The demand for beans continued good and prices ruled firm. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel, and broken lots at $3.00 per bushel.

The undertone to the potato market was firm under a continued good demand. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 per bag, New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.75 per bag, and Quebec White stock at $1.60 per bag of 90 pounds.

The Editor, Examiner:
Dear sir:

In thanking you for printing my letter of the 23rd inst., I would like to call your attention to a typographical error in the following paragraph which read in your paper, "The humour of the situation will, of course, appeal to those who are NOT of an analytical type of mind"; whereas, according to the copy sent in, it should have read "THE HUMOR OF THE SITUATION WILL, OF COURSE APPEAL TO THOSE WHO ARE OF AN ANALYTICAL TYPE OF MIND". As the meaning of the paragraph is somewhat distorted by the insertion of the word "not" I shall deem it a favor if you will be good enough to make the correction.

I thank you.

Yours very truly,
FRANK GERALD.

To the Editor:
Dear sir:

Evidently on Friday evening when a mother who in the world's war made sacrifices that few mothers made and many made great sacrifices was addressing a meeting presided over by Mrs. Allan of the city there was an organized effort of some to disturb the meeting. This was not an effort of the great Conservative party it might of been the offspring of the Fergusonites. The remnant of the great Conservative party have higher ideals and greater aspirations than to besmirch the mother of so many sons that bowed to the countrys call, by either publicity matetr or interruption and are joining hands with the Liberals and Progressives in defiance of the democracy of our different political parties and I believe the women of our city both old and young who respect their womanhood will not vote for any candidate that is supported by an element that is not willing to give women the courtesy they are entitled to. Thanking you, I remain,

Yours truly,
W.H. MERRELL

556 Romaine street City.

The Editor, Examiner:
Dear sir:

I beg to be allowed space in your columns, to express myself in regard to the meeting held in the Opera House on Friday the 26th inst., in your report of which, you state that a heckler was busy at this particular meeting. Well, as I am the person you refer to, I wish to state that it was the last thought in my head to be disrespectful to the chair and also that I was not engaged by Mr. Bradburn to attend this meeting for the purpose of causing any disturbance.

I fully appreciate Mrs. Gordon Wright's reference to her patriotic sons, who did their share in the late war, but I fail to understand her action with regard to the distribution of cigarettes during that period. I am just wondering if the same speaker would have opposed the issue of the rum ration to these boys who, I am sure will agree was a very essential part of a soldier's daily rations and was recognized by the War Office to be a great stimulant to the fellows who had to endure a great deal of exposure at that time I might also mention that this rum was controlled by the Government and I believe that no Tommy received more than his share.

Later on in her speech Mrs. Wright referred to the horrible sights she had seen during her welfare work in the cities of Glasgow, Birmingham and London, as the result of the drink traffic, but I was suprised to find she did not mention the peace abiding city of Chicago where the dry law is supposed to be in force, and one only needs to follow daily events in this glorious city to understand what effect this mocking of dry law has upon the moral side of the country.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I am,

Yours truly,
TOM STAZIEKER.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

As a life long Conservative, interested in this Province, and particularly in the City of Peterboro, I am opposed to Hon. Howard Ferguson foisting on the Conservative party, his policy, without calling a convention of the party to outline its platform.

I believe in honest statements, not ambiguous or equivocal pronouncements especially from the leader of a great party, led by such honest men as Meredith, Hearst, and Whitney, who have been above reproach in this regard.

The unqualified assurances given by Mr. Ferguson, at the last Plebicite were, that as the vote went, so would legislation go,—that the will of the majority would be asked and that will accepted and carried out, that he was only anxious to find out what that will was, and once given, it would be final as far as he was concerned.

Now he brings forward, as his policy, and forsooth the policy of the Conservative party, the very policy that was voted down by some 35,000 majority. Therefore, I cannot believed Howard Ferguson, for you cannot trust any man, be he in ordinary walks of life, or in the first position of the land, that gives so little value to his stated word. My faith in him has gone.

Mr. Ferguson stated in his opening speech, at Kemptvile, that the O.T.A. was a good act, and had done great good. Why then should an act of this character be thrown over for a system of Government Sale and Control, which, wherever tried as far as known, has not prove a success? Why not retain the present act, sustain and amend it, along the lines now proposed for enforcement of the Government Sale and Control act, by Premier Ferguson? This would seem to me to be the only common sense way to get the best results.

I know, in my business as wholesale grocer, the O.T.A. resulted in improvement in businesss. I know accounts have been better paid. Home conditions are vastly improved since the O.T.A. came in force in 1916. I know you cannot buy booze and have the money too. Far better that money should be used to clothe children, to properly feed the family, to furnish homes, and to enjoy life at its best.

I trust that every voter will very seriously consider, before marking a ballot in favor of the proposed system of Government Sale and Control.

J. E. ADAMS,

Editor Examiner:
Dear sir:

Ferguson's treachery to his party and to the people gave the brewers a chance to make many well intentioned people think the Act could not be enforced. Nickle tried to compromise in the 4.4 act but the "wets" fought on, hammered at the door of their sympathetic friend, Ferguson, until he boldy mixed it up with other issues in politics and pretends the law cannot be enforced. Can you think of anything much more cold blooded than that because every voter for Government Control would have just cause to say to himself in all future drunken auto smashes or other killings or drunken depredations: "I may have voted for that." You can have no less an authority than Magistrate Emily Murphy for that. This is the chief authority in the West for the wets. "About October 17", says Mr. J. F. Knight of Westmount church, Edmonton "Magistrate Emily Murphy told my congregation on Sunday night, October 17, I think the date was, that so many of the police were required to enforce the Government Control law that the Morality Squad had been reduced to two in the night." Mr. Knight goes on to condemn Government Control in strong terms.

Our problem is simply wet or dry. Such a strong outstanding Tory as Hon. W. F. Nickle would not take the stand against Ferguson if he did not believe his policy would ruin the party. In this opinion Hon. J. S. McLean, Conservative Senator, and Editor of The Sydney Post heartily agrees and says further. 'The Ferguson defeat would not be a party even if it had go in opposition for a time under another leader. He may win or lose the battle," the Senator goes on, "he has lost nearly everything else."

It is plainly the duty of every Conservative who loves his party and its best traditions to vote down and out those who would link up with the brewers such as Currie, Soward, etc. In all of Ferguson's cabinet have you heard of one man who does not take liquor as a beverage?

If so I have not seen any statement to the contrary. Are you at all likely to get a temperance measure from such men?

At Mr. Bradburn's meeting at Young's Point the other evening Mr. Dwelly called for the wiping out of prohibition. Mr. Peck and Mr. McElderry called themselves temperance men and yet did not object to Mr. Dwelly's sentiments neither did Mr. Bradburn. This shows you the kind of temperance men these gentlemen are, viz.: More liquor, lest restraint, more drunkeness, less business, more cases for the Salvation Army and Social Welfare, and less happiness in many homes, more loss of time by the working men at factories. You do not want these conditions do you.

READ THE WANT ADS.

FROM R. C. BRAUND.

To Editor of Examiner:

Why do I advocate voting against the Ferguson policy on this liquor question? Because from my observations in the city of Peterboro and vicinity for the last thirty-five years and over forty years as a member and worker in the Salvation Army. I believe that the result of the O.T.A has given us by far the best results, as there has been less liquor used and less drunkness. As to our work among the poor, the army people are versed in dealing with drunkards and the result of the liquor traffic. We know absolutely that conditions are changed, and that people are not in scarcely any degree at all as poverty-stricken or drink-ridden as they were.

Then, why should I conscientiously vote to bring liquor back when I know that if liquor is easier to get more people will get it and more people will drink, and more wives and children will be pinched for necessities.

The workingman and his family will suffer the most, for he cannot afford to squander his small earnings on drink. The rich man may or may not come to want, but the labouring man cannot afford it. I tell you, more liquor will bring more want and more misery. Many of our working people are buying their little homes and raising their families; can they afford to consume liquor? I say no.

As a business man who gave credit before and after the O.T.A. came into force, I can take my oath that inside five weeks I did notice the difference in many of my accounts and the happiness and contentment of women that I could mention the names of today who before were driven almost to desperation are now thrifty and contented Can I vote to bring more or an easier way to get liquor? I say no.

Then again, some say the O.T.A. has failed in that it has not stopped drinking as much as it should have done. I believe that the O. T. A. could have been administered better than it has been if Attorney-General Nickle had had the unbiased support of the members in the Government.

And I think, seeing that the Province voted to retain the O.T.A., that it was the duty of Premier Ferguson to try and improve the O. T A. instead of proposing a policy of his own contrary to the vote of the people.

Furthermore the people who are clamoring for the smashing of the O.T.A. are the big liquor interests, brewers and distillers, who have been made fat by the unholy profit of liquor and are now wanting another fat slice of the working man's money.

I, therefore, appeal to every man and woman in the south end of the city of Peterboro to come out and vote on Wednesday next and vote down the liquor policy of Honourable G. H. Ferguson.

We are happy neighbors now and we have a fair share of prosperity. Why let more liquor in to destroy this happy condition?

Vote for Mr. Gillespie and the improving and continuing of the O. T. A.

Yours very truly,
R. C. BRAUND.

The Editor, Examiner:
Sir:

Apparently some of our O.T.A. friends have lost their brains during this election, they have simply made out by their spurious chatter, that every one who votes Conservative, wants whiskey galore. Such is not the case. The great majority of working men who use liquor, do want a glass or bottle or beer, but it is generally given out on O.T.A. platforms that it is bottles of whiskey only—beer is left out altogether, which is certainly misleading. We are quite aware many people rely upon whiskey to break up their colds, or get rid of the grippe, and many succeed; it does them no harm.. We also know there are isolated cases where people drink whiskey until they are tickled, and no present law can stop them doing so. But why do the O.T.A. people always allude to whiskey galore only. Except to deceive the public I fail to see any other reason.

The Liberals, Progressives and O.T.A. representatives simply demand the head of the Hon. Howard Ferguson, and replace it with Raney, Drury Nickle and Co. They seem not to take into consideration that he must move with the times, and circumstances alter cases, such as exist at the present time—not what they were some years ago.

Any person can purchase bootlegging whiskey by paying from 8 to 10 dollars a bottle. You could not do that a few years ago, but bootlegging has spread to such an extent that Raney, Nickle and Co., nor all the king's horses, nor all the king's men can stop it now, except by using the guillotine. Off with the head and on with a cabbage law

Not so long ago, an auto with an American license and two spotters or goverment spies, trapped, or tried to convict, some of our people in Peterboro. Also, government spotters actings as hobos, trapped unfortuate farmers befriending them. After posing as half starved and weak from travelling around, lured the farmers to give them a small amount of whiskey then turned traitors and had them heavily fined. Consequently the people now will not stand for such mean actions as done under Attorney Raney or Nickle. I could mention mean actions by the spotters, and space in your Examiner is valuable at present.

How is so many of our sky pilots appear to have lost their heads during this election. Their expression have not been of a pious nature. They seem not to love their neighbors — the wets and Hon. Howard Ferguson.

My Chinaman thinks its a great game and some for his laundry.

It is also rid for the O.T.A. pe believe that bootlegg ried on to the same the present time, and O.T.A. is defeated. Just one paying the bootlegger fro to dollars for a bottle of wh as at present, when the Govern ment price will be about 5 to 6 dollars, i.e. the present price. Only a fool would pay the bootlegger more money for what may be poisonous liquor when he can get genuine liquor for less money, which will put an end to a dangerous and illegitimate trade.

Just one more case of a representative of the O.T.A. and his visions of the ladies and our Italian friends. He lost his head also. Apparently he drank vitrol, not beer, before starting his speech.

At the Sault Technical school (Sault Ste. Marie) James Preston of Toronto, on behalf of J. B. Cunnigham, the dry candidate, and where there are 3,000 Italians.

In his speech Preston said: "Women are not even considered human beings in European countries. In Italy the men throw a bone to a woman as they would a dog. In France, Italy and Germany the men sit around and let the women work in the fields, and we have quite a few of these people in Ontario. We don't want these Italian, French and German conditions in Canada."

Mr. Preston also said that to retain her decency ad morality a woman must vote for the O.T.A.

Such is the O.T.A. propaganda.

Yours truly,
CHAS. DUGGAN.

To the Editor:
Dear sir:

Mr. Anderson, the candidate who has adopted a new role to himself, apparently has decided that the less he discusses his past record in shying the questions he was requested to answer in your paper of th questions he was requested to answer in your paper of the 10th inst the better for HIM.

He has demonstrated that wh he cannot succeed under one ba ner he will first pout, then ju into another. Anything to G THE COON. Contested the Mrs. Riding as Liberal in 1914 (diug pointed). Then pouted and lef Liberal ranks in order to be for 1919 election, by joinin U.F.O. and attending their cal convention. Not getting candidature, pouted again jumped them and gave as exc a most emphatic voice, "I SEVERED MY CONNECTIONS WITH THE U.F.O. FOR POLITICAL REASONS", that was jump number two.

Climbed the platform then at the West Riding Liberal Convention (uninvited) and referred to the U.F.O. as CLASS LEGISLATORS, and assured the public that he was out to whip Hearst, who as all know was introducing the O.T.A. and had given the women a voice in such O.T.A. by giving them a vote.

The Grits did not oppose Mr. McDonald or Mr. Thompson in the East Riding in 1919 from the fact that both were supporters of the main plan in Mr. Hearst's platform, namely, the O.T.A. He then again pouted and refused to take the ballot for either out and out Prohibitionists.

He now comes out, or is brought out in a convention largely plugged by himself as "LIBERAL-PROHIBITIONIST". He must have been very anxious in his plugging game when he asked a good temperance Tory to come to such convention and nominate him as candidate in 1926. Adopts his new role, does he point out his past jumping career in his endeavors to get conventions or jobs.

Next looms up by applying to his colleagues in County Council whom he has sat with as Reeve o Otonabee for several years to be appointed County Road Superintendent. Again disappointed and to make matters look to suit himself, denied to the public through the press having applied. Got two supporters when the appointment was made of Suburban Commissioner, out of 18 of his old colleagues in County Council; then again pouted and came into the press abusing the gentleman appointed who had also sat with the County Council, but was not hard to silence on that score.

Then came back for Deputy-Reeve in a three corned contest (largely worked up by himself) and succeeded in ousting the sitting Deputy, who was one of his lonely two supporters for Suburban-Area Commissioner.

Next jump — coached Mr. Samuel Armstrong along in his BLOCK ROAD SCHEME, until after he had secured his little following in the contest for Deputy Reeveship referred to. The next huge jump, when the County Council were considering the Roads to be thrown back on the Townships or the final showdown, one member in addressing the Council referred to Mr. Armstrong's scheme for Block Road. At that point Mr. Anderson interrupted the speaker in a loud clear voice, accompanied with a loud sarcastic laugh as follows: "OH THAT'S A DREAM", such interuption and deception causing a halt and silence at that time longer than the silence on an anniversary of Armistic day.

He now comes back in the forgive and forget theory and pick me up. I wil shove the O.T.A. or anything else through even if I stand alone, as he stated from the Keene platform, referring to the County Council. When he said he stood alone, it was nearer the facts than some of his excuses and denials he also made. Liberal in 1914, then U.F.O. in 1919 until after the U.F.O. convention, then nothing, not even O.T.A. and wouldn't vote election day, for either U.F.O. or Tory, both Prohibitionists but now the reliable "Liberal-Prohibitionist" standard bearer when he has his eye on a job. If defeated what will be his next jump.

Respectfully yours,
S. BENNETT,
Liberal.

...A'S FATE ...S IN PARIS

...eeting of Mother and Son May Decide Future History.

KING IMPROVED

PARIS, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press) —Queen Marie at sea, and former Crown Prince Carol at Neuilly are the chief figures in the Rumanian situation; their expected meeting in Paris may shape the future history of the country.

King Ferdinand at Bucharest has, latest reports say, continued to improve. His serious condition is admitted; yet Rumanian government officials declare he is not in imminent danger of death.

The lull is furnishing an opportunity for the political sages to speculate on weighty decisions, if any, which may be taken by the royal mother toward her wayward son. Carol is keeping his own counsel. He will await the Queen's coming, though he refuses to be enticed into a declaration of his attitude in the dynastic crisis.

Carol, it is true, renounced his rights to the throne, but his supporters believe that that is a minor aspect that can be changed legally or illegally, by peaceful persuasion or revolutionary force. What the former Crown Prince thinks, he has not yet said.

The politicians naturally are worried by the possibility of having to

W. A. ANDERSON HOLDS MEETING

Several Speakers Uphold His Candidature in Support of O.T.A.

AT NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, Nov. 30.—A largely attended meeting in the interests of W. A. Anderson, the Liberal candidate for East Peterborough, was held in the Norwood Town Hall on Monday evening. H. G. Buck occupied the chair. The opening number on the programme was an instrumental solo by Professor Edwards. This was followed by the chairman's address. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Buck said that this was not a political issue, but a moral issue, and he regretted very much that it had been made a political issue. He also said that Mr. Ferguson had been in opposition to the O.T.A. ever since it began, also that he would give the bootlegger more credit than Howard Ferguson, because "the bootlegger doesn't profess to be anything, but Ferguson is the Premier of Ontario. He has the brewers and distillers at his back and is trying to hoodwink the prohibitionists.

F. D. Kerr, K.C.

The next speaker was Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterborough. He said, as the other speaker wasn't there the audience would have to listen to him. He said the first issue was the O.T.A. Should a famous man who had fooled the public, be trusted. He said he had been taught when a boy that if he could see a good point in a person, to pick it up. Also if everybody said things about a person, that there must be some truth in it. He had heard such expressions about the Premier as "Isn't he clever," "Isn't he adroit," "Isn't he a keen politician. That every adjective but trustworthy had been used to describe him. He also said that when Sir James Whitney said anything, he meant it. He died full of honor and esteem and was mourned by all.

He also touched on the Duncan Act, the Scott Act, Local Option, etc. and closed by making a strong appeal for the candidate.

Rev. Dr. Oten

Rev. Dr. Oten was then called on. He said he had travelled about 13,000 miles in the last three weeks and had gone through Ontario from Goderich to Windsor, and to Ottawa, and had not seen one drunk, although he knew there were some. He knew the O.T.A. hadn't been 100 per cent efficient, but it was doing things. He quoted th Principal of Fort William Collegiate as saying: "No man can tell what a benefit the O.T.A. had been to the boys and girls of Ontario."

He also spoke of conditions in be done after it was once out of the bottle, and in the stomach. He believed the O.T.A. could be enforced providing it had a sympathetic government behind it. He had striven for twenty months to get this issue British Columbia under Government control.

He said it was just as reasonable to try to put a fire out by spraying it with coal oil or gasoline as to try to control liquor, because it couldn't

RECORD ENTRIES AT WINTER FAIR

43rd Annual Provincial Winter Fair is Real Farmers' Show.

HIGH-BRED CATTLE

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 30 —With record entries and a very fair attendance, the 43rd annual Provincial Winter Fair got under way here yesterday. It was a real farmers' show, with no red tape in the way of uniformed attendants. Breeders simply donned overalls and with pipe in mouth led their cattle out into the ring for the judges' decision. But quality was high notwithstanding this lack of ring ceremony and many winners well up in the money at the larger and more fashionable Royal Fair at Toronto went down to defeat yesterday.

With the exception of sheep, entries are higher in every division than has been the case for years, according to Secretary-Treasurer R. W Wade. The most notable increase is in heavy horses, in which many breeders from the prairie provinces are showing.

Beef cattle were disposed of yesterday. All classes were well filled for a show of this size with a sprinkling of western entries in Shorthorn and Angus. The feature of the show was the large turnout of new breeders, whose remarkable winnings will undoubtedly insure their appearance on the tanbark again. Douglas and Sons, Caledonia, captured both Shorthorn championships with Lawton Lass 2nd in the females and Browndale Marthall in the bulls. This firm also secured first place in the breeders' herd and the bulk of the first awards in the individual classes through Duncan Campbell, Moffat and Kay and Meyer, Guelph, also made a good showing.

Warren, from Bell Plain, Saskatchewan, who made such a sweep in the Aberdeen Angos classes at the recent Royal went down to defeat before Western Ontario breeders at this show. George McAllister and Sons, Guelph, had the champion heifer in Middlebrook Pride 54th, while the male premier ribbon went to Lowe and Helben, Elora, on Espoir of Glencarnock 5th, Bertwin Blackburn, Uxbridge, had first in breeders' herd.

The Hereford show was easily one of the best seen in Ontario in recent years. According to W. N. Hunter, of Orangeville, who placed the ribbons, leading competition was largely div ded between McNeil and McNeil, Dutton and J E. Harris, Kingsville. The first named had the champion heifer in Miss Brae Dale 36th and first place in the best bull and two heifers group, while Harris wor champion bull on Repeaters Lad 7th and first in breeders' herd. In the best pair of pure-bred Hereford steer calves, John Kopas and Sons, Elora, were on the top.

PROSECUTOR TO FORM A MOTION FOR MIS - TRIAL

DEFENSE RESTS

Mrs. Hall Retains Calm Exterior Throughout Whole of Examination.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press).—At the end of a day in which the defence rested its case and the State opened rebuttal testimony, Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, announced that he is assembling material on which to base a motion for a mis-trial.

Simpson last week indicated that an effort might be made to have a mis-trial declared when he procured affidavits from newspaper men that certain members of the jury had been seen "nodding and apparently asleep."

Mrs. Hall, resuming the stand yesterday, proceeded calmly to the end of her cross-examination and brief re-direct examination over a period of a few minutes more than two hours. She said yesterday that she is convinced of her husband's regard for her at the time of his death, although she now knows that there was an attachment for Mrs. Mills, of which she did not know at the time.

The extended cross-examination stressed what the State construed as inadequate spreading of an alarm for the missing minister by Mrs. Hall, the day after he left his home for the last time.

The prosecutor asked again and again as to steps taken in the Hall household to ascertain the whereabouts of the Rev. Edward W. Hall. Mrs. Hall replied in even tones that she had taken what she thought were the necessary steps.

The State also emphasized that

FIRE AT TAUNTON.

TAUNTON, Mass., Nov. 30. Canadian Press).—Fire wiped out the Park Theatre and the H. O. Rogers Silver Company yesterday, causing damage estimated at a million and a quarter dollars, and threatened to spread through the heart of the city before it was checked.

The wind that had driven the flames from the rear of the Park Theatre to the factory and thence across Mill River, died down by 8 a.m. Taunton firemen, aided by companies outside the city, gained control of the fire.

The H. O. Rogers silver works was the heaviest sufferer. John J. Nichols, owner of the factory, said his loss was a million dollars, including the destruction of valuable machinery, with no insurance.

Poker Game Of Chance Ruling Of Supreme Court

MANILA, Nov. 30. (Canadian Press).—Draw poker is a game of chance, and is illegal in the Philippines, the Insular Supreme Court ruled to-day, in upholding the convictions of four Filipinos who were fined $25 each for indulging in the game.

Says the decision: "By what is known as bluffing, it often happens that the skilful player with the poorest hand wins the pot from the poor player who has the best hand. But even so, in making bets the skilful player takes a chance that he will not be called.

"In the final analysis, although it is a game more or less of skill, yet everything else being equal, it is a game of chance."

Man Who Kissed Dancer Victim Of Circumstances

MANILA, Nov 30. (Canadian Press).—When the lights of the dance hall are dimmed; when orchestra plays a soft, appealing waltz, and a pretty girl is near—a man who kisses a girl in such a setting is a "victim of circumstances," the Supreme Court of the Phillippine Islands ruled today.

In so ruling the court acquitted Seevro Panco, who was convicted in the court of first instance in Sorsogon Province of kissing Marcella Dayson, a professional dancing girl, against her wishes. The lower court imposed a sentence of 3 1-2 years' imprisonment.

The Supreme Court released him on finding that there was reasonable doubt as to his guilt.

Italians Salute Duce Swiss Neglect President

NEW YORK, November 30.—United Press. — Johannes W. Dergoot, head of the Salvation Army in Switzerland, has come to America with the following report on Europe:

"The two extremes of Europe are the Italian dictator and the Swiss president.

"In Italy everyone tips his hat to Mussolini. In Switzerland the president hides in street cars and people don't even give up their seats to him."

Degroot believes these two countries should strive for a "middle ground," the Swiss paying more respect to their president, and the Italians less to their dictator.

ANNUAL 'AT HOME' HELD AT NORWOOD

Many Past and Present Pupils of High School Attend.

NORWOOD, Nov. 30.—The annual high school "at home" was held in the government armouries on Friday evening, November 19, when a very enjoyable time was spent. The evening was spent in games, music and dancing, and a delicious lunch was served during the evening. A number of ex-pupils were in attendance.

A moving picture show was presented in the town hall on Saturday evening under the auspices of the I. O. D. E. Three pictures were shown. The first was an educational film, showing the making of pulp at Sault Ste. Marie; the second was a comedy, and the last, a fiction feature of ten reels, entitled, "Twelve-Ten," with Marie Doro. The opening scene of this picture reveals an aged sculptor, Fernande, with his daughter, Marie. Despairing in his struggle to gain a living, he deserts his child, and plunges into the river to end his troubles, leaving Marie an orphan. In her search for her father, she accidentally meets Lord Chatterton, who adopts her and takes her to his home in England. There Marie becomes the delight of the aging man, and also his heiress. Lord Chatterton's secretary falls in love with Marie, who becomes involved in a series of complications that makes "12-10" a mystery picture.

Crisp shreds of wheat!

How tasty and flavory—and so full of satisfying nourishment! After eating SHREDDED WHEAT with milk you don't want anything else—it makes a perfect meal. Nothing so good for youngsters as these little loaves of crisp, oven-baked shreds of whole wheat. Delicious when toasted and eaten with butter, or as a hot porridge. SHREDDED WHEAT porridge is the best porridge that can be served. Children should have all the bone-making phosphates and the vitamins in the whole wheat — not simply the white starchy center of the grain which makes fat but not muscle or bone. They get it all in SHREDDED WHEAT in a digestible form. It's an all-the-year-round food for any meal

WARSAW HEARS LIBERAL POLICY

W. A. Anderson and Others Speak at Campaign Meeting.

UPHOLD O.T.A.

WARSAW, Nov. 30.—An audience which fairly well filled the town hall attended the Andersen meeting on Wednesday evening. Dr. Munro was appointed chairman. He spoke of attending the Conservative meeting on Saturday evening when Col. Johnston gave a good address and made as good a case as he could out of a wrong thing. He was sorry he was on the wrong side.

Rev. H. B. Herrington.

Rev. H. B. Herrington said he had never before stood on a political platform, but this was not a political contest, but a great moral issue; as certain wet Liberals are leaving the Liberal ranks, and certain dry Conservatives are leaving the Conservative ranks; so that he felt it a bounden duty to take the stand he does.

"Why repeal a law which is good in itself?" he asked. "We recognize it is not enforced, but why? If men in parliament do not approve of a law, we cannot expect them to enforce it. If the Ferguson policy of government control carries, it will be to the interest of those who are selling liquor to sell as much as they can, obtain more revenue and hold their job." He quoted Father Munahan's message to Hon. Howard Ferguson, also the message of the moderator of the Presbytery of Regina, saying government control did not control.

F. D. Kerr K.C.

Mr. Kerr said the two men running in this riding are good men for their causes. No one is voting for or against Mr. Ferguson for any reason but the upholding or not upholding of the O. T. A. People say all sorts of things good and bad of Howard Ferguson. "But," he asked, "did you ever hear any one say he is trustworthy?" A premier should be a trusted man, above all, honest and trustworthy, even if he be mistaken. He is the leader of a section of a great party, but he is not a great man. If an angel came and was lined up with Howard Ferguson, either the angel had lost its way, or it had come up, not down.

Mr. Kerr asked: "Have you ever heard recently that there is a lot of booze drunk under the O. T. A.? Any one who says there is none is too innocent; any one who says there is more is either lying, or has lost his memory." He asked if any of those present remembered the fights on fair days; if any one remembered the bunch of boys half drunk in the hotels, or seeing drunken men almost everywhere at Toronto Fair? These things, he said, were not seen now.

Young people who see a bit of drinking now, and are shocked, do not know what older people do, and some older people have forgotten. In the old times it was difficult to get through the crowd to the bar. Mr. Ke r is not looking for Heaven down here; he only hopes each man and each woman will do his or her part to make the world a bit better.

"Booze, shut up, and escaping a bit, is not nearly so bad as booze let loose," he continued. Substantially we have improved. If any one were to tell him no one drank in Warsaw, he would tell them they did not know Warsaw, but if any one were to tell him it is worse now than it used to be, they are lying. At times we meet a man whose breath smells, but when do we see one full?

"Ferguson helped Hearst, for Ferguson liked a crowd, and the crowd was going that way Then he began to help Ferguson, for many people did not care whether or not they got the best, so long as they got booze, and this crowd was growing. Eighty-one thousand more names were placed on the voters' lists than there were voters. If any stuffing were done, it was likely done by those whose business would be increased.

"Mr. Ferguson said he would not change the act if the people did not wish it; he said he had given his faith, and his promise, and the people thought he was great. He did not have any plebiscite; he gave 4.4 beer. Later, he sprung the voting for O. T. A. as an election. He knew all the wets would vote for him. There had been mixing up of constituencies, fewer country ridings and more in the city. Toronto is especially inclined to be wet. When Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir James Whitney and others on either side of politics said yes or no, they meant it. Ferguson," said Mr. Kerr, "is tricky and not to be compared with these men.

"There must be some system of government control. The O. T. A. is a system which we know. If Ferguson wins, we do not know what we are getting; the bill is as yet unwritten, and even what has been promised is changed as different of his follower's object, because it will not help their pockets. We know it will be had, how bad we do not know." The speaker said it was much like the old game of "Open your mouth and shut your eyes, and you will get a great surprise." "Howard is going to give it to you in sealed bottles, and it will be your own fault if you break the seals," he said, adding that he had not seen where any church organizations or any other organization but the Moderation League wished the act changed. "The brewers and distillers wish it changed. Let us use the intelligence we are given.

"Ninety-nine out of every one hundred ministers is afraid his people might think him a politician. In ordinary elections they should stay out, but not in this. A minister is a watchman in a tower, to give his people warning, and it is not well for him if he does not ring the warning bell. Ministers should keep out of politics, but when things are cutting right across their field they are neither brave nor honest if they do not let their stand be known. Ferguson knows that as a whole the ministry have stood shoulder to shoulder for the O. T. A.

"Col. Johnston did not object to O. T. A. in this riding, but in other ridings he says it has brought about abuses we know nothing of in this community. There is perjury now; there was in other days.

"Ferguson says the O. T. A. is not good enough to keep. If he can so persuade people he will be elected premier for four years.

"Mr. Nickle is so in favor of the O. T. A. He is willing to give up honor, position, income, everything for principle. Sir George E. Foster, of many high positions, believes that Ferguson is so wrong, and Nickle so right that he stands by Nickle. Surely the testimony of these men who will give up position, power, good pay, for a principle is worth far more than that of a man who gives up principle for power.

"A man who is not in favor of O. T. A. is so because of a desire for drink, or he may say it is in aid of temperance. Sometimes a man who has lead temperance forces may go over to the other side, and is like the trained pig that leads his fellows to the slaughter in a great packing house."

Mr. Kerr gave statistics of various crimes in Toronto in 1913 and 1925, which showed that, even with the increased population, the mnuber of these crimes was actually much less. He said there is only one way to keep conditions as good as they are, and that is to mark the ballot with an X for the dry candidate.

No great moral reform has ever been brought about by trickery. The O. T. A. may be lost by trickery. Most of the people know present conditions; do not turn out a good law for an unknown one. He spoke of the danger in motor car traffic.

W. A. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson, who had already spoken at Indian River, spoke a short time.

He said at election times promises were customary, but they were making but few promises, though the few are good ones. They are bound to uphold to O. T. A. Under all fair conditions the people of Ontario would uphold it.

The next legislature will be a mixed aggregation of men.

The other promise is that the legislature of Ontario will co-operate with the Dominion Government on the "Old Age Pension Act."

He said that under government control the sales in Quebec had increased relatively.

Dr. Munro closed by saying, among other things, that the opinion of great men is no greater than our own opinion should be, and that prosperity always follows faithfulness to moral qualities

TWO MEETINGS HELD AT WOOLER

Ladies Hold Temperance Rally—Conservatives Have Gathering.

WOOLER, Nov. 30 (C.P.)—On Wednesday afternoon, in the Town Hall, every chair was filled with ladies, and a few gentlemen, gathered in the interests of temperance issue at stake.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill was in the chair. The ladies on the platform, comprised the acting committee, representing a member from each of the following churches: United Church, Anglican, Holiness Movement, Friends and Carmen United Church.

At 2.30 p.m. the meeting opened with the hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers"; Prayer: Scripture reading; 46 Psalm, in unison by the committee in charge.

After a few remarks from the chairman, emphasizing that the meeting was undenominational and non-political, but temperance, she issued a warning to our Province of Ontario, that under Government Control of liquor, bootlegging would flourish.

"Do you want the boys you are interested in, to have a permit to buy liquor as soon as they are 21" she asked. "Then wateh your candidate. Do you want them drawn in the treating habit and become victims of the social glass? Say it with your vote," she said.

The first speaker called on was Mrs. Ashton of Campbellford and she spoke on the meaning of Government Control of liquor to her audience, saying that it does not control; drunkenness increases and bootlegging increases. "Why not vote for the candidate who believes the Ontario Temperance Act should be retained and enforced," she said in conclusion.

Instrumental Solo—Miss Aletha Ellis.

Mrs. Sweetman of Smithfield, was then called upon, and she gave a very bright, and educative address, saying that the O.T.A., has fallen down, because it never has been enforced, and now is the time to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act. "Let Ontario be warned by the cruel experience of other provinces, under Government sale," she said.

Then the six provinces, Manitoba, Quebec, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario were represented by six ladies giving the conditions, existing in each province, with the liquor traffic.

A Solo—Mrs. W. Dawson.

Mrs. Bell, President of the W.C.T.U. of Campbellford, urged the meeting in emphatic words to endorse all that had veen said about Government Control, as she visited England last year and the conditions, through liquor there were appalling, and she urged the women of Ontario to remember as their cast their ballots that they hold in their hands votes for childhood and youth, or for the gratification of a few drinkers and the liquor interests. At the close of her address, Mrs. W. W. McColl moved a vote of thanks to the speakers and this motion was seconded by Mrs. Davis Bull, followed by "God Save the King."

Conservative Meeting.

On Thursday evening a Conservative meeting was held in the Town Hall. N. Hart was chairman.

The first speaker of the evening was M. E. Maybee, M.P. Then the candidate, F. McArthur, Mayor of Cobourg, gave a brilliant address, followed by addresses from Miss Richards of Warkworth, Col. Bogg, of Cobourg, and Mr. Sheppard of Toronto. The meeting was closed by singing "God Save the King."

HAVELOCK NEWS.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 30—Mr. William Forsythe has sold his butcher business to Mr. A. Jones of Omemee, who will take possession December 1st.

Mrs. S. W. Marks of Rochester, N.Y. was the recent guest of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Wrightly.

Mr. R. Patterson of Brighton is the guest of his aunt Mrs. S. Leeson.

Mrs. William Mathison was a visitor to Peterboro on Saturday.

BROWNIE PACK HOLDS MEETING

MEDAL AWARDED

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29th.—The first Campbellford Brownie Pack held their weekly meeting on Tuesday evening in St. John's Sunday School room. Miss Catherine Heaton, Brown Owl of Toronto, took charge of the meeting. Miss Heaton is a representative of the Brownies on the Canadian Girl Guide Council, and she was well pleased with the progress of the Brownies and spoke very interestingly.

In the evening Miss Heaton gave the Girl Guides an interesting account of her visit to the International Girl Guide Camp at Foxlease, England, during the past summer.

Mrs. Eustace Forrest, of Port Ho pe Divisional Commander, visited the Guides on Tuesday evening and inspected the Company. Mrs. J. H. Bell, District Commissioner, Mrs. C. W. Turner, president of the local association, Mrs. W. Henson, Secretary, Miss Grace Payne, Captain of the Guides, the 2nd Campbellford I.O.D.E. Company, and many mothers of the Guides were present. After the meeting was over games and singing were enjoyed by all.

Medal Awarded.

Some time ago Capt. T. E. Hyland of the Regent Theatre, offered a handsome medal to a pupil of the Public or Separate School who could write the best essay on the part the Canadian soldiers played in the Great War. Two essays, one written by Mildred Dunk, the other by Ronald Richardson, were chosen from the list as the best essays and were sent to Mr. H. G. Park of the Peterborough Normal school to make the decision.

Mr. Park gave much praise to both the competitors, but gave the decision to Ronald Richardson.

Capt. Hyland will make the presentation of the medal some evening in the near future.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid of St. John's Church held their monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas Free. Mrs. Davidson, the President, presided over the meeting. Several business matters were dealt with, the treasurer giving her report. Final report of the Fowl Supper brought the amount to $566.76. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. G. W. Hammond; Mrs. A. E. Wragge gave a reading and Mrs. C. W. Turner sang a solo. Mrs. Free served a dainty lunch, and Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Diamond, on behalf of the ladies, tendered her a vote of thanks.

A complete list of boys entitled to vote in the election for the Older Boys' Parliament is out. The voting will be done in the Public Library on Saturday, November 27th; the polls being open from noon until 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Dinwoodie returned home last week after spending the past six months with their daughter and sons at Govan, Sask.

Mrs. Thomas Rowe spent Thursday with friends in Warkworth.

Mrs. William Varcoe of Windsor is visiting her mother, Mrs. T. Oddie, at Burnbrae.

A convention will be held in St. Andrew's Church, afternoon and evening of Tuesday. Nov. 30th. In the afternoon Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings will iecture on "Presbyterianism," and in the evening Rev. Dr. A. S. Grant and Rev. Dr. Kannawin, of Toronto, will speak on the work of the church.

POPULAR RESORT GROWING YEARLY

Trent River Has Large Population of Visitors in Summer.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 30.—This popular summer resort is beautifully situated on the banks of the Trent Valley Canal. It is easy of access, both by rail and water. It is three miles from the C. P. R., Havelock, and nine miles north of Campbellford. This place has become very popular as a resort. The agricultural products of the surrounding country are rich and varied. There are two general grocery stores, postoffice, one United Church, one hotel, and several boarding houses.

This place is splendidly situated for a summer resort, healthy, with beautiful natural scenery for miles up and down the river, splendid fishing, good boating facilities and safe bathing beaches. Tourists from all parts of Canada and Uncle Sam's domain visit here annually and spend many weeks. A fish and game protective association was formed over a year ago, and land has been purchased for an athletic park and pleasure playgrounds. Many tourists enjoyed camp life on the park grounds the past season. Upwards of sixty cottages are occupied by tourists who have been coming here annually for many years. The two general stores, conducted by W. C. Inkster and Frank Pollock, respectively carry large stocks, including everything a really first-class grocery carries. Both stores have been successful in catering to camping parties during the season.

The last of the cottagers expect to leave for their winter quarters this week, expecting to return by March or April.

The public school is about one mile south of here, where there are nearly fifty in attendance. There is also a cheese factory at the north end of the village, which is a very busy place when in operation. When the holiday season closes and conditions return to normal, there are about 150 residents. Immediately after the Christmas festivities, the ice harvest begins, when large quantities of ice are taken to supply the demand for the various resorts and for numerous places at Havelock.

On the first of March, the trappers are busy. There are a great many engaged in this industry and big money is the result when the price is good.

There is a large dancing pavilion which is a great attraction to large crowds each season. Next year it promises a great scene of activity when a large hotel is to be erected on McKenzie's Island (a short distance down the river) by Mr. Dobshear of Cleveland, Ohio, who is already booked up when allis completed.

GLASTONBURY ABBEY

Mr. F. B. Bond Gives Interesting Lecture at Grove School.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 30.—Mr. Frederick Bligh Bond, of England, gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on Glastonbury Abbe at "The Grove" on Friday evening, Nov. 19. Mr. Bond, who is a cousin of Mr. F. M. de la Fosse, of Peterborough, is the diocesan architect of Bath and Wells, and is also an archaeologist and a member of the London Society of Psychical Resear h.

Glastonbury is the site of the first Christian Church in Great Britain, and the date of its founding is either 47 A.D. or 63 A.D. Historians differ on the actual date. It is said to have been founded by Joseph of Arimathea, who begged the body of Jesus for burial. Old tradition is full of stories of Joseph, who is said to have travelled to the south of France and thence north to Brittany and later to England, landing at Cornwall and going through Devon to Somerset, where he travelled 'till they came to the green hill of Avalon and these he planted a Church for Christian worship. Since that time Glastonbury has always been the site of a Christian church, and has been famous for the many saints, abbots and other holy people who gathered there. The last abbot was beheaded in 1557, in the days of bluff King Hal, who confiscated the monasteries, and since then Glastonbury has unfortunately fallen into ruins. The speaker had an opportunity in 1908 to dig in these sacred ruins, where no one had ever dug before, and found there many interesting and remarkable things. Of the great abbey only the ruins remain, but by study and research one is able to picture what the great structure was like in its prime. This great structure was built to replace one destroyed by fire in 1184, and was more than one hundred years in building. St. Dunstan was abbot of Glastonbury before he was raised to be Archbishop of Canterbury. There is still on the peak of the hill the tower of the pilgrims' chapel, built in 1330.

The chapel of St. Joseph, in a ruined condition, still stands, but all traces of several other chapels mentioned in old manuscripts had passed away. A friend of Mr. Bond, who has psychic gifts, assisted him in his investigations and, by means of writings and drawings of this man, a great many things have been discovered in a manner, which to the ordinary mind, is little short of a miracle. One of these psychic pictures shows a funeral of an abbot which gives a view of a part of the interior of that great church.

By the help of these writings the chapel of St. Edgar was found, a chapel 90 feet long and referred to in ancient writings, but of which all trace has been lost, but through the psychic writings it was discovered.

The same is true of the chapel of Our Lady of Loretto. An abbot journeyed to Rome years ago to congratulate a new Pope on his high office but in Italy he was attacked by brigands, and was caught in a thorn bush and he vowed that if he was rescued he would build a chapel to Our Lady of Loretto. All traces of this chapel had been lost and a Mr. Hope dug a trench in the section where it was supposed it had been, but failed to find anything. Through the medium of psychic writings, Mr. Bond was told that Mr. Hope did not dig deep enough, so he dug another trench and the ruins of the Loretto chapel were discovered. Many of these writings tell of the coming of Joseph and his band of friends and one tradition tells that they were asked to go to Britain by a man, when they named Johannus, to displace the Druidic form of worship which with its constant human sacrifices, was sapping the strength of the nation. Tradition says also, that Joseph brought with him a portion of the true Cross, and the Holy Grail, which was changed into a jewel which would gleam with a rosy light and with a gragrant odor of incense. An old Irish legend discovered by a celebrated Celtic scholar says that Joseph and his friends landed in Cornwall and crossed Devon and the fens of Somerset and, when they came near to their destination at Glastonbury, Joseph produced the jewel which glowed rosy red all through the night and they felt a sign had been given to make this their stopping place.

Mr. Bond's lecture was illustrated by very interesting pictures of the ruins, and the discoveries, and also of some of the psychic writings and drawings.

Mr. Mackenzie thanked Mr. Bond for the very great treat that he had given them all, and assured him of the appreciation of all who were privileged to hear the lecture.

Besides the pupils and staff of the school, the lecture was much enjoyed by a number of friends of the school who attended at the kind invitation of Rev. and Mrs. Mackenzie. Mr. Bond was so thoroughly at home in his subject and so enthusiastic that the audience sat spell-bound at the wonderful things he told and for which he had verification in the pictures.

PAGEANT GIVEN AT MILLBROOK

Garden Hill Choir Provides Programme For Young People.

LEAGUE MEETING.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 30.—The pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross," was presented by the choir of Garden Hill United Church at the Young People's League on Monday evening, November 22, the meeting being under the auspices of the Golden Links Mission Circle, the president, Mrs. J. McKnight, occupying the chair.

The third chapter in the study book, "The Opening Gateways of Knowledge," was well covered by Miss Hazel McMahon, and a duet, "I Have Heard His Voice," by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Miss May Byam, was much enjoyed.

Miss Myrtle Brock, of Garden Hill, gave as a recitation, "The Old Man's Story," the temperance sentiment being appropriate under present conditions in the province.

A choir of ten voices assisted with the pageant, hymns suitable to the various pleas presented being interspersed throughout. Mrs. W. A. Colwell took the leading part, the "Messenger of the King," who extended the Master's invitation, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Mrs. Colwell took her part exceptionally well.

Crosses of varying sizes and weights were laid upon a table and from these the "Messenger" made selection as the seekers came in response to her call.

Miss B. McClung, a "lover of the world," who refused her cross because it was uncomely, was the first to reply to the invitation, turning away as she was sorrowfully told, "Thou seekest the crown, but shirkest the battle," and the choir sang softly, "Must Jesus bear the cross alone?"

Miss Inda Nelson came next, wanting to choose her own cross, and refusing to take the heavy, rough one offered to her. "Wilful, not willing; the tongue giving a ready service while the heart refuses the cross appointed," was her sentence as she walked slowly away.

The small silver cross given to Miss Verna Ford when she made her request to the "Messenger," led her to give it an admiration that was practically worship, and she was told: "You are to bear, not worship your cross; you admire it as an ornament, but reject it as an instrument upon which to crucify self and pride."

Trying to hide her cross, Miss Hazel Wort was admonished that to be a secret disciple, and ashamed of public confession, would lead her Saviour to be ashamed of her "before My Father and His holy angels."

"A Pharisee, living in the town of Self-Glory, on Conceit Street, next door to General Pride," was the way Miss Helen Waddell described herself, and lacking a contrite heart, she too went away leaving her cross behind.

Singing softly, "I am coming to the cross," Mrs. Anson Dunbar came to the platform, and upon expressing her willingness to "nail upon the cross all selfishness and self-will for His dear Name's sake," was told, "Take up that cross," a large, white one, which she bore faithfully and constantly in the Master's service.

The choir sang softly, "Rock of Ages," while the last suppliant knelt at the cross, and one by one the six who had refused the emblem of the Saviour's suffering as it was offered them, came slowly back and each took up her cross. When all were in place, with bowed heads, they sang, "Jesus I may cross have taken, All to leave and follow Thee," and a most impressive and helppageant was brought thus appropriately to a close.

Misses Dorothy Crossley and Wilma Rollis moved the vote of thanks to the visitors from Garden Hill who had provided the evening's programme.

Mr. Wesley Brown, of Cavan, was successful in winning a number of prizes at the Royal Winter Fair on the grain and vegetables which he entered, the list including a second prize on sweet clover, and eighth on red clover, third prize on peas, and on potatoes, fourth prize on oats, and fifth on wheat, and a sixth on Timothy seed.

W. J. Bragg, Liberal candidate in Durham, is held his first meeting in this part of the riding on Thursday, November 25, in the town hall, Millbrook, at 8 p.m. There were one or two outside speakers, besides the candidate, to address the gathering.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

KING'S WHARF PERSONALS

KING'S WHARF, Nov. 30.—The weather of late is very disagreeable and especially for the threshers. It is almost impossible to move at the mill and if the weather continues they will have to close down until it freezes. The roads in this part are almost impassable. Flynn's swamp road was flooded last week just the same as in spring.

Mr. James O'Neill has purchased the old Peter Murtha farm and intends moving out there in the near future.

Mr. Neil Herlitey has purchased the ranch and wood farm of Miss Mary Murtha. There is a vast amount of timber and wood on it which makes it very valuable.

Friends here of Mrs. Agnes McArdle will regret to learn of her serious illness in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

Mrs. McGuire and family, who have been spending the last three months visiting friends here, left for their home in Chicago, Ill., last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan and family have moved to the farm they recently purchased from Daniel O'Neill and intend to reside there.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perdue and family, of Peterboro', spent the week-end, the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Twomey.

Miss Lucy Sullivan, of the Normal school, Peterboro', spent the week-end at her home here.

Mr. Emmet O'Neill, of the Bank of Toronto, Peterboro', is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Neill.

Mr. David Morrissey, of Lindsay, is at present the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrissey.

Mr. W. C. Herlihey made a business trip to Peterboro' last week, where he sold a large quantity of sweet clover.

Messrs. Joseph Guiry and Robert McGomery, of Lindsay, are at present hulling sweet clover in this locality.

ORANGE CORNER NEWS

ORANGE CORNER, Nov. 30.—A very pleasant time was spent on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. C. Lough when she entertained the choir of St. John's Church. it being the evening before Miss Gwendolyn's leaving for Detroit for an indefinite time. Mr. Walter Magee addressed her briefly regarding her willingness and faithfulness in all branches of church work, and particularly the choir, On behalf of the choir, Mrs. T. B. Jones presented her with a pair of gloves and a handkerchief. Miss Gwendolyn thanked them for the gift and the sentiments with it. The social part was spent in music and dainty refreshments served by Mrs. Lough.

The many friends of Mrs. T. B Jones will be pleased to know she is recovering from her accident.

On Friday evening of last week Mr. Smith, Rev. E. Rowland and Mr. F. Sandy held a meeting in the school-room in the interests of the O T.A. Their addresses were very much appreciated, being impressive and to the point.

Mr. Walter Magee was a visitor to Lindsay on Wednesday evening.

The young people of O. C. are busy preparing for a Xmas concert.

INSPIRING SERMON IN OMEMEE CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Maybon Speaks To Presbyterians on Sunday.

OMEMEE, Nov. 30.—"I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians; both to the wise and to the unwise. So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also." These and following verses, found in the epistle of Paul to the Romans, were the subject of consideration by the Rev. Mr. Maybon at the Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, November 21. "Paul, in writing this letter, commendeth to the Romans his calling and sheweth that the gospel is for the justification of all men through faith. In his epistle to the Corinthians and Ephesians, he is writing to the church or groups, but in this particular letter he writes to the individual. The gift of the Holy Ghost is upon the church, and the central thought in Romans is the power of God to all the world.

"The gospel is a provision of righteousness to man, and this righteousness is offered to every man who believes, for it is the power of God unto salvation. Paul knew how to address the Romans. They understood his coveted power, and he recommended the gospel as the greatest power of God known. What a power money is. It will do almost anything, but it cannot purchase one iota of blessing. Then, too, political power, given to man to make good laws for the land, and that one man can speak the will of the people. It is a wonderful power of man.

"We think of the power of God, unto the creation of life. We think of Him as the Lord Jesus Christ who is above all rulers, and who holds all things by the word of His power.

"'He spake and it was done.' 'He commanded and it stood still.' God created. He is everywhere and knows all things. He never had a beginning and never can have an end.

"There is nothing except the gospel which will deliver us from guilt or sin, and it is this power that the world needs to-day. With all the powers of legislation, fraternal societies, etc., it is the gospel that can take the drunkard from the gutter, the infidel from infidelity, the sinner from sin and make him a son of God.

"The gospel is a power unto salvation. Why? For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. Through no cause but being justified freely through the purchasing power of the Lord Jesus and to declare His righteousness through the remission of sins. In Christ our sin and God's holiness meet: He provides us with a righteousness not our own. He'll reach down and for Jesus' sake raise up all those who believe. Our citizenship is in Heaven. The gospel is grace to the sinner and if we believe it we should say 'come' to everyone. What power is there that can deliver us from evil habits, but the power of God. It is belief that lets God's power enter the soul, and what is belief?—faith in Jesus Christ.

"The second thing our text deals with is our obligation to power. If I owe this power to anyone, I owe it to the intellectuals of our day, the philosophers, scientists, architects, etc. It isn't for us to look disdainfully at the sinner, and say, 'I thank thee that I am not a sinner.' No, we are under an obligation to go to the barbarian, the carelessliving man, the infidel, and tell the story of Jesus' love to him. Then, what is the extent of our obligation? The text says, 'As much as in me is.' So many there are who feel their incapability, and in order to be relieved from duty, make all sorts of excuses. The Scripture says, 'Let him that heareth say come.' It is not the educated or trained, but if I am ready to begin the work for Him, who has delivered me and given me the consciousness that only believing in Christ can confer, He will supply the word that we may preach the glorious blessing of the blessed God."

MARMORA HISTORY

Products of District Were Varied in Early Years of Settlement.

MARMORA, Nov. 30. — Delving further into Marmora's past history brings to light other interesting matter. Some forty-nine names appear on the list of householders for 1864-1865. They were as follows: Armstrong, W. W., land agent and township clerk; Armstrong, Simon, blacksmith; Beddoms, Benjamin, Division Court clerk; Bentley, David, bailiff; Bissonnette, Julian, agent for Gilmour and Co.; Bleecker, G. W., Manor House; Bowen, G. D. J. P., postmaster; Boyd, Ezekiel, yeoman; Brady, Margaret, widow; Brady, William Norman, clerk; Bruneau, Baptiste, laborer; Carpenter, Felix, miner; Clairmont, Charles, blacksmith; Clairmont, Eli, blacksmith; Crawford, Patrick, merchant; Daraha, George, yeoman; Deline, Nelson, laborer; Devlin, John, shoemaker; Dowler, Rev. J., Wesleyan Methodist; Fitzpatrick, Robert, laborer; Houston, G. L., carpenter; Hughes, Mary, widow; Jenkinson, William, laborer; Johnson, Benjamin, J. P., merchant and hotel-keeper; Kirby, Charles, laborer; Leggett, Catherine; Leonard William, drover; McCloskey, Joseph, laborer; McMillan, George, laborer; McWilliams, Nelson, hotel-keeper; McWilliams, Wellington; O'Hara James, yeoman; Powell, D. N.; flour mill; Price, Thomas, shoemaker; Pringle, Minerva, widow; Ranney, James, contractor; Revois, Francis, shingle-maker; Rose, Levi, cooper; Shannon, Dennis, tailor; Shea, Patrick, shoemaker; Simmons, William, yeoman; Sloan, John, miller; Tallion, Lewis, cabinet maker; Tallion, Jerome, cabinet maker; Vincent J., clerk; Wadsworth, Robert, tinsmith; Warren, Thomas, carriage-maker; Weese Nathaniel, with Benjamin Johnson; Weese, Henry, shoemaker.

Statistics for Marmora and lake 1860-1861, were as follows: Number of occupiers of land, 154; number of acres under cultivation, 6,353; in wood and wild lands, acres, 11,033; cash value of farms, $89,190.00; cash value of farming implements, $4,817.00; bushels of fall wheat raised, 1,134; bushels of spring wheat raised, 17,704; bushels of barley raised, 1,120; bushels of rye raised, 568; bushels of peas raised, 10,651; bushels of oats raised, 17,268; bushels of buckwheat raised, 1,390; bushels of potatoes raised, 20,848; bushels of turnips raised, 10,010; pounds of maple sugar manufactured, 25,310; pounds of wool raised, 9,837; oxen owned, 249; cows owned, 841; horses owned, 337; sheep owned, 990; pigs owned, 723. Total value of live stock, $43,894.00.

Few people of to-day are aware of the fact that the bridge which spanned Beaver creek between the third and fourth concessions of Marmora township, was, in 1864, referred to as Derry's bridge. As can be seen from the list of householders for 1864-1865, the first resident clergyman was of the Wesleyan Methodist denomination. The members of that church paid largely for the upkeep of their work in kind. The principal way of raising money as other denominations came to be served was outside of private donations and church, that of the old-fashioned tea meeting. Tea was served from large boilers. Bread and butter, cakes and sandwiches were passed around in paper bags. Later, concerts were resorted to as a popular means of raising funds. With refreshments during intermission and a little bazaar doing business on the side, as much as $250 has been known to have been cleared at a single venture. The late Richard Campion on many occasions conveyed singers from Belleville free of charge. Being entertained in town and giving their services free, these artistes were the means of greater revenue flowing in than could otherwise have been possible.

Before the advent of the first Anglican rector, occasional visits were paid the parish by an evangelist who, in addition to preaching powers, had an intimate knowledge of medicine. He was the Rev. Gander, a graduate of St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, England. His wife and four sons would generally accompany him and the whole family, being highly musical, would sing as a choir without organ or other accompaniment. The first regular Anglican services were held monthly in the old town hall by the Rev. James Preston and continued successively by the Rev. Edward Henry Baker and the Rev. George Grout. With the erection of St. Paul's Church, the foundation stone of which was laid September 1, 1874, Marmora was shortly afterwards created a mission in the Diocese of Ontario.

SAINT AND SINNER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, a conscienceless flirt, is playing the love game with a dozen admirers, including BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman, and CHRIS WILEY, a man of bad reputation.

FAITH LANE, unselfish and womanly, is in love with Hathaway, who adores Cherry.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich amateur artist, proposes to Faith on a Sunday outing, but she refuses him. That evening Faith finds that Cherry has disappeared, taking most of her clothes with her.

Before Faith can decide what to do, Mrs. Albert Ettleson appears, and tells the Lane family that Cherry and Ettleson are eloping to New York. Mrs. Lane suffers a severe heart attack. Faith and Bob Hathaway break all speed laws driving to Darrow, where they find that Cherry and Ettleson have boarded the limited for New York, due to leave in five minutes.

At Hathaway's demand, Ettleson opens the door, but confronts him with drawn automatic. Faith unafraid, takes the gun from him. Ettleson pours abuse upon Cherry, charging her with promising everything, taking everything and giving nothing.

On the drive back to the Lane home town, Bob shows clearly that he despises Cherry, who appears very little worried, now that she is safely out of the scrape. Faith, to save her mother pain, lies about Cherry's adventure, but to Bob she shows her heartbreak, asking him what is to become of Cherry. He retorts that she had better marry one of the men she is engaged to—and he is one of them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX.

"You want to marry Cherry—in spite of everything—in spite of today?" Faith managed to speak at last, wetting her dry lips and passing a weary hand over her wind-ravaged brown hair.

"I don't think I said anything about wanting to." Hathaway took her arm with gentle courtesy and led her toward the door. "But you have shown me today the beauty of unselfishness. We can't let her—" he motioned toward the bedroom where Mrs. Lane lay stricken"—worry herself into the grave."

"Cherry would be safe with you," Faith said slowly, and wondered why he could not hear the heavy, grief-laden plunging of her heart.

They went straight to Mrs. Ettleson's room in the second-rate hotel, and found her sitting, a forlorn, red-eyed, hopeless huddle on the edge of her bed. They had agreed—Faith and Bob—that it would be better to lie to her, better to save what they could for her out of the wreckage of her life.

"Cherry had merely gone to Darrow for a day with your husband, Mrs. Ettleson," Faith told her steadily, her kind eyes filled with pity. "They had been planning for your husband to help her go on the stage, but there was nothing but a silly flirtation between them. He told us so, and Cherry was amazed that you could have misinterpreted her letters."

"He'll hate me for interfering," Mrs. Ettleson said dully, tears splashing down the gray pallor of her cheeks.

"No, he won't. A man likes to be fought over." Faith forced herself to smile with gay reassurance. "Go home and wait for him. He's just gone on his regular trip to New York. Believe me, Mrs. Ettleson, Cherry is not in love with your husband. She's in love with Mr. Hathaway—engaged to be married to him." She smiled again, but her lips were twisted with pain. "Tell her, Bob."

"That's right, Mrs. Ettleson," Bob Hathaway answered. "Cherry simply wanted to have her fling before we were married, wanted one season in a musical comedy, so she could brag about it to her children for the rest of her life, I suppose. She's a nice kid, really, even if she is a little vain over her good looks. Try to believe, Mrs. Ettleson, that you have nothing to fear from Cherry Lane. Now—have you had your dinner? Made your reservation back to Indianapolis?"

"No." The woman rose uncertainly, began to waver about the room, in a futile attempt to pack her few belongings. "I'm not hungry. It doesn't matter about the reservation. I can always get an upper. Was—was Albert awfully mad at me?" she asked pitifully, her reddened eyes fixed in humble appeal upon Faith's calm, serene face.

"I tell you, Mrs. Ettleson," Faith answered briskly, taking over the packing of the bag herself, "If I were you, I'd never mention the matter to Mr. Ettleson. He'll probably come home, expecting you to nag him to death about it, and if you meet him cheerfully, all dressed up in some new clothes, which I'd buy right away if I were you, why, he'll probably be so glad to find you acting sensibly that he'll spend most of his time thinking up nice ways to make it up to you. Men are such fools, even the best of them, aren't they?"

"I guess I'm too crazy about Albert." The tears gushed again. "He used to be awfully sweet to me, when we were first married, and I was kinda pretty." Mrs. Ettleson flushed. "I think I'll go back to work, doll myself up a little, take time to get a few facials and a manicure every week. It makes him jealous for me to work in an office, but I guess that won't do him any harm."

After Bob Hathaway had obtained a lower berth for her, and had ordered a light, delicious dinner—which he paid for—sent up to her room, and Faith had shyly but warmly kissed her goodby, they went down to his car in silence, the monstrous fact of his engagement to Cherry—whom he no longer loved, —whom he despised—stalking like an evil ghost between them, holding them apart.

All her life, Faith thought bitterly, she had been shielding Cherry and Junior, acting as a buffer between them and punishment at the hands of their parents. She had lied for her, shielded her always from the consequences of her foolish escapades.

And now she was called upon to give up her one chance at happiness. For she knew, by a dozen signs, that Bob Hathaway's heart, bruised and betrayed by Cherry, had turned to her during this last week, that if she said the word he would repudiate his quixotic sacrifice, and find everlasting peace in the bigness of her love for him.

And yet she knew too that she could not say the word; she knew that once again she would do as she had always done—give up to Cherry the thing she wanted most in the world. There was some comfort in knowing that Bob Hathaway had learned self-sacrifice from her, that they both knew he was doing it for her sake—for Faith's sake, not for Cherry's.

They had not spoken a word to each other—Faith and Bob—when his car stopped before the shabby, sprawling littl e house in Myrtle Street.

"Are you coming in?" Faith avoided his eyes, but she saw that his lean, tanned jaws were clamped together so that little ridges of muscle stood out.

"I guess I'd better speak to—to Cherry," he answered in a flat, dead voice.

"Long" Lane flung the screen door wide as they advanced up the narrow graveled path. "Hey, Sis! There's the devil to pay!"

"Not so loud, Junior," Faith cautioned him, as she stepped upon the porch, Bob Hathaway close behind her. "How's Mother?"

"Asleep," he answered sullenly, but his voice was obediently lowered. "Say, what d' you think? Cherry ran off with my bus! Yes, sir, Fay and I found it a block from the station, with the padlock pried off the doors, and her suitcase missing. What' the devil's she been up to, I'd like to know? It's a good thing for her nothing was stolen. A cop—friend o' mine—recognized the bus and stood guard on it till I come along. Can you beat it, Sis? Honest, that little devil—"

"Gosh, I don't know! I just come in. Nobody in the house but Mom, and she looks awful. Sick again?"

Before Faith, bewildered, stricken with new terror, could answer, there came the clatter of a banging kitchen door, the sound of small feet flying through the dining room. Joy, in a trailing nightgown, her round face paper white, her sharp gray eyes starting from her head with terror, catapulted herself against Faith.

"Faith, Dad's going to whip Cherry! He's got ms razor strop! He says he's going to skin her alive! They woke me up!"

"Where are they? Quick, Joy! Where are they? Don't stutter like a little idiot!" She shook the child ruthlessly.

"Out in the shed!" Joy panted, unholy joy at this tremendous excitement shooting like darts of lightning through the very real terror in her eyes. "He drug her out of the house! And he's got his razor strop. Fiath! He slid the bolt in the shed and told me he'd give me a licking too if I didn't go in the house and stay there! He looks awful, Faith! Soon as Mom was asleep, he jerked her up out of her chair and drug her—"

"That'll do, Joy!" Faith flung off her sister's clinging hands, and ran toward the kitchen, her face as white as Joy's.

"Guess we'd better go along, Hathaway," "Long" Lane said gruffly. "Dad's a peaceful citizen mostly, but when his dander's up, he's liable to do something he'll regret."

For the second time that day Faith flung herself upon a locked door, behind which Cherry Lane was screaming for help. Long, red welts upon the tender flesh of her little sister! The skin of her own body crawled at the thought.

"Dad! It's Faith! Let me in, Dad!"

"Here, I'll attend to this." "Long's" voice was suddenly that of a grown man. He hurled his tall body against the flimsy double doors of the shed, which gave almost immediately.

Cherry lay on the dusty floor of the shed, once used as a stable by previous tenants, and now serving as a coal and wood house. In the flickering light of a lantern swinging from a rafter they could plainly see the print of a man's hand on one delicate, apricot-tinted cheek, and across her bare forearm lay a long, angry welt, left there by the vicious lash of the razor strop which Jim Lane held aloft in a trembling hand.

"Get up off that floor and take your beating!" Jim Lane was saying when the doors were burst open. "Get out of here, Junior, or I'll give you a dose of the same medicine! Get out, Faith!" he ordered thunderously, as his oldest daughter stumbled into the shed and flung herself to the floor, to gather her shuddering, sobbing sister into her arms.

"That'll be enough, Dad." Junior strode to his father and snatched the uplifted strop from his hand. "Cherry's not a kid any more. A licking or two when she was a kid might have helped, but it won't do any good now. You'll be ashamed of yourself for this, Dad."

"Cherry, Cherry!" Faith had her sister in her arms, was kissing the cruel welt on her arm, the livid print of her father's hand on her face.

Jim Lane glared wildly about him, then staggered, brushing his eyes, as if to dispel the red mists of rage. Then he looked with bewilderment at the hand which had been raised against his daughter. He began to shudder as if with a chill.

"Something come over me," he muttered. "Something come over me—all of a sudden. Her mother's spoiled her. Oughta been spanked more when she was a child. Never made to mind. Something come over me."

Again he brushed a rough, knuckly hand over his eyes, then seemed to realize for the first time that Bob Hathaway was standing near the wrecked doors of the shed. "That you, Hathaway? I'm sorry you got let in for this. Made a fool of myself, I guess. But when I saw what she'd done to her mother—almost killed her, running away with a married man like that—then coming home as perky as ever, lying and grinning and not a bit sorry—well, sir, something ome over me. But she needed a licking, Hathaway. By God, she needed a licking! But—I guess she needed it ten years ago, and it's too late to begin now."

"Mr. Lane." Bob Hathaway came forward slowly, his blue eyes filled with sympathy for the bewildered, ashamed father, "I came over this evening to ask you if you'd let me marry Cherry."

Cherry jerked upright in Faith's arms, gasped. In the pale light of the lantern her yellow eyes gleamed like those of a tigress.

"I guess I've got something to say about it!" her voice rose shrilly, cracking on a sob. "You treated me like a dog today, coming home from Darrow. I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth, Bob Hathaway. Trying to play the noble Sir Galahad, aren't you? Well, I've made my plans, and they don't include any blue-eyed he-saints, either!"

W.M.S. CONVENTION REPORT PRESENTED

Miss Jessie Johnston Tells Roseneath Ladies of Great Meeting.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 30.—The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at Centenery on Tuesday afternoon, November 9th. Owing to the heavy rain and bad roads the attendance was not large, but those present enjoyed a very beneficial meeting.

President Mrs. (Rev.) Wilding presided. The meeting opened by singing a hymn, "Jesus shall reign," after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. A hymn, "Throw out the life-line," was sung and the W.M.S. watchword was repeated.

The devotional leaflet, "Faith and Personality" was read by Miss Beatrice Smith.

Mrs. Smith gave an excellent paper on the review of the Study book. Many things were to be learned in connection with foreign work and its workers.

Mrs. Wilding read a very interesting paper on missions.

The minutes of the October meeting were read and adopted on motion of Mrs. Ella Brown and Mrs. Arthur.

Mrs. Ella Brown read the Scripture lesson.

Miss Jessie Johnston was asked for a report of the W.M.S. convention held at Baltimore on Ogtober and replied as follows: "Five members from the Roseneath branch attended the convention. The meeting opened at 9.45 a.m., Mrs. Fred Field of Cobourg in the chair. Owing to a number of members who were to take part in the programme had not arrived. Hymn no. 120, "Onward Christian Soldiers" was sung after which Mrs. J. T. Daley gave Bible reading Psalm 103, and was read alternately. Mrs. Daley also addressed the meeting in giving thanks to God for His goodness, adn the beauty of nature, and the many things for which we owe thanks to Him who careth for us. The Lord's prayer was then repeated in unison.

Mrs. Field then elected officers for the meeting—Mrs. G. L. Wagar, Cobourg, was appointed Secretary, Courtesy Committee, Mrs. Fred Field, Cobourg; Mrs. Clare, Welcome and Mrs. Mears, Port Hope. Mrs. Field asked Mrs. J. T. Daley for an address. Mrs. Daley suggested that a devotional period be taken while waiting for other members to arrive. Hymn 189, "Take Time to be Holy" was sung, followed by prayer from a number of ladies.

"Mrs. Roberts, Grafton, district President of the W.M.S. arrived and was called to take the chair. The roll was called and answered by the Auxiliaries, Circles and Mission Bands. Port Hope had 16 members present, 110 on roll; Roseneath had 5 members present, 32 members and one life member; Cold Springs E. had 2 present, 20 members on roll, an average attendance of 20 to 29; Cold Springs S. had 2 members present, 12 members on roll; Grafton 4 present, 35 members on roll; Baltimore 16 present, 42 members on roll; Plainville 4 present, 24 members and 2 life members; King Street, Cobourg has an average of 12 members; Welcome, 2 members present, with an average of 30 to 50.

"The Circles, Cobourg Trinity, Cobourg King Street, Grafton, a new circle started and has 12 girl members.

"The Mission Bands were then called, Baltimore M.B.; meets on Sunday. Cobourg Trinity—Mrs. Garland spoke a few words on behalf of the band and its work, having 15 regular members. Plainville gave a splendid report, having an average attendance of 14. Welcome—Mrs. Clare gave a report and spoke of how they raise money among themselves. Children whose birthday is in the month give a cent for every year they are old. Port Hope—Mrs. Mears gave a few remarks but did not say how many members there were. Roseneath—Mrs. (Rev.) Lovelace read an excellent report, having 38 members and one life member. The members collect by mite boxes also making a quilt to send away and are preparing for a bazaar to be held Saturday, December 11th. Cold Springs mentioned having 18 live wires and were always busy getting up something to make money.

"The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Mann of Baltimore, who, in a few well-chosen words made the audience feel twice welcome. Mrs. Field, on behalf of Grafton, thanked the Baltimore ladies and stressed the importance of such a rally as this. Taking from Scripture, "Behold how pleasant it is to meet together in unity." Mrs. Field continued by saying at this meeting we can say the Union has been a success, no one can question the importance of this gathering for we need to study this work, we need to realize the duty and study of prayer; that without Christ we can do nothing. What we each do is not much, but it takes all to make a success. Mrs. Field concluded by saying she hoped we all would go away feeling that it had been for a good cause we had gathered together in the name of our heavenly Father.

"Hymn No. 225, "Take my life and let it be" was then sung, followed by The Round Table Conference, led by three secretaries of departments.

"Mrs. Mears read by-laws on her work allocation sent from her to each Auxiliary. Finance committee met and made the allocation. Somewhat difficult on account of Union. Tried to make it fair and majority of auxiliaries pay in their membership fee as 60 cents, leaving 10 cents for expenses. Mrs. Mears spoke strongly on Secretary of Stewardship, and those auxiliaries who have not appointed a secretary to hand in their name. A secretary is a good thing. The funds for expenses must not be drawn from the funds. A separate fund should be raised for this; various methods suggested. Some have teas, others the 10 cents when they join, others are practising the habit of systematic giving, either a tenth or otherwise. Mrs. Roberts agrees about systematic giving and if one-tenth is given there will always be money to give.

"Mrs. Garland, secretary of Mission Bands and Baby Bands for branch answered two questions; Miss Jamieson was not able to give much information as Mrs. Chant is appointed general secretary of Mission and was absent. Question: To whom do Mission Bands send report at close of the year?—To Mrs. D. A. Scott, Claremont, Ont. Do Mission Bands send money to Mrs. Day?—It is to be sent through the Presbyterial to Mrs. W. M. Pringle, of Whitby, Ont.

"Baby Bands, 5 years and under, are elegible at 10 cents a year, $1 life member. Roseneath members felt rather proud to have the youngest member present at the huge gathering. Baby Marion Lovelace. The mothers and their babies are expected to meet twice a year. It may be taken as a baptismal service. The superintendent should be a lover of children and for Mission work. Any new organizations to be reported to Mrs. Scott.

"Mrs. Roberts then read a report from Mrs. Johnston of Grafton, who was unable to be present. It was about the strangers' committee, and stressed importance of the work. In 17 auxiliaries no strangers' secretary was reported. Three out of 17 reported. This shows lack of interest. Every community has new individuals coming in and needing welcome or some of our own members or their families go away from home, perhaps to the city, or elsewhere. Therefore a strangers' secretary is needed to write the pastor or the strangers' secretary elsewhere. Whose fault is it if boys and girls drift away?

"Mrs. West, Toronto, is the Dominion secretary who wrote literature that will be sent out soon, telling by-laws and duty of strangers' secretary.

"Strangers' secretary keeps track of all calls, etc., so as to fill in a report later. Send name of any one going to a hospital in a strange city. A record is kept of all calls, etc. Reports are sent to 299 Queen Street West, Toronto, Department of Strangers, and also to the town to whom strangers go. Book of forms and envelopes may be had by writing to 299 Queen Street West, Toronto.

"Mrs. Jackson, Port Perry, general secretary of Presbyterial sent word that each auxiliary is to elect a literature secretary also that when the treasurers send money to Mrs. Pringle of Whitby, that they also send a statement to her (Mrs. Jackson—) at the same time.

"When a new circle or band has been organized the corresponding secretary of the same sends a report to Mrs. Jackson, Miss Fargo, and Mrs. Scott. A short discussion was held when questions were asked and answered. Mrs. Roberts advised each member to buy an anntual report when it comes out and study the by-laws, aso as to be well informed about the work.

"Mrs. Milton Ames, Plainville, gave out Hymn No. 84, followed by prayer from Mrs. Lauder of Plainville. This ended the morning session.

"The large gathering were then invited to the dining room where a hot and most appetizing dinner was served by the ladies of Baltimore. One hundred and twelve members sat down to the first tables.

"The afternoon meeting opened at 1.30 p.m. with Mrs. Roberts in the chair. Hymn 94 was sung and Mrs. Barbour led in prayer.

"Officers of the branch and Presbyterial were called to the platform. Mrs. Daley of the Presbyterial, Mrs. Barbour and Mr. Garland of Branch; Mrs. Fred Field 1st vice-president; Mrs. Mears, secretary; Mrs. McKinnon and Mrs. Russell of Presbyterial. Mrs. Vanalstyne of Port Hope favored the audience with a solo.

"Echoes from the board by Mrs. Daley, president of branch. Mrs. Daley had attended the meeting of the board. There were 11 branches, Presbyterian auxiliaries, W.W. auxiliaries, circles, bands and baby bands. It was the first annual meeting and was taken up with business which lasted from Tuesday 'till Friday.

"Mrs. Lavell gave the annual address, outlining events of the year in organizing, etc. This required a great deal of work on the part of the interim executive. Every thing has been done to safeguard the interests of the work in every way and it is hoped that all auxiliaries will accept.

"Dr. Endicott gave the address of the evening. He spoke of the W.M.S., saying there was nothing equal to it achieved but he considered the work achieved by women, even with the opposition of men, was wonderful. The General Council had requested that the W.M.S. have representatives on the boards of the church. The countries in which the W.M.S. works were strategic points. Women go out to heal the sick and bind up wounds of the world. Report of work interim committee suggested year ending in March. Presbyterial meetings in April or May. Branch meetings in May or June. Reports from foreign and home fields, West China, Formosa, South China, Korea, India, Japan, West China—many Christians were remaining firm. In Honan, schools closed, but tent meetings. Japan, kindergartens, Woman's Auxilaries for Gospel. West Central Africa, great work done for women. New homes set up, smiles brought to the faces of women. Mrs. McGillivary read a wireless message from W.M.S. of Japan, giving greetings. Home work is wonderful among orientals and French Indians.

"Dr. Endicott's conclusion, said Mrs. Lavell was—'We must be enthusiastic over the great work, publicity we want to let others see what a great work is needed. Remember that it is not by might nor by power, but by faith and prayer.'

"Hymn No. 150 was then sung, after which Miss Haig of Formosa addressed the meeting. Miss Haig will be in Roseneath on Thursday, so no report is given of her address at Baltimore. Mrs. Field moved a vote of thanks to Miss Haig, seconded by Mrs. Mears; carried.

"Report of courtesy committee was given by Mrs. Fred Field, which specially stressed the wonderful dinner. Bailieboro extended an invitation for the rally next year.

"Short prayers were given by Mrs. Climo and Mrs. Clare. Hymn No. 366 was sung and Mrs. Roberts gave a paper on prayer, Jeremiah 39: 1-13—When shall ye call upon me and ye shall go and pray unto me and I will hearken to you; and ye shall seek me and find me when ye shall search for me with all your heart. Isaiah 55:6—Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near. Psalm 86: 5-7—For thou, Lord, art good and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee; give ear, O Lord, unto my prayer and attend to the voice of my supplications. In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee: for thou wilt answer me. Mark 11: 22-24—And Jesus answering, saith unto them, Have faith in God. For verily I say unto you that whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatever he saith. Wherefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire whe n ye pray, believe that ye receive them and ye shall have them.

"In looking through the Bible for verses I found it, as I might say, full of them. It is truly the world's prayer book. The Bible is the record of praying men and women and from them we learn how to pray. It is also the record of the prayer life of Jesus. When we begin to look for examples of praying men and women of the Bible we find Enoch, 'who walketh with God, and was not for God took him;' Abraham, the friend of God, Jacob, who fled from his brother only to meet with his vision of angels ascending and descending on their cloudy ladder. Moses, a life full of prayer and of great faith in God; Joshua, Hannah, Samuel, Elisha, Elijah, David, a man after God's own heart; Nehemiah, who had such sympathy for his unfortunate brethren in Jerusalem, causing him to weep and fast and pray to his God. Isaiah, with his vision, Jeremiah from his prison, Daniel from the city where he was captive, these and many others.

"But when we come to the New Testament here we find the richest lessons and the greatest examples. Luke has been called the gospel of prayer In this Gospel we learn much of the prayer life of Jesus. It began with prayer. Jesus was heralded by John the Baptist who spent his life in the desert in prayer and meditation. How often we read of Jesus going away by Himself into the wilderness for prayer. In His humanity He was dependent on His Father as we are. Luke tells us that He went out into the mountain in prayer and the next day He chose His disciples. Thus it was before undertaking any task or performing any miracle or tempted or wearied in body or mind, He prayed. How much prayer meant to Him.

"In the Acts we see the apostles, churches and converts all praying and praying under all circumstances, and in all places and here we learn much of the prayer life of Paul as well as in his letters. Paul's life, after his conversion was a life of unceasing prayer. His life was so nearly like Jesus' life in regard to prayer. How much prayer meant to Paul.

"We might now ask ourselves, how much does prayer mean to us? Some one has said that the habit of prayer is one of the great essentials of the Christian life and we know this is true. It may not always be easy to set apart the time we think should be given to prayer, but the way so often is found if we have the will, that it is worth our while to keep a high aim before us. In speaking of our United Church, we are always so glad to say, 'Our United Church is a missionary Church,' we should also be able to say, 'Our Church is a praying Church;" and we should be women of prayer.

"To the early disciples the upper room was a sacred place. It was there that they had close and precious fellowship with one another and with God. It was there that they found strength and wisdom for their daily task, that they might do their duty in the fear of God and to the glory of His name.

"This turning away from the world for quiet and undisturbed communion with the Lord, and to pray for help to worthily bear the increasing responsibilities of life was one of the characteristics of the early Christians, which should never be neglected. It is needed in every generation, and was never needed more than now. The success of every missionary undertaking from the very earliest time until now had its origin in prayer, so if we have greater successes there must be first of all more prayer. In our auxiliaries at the present time there is great need of prayer, prevailing prayer and a greater consecration on the part of the members.

"The great Union Movement has broadened our line of vision and we look out over the vast fields touching every continent of the many millions, waiting for us to send them the Gospel, and then think of God's faith in us. Entrusting this work to us, our thoughts cannot but turn to the prayer life of Jesus, God's only begotton Son. How much time He spent in prayer before attempting great tasks like these, and how satisfied we are with a few minutes. Shall not we study His prayer life and go over it again and again until we breathe in the very spirit of prayer. We so often ask Him to breathe upon us the spirit of prayer and to teach us how to pray. Will we then continue to ask Him and get alone with Him, that He may teach us and we through His teaching not only may be filled to do the work that He expects us to do, but willing to be used by Him. Then, by our constant communion with Him, no matter how big, nor how hard the task we will be able to say like Paul—'I can do all things through Christ, Who strengthened me.' Then let us take up our task and go forward, being assured of the promise,—'Lo, I am with you always."

The closing hymn was No. 232, "Just As I Am;" and the Mizpah Benediction. A dainty and wholesome lunch was served by the Centenery ladies and a social half hour was spent.

THE HALL STORE

WARSAW NEWS.

WARSAW, Nov. 30.—There was a good meeting of the Conservatives held in the town hall on F4iday evening last. T. D. Johnston, the candidate, was present, assisted by Mr. Wylie from Toronto.

On Sunday evening, Rev. H. B. Herrington preached on "Woe to him that putteth the cup to his neighbor's lips."

Mr. Cowan preached in the Presbyterian church. Next Sunday the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. Rev. Mr. Ross will officiate.

On Friday afternoon the domestic science class had their last lesson. Most of those attending the class were more than delighted with the wonderful work taken up. Except one day, the classes were held in the afternoon, the day "bread-making" was dealt with, there was a class in the morning as well as in the afternoon. Friday's demonstration was in table service. And the class asked for a talk on etiquette, which Miss Hopkins gave gladly.. There were a few visitors present. The report of the finances was read, all bills were paid. The president of the institute was unable to be present. The institute feels gratified at the result of the class. All those who paid the fee are members of the institute. The domestic science and first aid and nursing, the classes may be quite large. This class was limited because of the size of the institute room. If seventy or eighty came,the institute could engage the town hall. If all the demonstrators are like those who have been here, they are certainly a fine class of women. Many of those who attended the class would come again were Miss Hopkins to come.

At the next institute meeting, December 9, Mrs. T. H. Crowe will give her report of the convention in Toronto.

Alex. Calder threshed on Monday. He had only a small crop, fourteen acres of oats, from which he threshed over eight hundred bushels, and a few loads of wheat which turned out well.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Pogue, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Christopher and Robert Lloyd and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Calder on Sunday.

Mrs. A. F. Choate spent a few days visiting in Toronto last week.

Mrs. T. H. Crowe returned on Saturday, delighted with the convention.

Mrs. Murray (nee Miss Barbara Kidd) and little girl are visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Hawthorne.

The Crane Lake hunting party, including Alex. Watts, Richard Tedford, Bruce Douglas and others, returned on Saturday with two deer and a large wolf.

Several other parties did quite well, especially those who went far away. Some had quite poor luck.

Wolves were seen, also tracks of bears, as well as of deer.

DOWNEYVILLE NEWS

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 30.—What might have been a serious accident occurred last Tuesday when the men working on the roof of the church fell, the scaffold breaking. Mr. Cullen, of Bobcaygeon, had his ankle and several ribs broken, while Albert Carroll hurt his back, and John Harrington had his head and face cut. All were badly shaken up but are congratulating themselves on their narrow escape. Dr. Kelly, of Bobcaygeon, was summoned and attended the injured men.

The many friends of Miss Mary O'Connell will regret to learn of her serious illness in Detroit, and hope for a speedy recovery. Her sister, Mrs. M. Hoolihan, has gone over to see her.

A number of radios have been installed in and around the village.

There was a meeting held here in the hall on Friday evening in the interests of the Progressive candidate, Mr. F. G. Sandy. Mr. Gordon, of Peterboro', was one of the speakers and he, with Mr. Sandy, put before the people the good of the O. T. A. The weather an roads were very bad and a very sma crowd attended.

ENNISMORE NEWS.

Mr. M. Crough has returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Murphy have arrived home from their wedding trip at Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Foley and Mr. and Mrs. E. O'Donnell attended the funeral of Mrs. John Conway.

Mrs. P. Crowley and Mrs. J. Morrissey were called to Lindsay on Tuesday, owing to the serious illness of the former's brother, Mr. Thomas Morrissey.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Cavanagh spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Herlihey.

RUMANIA'S FATE

govern on uneasy country amid traditionally turbulent states, but there are many who are of the opinion that the King's illness is being used as an excuse for the present clamor; they think that when Carol finally declares himself, a way will be found to settle matters amicably.

The most effective worker in the Rumanian crisis has probably been the censor. Bucharest's contribution to political history has been very thin of late, but what has been permitted to be telegraphed outr egarding the King's grave malady is probably reasonably accurate. So far as is known from Bucharest Ferdinand is making a good fight for his life. Queen Marie's decision to spend a day or two in Paris is generally accepted as proving that the King's condition is not so grave as many reports have indicated.

Carol has ignored all stories of his intention to return to the Rumanian capitol, and claim the right to the throne; he has been as silent as the propagandists have been noisy the last two weeks. King Ferdinand's life or death seems less and less to dominate the situation, and it is apparently more a matter of what Carol and Rumania's many bitterly factional politicians will do.

CHURCH SUPPER GREAT SUCCESS

Many Attend Social Held By Norwood United Church.

NORWOOD NEWS.

NORWOOD, Nov. 30.—The supper, held in the United Church, Norwood, on Monday evening, November 22, was very largely attended by friends from the immediate neighborhood and from outlying districts. Over six hundred partook of the good things provided by the ladies of the congregation. The Monday evening supper an dentertainment was a continuation of the Sunday services which marked three outstanding events in the history of the congregation. First, the eighty-seventh anniversary of the advent of Methodism in this district; secondly, the thirty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the beautiful building in which the congregation worship, and lastly, the second anniversary of the fusion of the former Methodist and the former Presbyterian members as a branch of the United Church of Canada.

Following the supper, which was served in the dining-room of the church, a programme of speeches and musical numbers was given in the auditorium. Greetings were brought from sister congregations by Rev. Mr. Hinton of Hastings, Rev. Mr. Moyer of the Westwood circuit, Rev. Mr. Archer of Havelock, and Rev. J. P. McLenna of the local Baptist Church. Letters were received from Rev. T. J. O'Connor-Fenton of the Anglican Church and Rev. T. M. Wesley of Lakefield, formerly assistant pastor of the Norwood United Church, expressing their regret at not being able to attend the service.

Organ numbers given by Miss Evelyn Scott, Miss Una Duffield, and Prof. Edwards, a male quartette by Messrs. Edwards, Finlay, Squire and Thomson, and two anthems by the choir, composed the musical part of the programme. The proceeds of the evening amounted to between $250.00 and $300.00.

A wedding of interest to a number in this district took place in Regina, Sask., on October 27, when Miss Luella Patterson, daughter of the late George and Mrs. Patterson of Dummer, Sask., was united in marriage with Mr. Sidney Legrand of the same place.

Messrs. Russel and Lowry Patterson, of Dummer, Sask., are guests of relatives and friends in the village and district.

Mr. Jesse Rattan, who has spent the past few weeks with his mother in the village, returned to his western home on Tuesday. He was accompanied by his brother, Mr. Fred Rattan.

PROSECUTOR TO

the body of her husband was not taken to the Hall home, the widow replying each time that she had asked that the body be returned to the house, but that John V. Hubbard, undertaker, had advised against it.

The witness said that she never saw the love letters of Mrs. Mills to her husband, nor those of the minister to the choir singer until two weeks before this trial. She said that at her minister's advice, she did not read the papers after her husband's death.

The prosecutor's plan of cross-examination involved much repetition. He asked virtually the same questions several times, Justice Parker on one occasion checking the line of questioning with the statement, "You have been over that Mr. Simpson.

Mrs. Hall again, under Simpson's questioning, flatly denied any connection with the crime on which she and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, are being tried. Her "no" was emphatic as she replied to questions if she had gone to De Russey's Lane, where her husband and Mrs. Mills were slain, had known of any meeting between the two there, or had seen Mrs. Mills shot down.

Following Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Theodora Bonner and Mrs. Frances Voorhees, sister of Mr. Hall, went to the witness stand to tell of a summons from Mrs. Hall when her husband and their brother had not returned home Friday after leaving early on Thursday evening.

Both said the defendant was agitated and neither saw any scratch on her face as has been testified to by State's witnesses.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

HAVELOCK, Nov. 30.—Rev. Roy Rickard of New Albert College, Belleville, was the special preacher on Sunday, Nov. 21, in the United Church (former Methodist), the occasion being the thirtieth anniversary of the church. The Trustees asked for a thank-offering of $750.00 and while some canvassing remains to be done it is expected that the financial objective will be reached, the contributions on Sunday being the largest in the history of the church.

Large congregations were present at both services and special musical numbers were rendered by the choir. Mr. Rickard, who is a baritone soloist, delighted the congregation with a solo, both morning and evening.

Special services were held on Sunday in connection with the Knox Presbyterian church, which has a history extending over a period of thirty-eight years. The sermons delivered both morning and evening by the newly inducted minister, Rev. G. E.e Lougheed were eloquent and inspiring. The morning subject was "The Presbyterian Catholic Church" and was based on 1 Peter 2, verse 9—"But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth the praises of Him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvellous light."

The history of the Presbyterian church was portrayed, dealing with the faith of the church, the church government, its influence, and its benevolence. The Presbyterian is a universal church. The faith of the church is catholic, he said. "We are all catholics because we believe in Jesus, Who died for sin. The creed is of election, predestination and final perseverance of the saints. Calvinism is a character builder and stands supreme among the religious denominations of the world. The church has also been very generous in its contributions for benevolent purposes, and with all its giving has never been impoverished yet.

The government is of Scriptural origin, derived from Presbytery. The church does not legislate for the people and has no canon law. Wherever there is social or moral reform to be done the Presbyterian church has stepped to the front to do it.

In closing he said, "As each anniversary comes and goes, may it see us doing more for the Master by the study of the Bible, prayer, worship, service and renewed consecration."

The evening sermon was "The method of Jesus in dealing with men." The text was John 15 and 12, "This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you." In the world there are two methods of dealing with men, force and love. Christ came into a world that was based on force and He said, "Put up thy sword." There is no greater transforming power in the world today than the love of Jesus. The Roman Empire has given force a trial, Europe has also given it a trial and it did not prove a success. Some people think the creed for individual and nation should differ. The creed of love thy neighbor as thyself, for the individual—and the creed of hate thy neighbor for the nation. Our great task is to lift up the nation to the level of the individual. Love means service. Mr. Lougheed gave quotations from some prominent characters on the power of love and closed taking as example the sacrifice made by Nurse Cavell and said, "Deal in love with you fellow men, and when death comes you too will be able to use the last words of Nurse Cavell, "I am not afraid to die.

The managers requested a thank-offering of $300 and almost that amount was placed on the plates, and it is expected that it will be augmented by other contributions next Sunday. The annual dinner held in the church on Monday evening was a great success. The church was filled to capacity and the proceeds amounted to $140.00. Shortly after eight o'clock, after all had had their dinner, the programme, which was given in the auditorium was begun. Rev. G. E. Lougheed, the pastor, was chairman. He spoke a few words of congratulation and welcome, after which he announced the following programme.

One Verse—"Blest be the Tie that Binds," in unison.
Prayer—Rev. G. E. Lougheed.
Anthem—"Send Out Thy Light," choir.
Recitation—Miss Donna Buchanan.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Wright of Norwood.
Guitar Selection—Miss M. Williams.
Messrs. A. Wilson, F. Voyer, G. Thompson, P. Greenley, A. Wilde.
Address—Rev. T. H. Stanley.
Violin Solo—Dr. A. S. Thompson.
Quartette—Misses E. Martin and V. Rorke and Mr. and Mrs. C. Thompson.
Recitation—Mrs. Jean Moore.
Violin Solo—Dr. A. S. Thompson.
Vocal Duet—Mrs. H. F. McNichol and Mr. Wright.
"God Save the King."
Benediction—Rev. T. H. Stanley.

Mr. Lougheed expressed thanks to those who had taken part in the programme and to the ladies for the splendid dinner. The programme throughout was good, the vocal numbers by Mr. Wright being especially enjoyed.

WEDDING BELLS.

ABAR—ELMER

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30.— A quiet marriage took place at Minneapolis, Minnesota on Wednesday, November 17th, when Kathryn Harriett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Elmer, became the wife of Mr. Harry S. Abar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Abar of town. After December 1st Mr. and Mrs. Abar will be at home at their home, Minneapolis, Minnesota, where the groom has resided for several years.

Mr. Abar is a Campbellford boy, and his friends join in wishing them hearty congratulations.

COOK—OUTTERSON.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30. — A quiet wedding took place in the Hastings United Parsonage on Saturday afternoon, November 27, at 3.30 p.m., when Helen, second eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Outterson, of Campbellford, became the wife of Wilfred Cook, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cook of Percy. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Hinton, pastor of the United Church, Hastings.

The bride was daintily attired in a navy blue suit, and wore a black satin hat. Mrs. Claude Hoard of Campbellford attended the bride.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cook will reside on the groom's farm in Percy.

OBITUARY.

HAROLD MACUIRE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30. — The funeral of the late Harold Maguire took place in London on Sunday, November 28th. Deceased was the second son of Mr. S. A. Maguire of town, and had been a resident of Campbellford since coming from Wingham when a boy. He was in his 27th year. Harold received his education in the Campbellford schools, later enlisting and serving overseas with an enviable record. He has been in ill health for several years.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, of London, his father, S. A. Maguire, of Campbellford, and one brother, Carl, of town. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Maguire, who lost his eldest son, Fred, only a short time ago.

Mr. Maguire, Mr. Carl Maguire, and Mrs. C. B. Williams are in London.

WAS SO STIFF AND SORE HE COULD HARDLY BEND

As good as new next morning after simple home treatment

After tramping around all day with wet feet while out gunning, a Philadelphia sportsman found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend.

"I went to work but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. I was as good as new next morning, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's."

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It helps the body to throw off the cause of the pain.

Get a bottle of Sloan's today and have it on hand for the first emergency. All druggists—35 cents.

VISITING SPEAKER

Rev. W. Halpenny Gave Address at Marmora United Church.

MARMORA, Nov. 30.—Rev. W. Halpenny of Gananoque occupied the pulpit of Marmora United Church on Sunday evening. Choosing as his text, "Where there is no vision, the people perish," he affirmed that there was need of a new vision of ourselves, of the church, and her regenerating powers, of Jesus Christ and of the sacred Word. The special anthem by the choir was "Incline thine ear," Mr. W. A. Sanderson taking the opening solo.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MILLBROOK YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD MASS MEETING TO SUPPORT O.T.A.

Two College Speakers From Toronto Main Speakers at Gathering.

OTHERS ASSIST.

Protest Premier's Statements About Debauchery in Ontario.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 30. — The "youth movement" which has recently entered so prominently into the present campaign, found emphatic expression in this part of Durham riding at the prohibition mass meeting held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, a capacity audience greeting the speakers.

John Hall Stuart, of University College, Toronto, and John Manuel of Knox College, were the two speakers representing the mass youth movement, the former making the opening address.

"I am not here to represent any political party, nor any religious order, nor any educational movement," Mr. Stuart said, going on to explain the origin of the revolt of youth "in opposition to a statement made by a certain gentleman in a town through which I had the pleasure of motoring on my way here this evening. We are revolting to maintain our rights, our citizenship, and our good name, and I hope you are behind us in this action." (Applause).

"Premier Ferguson stole our chickens, stuck his head through the fence, and we have hit him on the head and we're going to keep on banging him until he goes back where he belongs, and stays there."

"You let the young men have their say when the war broke out; why not let them have their say now?" said the speaker, issuing the challenge: "Is there anyone here who can show me any good thing that liquor has done?—bearing in mind, remember, that its reputed medicinal value is a figment of the imagination." "Is there anyone here who can show me it has not done any harm?"

Menace to Health.

Insisting that liquor is a menace to public health and safety, Mr. Stuart stressed the value of men like Hon. W. F. Nickle and Sir George Foster, "who are opposed to the Ferguson policy because they are men." (Applause).

Sir George Foster's reply to the Premier's criticism that he has been singing the same song for 45 years, was repeated, creating a general laugh: "I would rather sing a song for 45 years than sing a new song every day." The prevalence of drunks within the speaker's memory before the O.T.A. and the fact that they are rarely seen now, was adduced as evidence of the Act's effectiveness.

Conservatives who are unable to follow the Premier in his Government control policy were given the message: "Remember your party is not dragging this issue into the campaign—for the interests of your province and the Dominion on December first vote O.T.A." (Applause).

As a member of an orchestra, the speaker said he had played for three months during the past summer at a summer resort, at dances, parties, and other gatherings, "and I could count on the fingers of this one hand the number of people I saw drunk, or the number of drinks I was offered."

Better economic conditions in Ontario, with fewer business failures than in Quebec, were points stressed, and the claim to drink temperately was refuted, "for you can't educate a man in the use of dope, nor in the use of drink, for liquor is a habit-breeding evil, and disintegrates everything that is good in the person using it."

Laughter answered the autocratic attitude attributed to the Premier: "I have given—I am trying to take away; why not blessed be the name of Ferguson?"

Tainted Money.

"Do you want your taxes reduced and tainted money flowing into our Provincial treasury? Can you be bribed, for instance, by the $5000 reduction promised on motor licenses?"

"The worst attack the Honorable Mr. Ferguson has made is upon the Church. When he assails the clergy he is issuing a challenge, and I believe is deliberately invoking the curse of God upon his own head. Was it not a clergyman who supported him at his Massey Hall meeting? The same gentleman made a pullman car trip through the West, looked through the car window, said Government control is a success there, and came back to support the Premier in his policy." (Laughter and applause).

Answering the objection that the Act cannot be enforced, the statement was emphatically made: "If our Honorable Premier would back up the law, and get more officers on the job, he could enforce the O.T.A.," and the audience clapped its approval.

"More alcohol in the province means more alcoholism; more crime against public morals and decency; more deaths from this evil. If the Premier can gaol the bootlegger after he has government control why not gaol him under the O.T.A.?"

A final appeal to the voters, especially the women, was, "Don't sit at home on Wednesday, but bad roads or not, be out and vote on Dec. 1. Cast your vote in the right way that happiness may be assured for the next 20 years, together with a healthy and prosperous province." (Applause.)

Councillor F. D. Maundrell.

F. D. Maundrell of Whitby, an ex-hotel keeper, "who refrained of his own will from selling intoxicants during the last year in this business, though possessing a license to do so," was introduced by the chairman.

"I am not here in the interest of any political party ,though I am a dyed-in-the-wool Conservative; but if I were not loyal to my party I would not be here to-night," was the speaker's opening statement, and the audience applauded.

"The O.T.A. is the only law I know of that was put on the statute books by the people; every other law owes its place to being put on by the government in power; I am heart and soul in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act, and I am here because I am fully pledged to its support."

"I believe the Brewers' Association of Ontario (now the Moderation League) handed out the dirtiest insult to the fathers and mothers of this province when they said "as soon as they got the boys overseas the hypocrites at home cut off their supply of booze." I want to say, ladies and gentlemen, there were more drunkards left at home than ever went to France." (Applause.)

Owing to financial reasons, the speaker said, at 11 years of age he went to work as a bell boy in a hotel, working from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sundays and all. He was given $4 a month and board, "and if I slept in a morning I was fined a dollar."

Later he worked in a Toronto hotel; at that time there were in the city 150 licensed hotels and 50 liquor stores, requiring 7 carloads of booze, or 4000 cases, to start them off each day; indeed as a matter of fact much more than that was actually sold; "and there were just as many bootleggers then as now; I know it."

Having been proprietor of three different hotels, Mr. Maundrell was able to speak with authority of the business. When at Brechin keeping a public house, a vote on local option was taken. "Whether you believe me or not, ladies and gentlemen, my own mother, with my full consent, marked her ballot in favor of local option because, as she told me, "between God and myself I can't vote in favor of your business."

This action followed a conversation when his mother expressed her pleasure in the fact that her own boy did not touch liquor but her hurt that he was selling it to other boys.

The premier's promise of reduced taxation, notably the $5 less on motor licenses, were held up to ridicule, the speaker cleverly pointing out that the provincial debt cannot be wiped out that way; it mounts up as present sources of income are necessarily cut off. "If you can't finance the affairs of this province without going into the liquor business, I say you are not big enough for your job, and I am not going to vote for you."

One Man Government.

"A one-man country's no good; a one-man town is no good; and a one-man government is no good," was a statement preceding the suggestion that the government has control of the liquor so long as it is is in store, but when a bottle is taken and two or three drinks taken the liquor's got control of the man absolutely."

Refused admission to either an Oddfellows' or a Masonic Lodge because he was in the hotel business, and having $10 a thousand added to his life insurance premium, being regarded as an undesirable form being a liquor seller, the question was asked: "Are we going to vote for a man next Wednesday who will put us in a position where we are refused admission to two of the finest Lodges in the world, or of having 25 per cent. added to the premium we must pay upon life insurance?" Cries of "No, no."

"I would like to ask Hon. Howard Ferguson where he ever saw a country or a people who drank themselves into prosperity? If he can tell me I'll vote for him next Wednesday." (Applause).

The statements regarding the large number of flasks in use today were dealt with briefly, and the reminder given: "Voting for Government control means being false to our promise to look after the families of those men who fought for us overseas, and paid the supreme sacrifice upon the battlefield."

"I was on the sports committee for one of the biggest industrial picnics held at our town last summer, with representatives of several nationalities present, and I never saw a sign of liquor on one man, or one girl, and no one had to stay at home because of lack of proper clothing; everyone was there and happy."

John Manuel.

Don't vote for any government that's going to bring tears to any mother's cheek, or rob any child of its right to proper care, food and clothing."

The next speaker, Mr. Manuel, of Knox College, Toronto, rested the big audience by having everyone rise and sing "We're Fighting," one of the songs used at the Massey Hall meeting, which he had assisted in organizing.

"The mass meeting of youth didn't begin at Massey Hall, but one man threw out a remark at Orono, and like tiny water drops has grown to a stream, a river, a cataract, a mighty Niagara, and one man will know when its full momentum is manifested."

"Mr. Chairman, if I have to take a drink every time I ask a girl to go to a dance, or a social, then I'm going to remain a bachelor for a long time. I'm not speaking for a candidate, I'm speaking for an issue which has been brought into the high lights throught the recent utterances of one man in this province. We're taking up this question in a way that is utterly foreign to the man who started this movement by his unguarded remarks," and the speaker went on to explain that 59 meetings have go far been arranged for by the youth movement

The necessity of avoiding pessimism regarding the government of the land, leading the young people to think of politics with a sneer on their faces, instead of a path to progress and greatness was emphasized. "Don't let any dirty politician of any party stripe pull the feather over your eye. Keep our government clean; that's one reason youth is out on this matter."

"The O.T.A. is not enough for us, though it's the best legislation in sight. The law is broken, we must admit that, and differing ways are submitted of bettering conditions,, but a fine lot of satisfaction to the moral appetite of this province is contained in the suggestion offered by government control for alleviation of existing evils." (Applause).

Fallacy, Not Policy.

Several specific instances of illicit selling in government control provinces were cited. "Government control is not a policy, it's a fallacy. The O.T.A. has brought to us more benefits than any system of government control in any other province. The first man to tell of its advantages was the very man who wants to break it down, instead of going on with the good work. He says education has been lacking, "and the people break it and think lightly of it."

The fallacy of the Premier's claim or lack of education was pointed out, using the proper care of the highways and the matter of protection from forest fires as examples, and the statement followed, "With all the educational work of the government along other lines there has not been one sliver of education of the boys and girls on this great moral question, and the man at the head of the government is 'passin the buck' on to those who are innocent." (Applause).

Several selections regarding alcohol as an evil were read from the Health Book, the reiterated "the Minister of Education is speaking" causing the audience to smile broadly.

That there has been education the speaker insisted—"This election shows it. We are making moral progress. There are no 'wets' and 'drys' in this contest, there are the 'drys' and the 'dryer'—we'll be the 'dryer'." (Applause).

Asserting that the Liberty League members are the men who are out campaigning for government control in this contest, Mr. Manuel spoke of evidences of progress in the fact that young people are trusted in ways now unknown a few years ago—without chaperones at parties for instance; and "It doesn't worry me now if my sister is out to a rather late hour. But in my home in England my mother dare not come home at night unaccompanied while public houses were open. And when my father was out on a Saturday night we didn't dare sleep with the door unlocked, because the demon drink was unloosed at that time."

"You've got to have prohibition somewhere if you permit the liquor traffic in the land. We can't do certain things when strong drink has sway in our country if we are to keep decent and respectable."

A New Crusade

"I call you to a new crusade, young people. The chariot of progress has come to a hard place; put your shoulder to the wheel and push it along until we reach that happy place where we may live in that peace and happiness to which we are entitled." (Applause).

Ross Strike

Mr. Ross Strike, a barrister of Bowmanville, was the concluding speaker, who said: "I am a Conservative, and I have always been one, and I hope to continue to be. I am not here to tell any man how to mark his ballot, but I am speaking chiefly to hard-headed politicians who feel they cannot desert the so-called leader of their party. This time I've got to put my principles before my party."

Asserting that the Liberty League is working on behalf of government control, and scoring the Premier for stating that the O.T.A. cannot be enforced, the speaker said: 'As a citizen of Ontario I'll never admit that a law-breaker can beat me to it." (Cries of "Hear, Hear.").

"Treat the bootlegger as you treat any other law-breaker. When you prove him guilty, put him in gaol; add a few lashes with the gaol sentence for a second offence. I am not one of those people who believe that everyone in favor of government control has a ticket through to damnation; nor do I feel the only people I can live with are those favoring prohibition. "I cannot be convinced that the Premier is playing fair with the people of this province when he asks them to submit to a nebulous policy in comparison with an Act which we have section by section on the statute books."

"Mr. Ferguson says he has thought about this matter for two years and he should be able to give more details that he has. I'm going to stick to what I've got because I know it's a great deal better than what I haven't." (applause).

"I'm almost convinced that if Mr. Ferguson had known the storm that was going to break, it never would have happened. Surely things have not come to such a pass in our province that the Premier has to flout the churches and the ladies."

Assured that government control is not going to destroy the bootlegger the speaker insisted that no better legislation for punishing a bootlegger for selling to minors could be secured than is already possessed. Reduced taxation was referred to as a fallacy "because to make a profit you must spend money" and the matter of conditions being "as bad in Ontario as the Premier says they are" was taken up. "Personally I don't like to see the Premier ofthe finest province in the Dominion running round, holding two meetings a day, telling us how bad a province we're living in, and how debauched we are."

Referring to the two candidates in Durham, with the suggestion, "personalities are nothing in this campaign," Mr. Strike urged voting for the one who is pledged to support the principles meeting with the elector's personal favor. "On December first vote so you will have as clean a conscience on this thing as I have." (Applause).

P. I. Bentley was chairman of the meeting, the Citizen's Band played at the opening, and led in the National Anthem at the close. Misses Ella Elson and S. Hetherington played one or two piano duets during the evening.

taken out of party politics. It is a moral issue, but now that it has been put into politics he said, "We ministers must follow it."

Mr. Gordon Wright then favored the audience with a solo "Throw Out the Life-line," and Professor Edwards gave a number of instrumental solos, while a subscription list was passed around to help defray campaign expenses.

W. A. Anderson

The candidate was then called upon and said, "It was encouraging to see such a large meeting, but on account of the lateness of the hour his remarks were few.

Rev. Richards of Peterborough arrived about eleven o'clock and consequently his remarks were very few.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and three cheers for the candidate.

The last gun in this political campaign in this district will be fired on Tuesday evening, when meetings will be held in Havelock and Norwood in the interests of Col. T. D. Johnson, Liberal-Conservative candidate.

FROM REV. J. L. HUGHES.

November 29, 1926.

(To the Editor Peterboro Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Your issue of to-day contains a report of a meeting held in the Lakefield Memorial Hall in the interests of Col. T. D. Johnston, the Conservative candidate in the coming election. At that meeting the Rev. A. W. MacKenzie is reported as having said: "I am an Anglican parson, and within the last two or three weeks the Anglican Church has come out for Government control, because it believes in law enforcement. . . ." It may be, sir, that other words, not reported, were spoken that would leave a right impression upon the hearers, but to your readers the words above quoted can only convey a wrong impression, namely, that the Anglican Church has officially declared herself to support the policy of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson. The "pros" and "cons" of the respective methods of handling the liquor traffic do not enter into the motive for writing this letter, but solely because, as a priest in the Anglican Church, I am desirous that the attitude of the Church in regard to the question, "O.T.A. vs. Government control," ought to be, if at all introduced, fairly and accurately stated. The attitude of the Church can only be declared through her official assemblies, viz., her synods, and, to some extent, special committees, but even the decisions of the latter are subject to Synod approval. There has not been a Provincial Synod of Ontario nor even a Diocesan Synod in the Province, during even the past two or three months. It is a well-known fact, sir, that Anglican pulpits have been singularly free of preachings upon the question at issue, but it is not so well-known that prayer has been constantly offered in Anglican churches during the past two or three weeks for "Divine guidance during the forthcoming election," the prayer so used being the official prayer set forth in the "Book of Common Prayer." On various platforms and in the press, Anglican clergy have expressed their opinions upon the question at issue, and both sides have their supporters. Bishops as well as priests have given voice to their convictions; e.g., on the one hand, the respected and esteemed Archbishop of Ontario and Bishop of Huron, the Rt. Rev. D. Williams stands for "Government control"; on the other hand our own respected and beloved Diocesan, the Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeney, Bishop of Toronto, favors the O.T.A. Recently the Toronto Diocesan Council for Social Service "decided to take no formal action" in regard to the question; but the Rev. T. F. Summerhayes, convenor of the sub-committee on legislation, has personally issued a pamphlet in regard to the same. Mr. Summerhayes is a strong prohibitionist, and the pamphlet must be read by those into whose hands it may fall, as a personal and not an official declaration.

The Anglican Church has not come out either for or against Government control.

Yours faithfully,
Rev. J. L. Hughes.

SUGGEST PETERBORO MAN FOR SENATOR.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: In the death of Senator McHugh, of Lindsay, Ont., we have lost a man whom I knew and respected for many years In his demise, Central Ontario will miss a valued friend, and helpful representative, that always did his best to further every interest and effort put forth for the betterment of his home districts, and his home Province.

Now this vacancy has arisen in the Senate, we should do all within our power to secure the appointment of a Peterboro man—for never have we had a Senator from this city.

Let me suggest an efficient, capable, worthy and respected man, one who has filled many public and semi-public offices with ability, energy and discernment, one whom the Liberal government (who has the disposal of the appointment) can endorse, and one who is of the same religious persuasion as the late Senator. I refer to Mr. J. J. Duffus.

We can be assured, because of his past record, that this district and this province would find an able, and efficient Senator in him, to carry out the aims of business and other improvements that from time to time we are mutually trying to secure—for he has the resourcefulness and capacity, which goes after, and gets, results, as has been shown many times in his successful efforts of the past.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space, I am, yours truly,
THOS. BARRIE.

FOUR VACANCIES IN RED CHAMBER

Two For Ontario and Two For Quebec Are Dead.

FIRST SINCE 1925.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30. — Two senatorial vacancies occurred over the week-end through the deaths of Senator George McHugh, of Lindsay, and Senator Richard Blain of Brampton. Both senators were representatives of Ontario in the upper chamber. The late Senator McHugh was a Liberal, while Senator Blain was a Conservative.

Four vacancies now exist in the red chamber. The other two are for the province of Quebec brought about by the deaths this year of Senators H. L. David and Alfred Thibadeau. The Ontario vacancies occurring over the week end are the first since the making of several appointments by the King government prior to the 1925 general elections.

OLD ONTARIO HAS NEW CLOTHES FOR NEXT PROVINCIAL ELECTION

Many Changes Made in Boundaries of Ridings at Redistribution.

NEW GROUPINGS HERE.

Peterborough City and Peterborough Couny Are Names of Seats.

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (By Canadian Press).—When the electors of Ontario go to the polls in the Provincial General Elections on December 1 to ballot for the Seventeenth Ontario Legislature, they will elect 112 members as compared with 111 in the last or Sixteenth House of Assembly. Numerically, that is a difference of one only, but geographically there has been a vast amount of cutting and splicing of ridings in bringing about this single addition in the membership of the House. The new map of provincial electoral districts will show a succession of new alignments. Many ridings, familiar in name to Ontario people in all parts of Canada, and historical in political record and party tradition, have taken on various new shapes. The Representation Act of 1925, with its amendments of 1926, brought about the widest shake-up of provincial riding boundaries in many years.

Toronto's New Striped Suit.

Take the city of Toronto, for instance. Electoral y the Provincial Capital is now literally but strips of its former self. Formerly there were six city ridings, four of them having two members each, a total of 10 members. Now there are 15 Toronto constituencies, each to have its sitting member in the Legislature. The official description of 13 of the 15 Toronto ridings indicates that they run, like an avenue of columns, generally straight and narrow, from the northern limits of the city "to the water's edge," Lake Ontario or Toronto Bay, on the south. They bear such old ward names as St. Patrick's, St. David, St. Andrew's and St. George's, and one-time suburban nomenclature like Riverdale, Beaches, Brockton and Parkdale. Several of them take in at their lower ends a business or manufacturing section; in their centres a goodly slice of so-called "foreign" population and in their upper or northern reaches are the newer or "residential" annexes or Hill districts. Two of the new Toronto ridings are not of the elongated strip formation. One of these is Eglinton, which is an irregularly shaped block conforming generally to the limits of former North Toronto. Another is High Park which takes in the district at the northwest corner of the city, formerly known as West Toronto.

Other New Ridings

The city of Hamilton, which formerly sent two members to the Legislature, will now send three, the city being split by northerly and southerly projections into east, west and centre constituencies. London will also have an additional member, giving two in the next House, one each from the ridings of North and South London, which were developed from the former single London constituency, with the addition of various annexed districts. Ottawa's additional seat is named East Ottawa, giving the Dominion capital three seats in the Provincial House. The three constituencies are defined in the Act by the various city wards which compose them. There are to be two Windsors—East and West—instead of one, the newly divided ridings taking in also the Walkerville and Sandwich sections of the Border Cities There will be nine additional members in the new Legislature representing urban ridings, and two new members representing rural ridings, the latter South Cochrane and South York.

Ridings to Disappear

Ten rural ridings will disappear. There were three Bruces; now there will be two, West Bruce being divided between North and South. Grey Centre is dropped, leaving Grey North and South. Huron Centre also goes—it seems to be tough sledding for the centres. East Middlesex is taken in by the North and West (and the London city ridings). Simcoe formerly boasted four rural seats in the Legislature, but now will have only three, the South and West Simcoes being amalgamated as Southwest. Wellington's three ridings become two—Northeast and South, instead of East, South and West. Durham, Northumberland and Norfolk, which formerly had each two seats in the House, are reduced to on each. Lennox becomes merged with Frontenac.

Changes to City Names.

"Brantford" rises out of the former two Brant county seats and they are now named "Brantford" and "Brant County." There will also be "Peterborough City" and "Peterborough County" instead of Peterborough East and West.

As revised, the Ontario provincial electoral districts for the election will be listed as follows:

Addington, Algoma.

Brant County, Brantford, Brockville, Bruce North, Bruce South.

Carleton, Cochrane North, Cochrane South.

Dufferin, Dundas, Durham.

Elgin East, Elgin West, Essex North, Essex South.

Fort William, Frontenac-Lennox.

Glengarry, Grenville, Grey North, Grey South.

Haldimand, Halton, Hamilton Centre, Hamilton East, Hamilton West, Hastings North, Hastings East, Hastings West, Huron North, Huron South.

Kent East, Kent West, Kenora, Kingston.

Lambton East, Lambton West, Lanark North, Lanark South, Leeds, Lincoln, London North, London South.

Manitoulin, Middlesex North, Middlesex West, Muskoka.

Niagara Falls, Nipissing, Norfolk, Northumberland.

Ontario North, Ontario South, Ottawa East, Ottawa North, Ottawa South, Oxford North, Oxford South.

Parry Sound, Peel, Perth North, Perth South, Peterborough City, Peterborough County, Port Arthur, Prescott, Prince Edward.

Rainy River, Renfrew North, Renfrew South, Russell.

St. Catharines, Sault Ste Marie, Simcoe Centre, Simcoe East, Simcoe Southwest, Stormont, Sturgeon Falls, Sudbury.

Victoria North, Victoria South.

Waterloo North, Waterloo South, Welland, Wellington Northeast, Wellington South, Wentworth North, Wentworth South, Windsor East, Windsor West.

York East, York North, York South, York West.

When Corns Talk!

The least sign of rain, or a touch of dampness in the air, and corns begin to talk! A piercing cry of agony shoots through your toe. Oh ! ! ! The hurt of it And soon your toe is red and inflamed and burning with pain; so tender you cannot bear to touch it. Then is the moment to plunge your foot into a soothing Radox foot-bath and get that corn out root and all, painlessly. You will feel the pain and soreness being drawn out.

How Radox Removes Corns.

When you put your feet into a foot-bath containing Radox, the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn and the dead skin (of the corn) combines with the Radox Bath Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This dissolves in the water and so loosens the corn that it can be lifted out bodily.

The Radox Bath Salt does not affect the living skin. It is only the dead skin—the corn—which it dissolves. If one bath does not do this a second bath next day will do it.

A Radox user writes:—

"After a bath in Radox . . . to my intense astonishment the corn had disappeared, and all that remained was a tiny hole from which the corn had evidently come out — probably when rubbing down with the bath towel."

On your way home tonight, buy a package of Radox Bath Salts at the druggist's 60c. Half pound Pink package

ONE KNOWN DEAD IN BLOCK FIRE

Explosion Which Wrecked Five Stores in London Business Section.

MANY INJURED

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—One known dead, three still in building ruins, three in hospital and an unknown number suffering from cuts by glass is the situation of an explosion and fire which wrecked five stores on Dundas Street about 7 o'clock last night. It is feared that the three in the wreckage may not be rescued alive and even if they are, their chances of living are considered small.

Mrs. Crawford, mother of the proprietors of Crawford Piano Company, is reported dead. Her body is believed to be in the basement of the building. Mrs. Fred Mirrell has been taken from the ruins and is in hospital. Leg amputation necessary; life despaired of. Her sisters, Minnie and Mary Fantana, employees of Smart Set Beauty Parlors, and a William White are still in the ruins; thought to be alive. Two girls who were in an automobile wrecked when the front of the building was blown out are in hospital; names not yet made public. Several passengers in street car damaged by the explosion were cut by flying glass. Places destroyed: Crawford Piano Company sales room and living apartments above; White Automobile and Radio Supply store; Merrell barber supply store; Smart Set Beauty Parlors. Damaged: My Ladies Hat Shop; Famous Shoe Repair; Chinese Laundry—all alongside fire, and Auburn Sales and Reliance Garage across the street, all front windows blown in. Known injured but not serious; Hume Depotie, L. Kaufmann. Depotie was in the beauty shop when the explosion occurred in Crawford Piano Company. He was cut by glass and hurt trying to rescue one of the Fontana girls. Kaufmann was blown through the back window of his store but not badly hurt.

LAKEFIELD BOY WINS ELECTION

Norman Lemay To Represent This District in Boys' Parliament.

MAJORITY OF 20.

The election for a member to represent Peterborough district in the sixth Ontario Older Boys' Parliament was held on Saturday and Sunday. Peterborough district includes Peterborough city, Lakefield and Warsaw, and those entitled to vote are the Tuxis Squares and organized classes between the ages of 12 and 21. Two candidates were in the field: Adam Sands, of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, and Norman Lemay of Regent Street United Church, Lakefield. The result of the voting was as follows: Lemay 164, Sands 144. Mr. Lemay will have the opportunity of representing Peterborough district in the next Boys' Parliament which meets in Toronto the week of Dec. 25th. Mr. Burrows acted as returning officer for this district to the satisfaction of all concerned.

REPUBLICAN MAJ. IN SENATE ASSURED

Latest Reports Show Gould With Majority of Over 50,000.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Retention of Republican control of the United States' Senate was assured by the election yesterday of Arthur R. Gould, Republican, by a majority of approximately 50,000 over Fulton J. Redman, Democrat, as senator from Maine. He will complete the term of the late Senator Bert M. Fernald, expiring in 1931.

With only 61 precincts missing and all the cities heard from the vote was: Gould 77,462, Redman 30,786.

Rub It On At Bed Time

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

Gillespie's Last Appeal to the Electors

Peterborough, November 30th, 1926.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH CITY ELECTORAL DISTRICT:—

Ladies and Gentlemen.—On the eve of one of the most important elections our Province has ever been engaged in, I am appealing for your support on the two issues which Premier Ferguson himself has placed before the electorate and forced them to make a decision on.

First.—Are the people of Ontario going to submit to a form of government by a dictator in the person of G. Howard Ferguson, or do they want democratic and responsible government by the will of the people. Mr. Ferguson not only aims to be the dictator for the Province, but dictates to the Conservative party what its policy shall be without submission to a party convention. There has been no mandate from the Conservative party to G. Howard Ferguson to project his liquor policy into Provincial affairs.

Then there is the issue of whether Ontario is going to change its present temperance policy for something Mr. Ferguson calls Government Control, the form of which he has not yet settled in his own mind, and which indefinite policy has already been the subject of so many changes and alterations during the past month as to make the public, including many members of the Conservative party, very skeptical of his ability to handle the matter in an efficient manner.

Your vote tomorrow is one of the most important you have ever given, and I would suggest to every elector, old and young, both men and women, to think twice before casting their vote for a change that everyone knows means a great increase in the facilities for securing intoxicating liquors, with a consequent increase in its consumption. Would this condition improve any home, any business or production in any factory?

If I am elected I will do my utmost to represent the citizens of this riding; giving my best services to all of them and to the Province generally.

Again, before casting your vote, first think what it would mean to again have access to intoxicating liquor through the greatly increased facilities proposed by Mr. Ferguson.

Is your vote to be Wet or Dry?

Yours very truly

G. A. GILLESPIE

MANY SPEAKERS SUPPORT COOKE

The Conservative Candidate Holds Big Meeting at Marmora Hall.

TRUE TEMPERANCE.

MARMORA, Nov. 30. — Accommodation at Marmora Town Hall was tried to the uttermost on Monday evening on the occasion of the political gathering held in the Hon. J. R. Cooke's interest and the galaxy of speakers was so strong that several could not be called upon through lack of time, the meeting lasting, as it did, some three and a half hours. Marmora community band and Deloro string quartette furnished pleasing selections, in addition to which Mrs. F. S. Pearce gave a much appreciated solo.

W. S. Martin.

Warden G. B. Airhart took the chair, and with a few introductory remarks, called upon W. S. Martin of Stirling, a veteran temperance man, for the opening speech. This gentleman told of the qualifications which fitted the candidate for the various positions he had occupied in public life, and stressed the fact that Hon. J. R. Cooke was a temperance man in the true sense of the word. He defied any present to say he had not been faithful to Liberals as well as to Conservatives. The one thing he would have the audience to take into consideration was that it was a compaign of misrepresentation.

Dr. A. T. Embury.

Dr. A. T. Embury, M.P., the next speaker, said he was struck with the number of temperance men on the platform. Mr. Cooke had behind him the leading temperance men. Whether temperance men or not, they were not looking for an excuse to vote for Hon. Cooke but for the privilege. Hon. Mr. Cooke had the same hold on Hastings County that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had on Quebec. The men who brought out Mr. Sharpe were not representative of the temperance party at its best. They were really a bunch of disgruntled and disappointed Conservatives of the village of Madoc. They did an incalculable wrong. They got him to accept, then stepped aside and let him swim for himself.

Another point he would bring up. "Suppose the Ferguson Government were defeated, what is the next Government to be? Nobody knows." He quoted Mr. Drury as saying that the leader of the new Government would be a leader chosen by the candidates elected. No doubt Mr. Raney would be that leader. The O.T.A. is going to be erased sooner or later from the statute books. It has not been enforced, is not being enforced, and never will be. It would take more than a regiment of soldiers to turn the flowing tide of liquor away from the public.

S. B. Rollins.

S. B. Rollins, Reece of Tweed, who followed, said he was greatly in sympathy with the proposed amendments to the O.T.A. He had voted for temperance ever since he was able and did not begrudge such votes. The O.T.A. was not doing the good for which it was intended. Speaking of the raising of his family, he declared he would rather raise his children under law-makers than under law-breakers.

T. Montgomery, ex-Reeve of Hastings County, testified of his confidence in Hon. J. R. Cooke.

W. D. Black, M.P.P.-Elect

The next speaker was W. D. Black, M.P.P.-elect for Addington, who was introduced as Mr. Cooke's half brother. He spoke for half an hour, in which he said, "No man in the Legislature holds the esteem of the whole House to the extent Mr. Cooke does." It was the greatest surprise to him when he heard that Mr. Cooke had opposition. It eased him considerably, however, when he learnt that the candidate was an imported one.

He declared that the Ferguson Government had in it the most capable ministers and was the most honest, straightforward, and businesslike government since Confederation. Today Ontario had been brought by them within sight of a balanced budget, something that had not existed since before the days of Confederation.

Having dealt with the operations of that Government, he then turned to the present issue. In this connection he remarked the doctors' prescriptions are the biggest farce ever put over on civilized people." The handling of permits under proposed amendments was then explained by the speaker. He also hoped other problems outside of the liquor question would not be lost sight of under the smoke screen. In conclusion he expressed the hope that Hon. J. R. Cooke would have a bigger majority than obtained in his last contest.

Hon. J. R. Cooke

Hon. J. R. Cooke in masterly style urged his claims as a candidate, speaking first of those who had preceded him as representatives of the constituency. Their record he mentioned would not be soiled by any act of his. He was human enough to hope that the same fate would befall Mr. Sharpe as had befallen the Rev. Mr. McGinnis, his last opponent.

He prefaced explanations of the amendments to the O.T.A. by saying that it was never designed to cope with the present situation It is a crime, he vigorously asserted that State affairs should have to be submerged under this emotional appeal. Is the O.T.A. not more safe with those who created it than with those who destroyed the creator, as they did in 1919. He had never heard a more partisan speech in his life than that uttered on nominational day by the Rev. Mr. Stewart. He questioned whether Mr. Sharpe's influence would count for much after Wednesday. In confidence he appealed to them because the policies advocated by the Conservative party were best in the interests of the people.

C. B. McGuire

C. B. McGuire, Reeve of Stirling, next spoke, pointing out that the amendments to the O.T.A. were preferable to what they found in the present act.

W. E. Tummon, M.P. for South Hastings, was the last invited speaker of the evening. He testified to one qualification of Mr. Cooke. There was no better temperance man in the whole of Ontario. He could not understand what the temperance cause could hope to gain in defeating men like the Hon. J. R. Cooke. The real question in this election was, what is going to be the best way to handle this difficult problem? He scored the present system of permits for home brewing whereby every fifth family in Ontario could obtain one. He could face the future for his family with more assurance with Government Control in effect than with bootlegger control.

The chairman, having briefly spoken on Mr. Cooke's election as Hydro Commissioner, three cheers were lustily given for Hon. J. R. Cooke, and the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

O.T.A. SUPPORTERS RECEIVE RETURNS

Will Have Wire Into Reid Street Hall Election Night.

The great interest being taken by supporters of the O.T.A. in Peterborough in the results of Wednesday's Provincial election is shown by the fact that they have arranged to receive election returns in the Reid Street Sunday School Hall near Charlotte Street on Wednesday night. The Canadian National Telegraphs will supply frequent reports on the results in other constituencies together with half hour summaries. In other years the Prohibition headquarters have been crowded and it is expected that this year an even larger number than usual will turn out.

WOMEN'S PAGE

SOCIETY

The engagement is announced of Miss Aleen Hughes, the daughter of the late Sir Sam Hughes and of Lady Hughes of Lindsay, to Mr. James F. Clarke of Boston, son of the late Mr. Eliot Clarke and grandson of the Rev. James Freeman Clarke.

Mrs. Walter Byers, well-known local soprano singer, was guest soloist at the Baptist Temple in Windsor on Sunday last.

Dr. E. M. Crough attended the funeral in Ennismore to-day of his uncle, the late John J. Kennedy, formerly of Chicago.

Miss Helen Thompson spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Mrs. Arthur L. Amys, Gilmour Street, has returned from a fortnight's visit in Preston and Toronto.

Friends of Miss E. MacVannel, who has been ill in Nicholls Hospital, will be pleased to learn that she has recovered sufficiently to be able to return to her home this week.

Last evening a number of the friends of Miss Jean Wilgar, whose marriage takes place to-morrow, gathered at her home on Homewood Avenue and presented her with a surprise apron shower.

Mrs. George Nicholls, Murray Street, has gone to Toronto to spend some weeks with friends there.

Mr. W. H. Buller, King Street, was called to Toronto yesterday owing to the serious illness of his brother, John Buller.

Mrs. George S. McCartney, 474 Rogers Street, leaves on Friday to spend the winter in California.

Rev. David Wren, M.A., B.D., pastor of Trinity Church, was in Toronto over the week-end, conducting services at the Glebe Road United Church, whose pastor, Rev. Capt. T. D. Robb, was in charge of services at Trinity here, in connection with the celebration of the forty-fourth anniversary of the Sunday School.

A number of Peterboro people, "listening in" over the radio last evening, had the pleasure of hearing one of the city's young lady musicians, Miss Jean Bryce, who was acting as accompanist for an excellent programme broadcasted from CKCX, International Bible Students' Association, Toronto. The reception was exceptionally good, and the different numbers were all well received. Miss Bryce, who has been in Toronto since September last, and is a member of the teaching staff of the Rosedale Whitney School, will be heard again on different programmes throughout the winter.

Captain G. A. H. Trudeau, district weapon training officer of Military District No. 3, was in the city yesterday conducting examinations at the Provincial School of Machine Guns.

Miss Margaret Cameron, Gilmour Street, entertained a number of her friends at the tea hour on Saturday for Miss Jean Cormack, her guest.

Mrs. Sedgewick of Toronto is in the city to-day for the funeral of her sister, the late Mrs. Stephen Coffey, Pearl Avenue.

Mrs. F. D. Kerr and Miss E. Anderson spent yesterday in Toronto.

St. Andrew's Catheoral, Church of England, Singapore, India, was the scene of an interesting wedding yesterday, when Kathleen, daughter of the late Donald Walton Macdonald of Edmonton and Mrs. Macdonald of Edmonton and Cobourg, was married to Le Joukheer Adrian Roell, son of Le Jonkheer Pierre Jean Roell and Wilhelmina Baroness van Soelzelar of Utrecht, Suest, Holland. The bride, whose family has lived in Cobourg for five generations, is great-grandchild of the late John Collard Field, of Somersetshire, England, and great-great-granddaughter of the Hon. Walter Boswell of the Royal Navy, who gave Cobourg its name. The groom belongs to a distinguished family of the Dutch nobility. Archdeacon Sevindell officiated. Several members of the groom's family have been closely associated with the Royal House of Holland. An aunt, no longer living, was first lady-in-waiting to the Queen of Holland, while the wife of the groom's cousin, Count Lynden, formerly Governor of the Province of Utrecht, is now first lady-in-waiting to Queen Wilhelmina. An uncle, Baron Van Wassenaer Van Catwyck of The Hague, is a member of the Dutch Senate. Another uncle, Baron Van Boetzelaer, is a member of the Lower House. The bride, on her father's side, is a great great-granddaughter of the Hon. Walter Boswell of the Royal Navy, whose daughter married Captain Archibald Macdonald of H.M. 34th Regiment, who came out from Scotland after the Napoleonic war and settled in Cobourg. On her mother's side, the bride is a member of the fourth generation of the family to live in Cobourg. The late Hon. Senator William Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg, was her grandfather. By reason of her own parentage, it will be seen that the bride is a most representative Canadian to take part in an international marriage. Her mother, Mrs. Macdonald, lives at "Sunnyside," Cobourg. The groom's sister, who accompanied the bride to India, was bridesmaid. They will live at Dolok Ilir, near Medan, in Sumatra, Dutch East Indies, where the groom is an assistant manager of a large Dutch rubber and tea planation.—Toronto Globe. The bride is a niece of F. D. Kerr, K.C., of this city.

ADVENT SUNDAY

Canon F. W. Armstrong Officiates at Services in St. Paul's.

MARMORA, Nov. 30.—Canon F. W. Armstrong, officiating clergyman at St. Paul's on Advent Sunday, read a letter to the congregation, addressed by the Bishop of Ontario to the church wardens, wherein it was stated that the Rev. A. B. Caldwell of Midland had accepted the living of Marmora. Rev. Caldwell, according to present plans, will arrive in the parish on December 14th, his appointment dating from the following day. He will officiate for the first time on December 19th, the services until then being continued by Canon Armstrong.

Prior to his Advent sermon on "The end of all things is at hand," Canon Armstrong addressed words of commendation and counsel to the A.Y.P.A. and choir, the former organization being present at the sevvice for corporate Communion.

Children's Colds

Are quickly, pleasantly relieved by Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

If children's colds are got rid of promptly there will be less tendency to pneumonia and consumption in later life. It is the neglected, hanging-on cold that weakens the lungs and develops into serious trouble.

No treatment for coughs and colds was ever so popular with the children as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It is so pleasant to the taste, so delightfully soothing and healing and affords relief so quickly that children soon turn to it instinctively when choked up with a cold or annoyed by coughing.

It is mother's favorite treatment for croup and bronchitis, for she knows it will bring relief when the midnight coughing spasms set in. It is wise to always have a bottle at hand for prompt use in emergency.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

THE UNFORGIVABLE SIN

We all seem to have a pet "unforgivable sin." But it varies quite considerably amongst different people. Some men, for instance, can forgive a wife anything except bobbing her hair!

But that kind of man obviously has a super-virtuous wife in other respects!

During the progress of the trial of Aimee Semple McPherson in Los Angeles, during which accusations were falling thick and fast about the evangelist's head, her case was the main topic of conversation wherever two or three were gathered together.

It was obvious that she was either an innocent woman grievously persecuted, or peculiarly guilty of a variety of offences.

"I could forgive her anything but the way she gets the money out of that poor congregation of hers," would say one.

"I could forgive her anything but the kidnapping story," another would declare.

"I could forgive her anything but that 'Miss X. episode'."

"I could forgive her anything but her wild attacks on the prosecuting attorney's office."

"I could frogive her anything but the cheap melodrama she injects into her church services."

"I could forgive her anything but the money she spends on herself and her clothes."

"I could forgive her anything but lying."

"I could forgive her anything but pretending she can heal the sick."

And so on and so forth. These discussions were interesting as showing what many people stood ready to "forgive" and what they considered absolutely "unforgivable."

I have an ardent Prohibitionist friend who told me she could forgive her son anything but taking a drink of liquor. She said she would rather see him dead than see him take a glass of whisky.

I know numerous people who consider gambling, dancing, going to shows, smoking as the "unforgivable sins."

One man told me quite seriously that he could forgive anything but disloyalty and ingratitude. Others consider cowardice the unforgivable sin. Many wives have told me they could forgive their husbands anything but unfaithfulness. Others again insist that they could forgive anything but deceitfulness.

One naughty cynic assured me he could forgive everything but boredom—but he himself can be quite a bore on this subject—and another said he could forgive a woman anything but fat ankles.

It seems evident that we are all prepared to be magnificently broadminded and forgiving—except for one stern reservation. Which would imply that we all have our pet commandment that must positively be obeyed whatever happens to the other nine. All the same, in a general way, it is safer to keep the whole ten. We have no way of knowing which, if any of them, is God's pet "unforgivable sin."

HOROSCOPE

'The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1926

This is read by astrologers as rather an uncertain day, for good and bad aspects conflict.

It is a rule believed to be especially good for making financial plans for the coming winter. An auspicious time to settle financial matters.

Again the stars presage extreme activity and much good fortune for writers of every class. The world is to furnish many real dramas, it is prophesied.

Saturn smiles on this part of the globe to-day, giving good promise to all who draw sustenance from the earth. Farmers may be extraordinarily fortunate.

Real estate continues under the best aspects and there will be tremendous rises in value in many cities, especially those of the West.

Neptune is in benefic aspect and the seers prophesy that there will be extraordinary interest in all that pertains to the sea.

Good luck appears to be indicated for those who dwell near the ocean. Fish are to attract attention and to be studied, it is prognosticated.

Oil interests are subject to good planetary influences that foreshadow new discoveries and new uses.

There is a sign to-day threatening to the peace of the world. Much verbal warfare which is very dangerous is forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a vexatious year, but tey should make no changes.

Children born on this day me be high-strung and irritable. These subjects of Sagittarius often travel a great deal.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The turquoise, today's talismanic gem, was believed by the ancients to bring great good fortune on this date to all who were in love. It was also believed to bring happiness to all young people who wore it.

The diamond is today's natal gem. Aside from its significance as an emblem of plighted troth, it has the power to protect those who wear it from sudden death or disease or personal misfortune.

Green is today's color. It signifies change, wherein discouragement and defeat are cast aside to make way for radiant hope and achievement.

The fragrant tea rose is a fortunate flower today. It indicates a happy home life and perfect trust.

GIRL GAINS 7 POUNDS, MAKES MAN HAPPY

"My daughter had constipation, gas on the stomach and a very poor appetite. Since taking Adlerika, she has gained 7 pounds and her appetite is good."—H. F. Newman.

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is of the the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Unlike most medicine, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL cleansing and bringing out old poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, like occasional constipation, GAS bloating indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful always brings relief.

Doctors Praise Adlerika

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacterial."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. F. M. P. (name withheld by request): I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

DRESS

Cape of rose chiffon velvet with gathered stand-up collar and silk fringe at hem. The cape is lined with crepe de chine.

It is sometimes possible to solve the problem of an evening wrap by making it at home. To be sure evening wraps are very gorgeous nowadays and the materials cost quite a bit—but not so much as a wrap made of the same fine fabrics, and if it is a question of going without the evening wrap or making it yourself, then decidedly make it yourself. For if you do not attempt a complicated style of wrap it is not difficult.

A useful type of evening wrap may be made from heavy black satin lined with a fine quality of heavy cloth or flannel in some soft shade of blue or old rose. Choose a cloth so fine and soft that it looks like duvetyn, but be sure it is wool so that it will provide ample warmth and do away with the need of an interlining. The easiest sort of collar for the home-made evening wrap is of the sort shown in the sketch, a large shirred collar that gives warmth about the neck and forms a becoming frame to the face. Fringe—deep, wide fringe—gives a good finish to the hem of the cape. This not difficult to insert between the outer material and the lining when it is put together. But remember that the lining must be bright and attractive. Brightly shaded linings are used on some of the metal-cloth evening wraps, and there is no reason why you should not attempt a metal-cloth wrap. These may be in cape or coat formation.

If you like you may have a fur collar on your home-made coat or a lovely collar of drooping ostrich feathers. These things, however, bring up the price of the coat rather alarmingly, so it is perhaps best to content yourself with the shirred velvet or satin collar.

The mother with young daughters just starting out on their social careers finds the problem of evening wraps a rather staggering one nowadays. Once it seemed enough to provide them with pretty dance frocks for their evening parties. Often they managed well enough wearing their day-time coat by way of a wrap or felt themselves lucky to be allowed to borrow an evening cape from the mother or indulgent aunt But now every girl who goes to parties at all longs for an evening cape of her own—and sometimes she can satisfy that longing by making it.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

SIGNS OF DELIGHT

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

A number of years ago someone conceived the idea of collecting what he called "signs of delight." For example, he found that Mr. Burns had a coal distributing company, tht Dr. Plaine was a dentist and so on. To give a new twist to the phrase, "signs of delight" it is only necessary to apply the phrase to those indications of good health that indicate good nutrition.

What are the signs of delight that mean a child is well nourished?

Weight is the most familiar and because it is the most obvious it often receives undue emphasis. It is more important for the average mother or guardian to be trained in looking for signs of delight in the eyes, teeth, skin, muscles, feet, hair and the general appearance.

Signs of perfect all round health will give the best possible guide for estimating the signs of complete nutrition.

What about the eyes of a healthy and well nourished child. They should have a very clear look and the child should be able to focus his gaze directly on whatever he is looking at. Moreover, both eyes should move in unison. If there is indication of strain, many mothers are prepared to have this remedied, but without realizing the extent of possible damage which may be done by this same strain.

Again unknown to either child or mother the attack of indigestion may have been caused by eyestrain.

In examining the teeth, it is once more a good plan to look beyond the obvious. It is the exceptional individual who does not know that clean teeth are necessary for health and nutrition. The shape and the manner in which the teeth come together have much to do with health of the mouth as well as the entire body. Unless the grinding surfaces are properly adjusted, mastication will be imperfect and everybody knows what happens then!

Learn to know whether or not the children's skin is healthy. Clear and smooth and slightly moist—this is the way one physician sums up the signs of a healthy skin. If there is a serious condition of under-nourishment such as exists in tuberculosis or rickets, the skin will be dry and there may possibly be eruptions.

Passing rapidly over the other signs of delight for which we must search, we shall find in a healthy child that the muscles are firm, that the feet have firm arches, that the hair is lustrous and has "life."

The general appearance, of course, depends upon whether or not the youngster measures up properly in the above points. So let us train ourselves to look for these signs of delight as being indications of complete nourishment. But let us not forget one very important fact. If we allow ourselves to dwell too much at length on this, we shall bore the children to tears. We shall make them self-conscious and shall defeat our own purpose. The answer to this problem is easy. Let us keep our minds fixed on the advantages to be derived from this condition of complete nourishment and good health so as to imbue the children with an eagerness for health and the joys to be found thereby.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

If you have done much knitting or other worsted work the chances are that stowed away somewhere among your possessions you have odd pieces of yarn that you have saved with the thought that they may some time be of use. If you have knitted sweaters or other wearing apparel the chances are that you have saved left-over yarn with the thought that it will some time be needed for mending worn or raveled places. There are ways of using up these odds and ends now that might make it possible for you to make some little Christmas presents at small expense.

Little bouquets of woolen flowers are considered very smart in Paris and are regarded as the most appropriate sort of nosegays for the jacket of the dinner suit that some women don for informal dinner wear in place of the evening frock. According to one authority "their colors are soft and delicate, with a slightly faded appearance appropriate to the caprice which brought them into being." If you are clever in such matters you may easily devise a way of making some of your soft colored worsteds into such flowers. If you want to make your task easier just buy one bouquet of woolen flowers and use this as a model for making others, which will be very useful when time comes to pack your Christmas packages.

Woolen embroidery is used on some of the new frocks—both of silk and of cloth—and you might use some of your yarns to decorate a new frock or to give a touch of color to an old frock that you have renovated. One dressmaker covers buttons with over-stitching of a number of different colored wools. A simple twill suit of dark color had such buttons down the front and at the ends of the sleeves.

If you want to make some child you know happy make a rag doll for Christmas and use some yellow or brown wool to make the hair. This should be made into a sort of tassel and then attached to the middle of the rag doll's head, after which it may be brought down over the head, trimmed into becoming contour and then stitched down over the forehead and the nape of the neck. If you like you may leave long ends at the back and braid them into a pig-tail.

POPULAR MONTREAL MATRON RECOVERS FROM LONG ILLNESS

Montreal Woman Tells How She Regained Health — Troubles Caused by Nervousness, and Stomach Disorders Quickly Relieved — Says Tanlac Deserves All Credit.

Thousands of men and women suffering from a generally run-down condition will get a message of hope and cheer from the experience of Mme. Joseph Lefort, 468 Chambly street, Montreal, whose quick recovery from a long, serious illness surprised her closest friends. If you never feel quite up to the mark, if you are fagged out, you'll be glad to know about Tanlac and what it did for Mme. Lefort. Here is her story.

"About two months ago, I realized that my condition was far from good. I had spells in which I would tremble all over, and I would feel as if my head would burst I suffered from severe headaches and would be very sick at my stomach. I was very nervous and unable to sleep.

"I was advised to take Tanlac and the first bottle brought such great relief that I have kept on taking it. I am now on my fourth bottle and feel like my old self once more. Dizzy spells and headaches have disappeared, nerves are in better shape and I get up in the morning feeling rested and refreshed. I not only enjoy my meals but go about the housework with vim and energy. Because Tanlac has done so much for me, I take pleasure in recommending it to all."

Mme. Lefort is only one of thousands who have found happy relief from pain and gained new strength by taking Tanlac. Why not heed their advice. Keep well, keep youth and health—take Tanlac. Get your first bottle of Tanlac from your druggist today and see how much it will help you.

THE SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON

LIQUOR QUESTION PRINCIPAL ISSUE IN ONTARIO VOTE

Nominally Election Being Held To Choose Seventeenth Legislature.

HOT CAMPAIGN.

Parties, Clubs and Families Divided on the Matter.

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—Ontario will go to the polls tomorrow. Nominally it is to elect the Seventeenth Provincial Legislature. The big question in the minds of the electorate, however, is whether the ten-year-old prohibitory legislation, known as the Ontario Temperance Act, shall remain in the statute books or be superseded by a measure providing for the sale of liquor under control of a Government Commission.

The Government Control proposal is the main plank of the platform of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of the Province since 1923. Mr. Ferguson has declared that the record of the Ontario Temperance Act after a fair trial under three governments, indicates that it is not enforceable.

The Ferguson Conservative Government stakes its continuance in office on the appeal to the people on this question, submitting the Government Control policy as an alternative to the present law.

For all of the 112 seats in the Legislature, with one exception, there are Conservative candidates pledged to support the Government.

Arrayed in opposition against the Conservative or Government candidates are nominees of Liberal, Progressive, and Labor parties, together with representatives of such groups as Liberal-Progressive, Independent-Conservative, and Prohibitionist. W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party and W. E. Raney, leader of the Progressives and former Provincial Attorney-General, have declared for the strengthening and more drastic enforement of the Ontario Temperance Act. Another former Attorney-General, W. F. Nickle, who resigned from the Ferguson Government in October last, in protest against the proposed Government Control policy, is a candidate of the Prohibition - Conservative forces in Kingston.

The election tomorrow will be the culmination of a fiery campaign of six weeks. The announcement on October 18 of the dissolution of the last House, together with the Government's policy of a change in the liquor laws, plunged the Province into a melting pot of political discussion. Political parties, clubs, and in some cases families were sharply divided on the question.

The following was the standing by parties of the last Ontario Legislature at dissolution in October:

Conservative	76
Liberal	11
United Farmer	12
Independent	2

There were ten vacant seats.

In Ontario the vote extends, subject to various conditions of residence and registration, to all men and women of 21 years of age and over. The polls will be open tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

REQUEST MADE CHILDREN'S AID

'The Only Monument I Want,' He Writes in Request.

John Edgar, Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, received the following communication from Hall, Hall and Stevenson, solicitors to the late Henry Rush:

"The late Henry Rush, Esquire, requested that his wife would immediately after his death, pay certain amounts to the organizations in the city in which he was deeply interested.

"In carrying out such, Mrs. Rush asked us to write you, sending you the amount which the late Mr. Rush desired should be paid to the Children's Aid Society, and we accordingly enclose her cheque for $100, which was the amount so designated.

"We cannot do better in expressing Mr. Rush's wishes in the matter than to quote from his request, which ends with the words, 'This is the only monument I want.'"

AMERICANS JOIN FLEET AT HANKOW

War Vessels Preparing To Protect Foreigners From Violence.

LONDON, Nov. 30. — (United News.)—Two American destroyers have left Shanghai to join the Allied fleet of British, Japanese and American vessels preparing to protect foreigners in the event of an anti-foreign outbreak at Hankow, according to a Shanghai despatch to the Daily Mail.

There are 400 foreigners in Hankow, 200 of whom are British The others are Americans, French, Germans and Japanese. The nationalist movement there has been augmented by Communist activities and a strike of Chinese maritime workers has caused the immediate crisis. British residents of Hankow appealed to the Consular officials there several days ago, asking that ships be in readiness for them in case of emergency. Two hundred British marines will be sent from Shanghai to Hankow immediately.

Wheat Prices Rally On News From Argentine

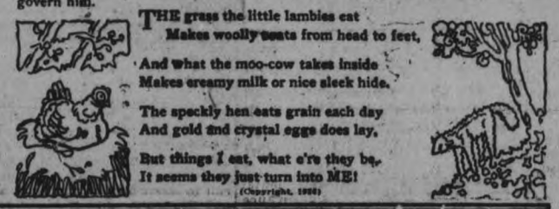
CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.) — Wet weather in Argentina, whereas dry weather is required, rallied wheat prices today from downturns at the start. Early declines were associated with Liverpool reports of free offerings of wheat both from Canada and Argentina

Opening 5-8 cents off to 1 1-8 cents up, wheat steadied at about yesterday's closing figures. Corn, oats, and provisions developed firmness also, corn starting at 1 1-4 cents lower to an equal advance and later showing slight gains all around.

Magic

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

IF one but paused to consider the wonders of his digestive tract he might treat it with more respect. The trouble is that we seem to consider ourselves cast-iron, or not at all, until something goes wrong in our mechanism and then, oh, how we wish we had been a little more considerate. We can't permit the children to eat anything and everything just any time without having them reap the harvest of maltreatment sooner or later. You may run your car without proper lubrication and get along fine for a while. Then some day you'll have trouble. In the case of your car you probably knew better, but when a child follows impulses of irregular eating it isn't so much his fault as the grown-ups who should govern him.



THE grass the little lambies eat
Makes woolly coats from head to feet,

And what the moo-cow takes inside
Makes creamy milk or nice sleek hide.

The speckly hen eats grain each day
And gold and crystal eggs does lay,

But things I eat, what e'er they be,
It seems they just turn into ME!

LOSS TO BOARD IS EXPRESSED

Central Charity Board Passes Resolution on Death of H. Rush.

WAS CHAIRMAN.

The Central Charity Board of this city met last night and passed the following resolution in the loss the Board has sustained in the death of the late Harry Rush, who for over 22 years was chairman of the Board.

Moved by H. C. Stabler and seconded by F. W. Miller:

That this Central Charity Board of the City of Peterborough expresses its sense of the great loss it has sustained through the death of Mr. Henry Rush, its chairman, who had been a member of this Board over twenty-five years, and for over twenty-two years occupied the position of chairman. Mr. Rush was very regular in his attendance at the meetings of the Board and zealous in the performance of his duties as chairman during his long term of office, an office for which his benevolent disposition and carefulness eminently fitted him. The members of the Board have enjoyed his fellowship, as well as his advice, at the meetings, and join with the whole community in mourning his death. To Mrs. Rush and the other members of his family we tender our sincerest sympathy.

Voice Of The People.

FROM ROSENEATH.

Nov. 29th, 1926.

Editor the Peterboro' Examiner:

Dear Sir,—If this letter should reach you in time, I sincerely trust you will be able to find space in the Tuesday's issue of your paper for the following item of news which seems to us rather unique

A temperance meeting was held in the town hall of Roseneath, Ont., on the evening of Nov. 27th, 1926, in the interests of the maintenance of the O.T.A. There were four speakers who addressed the meeting, including Mr. George Kingston, B.A., editor of the Campbellford Herald, and all four speakers were Conservatives, who declared they were not going to support the Ferguson policy of government control There were a number of other Conservatives in the audience who gave expression to the same resolution. Does not this speak well, for at least a class, in the Conservative party.

Faithfully,
J. N. LOVELACE.

RAILWAY HEADS MEET WORKERS

Holding Conference on Demands of Men This Afternoon.

TO AVOID STRIKE.

MONTREAL, November 30. Canadian Press. — The executives of the Canadian railways and the representatives of the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, will come together again to discuss the situation arising out of the ballot in which the men voted in favor of a strike if their demands for six per cent. increase in wage rates are not met. A meeting between the two bodies concerned will be held at 2.30 this afternoon in the general offices of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The railways will be represented by Sir Henry W. Thornton, K.B.E., chairman of the Canadian National Railways, and E. W. Beatty, K. C., president of the Canadian Pacific, while S. N. Berry, senior vice-president of the O.R.C., and his colleagues, will represent the men.

FIRE IN ROOF OF LOCAL PLANT

Hot Roofing Compound Cause of Blaze at Colonial Weaving.

A small fire broke out last night at about 5.45 on the roof of the Colonial Weaving Company plant on the corner of Rink and Rubidge Streets. Workmen had been repairing the roof with hot tar and pitch, and everything seemed to be all right when they quit work, but soon after a small blaze was noticed on the roof, which was burning the cornice and the facer boards. There was little damage done, as the firemen soon had the blaze under control.

Famous hockey Stars everywhere will wear the New C·C·M·'s

THE NEW C·C·M· SPECIAL

Here's our latest triumph—a hand-made skate to make Champions! Rocker blades to give pep and speed in quick turning and dodging. Here's a skate specially designed for brilliant, lightning hockey—a rocker blade with a semi-elliptic, specially reinforced tube. The blade is of Sheffield Chrome Nickel Steel, with flint-hard running edges and toughened core. Electrically welded, not rivetted. Velvet nickel finish. Price, seven dollars ($7.00). Be sure you see them!

THE NEW C·C·M· OLYMPIA EXTRA

And here's another rocker blade, with the new semi-elliptic tube—the Olympia Extra. Slightly lighter than last year's famous Olympia, but, nevertheless, of unusual strength. Hockey players who wore C·C·M· Olympia Skates last year will not hesitate to recommend this new C·C·M· Model at five dollars ($5.00) per pair. Same Sheffield Chrome Nickel Steel blade as the New Special.

If you play fast hockey, you need C·C·M· Skates. More C·C·M·'s are used by hockey players than all other makes combined. C·C·M· Dealers are showing these new rocker blade models. See them.

Anglicans Support O.T.A.

THE Toronto Anglican Diocesan Council for Social Service, appointed Rev. T. R. Summerhayes, Convenor of its sub-committee on Legislation and formerly an opponent of prohibition, to study the best methods of controlling the liquor traffic. After several years' investigation Rev. Mr. Summerhayes brought in a report strongly adverse to government control, and supporting prohibition as the best method of dealing with the traffic. The Diocesan Council left Mr. Summerhayes free to deal with the matter in such ways as he might deem best. Only brief extracts from the report can be given. Here are some:—

"PROS"

The benefits of the O.T.A. have been substantial, valuable and widespread, and are admitted by everyone, Mr. Ferguson included. They are briefly:—Reducing drunkenness by half, much less crime, degradation and misery, many drunkards reclaimed, decent hotels, happier homes, better fed and clothed children (the teachers of Ontario have repeatedly emphasized this), much more money spent in store goods, and in paying for homes and amusements or put into Savings Banks, much greater efficiency of labour and greater output, etc. 19 out of 25 Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States recently reported the same was the result there. It was also thought until lately the influence of the liquor trade upon Governments and politics had been eliminated.

"CONS"

But Prohibition has not altogether prohibited. Bootlegging has been rife (though the wild talk of "millions" is unsubstantiated and untrue), hotel keepers have frequently broken the law, some doctors (only 5 per cent. according to Legislature return) have abused their "Scrip" privilege, and hypocrisy on the part of the "patients" has developed, and, most important of all though least mentioned, a great number of people who wanted to drink liquor (quite morally lawful in moderation) have not been able to do so. There is not, therefore, either under the O.T.A. or under Government Control or License, any perfect Liquor System, and it is a matter of opinion under which System lies the balance of advantage.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL FAILS

Alberta—(the system endorsed by canon Cody, but turned down by Premier Ferguson)—Increase in drunkenness as follows:—Shortly after introduction of Government Control (with beer parlours) Chiefs of Police of Calgary, Edmonton and Lethbridge report increases in drunkenness from 85 per cent. to 111 per cent. Annual report of Liquor Commission for—1925—Drunkenness increased, but not so much as at first. Infractions of Government Control Act, 489 in 1924, 795 in 1925. Bootleggers, 294 in cities and 491 in country districts. Many permits had been cancelled, many placed on "Indian List," and it was found half of these had obtained liquor without permits, Liquor Controller Dinning said they had great trouble with "moonshine." (One reason for small decline in the increase of number of drunkenness convictions was often no arrest made unless "disorderly"; partly because no offence, party because rich paid fine and poor went to jail).

PROHIBITION IS BEST SYSTEM

Members of the Church of England may remember Prof. Michell's brilliant analysis of the Liquor Systems of the World in "The Bulletin" some years ago, and that his conclusion was that the only practicable ways of dealing with the Liquor questions are either a wide open system or prohibition. I am a convinced believer in that, and from an opponent of Prohibition have become its supporter; not because it is perfect (no Liquor System is) but because I think it has the balance of advantage. It is to be remembered that if the O.T.A. is scrapped, all the valuable and undisputed benefits gained under it will be lost (including the falling again into temptation of a number of drunkards now reformed under Prohibition); that from 5 to 15 million dollars annually will be diverted from trade into liquor; that there will be just as much law-breaking; and that, as Mr. Nickle has pointed out, Government Control cannot be completely enforced in Ontario.

NAME OFFICIALS OTTAWA GAME WITH VARSITY

DeCruchy Brothers to Handle the C.P.U. Fixture on Saturday.

SOME BLUES OUT

Kitchener O.U. Champions, Play R.M.C. at Kingston on Wednesday.

TORONTO, Nov. 30—It will be Varsity vs. Ottawa next Saturday at the stadium.

Arrangements for the semi-final C.R.U. senior game and also for the intermediate and junior national gridiron events were made on Saturday night at the meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union held at Hart House.

The delegates were: Canadian Union — Past President John DeGruchy, Toronto; President Major Stuart Forbes, Montreal; First Vice-President D. McCann, Ottawa; Secretary-Treasurer R. W. Hewitson, Toronto.

Ottawa—Dr. Sims and Charles Snelling.

U. of T.—T. A. Reed and Ronnie McPherson.

Next Saturday's Officials

After all financial details were settled the matter of officials was taken up and the following were named to act: Referee, Hal DeGruchy, Toronto; umpire, Reg. DeGruchy, Toronto; head linesman, Johnny McKelvey, Hamilton. These three acted in the Balmy Beach-Ottawa game a week ago, and were agreed upon by the clubs at the and again on Saturday.

The other officials selected were as follows: Penalty timers, D. Gill, Ottawa, and John DeGruchy, Toronto; timers, Harry Ackland, Ottawa, and Dr. John McCollum, Toronto; yardsticks Charles Snelling, Ottawa, and Major Storms, Toronto; touchline, to be appointed by the referee.

A conference between the officials and the coaches will be held next Saturday morning at University of Toronto at 10 o'clock.

After the details regarding the senior game were all completed the Canadian Union officials held a meeting to decide on play-offs for the intermediate and junior titles.

Kitchener vs. R.M.C.

It as decided that Kitchener, Ontario Union champions, should play at Kingston on Wednesday, December 1, against Royal Military College, Intercollegiate Union champions, in a ssudden-death game. The winner of that will play on their home grounds against Westwards Quebec Union champions, on Saturday, December 4. This also will be a sudden-death affair.

While the intermediate final was slated to be played in the east this season, it was decided, with the consent of the Westwards of Montreal that, in view of the better chance of good weather in Kitchener, that a change be made.

In the junior series, Montreal A.A.A., the Quebec champions, having been successful against University of Toronto, the Intercollegiate champions, on Saturday at Montreal, they will play the Ontario Union champions on the latter's grounds on Saturday, December 4, in a sudden-death game for the championship. The Ontario Union winner will not be known until Wednesday of this week.

Varsity Casualties

The blue and white forces were unlucky in victory inasmuch as three of the stand-bys of the team were injured so badly that their further anticipation in football this season at least is unlikely. Harry Bales, smart middle wing, had an ankle broken, while Frank Hutchinson, who started at snap back, dislocated his left arm, and Rykert, inside wing and manager, cracked a bone in his left wrist. With these three out of commission Varsity will be rather handicapped in the game with the Ottawa Senators. But the new intercollegiate champions are well supplied with spares and the National title-holders will have to be at their best to retain their laurels.

Joe Miller is still in Ottawa and he will be available for the battle with the students. The Senators have not been idle the past week or so but have been attending strictly to their knitting and if Joe Tubman is able to take his place on the back divison as is anticipated the U. of T. will not have a walk over by any means.

SARNIA WON

SARNIA, Nov. 30. — The Sarnia Collegiate seniors won the Wossa championship for third consecutive year when they turned back Kitchener's hopes 9-1 here Saturday, and won the round 25-3. Sarnia again showed their superiority over the Twin City's crew, and though the score was not as large as in Kitchener, the margin of play was about the same.

For Sarnia the work of Carter, the local kicking ace, was outstanding and his generous margin over Vaughan, the Kitchener centre half, was what turned the trick.

Back with Carter, Patterson caught faultlessly and well, Potter, Frayne and Teskey on the secondary, were tackling superbly. In the line every [illegible] in a good account of himself and it would be unfair to try to pick out the best.

For Kitchener, Schneider, Vaughn, Dunber and Haymann were good, while McKay also ran well. The plunging of the latter pair was outstanding, while Schneider too was good in this department. Vaughn's specialty was open field work and combined with McKay he twice got away for 30-yard gains.

The game qualifies Sarnia to meet Delta Collegiate of Hamilton next Saturday for provincial title. The contest was waged here before a record collegiate crowd of over 2000. Goodman and Harper were the officials.

SPEAKER RESIGNS FROM INDIANS

Baseball Service at End to Join Others on Inactive List.

DREADED BENCH

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—Post-season events which have brought about the passing of six big league baseball managers, yesterday erased another illustrious name from the active list when Tris Speaker, 38, manager of the Cleveland Indians, resigned, the post he has held since mid-season, 1919.

The venerable Speaker announced that his long term of service in the major leagues was at an end, and that he is joining Ty Cobb and other managers in the inactive list.

Speaker's resignation has been rumored for several months.

"I considered quitting last year," the gray-haired manager said, "but the Indians were in sixth place and I did not want it said that I quit a rudderless ship. So I stuck it out another season.

"The Indians finished in second place in the American League last season and I can step out now without any question of my action."

Friends of "Spoke" added another reason for his resignation to his own. Tris said he is going into business, but the manager's hitting and fielding record was cited as a further reason for his retirement.

Tris dreaded the bench.

After marking up a career in baseball second only to that of Ty Cobb, Tris knew that his days of active service were almost numbered.

Tris began his baseball career in Hubbard City, Texas, where he was studying to be a bookkeeper. He was playing with the Cleburne team of the North Texas League when the Boston Americans tried him out in 1908 and again in 1909. Thereafter he remained in the American League.

He was purchased by Cleveland in 1916 for $55,000. In mid-season in 1919 he was made manager, and in 1920 won the world's pennant for the Indians.

Club officials said yesterday that Speaker's successor will not be chosen for a month, possibly six weeks.

MAORIS SCORE NARROW LEAD

Long End of 15-13 Score in Game With Leicester.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

LEICESTER, Nov. 30. Conadian Press Cable. — The Maoris obtained a narrow margin over Leicester on Saturday in a Rugby Union game when the New Zealanders emerged at the long end of a 15-13 score. It was a magnificent game, played before 18,000 spectators, and as the result shows, it was by no means one-sided. In the first half the Antipodeans were pinned well down into their own territory. Leicester drew first blood, when Prentice kicked a penalty goal, and a few minutes later Farndon put the Englishmen further ahead when, with a fine swerving run he scored a beautiful try directly under the posts. Prentice took the kick and brought out the major points. Just prior to the interval, Falwasser scored for the Maoris. Thereafter the game was splendidly contested and the pace increased with the excitement of the spectators. Falwasser again scored, and this, added to a fine dropped goal by Wilson, put the New Zealanders ahead, but Prentice once again cropped up to reverse the situation by scoring a try which he himself converted.

Towards the end of the game the New Zealanders put up a desperate fight and injected some lightninglike play into their game. Amid tremendous excitement the last few minutes were battled out the spectators reacting to the speed of the game with enthusiastic uproar and tense silence alternately. Finally the visitors were rewarded with a fine try. Love took the kick and sent the ball sailing between the posts rounding off a great game by adding the two winning points.

CANADIAN YOUTH 3RD IN MARATHON

Forced to Don Winter Garb for Twenty-Six-Mile Jaunt.

LAKEWOOD, N.J., Nov. 30—The first annual Lakewood in itation marathon was held yesterday in a driving wind storm which forced the large field of starters to don winter garb for the long 26 mile jaunt over a hilly course. Representatives from all parts of America and Canada were on hand. The winner was Harvey Frick, the rangy harrier of the Milrose A.C., New York, defeating Gonzales Moreno of U. S. Army, Panama, and Percy Wyer, diminutive runner of the Monarch Athletic Club, Toronto Canada, who were second and third respectively. Antonio Carabella of the U. S. Army of Panama was fourth, followed by Captain Morgan, his team mate, while Frank Zuna of Newark, N.J., was sixth.

Frick, along with Moreno and Zuna, gained a big lead on the field in the first twenty miles of the race, but this was considerably lessened by Percy Wyer, the little Canadian runner who came strong in the latter stages to almost nip Moreno for second place. The finish:

	Time
1. Harvey Frick, Milrose A. C., New York	2.40.00
2. Gonzales Moreno, U. S. Army, Panama	2.42.10

STRUCK BY TRAIN

Three Calves Killed by C. N. R. Train Near Quay's Station.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 30. — The C.N.R. train which arrives here from Port Hope at 5 p.m. ran over three calves from a Holstein herd on Friday, killing two outright, and seriously injuring the third. The accident occurred near Quay's Station; the engineer had no time to avoid hitting the animals which were on the track and not perceived until the train was almost upon them.

SUNDERLAND WIN OVER SHEFFIELD FIRST DIVISION

Tottenham Hotspurs Receive First Defeat of Season on Saturday.

ENGLISH LEAGUE

League Champions Are Now in Contention for Highest Honors.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Sunderland strengthened their hold on the First Division of the English League when they beat Sheffield United 3 to 0 at Roker Park.

The North of England occupies a proud position in the League, for in hot pursuit of Sunderland are Newcastle United, who accumulated two points by inflicting on Tottenham Hotspurs the first defeat sustained by the latter this season on their own ground. The Spurs were weak, due to their gruelling game at Burnley a week ago, and the casualties suffered on that occasion, but Newcastle played sound soccer and were fully deserving of their win.

The League champions, Huddersfield Town, are now in contention for League honors after a lengthy period of mediocrity. Huddersfield registered their sixth win of the season by making it 4 to 2 over Derby County.

Near Riots.

League games were in some cases spoiled by exhibitions of rank unsportsmanship and bad grace, and this was manifested strongly at Blackburn, where the Rovers' match with Manchester United was finished in a mild uproar. As the whistle sounded for "time" it is alleged that a Manchester player deliberately kicked Puddefoot, Blackburn's centre forward, on the ankle, with the result that Puddefoot fell to the ground in great agony. The spectators swarmed on to the field in a threatening manner and surrounded the Manchester man, who had to be escorted to the dressing room by policemen and officials.

At White Hart Lane there was also some rough play, and the eferee called the men together for a general lecture. The encounter was notable for the good exhibition of Gallacher (late of Airdrieonians), who scored all three goals for Newcastle United.

A third near-riot occurred at Merthyr, where the Welshmen were playing in the first round of the English Cup against Bristol City. The referee was the centre of unwelcome attention, and this official was followed to the station by an unruly mob because they "did not appreciate his decisions."

Chandler's Five Goals.

Fog interfered with many games on Saturday for the first time this season. This was most marked in Yorkshire and Lancashire.

The chief goal scorer was Chandler, of Leicester city, who was responsible for all five of his team's score against Aston Villa.

In the Second Division Swansea Town retained leadership when they gained a narrow victory over Bradford City, while the stock of Manchester City dropped when they succumbed to South Shields on their own ground.

Motherwell Still Boss.

A creditable win over Partick Thistle enabled Motherwell to continue their leadership of the First Division of the Scottish League. This was the seventh straight victory for Motherwell, who have dropped only two games this season and who, since September 18, have not failed to get either one or two points out of their contests. Motherwell are now travelling steadily in the direction of League honors but they are faced with heavy opposition, since only five points separate the first six teams in the League, while Rangers have a straight advantage in coming only one point in the rear of the Fir Parker's with one game in hand.

Aberdeen secured full points at the expense of St. Mirren when they got the better of the Paisley team by the only goal scored in the game.

Heavy scoring featured several encounters, notably at Celtic Park, where Celtic registered seven counters to a couple by Dundee United, while at Dens Park, Dundee scored six goals to one by Greenock Morton.

SPEAKER RESIGNS.

Manager of Cleveland Team Is Going Into Business.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.) — Tris Speaker, leader of the Cleveland Indians since mid-season 1919, resigned as manager yesterday to go to business. Speaker set forth that he had absolutely no differences with the ball club over salary or anything else.

Speaker has several business propositions under consideration

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 30. — Mr. John Garneau purchased the lucky ticket which won the fancy patched quilt put up by the Women's Institute of Prineveau.

The annual meeting of Woodlands Cheese and Butter Co. will be held in the factory on Tuesday, December 7th, at 1.30 p.m., for election of officers and general business.

Mr. Charlie Davidson, Seymour West, has completed his bungalow at Polmont and expects to occupy it in the near future.

Mrs. Claud Insley returned to Healy Falls on Thursday after spending a couple of days with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Pollock.

Mr. Ross Pollock's new bungalow is nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy.

WOOLER NEWS

WOOLER, Nov. 30.—Miss Clarke of Bancroft, is the guest of Miss Frances Terrill.

Esli Terrill is in Toronto this week.

Mrs. Vera Teal, teacher in the Consolidated School, Wellington, is home, resting from a nervous prostration.

Those who attended the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto are as follows: Mr and Mrs. L. H. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Elliott, Mrs. Arthur Scott, Mrs. Percy Whaley, Mrs. C. R. Terrill, Miss Frances Terrill, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill

YOUR JEWEL

The ancients believed that envy was the greatest of man's enemies; that his health and fortune could be destroyed by the green-eyed monster. Therefore, the carnelian today's talismanic gem is particularly valuable, since it serves as a protection against this uncontrollable force.

The lapis-lazuli, today's natal gem is believed to be a cure for fever—not the love fever alone, but malaria as well, and other forms of intermittent fever. To be effective, however, it must be worn close to the flesh.

Yellow, the sacred color of India, is a potent hue today. It is also a sun color and should bring happiness and a light heart to all those who wear it.

The white rose is today's lucky flower. It brings good fortune to all those whose years number less thant thirty.

ROADS ARE BAD AROUND WARSAW

Improvement Has Been Made on McIvor's Hill.

WARSAW, Nov. 30.—The hill at McIvor's corner on the Dummer road has gotten a good coat of crushed stone and gravel, so that traffic is now fairly good. There is a large corrugated iron culvert at the bottom.

The boundary which has never been good all summer is now quite bad. No one goes over it except when absolutely necessary. Those who would frequent it prefer to go to the village by the longer route.

The cattle are being brought home from the summer ranches this week. As a rule, they are in good condition.

Threshing, which stopped during the hunting season, has been resumed.

Plowing has stopped and there seems to be a general feeling that winter has set in. The ground is solid, with a slight covering of snow.

"AT HOME"

Large Crowd Attend Social Event Held at Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 30.—Despite pouring rain and the consequent bad roads a very large crowd attended the At Home, held in the Hotel Lakefield under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. The rotunda of the hotel was gay with flags and bunting, and with its alluring music and bright lights, was a pleasing contrast to the stormy night. Music for the dancing was furnished by O'Keefe's Orchestra of Peterborough, and to its strains dancing was kept up to the wee sma' hours. A capable committee was in charge of the euchre tables, which were set in the dining room. The prizes were won by Miss Dell Watson and Mr. Dan Maloney and the consolation prizes by Mrs. M. J. Flynn and Mr. Joseph Nolan.

Refreshments were served about eleven o'clock, and afterwards the dancing was resumed.

Mr. Thomas Sullivan Jr. furnished music for the square dances, and Mr. Thomas McManus acted as floor manager.

The At Home was a genuine success, as old and young enjoyed themselves, and the officers of the league were the recipients of hearty congratulations. Mrs. George A. Charlton is president of the league.

Euchre Party

The sixth of the series of euchre parties under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening in the Parish Hall. Eight tables were played. Miss Dell Watson and Mr. George Pearson were prize winners; Mrs. Charlton and Mr. M. Hampton won the consolation prizes.

A meeting is being held in the Lakefield Memorial Hall on Tuesday, November 30th, in the interests of Mr. W. A. Anderson, at which Mrs. J. Forbes Allen and Dr. M. A. Morrison, both of Peterborough, will speak.

Election Returns

The management of the Queen Street Theatre have made arrangements to have the election returns thrown on the screen every half hour during the Wednesday night performance. Special arrangements have been made to secure them.

Christmas Bazaar

The annual Christmas Bazaar of the Chancel Guild of St. John's Church is being held in the Parish Hall on Thursday, December 9th, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

The annual Christmas Bazaar of the Ladies' Aid of Regent Street Church will be held on the afternoon of Friday, December 10, in the basement of the church.

Rev. Louis F. Barber of Gananoque was in charge of the services in St. John's Church on Sunday morning and evening.

Sunday, November 28th, was Advent Sunday, and was suitably observed in St. Paul's Church and St. John's Church.

Healed His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of recovery was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely healed my rupture. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may have a complete recovery without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen Carpenter, 599 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N.J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

MERCANTNILE LEAGUE

Both League leaders lost one and won two last night when Examiner met Groceterias and Quakers Oats met C.N.R. Brintons took two from Cressmans and Westclox took two from Nashua Paper. Last year's strong Nashua team have not yet hit their stride due probably to too many changes in managers. Johnson was in charge last night and, if possible, the team was worst than usual. Byers tried hard but found his handicap too heavy.

Three high games were rolled by DeGraw 647, Byers 687, Leether 645, Penrose 612 and A. Delahey 605.

High singles, DeGraw 273, Beckerman 224, Hamilton 218, Crowe 237, Byers 282, Parker 219, Martyn 248, Leether 254, Taylor 227, Holyman 216, Spencer 214, Penrose 213 Nicholls 301, H. Delahey 224 and A. Delahey 243 and 235.

CAR SERVICE INTERRUPTED

Trouble With Sub-Station D. C. Generator Causes Hold-up.

'BUSES HELP OUT.

Those of the public who depend on the street car to get them to their various places of business were in a bad way this morning. The situation was met as far as possible by the 'buses so that a minimum of inconvenience was caused.

The trouble was due to a fault developing in the direct current generator in the sub-station about 5.30 this morning. The trouble was rectified at 9.30, enabling the street cars to get out in their routes.

MISS EDITH TINNIS WOOD, as "Queen Bess," in the New Originals revue, "Across Canada," at the Grand Election Night, Wednesday, December 1st. Election returns will be given out from the stage.

MILTON SILLS IN "MEN OF STEEL."

Milton Sills, who can always be relied upon to give a fine presentation of any character he portrays on the silver sheet, is the star of "Men of Steel," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. It is an interesting story, with a powerful back ground, and a certain quality of peculiar tempo that makes it unusual. Several of the scenes have an irritating emphasis laid on minor parts while the main story is left dragging, as it were, notably in the final episode, where the two strong men moon over an old picture in a quiet room, while their friends battle for life a few feet away, surrounded by a raging mob. Again, there is an odd swiftness to the last bit of all, with the girl who has just been in danger of her life, appearing as a beautifully gowned bride. However these are minor defects, and the play itself is interest-holding and unique in the quality of its surroundings, many of the scenes being filmed in the interior of a huge steel mill, where the powerful machines, the workers below, and the constant menace of the red hot steel, give a veritable atmosphere to the story. Here is the open hearth, the round cauldrons with their fiery liquid contents, and the huge overhead cranes.

It is an out of the ordinary setting, with Milton Sills taking the part of Jan Bokak, later John Brook, and Doris Kenyon as his sweetheart, Mary Zorn. In the coal fields of the Mesaba range, the opening love scenes between Jan and Mary are staged, but later, when Jan takes upon himself the guilt of murdering Mary's half brother, Anton, the order to shield the younger brother, Alex., the scene shifts to the mills of Steel City. Here are the two old cronies, Zacchary Pitt, steel magnate and his friend, Captain Hooker, constantly engaged in an effort to outspit each other, and here Clair Pitt falls in love with John Brook and he becomes engaged to her.

The picture shows the odd twist to modern tales, in the sacrifice of his love by a man in order to help his brother-workers in the mills, and also the peculiar changefulness of the young lady who vamps a man for all she is worth, and then, when he forsakes her at the altar steps, turns to another love. There is a very dramatic episode, too, in the scene in the mills when the half-mad Alex tries to pour molten metal into the vat where Jan and his enemy are struggling, and an odd scene in the burial intact of the cauldron of steel into which the madman had fallen.

AT THE GRAND.

"NEW ORIGINALS" OFFERING MANY INNOVATIONS IN "ACROSS CANADA."

Canada's merry band of entertainers, now known as "The New Originals", with many of the old faces and several new ones including a cast of pretty girls doing the female roles, will present their sparkling new musical entertainment "Across Canada" at the Grand theatre on Wednesday, December 1.

This season's revue is indeed a brilliant one comprising some of the most unique features ever offered in Canada. There are several very funny skits, delightful dances and concerted numbers, and that same old care free and original style of entertaining, plus a great cast of artists including old and new favorites. From the opening number "The Optimists" right through to the finale of the show where all the famous Grand Opera Airs are burlesqued, this happy gang of funmakers keep the audience in roars of laughter and send them away from the theatre after the show humming the melodious tunes they have brought us from London's great musical shows.

Intimcay is the keynote of the New Originals, they have found the secret of somehow putting themselves on such friendly terms with the audience that the audience begins to feel itself a part of the show. The whole thing becomes an intimate family party immediately the curtain rises and "Across Canada" starts along with its merry swing. The New Originals have even a better company vocally and otherwise than had the old company last year, and the timely introduction of several extremely talented and beautiful girls into the show has been an innovation. The male members of the cast are still ex-soldier actors and there is just one tiny touch of khaki in the whole entertainment.

Life, action, beautiful stage effects this year after the style of the Russian Chauve Souris, and comedy situations that go over the footlights for sure fire laughs every minute—the style that belongs only to this organization, will greet the theatregoers of Peterboro on Wednesday, December 1st when Canada's own funmakers will be accorded their usual "Home-coming welcome" extended to them on their annual visits here.

AT THE REGENT

IRENE RICH SCORES IN "COMPROMISE."

At Best As Heroine of Thrilling New Photodrama.

Actresses may come and go, but lovely Irene Rich grows ever more lovely and even more the finished actress of the screen with each new characterization. Which is by way of introducing the fact that "Compromise," the Warner picture which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre, starring Miss Rich, gives this beautiful actress the best role of her brilliant career.

As Joan Trevore, heroine of Jay Gelzer's dramatic story, Miss Rich appears as a sensitive woman filled with ideals and definitely set against compromising with the world.

Her selfish little half-sister, most admirably portrayed by Pauline Garon, lures Joan's husband (Clive Brook) away from her; and Joan's suffering and humiliation is keen. Their old father (Winter Hall) shelters Joan during her husband's absence, and gradually she begins to realize that in order to derive any happiness in the world, one must make adjustments. It is only after she has quarrelled bitterly with her sister Nathalie, beating her in her rage with a riding crop; and seeing her husband, bruised and repentant after a terrific tornado, come to beg foregiveness, that Joan compromises and starts over again with a fuller sense of understanding.

MR. BRADBURN'S MESSAGE

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBORO CITY.

DEAR FELLOW CITIZENS:

In a few hours you will be called upon to make your choice as to the composition of the Government of this province and as to the manner in which you wish to have the liquor evil dealt with.

The issues of the campaign have been dealt with by myself and on my behalf as they appeal to me and to the members of the Government: it has been the endeavour of our organization to deal only with facts and conditions as they are and to deal with them fairly and honestly.

Now on the eve of the election I submit to you that the two main questions you will have to settle in your own minds as you go out tomorrow to the polls and do your duty as citizens of this riding and province are:

(1) Is Ontario to be governed by a responsible Government whose administration since 1923 has been unchallenged, or by a coalition of Progressives, Liberal and Independents many of them in the field only for one purpose, the retention of the O.T.A.?

(2) Is the sale of liquor in Ontario to be handled by a Government that has demonstrated its ability to handle other great problems and controlled by that Government, or is it to be allowed to go on uncontrolled?

These are the issues—there have been efforts to becloud them by irrevelent propaganda about beer parlours and sale by the glass—but I have confidence in the intelligence of the people of this constituency to dismiss these campaign red herrings from their minds and to make their decision upon the two supreme and vital questions I have outlined.

To the enthusiastic workers whose efforts on my behalf have been tireless, to the hundreds of citizens who have assured me of their support, to the many who have aided the cause by their own services or the offer of automobiles, my thanks are gratefully extended.

The issues are now in the hands of the electorate; I leave them there, satisfied that the merit of the policies I have recommended will commend itself to those who have to return the verdict.

Faithfully yours,

W. H. BRADBURN.

(Advt.)

MAKE IT EMPHATIC!

ON THIS, THE LAST DAY OF THE CAMPAIGN, it can be be said that the success of the Government cause in this constituency is assured beyond the shadow of a doubt.

It is in the air everywhere; nobody who moves around the city at all can doubt it.

A mere victory is not enough, however, to register a majority in favour of Mr. Bradburn that will show emphatically and unmistakably that the people of Peterborough city favour a solution of the liquor evil that will remove the hypocrisy and disregard for law that has developed under the O.T.A. and provide a sane, sensible, workable law that will be observed and respected.

We appeal to every elector who favours the Government policy to see that his or her vote is registered.

We want the voice of this constituency to be heard clearly and unmistakably in the chorus to-morrow evening from all over Ontario acclaiming Hon. G. Howard Ferguson as Premier and his policy of Government control as a sensible solution of the liquor problem.

Help us to make Peterborough city's answer convincingly emphatic by making sure your vote is polled to-morrow for

W. H. BRADBURN

JOHN BULLER
At his late residence, 27 Classic Avenue, Monday, November 29th, John Buller, in his 73rd year. Funeral Wednesday, December 1st, at 2.30 p.m. Interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.—Toronto Globe.
The deceased was a brother of Mr. W. H. Buller of this city.

ALEXANDER WATTS.
There passed away at his home in Warsaw yesterday, Alexander Watts, in his 81st year. Mr. Watts was one of the oldest residents of the village.
The funeral will be held to-morrow (Wednesday) at 2.00 o'clock, from the family residence, Warsaw, to the United Church, and thence to Warsaw Cemetery.

JOHN BULLER.
TORONTO, Nov. 30.—The death occurred yesterday evening of Mr. John Buller, one of the oldest and best known conductors who had been in the service of the Grand Trunk system and the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Buller retired from active railway service in May, 1924, and had been in indifferent health for some months past.
Born of a railroading family, the late Mr. Buller not only followed his father, the late Mr. Joseph Buller, in railway service, but he also made two other notable contributions to the National system, his own sons, both of whom are now officials of the Canadian National, Mr. Fred. J. Buller, treasurer of the Central region, and Mr. L. W. Buller, assistant superintendent of the Capreol division; and when Mr. Buller retired, the entire length of service of himself and his two sons totalled 115 years, a magnificent record and one almost unique to railway annals, when it is considered that both sons began at the bottom of the ladder, and through sheer ability, worked their way to their present official positions.
Apart from this unusual phase, the late Mr. Buller was one of the few remaining direct connecting links with the first days of railroading in Canada. When the old Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton road was first opened, his father was in charge of the original station at Beaverton, and it was on this line that Conductor Buller, in '69, commenced his railway career.
In those pioneer days there were many systems of short mileage but no standard gauges. Each road had its own gauge and traffic congestion became so great that it was necessary to standardize the gauges, and when the zero hour for standardization to the present gauge took place, Conductor Buller had the distinction of taking the last train over the old line. This was from Orillia to Port Hope, and on the rear coach a sign was prominently painted, "Last train." Gangs of men were waiting along the right-of-way, and as soon as the train passed they sprang up, pulled the spikes and shifted the rails to standard width.
Latterly Conductor Buller had been running his train between Toronto and Peterborough, and upon his retirement he received two striking testimonials of appreciation, one from Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president, and the other from Mr. S. J. Hungerford, operating vice-president.
The late Mr. Buller was born in Cobourg, 73 years ago, and was a member of St. Stephen's Anglican Church. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jane Buller, and three sons, F. J., L. W., and J. R., all of Toronto, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles McCallum, of Cobourg.
The funeral will take place from his late residence to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and interment will be made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.
W. H. Buller of Peterborough is a brother.

IN MEMORIAM.
BALL.—In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away November 30th, 1916:
We often think of days gone by
When we were all together,
The shadows o'er our lives are cast
Our loved one's gone forever,
To-night the stars are gleaming
Upon a lonely grave,
There sleepeth there without dreaming
One we loved but couldt not save,
The rolling streams of life pass on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the smile, the love, the voice
Of one who once sat there.

Organized Move From Four Directions Against Bootleggers in States.

"KING" ARRESTED.

Indictments Sworn Out Against Leaders of $10,000,000 Smuggling Combine.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 1 (Canadian Press). — Prohibition forces moved against the organized liquor traffic of the Pacific coast from four directions Monday.

While a royal commission at Victoria, B.C., was learning in its investigation of rum-running that a quantity of liquor is being shipped by Canadian exporters with the full knowledge that it later will find its way into the United States, 42 indictments were returned here against the alleged leaders of what the San Francisco newspapers call a $10,000,000 smuggling combine which has been operating all the way from Canada to Mexico.

While the indictments returned by the Federal grand jury here were kept secret pending arrest of some of those named, they are assumed to accuse several men of wealth and influence on the Pacific coast of connection with the big rum circle.

Previous to the meeting of the grand jury, officials had arrested Joe Parente, known as king of the San Francisco rum-runners; J. W. Ward, millionaire British Columbia liquor exporter; certain members of the board of directors of the Consolidated Exporters, Inc., of British Columbia; officers of vessels known to be in the rum-running game, and other men connected with the exporting firm as agents in this country.

At Los Angeles, Federal officials announced that evidence against several persons believed to be connected with rum-running activities would be placed before a grand jury in a few days.

COUNTY VOTERS HAVE DIFFICULTY REACHING POLLS

Roads Are Very Greasy in Many Parts of Ridings.

SOME CARS MIRED.

Party Workers Getting Many To Vote—Few Out in Morning.

Reports from the Peterborough County riding were not very bright regarding the condition of the various roads. Those nearer the city on the main trunk were reported as good, but in most cases chains have to be resorted to in order to travel. Numerous cars were mired in the mud in the village of Lakefield, and reports indicated that the electors in the village of Havelock were in similar straits.

Despite the bad roads, however, encouraging reports were received from most polling sub-divisions regarding the turnout of those interested in the issues at stake.

Young's Point, which is in the city riding, reported roads very greasy and practically no extra traffic.

Bridgenorth, also in the city riding, had better luck with the roads and the number voting was in excess of expectations.

Keene, also fortunate with regard to the roads, reported that the turnout in the morning had been very poor, but towards 3 o'clock it was picking up considerably.

Westwood, Norwood, Indian River and Douro apparently bore the brunt of the greasy roads, but the various party organizations are working might and main, and in most cases have succeeded in overcoming most of the difficulties and were getting a strong representation to the booths.

Hiccoughs Seven Days Cure Is Kept a Secret

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1 (A.P.)—After hiccoughing seven days, Harvey Reilley, 43 years old, was cured at a hospital here last night by the use of what physicians termed an anti-spasmodic drug.

Although the doctors refused to reveal the name of the drug, they announced part of the scores of suggestions that kept hospital telephone operators busy yesterday. The "home remedies" included: Swallowing of eight plums, snuffing red pepper and castor oil.

OPPOSES CAROL AS SUCCESSOR

King Ferdinand Makes Declaration in Letter Addressed To Premier.

IS GRATEFUL.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—King Ferdinand has publicly expressed strong opposition to the return of former Crown Cnince Carol, or a change in the succession to the throne as established by law. The King makes this declaration in a letter addressed to Premier Averescu and published in the official Gazette.

The letter is dated November 28, and says

"I have been greatly moved by the sympathy and affection shown me on all sides regarding my health, but at the same time I see with real grief that some persons have taken advantage of the circumstances to bring into discussion the principles which form the dynastic basis of the constitutional monarchy, and which do not permit the fate of the crown to be left to the changeable will of any persons."

Referring to former King Carol, the first sovereign of Rumania and the love he himself has for his country, the King hopes that the proof he has given during the trying days through which Rumania has passed are ample to convince all that he knows how to sacrifice his personal relations in the interest of the country or 'as king, to put an end to the unfortunate waywardness and weakness of a beloved child."

The letter closes by stating that the King will be aided by all good Rumanians and his regular counsellors, "who know how to bind together the national strength to fortify the throne and impose respect for the decisions and acts accomplished in accord with the laws and supreme interests of the monarchy and the State."

PETERBORO' BOYS MAKE FINE SHOWING

Stand Fifth in Judging Competition at Ottawa Winter Fair.

In the Inter-County Livestock Judging Competition held at Ottawa Winter Fair last week and which was open to teams of three boys from each County in Eastern Ontario, the Peterborough County team, the members of which were: Stewart Lang, Indian River; Clarence Robertson, Keene; Edgar Clarke, Norwood; stood fifth as a County. In addition to this Stewart Lang stood fourth in the judging of all classes of stock. He also won second prize in beef cattle. Clarence Robertson won fourth in horses, and Edgar Clarke fifth in beef cattle.

Ten Counties, including Peterborough, Hastings, Lennox and Addington ,Lanark, Leeds, Grenville, Dundas, Glengarry, Carleton and Renfrew took part, so that the standing of the Peterborough County team was particularly good when it is considered that there was only a few marks between the first five counties.

Never Used a Cuss Word In 90 Years, He Asserts

SAN FERNANDO, Calif., Dec. 1.—Charles G. Smith, who has resided in San Fernando Valley for almost a half-century, has just celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary. In all his life he has never worn glasses, has never touched liquor or tobacco, and asserts he has never had occasion to use a cuss word". As a boy 9 years old, Mr. Smith remembers having once seen President Andrew Jackson, who died in 1845, and has voted at all Presidential elections since James Buchanan, who preceded Lincoln at Washington.

ASSERTS THAT COMPANIES HAVE ACCEPTED LAWS

Whereas Representatives of Companies Themselves Have Made No Statements.

ONE APPLICATION.

Situation May Become More Complex When Laws Come Into Effect.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press). — While the Mexican Government asserts that various foreign oil companies have accepted the new petroleum and land laws to which the Washington Government has objected, representatives of the companies themselves make no statement.

The uncertain character of the situation may become more complex by arguments after January 1 when the new laws come into effect, as to precisely what constitutes acceptance. The Government's insistence that various companies have accepted is based apparently on the filing of applications for confirmation of old concessions, which the Government construes as acceptance of the new regulations.

The only application the Mexican Government has published thus far is that of the British - owned company, El Aguila, which, as given out by the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor, is based among other clauses upon Section 1 of Article 27 of the Constitution. That section declares that foreigners cannot own land or mineral rights in Mexico unless they renounce the protection of their home governments with respect to these.

El Aguila's application was filed October 21, and asks that a concession be granted "confirming petroleum rights, the duration of which will be for 50 years, as provided by Article 155 of the regulations of the oil law, on lands, hereinafter specified, with the understanding that the lands involved are privately owned."

It is not revealed whether other companies have filed applications in similar language and it is a matter of speculation whether El Aguila and the other companies will concede after January 1 that their intention was to renounce, and that in actuality they have renounced, the protection of their home governments.

Well-informed sources assert that the foremost United States oil companies have not done anything and do not intend to do anything which might be construed as accepting the laws. What the Mexican Government now interprets as acceptance by other companies may possibly be construed otherwise by the companies themselves after January.

NEW ORGAN IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH IS UP-TO-DATE AND OF GREAT SIZE

Four Manuals, Electrically Operated, With Echo Pipes.

3,282 PIPES.

What will undoubtedly be the finest organ in the City of Peterborough, if not in Eastern Ontario, is now in the course of erection at St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

It is a four manual Tubular electric organ operated by a five horse power motor. In addition to the main organ there is an additional set of pipes fixed in the rear wall of the church. These constitute the "echo" and are operated by a one horse power motor.

The magnitude of this modern structure can readily be conceived when a person realizes that it stands thirty-eight feet high and is eighteen feet six inches wide.

The tones are derived from 3,282 pipes of varying sizes and thicknesses ranging from the smallest which is three-eights of an inch long to the largest, sixteen feet and twelve inches in diameter.

Nine different grades of leather are used, the chief of which is lambskin. Holding the organ together are 11,520 screws of all sizes. The electric wires used measure 47,520 feet or the equivalent of the distance from Peterborough to Lakefield.

There are thirty-three pistons for bringing in the different combinations. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist of St. Paul's, told The Examiner that he had played organs when the limit was four. The extra twenty-nine obtainable today are a result of the development of the use of electricity.

Placed by the sides of the keyboard are fifty-one ivory stops, each giving a different tone. Two of these are termed the vox huma (human voice) stops. One is located in the swell organ and the other in the echo.

The Console, the framework surrounding the keyboard is a beautiful work of art. Composed of oak and walnut it presents an artistic appearance that would be hard to equal.

The large pipes, visible in most organs, are all utilized as speaking pipes with the excention of four, which are dummies, but are placed in position so as to preserve a uniform appearance.

The echo organ, which is operated from the main keyboard, is operated by a two hundred foot wire cable. The remarkable feature in this connection is the instant response to even the lightest touch on the keys.

By means of tiny ivory lever on the left hand side of the keyboard the base can be automatically adjusted so that no matter which of the four keyboards the organist uses, his base corresponds in volume to the treble. This is a unique feature and is only in use in very few places in the Dominion.

Another feature which makes the organ unique is the vibrators on the reeds. On every reed the tongue vibrates on a brass base, no leather, as is customary in most organs, being used. This ensures a uniform tone.

Behind the large pipes are six chests, controlled by automatic valves. Their purpose is to release as much wind as is required for the various combinations. They are distributed as follows: One for the choir organ, two for the great organ, two for the swell organ, and one for the echo organ.

These chests are manufactured with the grain in the wood running the one way so that in case of expansion or contraction the give will be all the one way.

Sixty-one notes are controlled by the harp stop which is connected so that three of the manuals can be used. The sound given by this stop is sweeter, if possible, than that obtained from the harp itself.

There are two sets of chimes, one in the main organ and the other in the echo organ, each consisting of twenty pieces. Both sets can be played from every manual and the pedal board.

Mr. Chenhall said that in his opinion St. Paul's church was in a unique position with regard to the new organ. The church is extra wide, thus ensuring an even distribution of tone. He remarked that the situation for the echo organ was ideal.

The whole structure is a tribute to the excellence of Canadian workmanship and materials.

The organ is being installed by the Woodstock Pipe Organ Builders Limited of Woodstock, a company composed of workmen who are also directors, and who all, in a practical manner have a share in the actual making of the various parts. Without exception they have all spent their entire lives at the art of organ building.

W. A. Potter, the vice president of the company, arrived in the city today and shortly after his arrival proceeded to "voice" the organ, or tune it. Each little pipe is gone over and adjusted to the size of the church, then they have to be tuned to ensure perfect harmony. This part of the work, he told The Examiner, would occupy the full time of himself and another man for the next two weeks.

Those engaged on the work are: G. E. Otton president; W. A. Potter, vice president; R .S. Underhill, factory superintendent; J. A. G. Webb, metal pipes; Charles Bond, Consoles; H. A. Karn, switch boards; and H. R. Kitt in charge of erection.

The new organ will be formally opened at a recital on December 13 which will be conducted by J. W. Bearder, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., who is President of the Canadian College of Organists and one of the most famous organists in the Dominion of Canada.

FOOLISH HOAX CAUSED FRIGHT IN MANY HOMES

Letters Reported Nova Scotia Ship Was Seen Bottom Up.

RELATIVES ALARMED.

Subsequently It Was Found Schooner Had Docked at Rockport.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— News of the safe arrival of the schooner Frederick J. Lovatt, at Portland, Maine, yesterday morning, confirmed the attempted perpetration of a hoax that was the cause of much distress in several Nova Scotia homes last night. Monday afternoon a weekly newspaper published at Windsor, N.S., received a letter under date of November 25 purporting to come from Captain William Kinghorn, of the schooner Mattie J. Allis, at Bass Harbor, Maine, and reporting that the Lovatt had bene seen floating bottom up and had probably capsized with all on board. Inquiries developed the receipt of a second letter bearing the name of the boatswain of the Lovatt, William Hyson, of Hantsport, N.S., in which he predicted that the ship would be lost and added, "I'm afraid I will never go to church and sing in the choir again. We are trusting in God to come out all right. That is all we can do."

At Rockport.

Subsequently it was found that the Lovatt had reported at Rockport, Maine, on Sunday, November 28, two days after she had been reported as lost, and this morning she was reported having arrived safely at Portland. Captain William Kinghorn, it also develops, is not the master of the Allis. The Lovatt is en route to New York with a cargo of lath.

U. S. DESTROYERS ARE ORDERED UP YANGSTE RIVER

Will Aid Other Foreign Warships in Protection of Foreigners.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

Threat of General Anti-Foreign Strike Set For Dec. 4.

PEKING, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—The United States destroyers Truxton and Pope have been ordered to proceed up the Yangtse River to Hankow, 585 miles inland, to aid other foreign warships in protecting foreigners, as a result of Chinese labor union threats of a general anti-foreign strike.

Hundreds of miles away, in Fukian province, Chinese officers of Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang have professed their inability to guarantee safety of foreigners at Foochow, which is menaced by the advance of the victorious Cantonese forces against Sun's troops.

In still another section 400 British and Americans, many of them invalids, fear that their provisions will be cut off at Kuling, a mountain resort near Kiukiang on the Yangtse River in Kiangsi province, and that they will be endangered by anti-foreign agitation.

The situation at Hankow, where the Bolshevik Cantonese government headquarters have been established, is regarded as serious.

Since the Cantonese drove out the northern troops in September they have been busy in organizing all classes of labor into unions in a manner similar to the industrial Soviets of Russia. Anti-foreign feeling has been engendered and with the progressive stoppage of employment due to labor demands, has come the threat of general anti-foreign strike set for December 4. There are British, French and Japanese concession districts at Hankow.

British naval contingents have been landed at the British concession lying along the Yangtse River, and British volunteers have been called out to reinforce the concession police who are endeavoring to enforce new regulations which prohibit armed groups of Chinese from passing through the concession district without special permission.

Many of these armed bodies have marched through foreign areas recently.

Some anxiety is felt also for foreign lives and property in the coast province of Fukien. There the Cantonese forces are beating back the troops of Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang, whose power as overlord of Eastern China has been considerably diminished. Only one brigade stands between the victorious Cantonese army and Foochow, capital of the province, all other Fukiense troops having withdrawn in to the city.

Civil Governor San Chen-Ping notified foreign consuls Sunday that the local authorities were unable to guarantee the safety of foreign lives and property. Although he stated Monday that he felt able to furnish protection, the consuls telegraphed their respective governments requesting that protection be arranged.

ELECTORS VISIT POLLS EARLY MANY VOTING BEFORE DINNER; WOMEN OUT IN GOOD NUMBERS

Some Divisions Have Half of Votes in Before Noon.

WORKERS BUSY.

Women Form Large Proportion of Early Voters To-day.

Peterborough went to the polls early to-day, many divisions reporting half the vote out by one o'clock. Women were seemingly much interested, turning out in large numbers.

This morning saw a big vote brought out in the North Ward, and by dinner time some poles reported over half the vote cast. The women seemed to be leading in the number of votes in that ward. Both candidates seemed to be well supplied with cars to draw the voters, and every effort was being made to get the very last vote polled. In the Centre Ward the vote was very slow coming out in the morning, and by noon only a small fraction of the vote had been polled. In this ward the vote seemed to be evenly distributed between men and women.

In the suburban part of North Monaghan this morning a fair sized vote turned out, and many names were added to the lists. In the country the vote was very slow in coming out, but shortly after dinner time many of the polls reported a rush as if there was going to be a big country vote polled in the afternoon.

Considerable activity was evident in the West and South Wards, both parties apparently striving to get the majority of their votes out to avoid any possibility of congestion during the closing hours.

At the various polling stations reports would indicate that the women of the city were taking more than a passing interest in the issues at stake. Practically all the D.R.O.'s reported a fifty-fifty vote in men and women, and indeed in a few cases the number of women who had already cast their ballot had outnumbered the men.

Two sub-divisions laid claim to the fact that they had polled over half the number on their particular list before 1 o'clock,

That taking the voters to the poll is not all sunshine was indicated, when a lady driver for one of the parties was found parked outside a bank. She declared that the woman she called for had insisted upon doing a little shopping, paving a few bills, and last of all visiting the bank before she could be prevailed upon to register her ballot.

Vote Heavy in Province.

Airplane Hazard Few Insurance Facts Show

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Hazards of regularly established and licensed commercial aviation are little greater than those which beset pedestrians or the occupants of automobiles, surveys made by the Travelers' Insurance Co. have demonstrated. Basing its action on these surveys, the company announced yesterday its decision to liberalize the flying prohibition upon holders of all but a few of the restricted class accident policies.

Effect Dec. 1 the basic insurance will be paid, without addition premium costs, on approximately 80 per cent. of the company's accident policies for any loss caused by any hazard of aviation while the insured is riding as a passenger in a licensed airplane or dirigible operated by a licensed pilot upon a regular passenger route between definitely established airports.

PRINCE ARRIVES AT VANCOUVER

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—H.R.H. Prince George, fourth son of His Majesty the King, who has been serving with the British naval forces in China, arrived here late Monday night enroute to London. The liner Empress of Russia, delayed by heavy weather, did not dock until 11 o'clock. A few minutes later Prince George boarded a special train and departed for the East. The special train will endeavor to overtake Number 2 regular C.P.R. train, at Revelstoke, which left Vancouver early Monday night and the Prince's coach will be attached to it.

It is Prince George's intention to reach England in time to spend the Christmas holidays with the royal family. The Prince is accompanied by Lieut. T .E. Halsey, R.N. A day and one half will be spent in Ottawa before proceeding to St. John, N.B., to sail by S.S. Mount Royal for Liverpool, December 7.

CONSERVATIVE CAMPAIGN ENDS

Norwood Hears Candidate and Many Other Speakers.

UPHOLD FERGUSON.

NORWOOD, Dec. 1.—The last gun in the political campaign was fired in the Town Hall on Tuesday night in the interests of Col. T. D. Johnston, the Liberal-Conservative candidate. Reeve W. H. Montgomery occupied the chair.

The chairman first introduced Miss McMurchie. She spoke of the Government as "a body to lead or give good citizenship." Mr. Ferguson, leader of the present Government, is a man to be proud of, a man of courage, she said. This election is different from any other election. If Mr. Ferguson had gone to the country on issues outside of the liquor question he would have swept the country. His good works are being entirely forgotten. As Minister of Education for a long time, he realized the needs of the children in Northern Ontario, so he started school trains with desks, maps and everything that went to make an up-to-date school-room, and the Government pays the railway expenses. "Do you think these things could be done by a man who didn't have the best interests of the children at heart? The school for delinquent boys at Bowmanville was also quoted as another example of his thoughtfulness."

There were wild statements being made, such as "The Cabinet is not behind the Premier."

There is only one topic on the platform of the Opposition. It has been said the Conservative party was wet. Miss McMurchie said that as far back as 1864 a vote had been taken on temperance. There are no acts on the books of the Legislature that have not been put on by the Conservative party. "Why isn't the O.T.A. enforced? Because nobody is going to inform on their neighbors." The speaker thought that Mr. Ferguson should be given a chance to show what he could do. A strong appeal for the candidate closed the first address of the evening.

Capt. J. T. Hayden, M.C., of Toronto, was the next speaker, and said there was some little mistake that he was in Norwood instead of Havelock. He said that the Ferguson Government was the best Government ever in power. He gave a short talk on other issues and then entered on the temperance question. He resented very much the title of "Wets" given to the Conservatives, and said that if any one thought Ontario isn't wet they are fit for Brockville. He spoke of the prescriptions being issued by doctors and said that there seemed to be more issued during the hunting season, at Easter and at Christmas. The wineries of Western Ontario were also spoken of as well as the bootlegger problem. There were 1,300 private permits issued in Ontario, and later 73,120 private breweries received permits, but these are not within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Government. This is a Federal matter.

The candidate was then called upon, and said he hoped that no person would go to the poll to-day without serious consideration. "Try to make Ontario a better place to live in," he said. "Ontario certainly is dry, but not in the right way," as he afterwards showed by stating the amount of liquor consumed by its inhabitants.

John A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P., said he was delighted to be on the platform in the interests of good government and temperance. He told of having been with the late Dr. S. P. Ford when he was on an election campaign in his own interests. Every person in the district knew Dr. Ford for an honest, upright, temperance man, and yet in the face of that did the organization led by Rev. Ben. Spence give him their support. Before Sir James Whitney's term of office there were 14 legitimate places selling liquor, but during his term these were banished and the rest under Hearst. He quoted the Premier as saying that on his policy he would stand or fall.

Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton was the last speaker of the evening, and began his remarks by saying he had come to the meeting with the purpose of asking Col. Johnston a question. He hadn't had a chance to ask his question publicly, but had done so privately. His question was, "Do you pledge yourself, if elected, to do all you can to make Ontario dry?" and he received the ready response, "I do."

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, led by the Melody Ramblers Orchestra.

"KEEP DOOR OPEN."

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways resumed negotiations yesterday with the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in an effort to reach a settlement in the matter of the claim of the members of the latter bodies for a six per cent wage increase. The conductors and trainmen have given a strike vote to their executives for use in the event of no satisfactory solution being found to the difficulty.

The chief executives of the railroads conducted the negotiations or their lines themselves, Sir Henry Thornton of the Canadian National and President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific meeting S. N. Berry, Senior Vice-President of the Conductors, and W. J. Ware, Vice-President of the Trainmen, together with other members of the men's negotiating committee.

Further conferences will be held, but no further announcement was forthcoming from yesterday's meeting.

It is apparent that all parties to the dispute are endeavoring to reach a settlement. The Canadian Government, through Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, has already conferred both with the railway presidents and with the men's executives. Yesterday the railway heads and the men came into direct meeting.

"We intend to keep the door open until the last moment in the hope of reaching a reasonable settlement," L. E. Sheppard, President of the Order of Railway Conductors, said yesterday. He intimated, however, that the strike vote of the upwards of 15,000 men was no bluff and that a walk-out would follow on the day set if an agrement were not reached. He would not confirm or deny a report that December 6 was the date decided on.

MADOC YOUTHS MAKE PROTEST

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

MADOC, Dec. 1.—A meeting in the interests of the Temperance Union and the candidate, Rev. L. M. Sharpe, was held in the Empire Theatre last night. The theatre was packed with interested listeners who came to hear the last vigorous appeal made by the speakers for the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act.

On the platform were Rev. Mr. Foster and Rev. Mr. Winters of Madoc, Rev. Mr. Barrett, of Stirling, Mr. Burr of Picton, and Messrs. Phillips, Kells and Moorcroft of Madoc, with Mr. J. Caskey acting as chairman.

Addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Barrett, of Stirling, Mr. Burr of Picton and Rev. L. M. Sharpe, the candidate. Mr. Sharpe spoke at Actinolite first and later in the evening at Madoc.

During the evening a protest was read from the young people of the United church against the remarks of Premier Howard G. Ferguson, concerning the young people, and expressing their approval of the Ontario Temperance Act. The protest was signed on behalf of the young people by Mrs. J. Marcellus and A. Caskey.

MEETING HELD BY ANDERSON

Havelock Hears Candidate and Others Uphold Ontario Temperance Act.

ATTACK FERGUSON

HAVELOCK, December 1. — A meeting in the interests of W. A. Anderson, Prohibition-Liberal candidate for Peterboro County, was held in the town hall on Monday evening. Reeve W. T. Curtis occupied the chair.

Rev. Dr. Oaten of Toronto, a representative from the Prohibition Union, was the first speaker.

"I greet you," he said, in the name of the Ontario Prohibition Union. In our name is the method we have elected to handle the evils of the drink habit. Those who know the evils of the habit realize that the prohibition method is the only method of dealing with it, and also the only method that has ever scored any success. The O.T.A. is the best expression of prohibition we have ever had in this province, as far as the provincial laws are concerned. The present proposal is one which absolutely wrecks the very essence of the O.T.A. We are told that government control is a cure all, that the O.T.A. has its defects and is a break down, and now behold a cure-all, which makes it easy for people to obtaining intoxicating liquors.

"I think that an echo of a song must have reached Queen's Park, Toronto, and the son is 'Nobody knows how dry I am,' It has echoed and echoed until they thought the people were dry and they would give them something to drink.

"Examine what the Premier has said. Do you find a promise that there will be no resurrection of the beer parlor policy?" he asked. "In British Columbia government control was no sooner put through than they began to lobby and campaign for the sale of beer by the glass, and they got it. How is Premier Ferguson to meet the argument of the man who has not the price of a bottle but only the price of a glass? If sold in a glass he will have to have a place to sell it in—no man is going to carry a glass home. It will bring back the saloon.

"I have travelled 13,000 miles in this province in the last few weeks; I have knocked about hotels, and have not seen the first sign of drunkenness in that time. In the main this old province is sober. The O.T.A. has not been enforced as it might have been. Mr. Nickle says it can be enforced if it has back of it a sympathetic government. We are also told that if government control is substituted for the O.T.A. tha. the bootleggers will disappear like mist before the summer sun. The provinces that are under government control are a paradise for the bootlegger."

In closing the speaker made an appeal that the electors in this district would do their part by helping to sustain the O.T.A. Government control is not the policy of the Conservative party but the policy of Mr. Ferguson and his clique, he said. He is bringing his party up to be the selling agents for the brewers.

W. A. Anderson.

The candidate was next called. He said: "When you come to the matter of electing a representative to the legislature you are influenced by the record of the government and the promises they are making you; and also the promises of the party who would be the government. The party I represent is not making many promises, but what it does make are good promises and the chief one is maintain and strengthen the O.T.A. Another promise Mr. Sinclair has made is that he will co-operate with the government at Ottawa in the matter of old-age pensions.

"How are you going to tell if a man gets his liquor legally or illegally. One will make him as drunk as the other. The stories about the young people are but propaganda of the liquor interests.

"Tomorrow night," he continued, "Col. Johnston will tell you that when the Conservative party came into office the finances of the province were in a terrible state and after three and a half years of good financing the Conservative party should be returned to power on that alone. At about one half of that period one and a half million deficit belonged to the Ferguson administration. They tell us that next year will see the budget balanced. I am of the opinion that the 1926 budget will be a long way from being balanced."

The speaker next dealt with the premier's promise to lower the income tax. "He will not give you anything if he does that," he said. "There are two income taxes in the Dominion, one going to the Dominion government and one to the municipality. If the municipality lowers the income tax the property owners have to make it up.

"The great question of the present time," he concluded, "is that there shall be a legislature in the province that shall retain the O.T.A. and the only way it can be done is for the people who are in favor of it to get behind the Prohibition candidate."

Rev. R. T. Richards

"The reason there is so much agitation against the O.T.A. is that it has worked too well," said the Rev. R. T. Richards, "and from whence has this agitation come? From three classes: first the people who are honest and are willing to admit this country is really too dry. Those who want more liquor—want to buy it to use it; the second class is fewer in number but greater in influence, the brewers and distillers. These are the people who are behind the scenes—who are ready to finance a campaign, who want a greater sale for their goods. Third class, the silent voters, the people who are saying to themselves 'I do not believe in interfering with the liberties of any man.'

"These are the three classes who have brought pressure to bear on the government and they give four reasons why the act should be wiped out: First, the difficulty of enforcing it. The O.T.A. has not been violated as much as somes people maintain it has been. The people have been fortunate in the men who have been in attorney-general's offices. These men have made an honest effort to fairly and honestly administer the act. They cannot see from their office every corner of the province. What right has any citizen to violate the O.T.A. rather than violate any other law. There were forty thousand convictions during the last year under the motor and vehicle act yet no one says repeal that law. Second: the number of bootleggers operating in the province. Third: the tendency of the young people to carry the hip pocket flask, and fourth: revenue.

"It is likely," he continued, "that government stores will close early, possibly seven o'clock. A man may not develop a thirst until after that time. If he cannot get the liquor from the store he will hunt up a bootlegger the individual who has defied the law, and what about the young people under twenty-one who cannot get a permit? We are told the young people are drinking They will have to go to the bootlegger and then there is the individual who does not want to be seen going into a liquor store. He also will have to get it from his bootlegger.

"Regarding revenue the Premier says why not take the revenue away from the bootlegger and put it in the treasury of the province for building roads, etc. The good roads in Quebec that have not cost the people a cent are used as an argument. But 47 million dollars was spent in strong drink which is of no benefit in order to get back 4 1-2 millions in revenue. Money spent on strong drink does not go into the channel which supplies the necessities of life.

"If one tenth of the motor drivers were addicted to strong drink what would be the condition of the highways?" he asked. "I appeal to you at this crucial time to lay aside any party spirit because we are voting for high ideals, worth-while standards, and there is only one way and that is to support Mr. Anderson, the candidate who stands pledged to support the O.T.A.

F. D. Kerr was the last speaker. "My friend Col. Johnston, in his nomination address said there is one issue in this campaign," he said. "I am going further and say there are two issues, first, the advantages or disadvantages of the O. T. A., and second, whether the word of a man of high position such as the Premier of the province can be broken with impunity. Can he make a solemn pledge to the people and break it, and why did he do it? I believe he was crowded to it. He sympathized with the wets until finally he was driven into carrying out his half promises to these elements. I have no quarrel with an honest plebiscite. It is not a matter of party politics."

Mr. Kerr compared the attitude of Hon. W. Nickle and Premier Ferguson to this question. Mr. Nickle had sacrificed position for principle, while the Premier had sacrificed his word to the people of the province.

"Some people tell us," he continued, "that the offences the last year of the O.T.A. were more than some other years, but they do not attempt to say that conditions are worse than before the O.T.A. There are not nearly as many drunks as before. To-day there is a bootlegger in the land. With the O.T.A. defeated there will still be the bootlegger and a liquor store.

'It is for the women to decide this issue. There is nothing in it for them but a drunken son, husband or a wrecked home. If the men forget will the women forget? I think not, and I believe that the men and women of Havelock will roll up a big vote for the O.T.A."

The symphony orchestra played several selections before the meeting began and between speeches.

Mr. L. V. O'Connor, of Lindsay, who was advertised as one of the speakers, was unable to be present owing to the death of a relative.

Women's Danger

Of offending under the oldest hygienic handicap is ended this way

WITH the old-time "sanitary pad" women realize their constant danger of offense. And thus spend unhappy days.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops ALL danger of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Package of twelve costs only a few cents.

FINAL MEETING AT MILLBROOK

Several Speakers Uphold Candidature of T. B. Chalk in Durham.

SUPPORT FERGUSON.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 1.—A last appeal to the local electorate in the interests of Mayor T. B. Chalk, Conservative candidate, was made on Tuesday evening, a large audience gathering in the Town Hall to hear the speakers.

Captain Joseph Lawson, of Toronto, spoke first, stating: "I am in perfect unison with you, with our candidate, Mayor Chalk, and with the majority of the men and women of this audience in wholeheartedly supporting Honorable Howard Ferguson in giving true temperance legislation, and in raising the morals of this province."

"I am speaking as a staunch advocate of temperance, as a church worker, as president of the largest Anglican Men's Club (250 'real men' members) in this province, probably in the Dominion. Attorney-General W. H. Price is our honorary president."

A letter of apology received from William Nill, of Cavan, written because of interrupting Captain Lawson at a public meeting held at Cavanville some ten days ago, taking back statements made at that time regarding Colonel Price's action in matters of temperance, was read and applauded.

The record of the Government was characterized as "wonderful," good roads, progress in agriculture, and capital invested in Northern Ontario leading to its development, being listed. Testifying to the Prime Minister's commendable record, the speaker said his blunt statements, "particularly about the girls liking a man to have liquor on his breath, had quite a bit of truth in it"—his own daughter's testimony being adduced as evidence.

Reputed drinking in the downtown districts in Toronto was avowed correct, and a concrete instance of liquor being consumed by both young men and young ladies at a house party in his own residential section, was cited. "A neighbor told me he could not sleep for the uproar, and counted thirty half-pint, empty whisky bottles in the backyard the next morning."

"This Government will strive to remedy conditions which are so bad in Toronto, and if you have no such things happening here, I'm going to appeal to you to help us to get them straightened out in the large cities. Right here in your own township, I am informed, a community hall has been closed three times in the past few months because of this very thing — boys bringing liquor and giving the girls a drink."

As has been usual in this campaign, some smart raps were given the ministry of the United Church for their active participation in the contest against Government control, the speaker adding: "I venture to say that 'Chalk' talks by our candidate in Port Hope will do a great deal more good than the talks of some of our 'friends' in the ministry." (Laughter and applause).

That the issuance of doctors' scrips increased amazingly immediately before Christmas last year was averred, the question being added: "Which would you rather have—Government control, or bootlegger control? Colonel Price put it neatly when he said, 'If we must have this liquor system, why not the Government have the $25,000,000 and the bootlegger the $5,000,000?' The Government will make amendments and control this thing, and put the bootlegger out of business."

"Did you ever hear of home brew before the O.T.A.? A man isn't really a bad man because he drinks whisky; some of the best men I have ever known drank, and some of the worst never took a drink," and Captain Lawson went on to speak of the general dislike to inform on a friend, or a neighbor, engaged in illicit liquor sale, as another reason why the O.T.A. cannot be enforced.

Formerly a firm believer in the O.T.A., the speaker believed a change now is necessary, and prolonged applause was accorded him as his address was concluded.

W. T. Mikel, K.C.

W. T. Mikel, K.C., ex-Mayor of Belleville, spoke next, opening his remarks with a reference to "the tendency to get away from leading issues in this campaign, and listen to slander and scandal" Calling the Howard Ferguson party the "wets" he believed was misleading and of this ministers and others have been guilty.

The difficulties of enforcing the O.T.A.—"which is simply a form of government control"—were pointed out from various angles. "After some years of experience it has been proved full of defects, so the public has pronounced against it."

"You can teach control in the use of liquor better by education than by legislation; we rely too much upon legislation rather than training. The Jews are accustomed to liquor from childhood in their customs and religious observances, and yet no Jew is ever up in court for drunkenness; surely a Christian may learn control as well. If some of our ministers would devote more time to training and bother less with legislation, I believe they would do better work."

The support of a number of prominent Liberals for Mr. Ferguson in this election was mentioned, and certain of what the speaker termed injustices in the Ontario Temperance Act were pointed out. The fact, too, that the Dominion government controls the importation and manufacture of liquor led to the statement, "if we could stop these two things, we might stop the use of liquor; as it is, the only sensible things is to try and control that great Niagara of strong drink which is daily, hourly, pouring into our country."

A strong appeal for support for the Conservative candidate closed the address, and Mr. Mikel was warmly applauded as he sat down.

C. J. Thornton

C. J. Thornton, ex-M.P., of Orono, spoke at some length, stressing the fact that the efficient business administration of the Ferguson government has not been brought sufficiently before the public in this election. "A great deal of prosperity we have in the Dominion is due to the fine type of government we have had in Ontario under the Hon. Howard Ferguson."

"Is the church wrong today? I fear she is. The feeling is so strong in my own home town of Orono today, there has actually been a proposition to turn me out of the church because of the stand I take on this question—and I have been a Methodist for 60 years."

"Isn't it wrong that we teach that one party is the pure, the Christian, party, and the other is the friend of booze, and of all wickedness."

The applause given Mr. Thornton showed his popularity with the audience, many of whom are his close personal friends.

Ex-Warden J. L. McCamus was chairman of the meeting which closed with the National Anthem.

42 INDICTMENTS FOR LIQUOR RING

ON PACIFIC COAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Forty-two secret indictments against members of an alleged liquor smuggling conspiracy extending from British Columbia to Southern California have been voted by the Federal Grand Jury here. The indictments were returned as the step in move by the Government to break what it calls the largest rum running combine ever operated on the Pacific Coast.

BISHOP RESIGNS.

Mgr. Leonard, of Rimouski, Gives Up See Due To Ill Health.

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press)—Mgr. Leonard, Roman Catholic Bishop of Rimouski, has resigned from the See, owing to ill health. Bishop Leonard made this announcement in a pastoral letter in which she says that he sent his resignation to Rome in October and that it was accepted.

Mgr. Leonard has been Bishop of Rimouski since 1920. He was formerly parish priest of Montjoli, Que.

SEARCH ABANDONED.

For Bodies of Two Men in Montreal River Boat Fire.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—The search for the bodies of two men believed to have been burned to death in the fire which destroyed the river boat, Montreal, at St. Joseph de Sorel, a week or so ago, was unsuccessfully completed yesterday. No trace of the men could be found, the indescribable state of the ruins rendering identication of any object impossible.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MELVILLE CROWE.

WARSAW, Dec. 1.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Melville Crowe was a very large one. Both she and her husband had very large family connections, and she was very highly esteemed by those who knew her. There were many beautiful flowers from family, friends, and organizations. Rev. H. B. Herrington conducted the services. Mr. Henry Batten sang a suitable solo.

The eight pall-bearers were: Hilliard McCracken, Clayton Dunford, Garfield Dunford, Russel Lane, Alvin Drain, Goldie Drain, Melville McWilliams and Mr. Nurse.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE ANNUAL BAZAAR

Grace Presbyterian Church Held Event in Armouries at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 30.—The Women's League of Grace Presbyterian church held its annual bazaar in the Armouries on Saturday afternoon, the sale with the fowl supper and the entertainment following, attracting a good attendance, and being sucessfully carried out in every particular.

The decorations of the various booths were planned in view of the approaching Christmas season, Yuletide colors of red and green predominating, while bells, holly wreaths, and bright hued balls, were in evidence particularly at the children's wear booth, Mrs. N. Gilmour, Mrs. S. Pitchard, and Mrs. S. E. Eakins being in charge.

The "parcel post" booth, presided over by Mrs. J. R. Eakins Miss E. Hunter, and Mrs. H. R. Armstrong, was an innovation, the large stock of attractively-wrapped bundles creating so brisk a demand the counter was empty long before the supper hour. The parcels were donated by friends near and far, and contained many choice bargains at a standard price of 25 cents.

At the apron booth were Mrs. R. McMahon and Mrs. L. C. Russell, and in the fancy work section Mrs. (Dr.) Ellis, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, Miss K. Lancashire, and Miss Ethel McKnight, its counter, in common with all the others at the sale, having an abundant display of attractive wares.

The "fish pond" was thronged by the kiddies from the opening hour of 2 p.m. until there were no more "fish" to "bite"; when the silver "bait" gave permission for the hook to be lowered. The candy booth was decorated in pink and white with Misses Hunter, F. Larmer, and L. Syer as attentive salesladies, and in the "Country Store" which occupied a large space and carried on a thriving trade, the 'clerks" were Mrs. T. Ingram Mrs. Wilbert Larmer, Mrs. David Armstrong, and Mrs. E. Armstrong. Mrs. Stanley Carveth and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne looked after the fish pond and its eager customers.

The fowl supper was well patronized by the entire community and the seating capacity was entirely occupied when the concert began at 8 p.m. Among those who assisted in serving the supper were: Mrs. J. H. Paul, Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. Lambert Gibson, Mrs. J. N. McGill, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. H. Russell, Mrs. R. Wright, Mrs. T. Reid, Mrs. Seton, Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. W. T. A Deyell, Mrs. G. Bothwell, Mrs. Eber Syer, Mrs. Ephraim Syer Mrs. W. Thorne, Mrs. Rowan, Mrs. Lytle, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. H. Ball, Mrs. R. J. Armstrong, Misses Ruby Thorndyke, Muriel Ball, Mildred Bothwel, Margaret Armstrong, Miriam Lord, Robina Challice, Stella Beatty, Hazel Thompson, and E. McKnight.

Those who contributed to the enjoyable programme, which was the concluding item of a very successful event were Misses Martha and Marguerite Lang, who were heard in piano duets; Miss Kathleen Lancashire, whose vocal solos were much appreciated; Miss Muriel Matchett always popular as a reader; and Mrs. McKee Bingham, whose character readings in costume were of especial interest, her numbers including a selection from Longfelow's "Hiawatha", Riley's "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," "An Old-Fashioned Minuet" and others. Miss Ella Elson was the accompanist of the evening.

Mrs. R. J. McKnight, President of the Women's League, had a general oversight of the entire sale; Mrs. J. R. Eakins is treasurer, and Mrs. T. C. Ingram secreary. Financially the results were considerably over $350.00.

Special Church Service

A special service in the interests of the Young Worshippers' League was held in the United Church on Sunday morning, the prevalence of chicken pox in the village, and vicinity, and the unfavorable weather combining to lessen the attendance of the younger folk, bringing it below normal.

The song, "Working Together", by three little girls, Bryar Edmunds, Myrtle Nattrass, and Mary Burnham, and the tenor solo "I Think When I Read that Sweet Story" by Mr. H. W. Johnston, were the special musical numbers particularly appropriate to the occasion. The hymns used were the three which have been learned during the past few months, using one each Sunday morning, in the interests of the Y.W.L.: "Our God is in the Sunshine Gay"; "Children of Jerusalem", and "Jesus High in Glory."

'Salt" was the theme chosen by the pastor, the text being, "Salt is good", Mark 9:50, and the facts emphasized were that it adds a life element to food; is necessary to health; is purifying in its action; that the "covenant of salt", mentioned three times in the Old Testament, had the same significance as that of blood, and meant a perpetual and unalterable covenant.

"Ye are salt", and "Let your conversation be with grace, seasoned with salt," "by word, and deed, and influence help men to become wiser and better just as salt imparts to food a more acceptable flavor, and means life, healing, and value."

Miss Wilma Fallis is secretary of the Young Worshipers' League, and more than fifty members are enrolled in the local branch.

Elected Representative.

Nelles Rowland has been elected representative from Durham East (not including Port Hope) at the Boys' Parliament which meets at Queen's Park during Christmas week. Polling took place on Friday and Saturday. Franklin Bannister of Garden Hill, was the opposing candidate in this section. Nelles is a member of the Bank of Toronto staff Millbrook; he had a majority of 16 votes.

O.T.A. UPHELD BY SPEAKERS

Meeting Held at Mount Pleasant in Interests of Mr. Bragg.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Dec. 1.—On Friday evening, Nov. 26, a meeting in the interests of Mr. Bragg, the Liberal candidate for Durham, was held at Mount Pleasant in the Temperance Hall.

Mr. Fred Fallis, of Millbrook, president of the County Prohibition Union, was in the chair and opened the meeting with a few remarks on temperance, which platform was well upheld by the speakers following.

Rev. J. O. Totten, of Cavanville, was the first speaker. He gave an inspiring address and said it was his first appearance on a political platform, and also stated that as a minister he was not ashamed to take part in this campaign. It was not, he said, a political matter. He recalled the history of the temperance legislation from the early struggles for local option up to the enactment of the O.T.A. No man or woman, he said, would deny that good had come from the Act. The incessant agitation for the repeal of the O.T.A. came from the people who pride themselves on personal liberty, claiming a right to do as they like in a free country.

The next speaker was the candidate, Mr. Bragg, who delivered his speech also along the temperance views, said he had pledged himself in favor of the O.T.A. at the convention held at Orono with all sincerity. He also corrected several rumors that was spread with regards to his being connected with one of the big bootleggers. This, he stated, was absolutely untrue. In conclusion he asked for the support of the riding on Dec. 1, stating that he would promise to do his best if elected, for the interests of Durham.

The next speaker was Rev. Mr. Howard, of Millbrook, who outlined the good the O.T.A. had accomplished in the past years. He had with him a copy of the "Mirror," which contained several sentences which were found in Mr. Chalk's advertisement, which he commented on throughout his entire speech. He also told what benefit the O.T.A. has been for Ontario as a whole, declaring himself absolutely in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act.

The meeting closed with God Save the King.

ROBINSON SENT TO HIGHER COURT

Committed on Charge of Shooting With Intent To Kill.

VICTIM IMPROVES.

MADOC, Dec. 1.—The preliminary hearing of the Robinson - St. Charles case was held in Belleville yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Casement of Madoc, when Abraham Robinson of Eldorado was committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction in Belleville on the charge of shooting Charles St. Charles, bailiff, of Madoc, on November 15th, with intent to kill. The magistrate, in committing the accused, said there was a sufficient thread of evidence running through the stories as told by the several witnesses to cast a certain amount of suspicion.

"I do not feel that I could assume the responsibility of allowing him his freedom, but the evidence is not positive against him. I will, therefore, commit him for trial."

The usual warning was given the prisoner by the magistrate before he was committed. Mr. Mikel, his counsel, offered no defence nor statement at the time of commitment. B. C. Donnan, Crown prosecutor, conducted the case, and W. C. Mikel, K.C., appeared for the defence.

Evidence was given by Mr. Smith, tax collector of Madoc municipality; W. J. Allan, township clerk; R. C. Clarke, photographer of Belleville, who produced pictures taken at the Robinson home on November 18, shortly after the alleged crime; Stanley Lewis and Joe Shorkey, who went to the Robinson home with Bailiff St. Charles and Provincial Officer Hill, to bring back the cattle; Foster Broad, a farmer who had gone to the Robinson place to thresh on November 15; Provincial Constable Percy McCoy of Madoc; Lemuel Robinson, brother of the accused, and Eliza Robinson, a sister; Rev. A. Redding of Bannockburn; and Alex. Shorkey. Dr. R. A. Thompson of Eldorado gave the result of his examination of St. Charles.

Bailiff St. Charles was reported a little better yesterday. On Monday it was found necessary to operate on him to remove a broken piece of rib that was retarding his recovery.

POLITICAL FORECASTS.

Tonight the political prophets will be able to see for themselves just how qualified they are to make election forecasts.

Everybody has been at it for the past few days, and the predictions, as might be expected, show a striking variance.

Within a half hour yesterday one man was heard to predict 80 seats for the Government, and another to just as positively declare that Mr. Ferguson would be lucky if he has 40 supporters in the new Legislature.

The O.T.A. question, breaking into the usual political alignments and even dividing households, has complicated the work of the forecast experts.

Some use the vote in the last plebiscite as the basis of their predictions, others study the political faith of particular ridings for a guide, but in the last analysis they are all more or less guessing.

The result hinges upon the way in which the thousands of voters who have been taking little part in the argument have marked their ballots today.

EARLY MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Apparently the holding of municipal elections early in December has had a marked effect in some municipalities in stirring up interest in civic affairs and in making it possible to secure the candidature of capable citizens.

In spite of all the turmoil and confusion of an unusually bitter Provincial election, those municipalities whose nominations were held on Monday showed surprising interest in municipal politics.

In Belleville, for example, no fewer than twenty-nine candidates for aldermanic honours were nominated.

Twelve are to be elected, and while all of those whose names were proposed will not, of course, qualify, there will be enough left to give the electors a good choice when they come to mark their ballots.

The early election date does not break in upon the Christmas season, and judging by the experience of other municipalities, it leads to more enthusiasm on the part of the citizens and a greater desire to serve on the part of those who are qualified for municipal positions.

OLD RIVALS PASS.

Today is not only election day in Ontario, but down Kingston way it will be remembered, not altogether for the bitter fight between Ald. Kidd and Hon. W. F. Nickle, but because it marks the passing of the Limestone City's two venerable old newspapers, The Standard and The British Whig, political foes for generations.

Yesterday, the closing day of the Provincial campaign, saw the final issue of the two papers in their familiar form.

Today The Kingston Whig-Standard, an amalgamation of the two dailies, makes its initial appearance.

They fought each other throughout the campaign as they always have done, although the unusual spectacle was afforded of The Standard attacking Mr. Nickle it had always supported, while The Whig endorsed the ex-Attorney-General after making him a target during the whole of his political life.

However excellent may be the new daily, the citizens of Kingston, especially at election times, are likely to miss the doughty old warriors of the newspaper world.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.

As usual on election night The Examiner will be glad to furnish information over the telephone as to results both locally and throughout the Province.

Arrangements have been made for an up-to-the-minute service, and we expect to be in a position to answer queries promptly and accurately.

At the same time may we beg the co-operation of the public in the important task of supplying election news.

Officials on duty at the polling booths can materially assist by promptly telephoning The Examiner as soon as the results at their particular poll have been ascertained.

Citizens generally can help by making their queries as short as possible, and by not asking for the results in a whole string of ridings as some people have done on other election nights.

There is naturally a very keen interest in the returns, much more than is usually the case in regard to Provincial elections, and The Examiner expects to be kept decidedly busy in furnishing the information wanted, so that requests for election news should be made as reasonable as possible.

And above all, citizens should remember that the polls do not close until 7 o'clock, so that calls for information before 7.30 at the earliest will be only wasting the time of the staff.

NATURAL DEVELOPMENT.

"We have tried to see things as they are and to put them forth for the world to see. That is, however, a different thing from digging a plant up every year to see if it is growing."

These were the words of Premier Stanley Baldwin at a farewell banquet to the Dominion Premiers, given by the Empire Parliamentary Association in London Friday night. They contain nothing of the fear and trembling with which a certain type of "colonial" mind in Canada seems to regard the recent efforts of the Imperial Conference in respect to the status of the various countries comprising the British Commonwealth of Nations.

At the same banquet, Canada's chief representative, Premier King, stressed the point that those things which have long been conceded have now been made a matter of official record. It was true of most British charters, Mr. King said, that they did not pretend to set up anything new. They purported rather to assert, in a form thereafter no longer open to challenge, rights which, with time, have become established. Let us quote the Prime Minister directly:

"Speaking for the Dominion of Canada, I know I can say that the pride of our people in the achievements of the Imperial Conference, as respects Canada's relations in domestic and external affairs, will be not in what has been gained, but rather in the fact that what has been attained is now NO LONGER OPEN TO QUESTION. Our pride will be greater in that this acknowledgment was made without a dissenting voice, that in all that has been recorded, you of the Motherland and we of the Dominions have been in complete accord. The charter of liberties we individually and collectively enjoy may, to all appearances, have been enlarged. In reality there has been, as respects British political institutions, a natural development along inevitable lines."

And Mr. King added that when the controversy of the moment subsided it would be found that the Imperial Conference revealed foundations of national autonomy and imperial unity deeper, broader and more enduring than many had dreamed.

In The Border Cities Star of Saturday, there appeared an interesting letter from Mr. Sidney Groocock, of Detroit, dealing with the Imperial Conference decisions and with comments of The Star thereon. Mr. Groocock is a former Canadian but has been out of this country for 20 years. This circumstance may, to some extent, affect his viewpoint. Mr. Groocock cautions Canadians that they should think imperially rather than nationally and he looks with disfavor on talk of equal status as between Great Britain and the Dominions. "Here in the United States," he says, "we take pride in big things. We have the biggest commercial organizations, the biggest parks, the biggest monuments and, perhaps, the biggest heads. If we were in the Empire we would have the biggest Empire in the world and it would give us an inspiration which is lacking in Canada."

But is there virtue or advantage in mere bigness? It is true that Canadians do not stress this feature as do their American cousins. If we were inclined to do so there would be no lack of opportunity. Our country is BIGGER than the United States and WE DO BELONG to the BIGGEST EMPIRE IN THE WORLD. But everyone knows these things. Why labor them? The point that Mr. Groocock—and there are others—seems to overlook is that it is possible for Canada to have a strong national spirit and at the same time be a faithful and devoted partner in the organization known as the British Commonwealth of Nations. Those who criticize the action of the Imperial Conference feel that a declaration of equal rights—as between the Motherland and the Dominions—implies a breaking away, a severance of the ties that bind us together. Let it be understood most emphatically that this is not the case. It is the fact, though, that Canada, Australia and the others have "grown up." They are no longer in swaddling clothes. They have come of age. They have reached man's estate. And now they are officially taken into partnership. As a matter of fact they have been in partnership for some time. The Imperial Conference now records the arrangement. What cause for alarm is there in this?—Border Cities Star.

NATIONAL TEAM PLAY.

In an address the other day, Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, made a strong plea for team work in the upbuilding of Canada. In the past there has been too much political bickering, and too much of a tendency to slander and belittle even what is for the genuine good of the country, for the sake of political advantage, for the Dominion to make its greatest progress and reach the goal of national unity. The people of Canada have been unnecessarily split into sections and factions, arranged against each other, under the impression that what was for the advantage of one was not for the good of all. It is absolutely necessary to develop within the Dominion a broad and tolerant spirit that will think and act in terms of Canada. In this regard Sir Henry said:

"Inter-Provincial hostilities should be reserved to that time when we become a greater and wealthier nation, and when that time arrives we shall find it an unproductive occupation. In Canada we have many, many sections, with diverse interests. But upon analysis one finds that all of these interests are fundamentally the same, and our motto should be that of the three guardsmen, 'One for all and all for one.' The crevices of this country need to be filled with the cement of population. We need to think nationally and not Provincially or locally. There is no reason why we may not compete with each other in a sporting fashion, but it is to court disaster to disagree with respect to national problems. So, if team-work carries any message to the people of Canada, it is a message to act nationally and to think nationally."

This great captain of transportation pointed out that the Commonwealth of British Nations was the finest expression of team work on a large scale that was in the world today. It is the essence of patriotism that it works for the good of the country. In this work the foundation is loyalty, but there must be leadership to make it effective, leadership that is unprejudiced, and that deals fairly with every member of the team. This lesson, Sir Henry declared, Canada must learn and practise.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Remember you have until 7 o'clock tonight to vote. If you haven't marked your ballot yet, there may still be time.

At all events the arguments over the merits of the O.T.A. should subside after today—except for the post mortems.

Tonight we will see just how accurate some of those political prophets really are.

The campaign has at least developed the fact that there are plenty of people on both sides of the question who have no hesitation in talking without being any too sure of their facts.

It is a safe wager that among the queries The Examiner will most frequently hear tonight is, "What is the news from Kingston?"

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the fact that the majority of foreign bids were below exporters' views, the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was again at a low ebb. The domestic trade in coarse grains was also dull and prices were easier. No. 2 Canadian Western oats were reduced 2 cents per bushel and No. 3 Canadian Western were off 1-2 cent.

Extreme dullness also marked the Spring and Winter wheat flour trade but prices were firm.

A fair amount of business was transacted in all lines of millfeed and prices maintained a firm tendency. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

The butter market was moderately active and values were steady. The receipts were 243 packages.

The undertone to the cheese market continued firm and the volume of business was fair. The receipts were 2,218 boxes.

The demand for eggs was fair and prices for fresh and storage grades ruled steady. The receipts were 1,014 cases.

Prices for beans were well maintained under a fair enquiry. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel and broken lots at $3.00 per bushel.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 14,000; active; extreme top yearlings $13.00; mixed steers and heifers $12.70; prime 1,452 pound bullocks $11.15; long fed 1,75; pounders $9.15; bulk stockers and feeders $6.50 to $7.00.

Hogs 35,000; top $12.15; bulk desirable hogs, all weights $11.90 to $12.10; most packing $10.50 to $11.00; bulk desirable pigs $11.75 to $12.00.

Sheep 20,000; top fed westerns to shippers $13.65; bulk desirable wooled lambs $13.00 to $13.50; sheep steady; bulk fat ewes $5.00 to $6.50; best held around $7.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Heavy selling in which houses with connections east took the lead carried wheat values decidedly down-grade yesterday at the last. The selling was more or less associated with reports that Argentine wheat abroad is underselling Canadian. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were weak 3-8 to 1 3-8 net lower; corn unchanged to 1-4c up; oats unchanged to 1-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 37 cents.

With only moderate deliveries of corn on December contracts here looked for today, the corn market showed a firm undertone. Oats were easier, affected by an outlook that today's deliveries will be of liberal volume.

STERLING EXCHANGE

Sterling demand $4.83 15-16.

Sterling cables $4.84 1-2.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

FROM EPHRIAM SCOTT.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: Rev. Dr. Harvey, ex-Moderator of the U. F. Church of Scotland, who has been featured for weeks in the Canadian daily press as addressing coast to coast meetings of the "United Church," has—in an unguarded moment—told the secret of his speaking tour in Canada. At a meeting in Moose Jaw, Sask., as reported in the "Moose Jaw Times," of October 30, he began by saying: "It has been conceived by those at the head of the United Church of Canada that it would be useful to that church as a foil against the Presbyterians not within the Union in Canada."

This, then, is the object of his visit to Canada,—"Those at the head of the United Church"—after taking unjustly from Presbyterians—all over Canada—their church homes, because they would not surrender to usurped officialism their Presbyterian freedom and the rights of the people;—after turning them out of doors to worship where they might, in halls, shops, barns or sheds,—after shameful confiscation of sacred trusts, left in bygone years to the Presbyterian Church,—are still planning and working to "foil "them, and have brought Dr. Harvey to Canada for that end.

It recalls an Old Testament story, of another people escaped from bondage, who were on their way to their promised land, when some desert tribes attempted their extinction and failed. "And Moab was much distressed because of the children of Israel—because they were many."

Then "it was conceived by those at the head of "the Moabites, that though their own efforts were of no avail "against" Israel, some one skilled in magic "would be useful as a foil against them."

Then Balak, King of Moab, sent messengers to Balaam, with the rewards of divination in their hands, and they said to Balaam: "There is a people come out of Egypt, and behold they cover the face of the earth, and they abide over against me. Come now I pray thee, curse me this people," be "a foil against them."

Then Balaam came to Moab, not in a Pullman but on an ass, and even the ass protested. But though "those at the head of" Moab sent him to viewpoint after viewpoint, and urged him—'Curse me them from thence," God met him everywhere with—"Thou shalt not curse them for they are blessed."

How history repeats! When Canada's Presbyterians would not submit to ecclesiastical bondage—"Those at the head of the United Church"—"were much distressed because of them"—"for they were many." And they sent messengers to Dr. Harvey, saying, "There is a people in Canada who believe that the people, not the officials, are the church, and who will not put their necks under the yoke of clerical autocracy, and they are many, covering the whole land. Now therefore come, we pray thee—foil this people for us." And he came.

But though "those at the head of the United Church" have sent him from one viewpoint to another all across Canada, bidding him "foil the Presbyterians from thence," and though he has performed his magic rites as best he knew, the only result visible is the growing multitude of Presbyterians, new groups organizing and new churches rising everywhere.

And who in Scotland does the "foil" represent? So recently as the seventeenth century, the Presbyterians of Scotland for a generation suffered sore persecution. Because they wished to be a church of free people, to worship God according to conscience, and would not submit to clerical and prelatic control, they were hunted and imprisoned, they were tortured with thumscrew and boot; they were shot on the moor and burned at the stake.

Does Dr. Harvey represent those Presbyterians of Scotland who suffered thus for loyalty to truth and religious liberty? Evidently not, for—according to his own statement—he has come "as foil against the Presbyterians in Canada" who have suffered loss for like loyalty to freedom and to truth.

Or can it be that "those who are at the head of the United Church of Canada," who went as far as the law would allow them—and sought to go farther—in like attempt at coercion,—can it be that they wished some one from Scotland to teach them how it once was done; how Claverhouse and Lagg and their "moss troopers" "foiled" the Presbyterians who stood for liberty in the days of old, and "conceived" that Dr. Harvey "would be useful to them as a foil against the Presbyterians" in Canada to-day?

BABY'S DIET

If babies could have their choice no doubt they would select healthy mothers and thus be assured of a good supply of nourishing milk for the first few months of their lives.

As a rule, the modern mother is too nervous and irritable, besides being careless about her food. If this is true, then "Milk From Contented Cows" is of far more value to the young baby than is the milk from a mother who is mentally and physically abnormal or unwell.

Because the mothers of America are unhealthy, 187,000 babies under the age of one year died in 1924; 98,000 of them dying during the first month of the lives.

The mother's diet before the baby's birth and during the nursing period does not have to be much different than it does at any other time during her life. It is only that at this time the mother should feel the added responsibility and furnish her baby with the right kind of nourishment; that she should be doubly careful, as the baby is helpless and under the control of the mother. If the baby is sick, it is because of the mother's bad habits, due to carelessness or ignorance. If the baby develops enlarged tonsils or adenoids, it is always because he has been fed on the wrong food, and no other reason should be looked for. Unless the baby is fed an excess of carbohydrates, there is no chance of its developing enlarged glands. Enlarged tonsils and adenoids develop from the use of white flour products and sugars, whether in the form of candy or jellies and jams.

If the child is well nourished, it will not be hungry between meals, but an ill-fed child is always hungry as it is really starving for certain vital elements which can only be found in the right kind of food. If the child is allowed to fill up on palate-pleasing and tasty dishes, such as can be easily made from the carbohydrates, of course, he will not be able to also use the foods less stimulating to the taste, such as spinach, celery and all of the valuable non-starchy vegetables.

The main cause of bad habits of children is due to the selfishness of parents, who are so anxious to gain favor with the child that he is allowed many kinds of foods which are unwholesome for him. Father buys a sack of popcorn, mother counters with a lollipop and then grandma buys him an ice cream cone. Each one selfishly buying the child's favor. When the child suffers from measles and scarlet fever, the parents do not reason back far enough to discover the real cause which lay in the bad eating habits he has been allowed to develop.

The dull and backward child will be found to have lived almost entirely on a one-sided diet or carbohydrates. If the diet of these children is not corrected before the age of puberty, there is little hope of their minds ever becoming normal and active later in life.

Start your study of diet today, if you wish to teach your child to eat so as to grow a strong and healthy body with no impairment of the mental faculties, due to a poisoned blood stream from wrong food.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE WEATHER OF THE SOUL

By Dr. Frank Crane.

The soul has its weathers.

Sometimes all is bright and serene, and other times it is dark and cloudy.

Sometimes it is clear weather and sometimes stormy.

As in the case of the winds, of which we know not whence they come nor whither they go, but take their blowing as an act of God beyond our control, so our moods and tempers seem to arise we know not how.

The best we can do is to maintain our poise as much as possible and turn toward our ideals when the winds of pessimism and doubt are upon us, and remain as equable as we can.

We speak of getting out of bed in the morning with the wrong foot foremost. It is another way of saying that we are in the grip of a mood that is beyond our control.

How many acts of our fellows that seem to us malicious are simply due to the prevalence of some uncontrollable mood in them?

There are some people, thanks be, that are always bright and cheery. One who has this sunny disposition is to be congratulated, and even more to be felicitated are those about him.

If one can be a point of sunshine in this storm-tossed world he has certainly added much to human well being.

The alternation of moods, however, is common to all of us. We should all expect some dark days and resist their influence as much as possible. We can do very much with our will.

Our judgment should tell us the danger of letting ourselves go when "the wind is from the east." We should wait until the times change and not give way to dull humors. It can be accomplished if we are but fixed in our determination to encourage cheerful moods and discourage untoward feelings.

We cannot control our feelings, it is true, but by a set purpose we can make them strengthen us.

THINKS DOYLE IS THE VICTIM OF CREDULITY

Charges Made By Professor of University of Wisconsin.

SLEIGHT OF MIND.

Said Logic Was the Fundamental Principle of All Science.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Charges that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, British author and exponent of spiritualism, is a victim of credulity, were made last night by Professor Joseph Jastrow, of the University of Wisconsin, speaking at a symposium on psychical research, at Clark university. Earlier in the session a letter from Sir Arthur had been read expressing the view that psychical research eventually would unite science and religion.

Taking as his subject, The Animus of Psychical Research, Professor Jastrow said logic was the fundamental principle of all science, without which there could be no real investigation. Because of the animus or purpose of the investigator, he said, entanglement of fact and theory made the work difficult, but logic remained the plumline of science.

"We must sift out the facts and test them, because sleight of mind is more subtle than sleight of hand," Professor Jastrow said. "It is possible to substitute the gold of influence for the brass of fact. There is a tendency to find and bolster up facts to support our belief."

"Spiritualism," the speaker said, "might be interpreted as a sort of Freudian wish."

HORSES FEATURE AT WINTER FAIR

Very Seldom Equalled Before at Any Show in Dominion.

GRAND COMEBACK.

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Everything points to a come-back by the Ontario Provincial Winter Fair which is being held this week. A few years ago when the mammoth Royal got under way in Toronto, many authorities predicted the gradual disappearance of this show, which has been running continuously for the past 43 years and indeed at first looked as if Guelph would go under. The attendance and number of entries dwindled. Yesterday, however, Ontario's first Winter Exhibition was back on its feet and stronger than ever. Monday's exhibits and attendance scored a record insofar as recent years are concerned, while further success was reported yesterday.

The Clydesdale horses which came out before the judges yesterday afternoon made a showing never equalled before at Guelph and very seldom equalled at any show in the Dominion. Classes were well filled with quality very high. In fact, the cream of the Clyde population both in Eastern and Western Canada was here. Arnprior Emigrant, owned by the Reston Agricultural Syndicate, of Reston, Man., a stallion which carried off the Grand Championship award at the Royal Winter Fair, headed the male classes here, with Fyvie Star, the property of W. J. McCallum, of Brampton and Regina, winning the Junior Championship. Another Westerner, David Binnie, Rosser, Man., had the Senior and Grand Champion female in Deanstone Choice, while the Junior Ribbon went to the Shale Brick Company of Cooksville, on a Brandon bred horse, Bella Carbrook. Westerners had a walk-over in Percherons, with Carl Roberts, Osborne, Man., winning the Champion Stallion on Monarch, and Champion Mare on Monarch's Rose.

SAVANTS DIFFER ABOUT CANCERS

One Says They Are Purely Local—Other Says Indicate Nerve Trouble.

TREATMENTS VARY.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Two internationally known x-ray specialists, one of Germany the other of France, and both honorary guests of the Radiological Society of North America, have came forward with contrary theories as the cause of cancer.

Dr. Herman Wintz, of the University of Erlangen, Germany, contended that cancer is a purely local condition of the flesh. Dr. Jules F. Riviere, Paris, said to be the first radiologist to apply roentgen rays to the treatment of diseases, maintain that cancer is the manifestation of a general breakdown of the nervous system.

"Cancer is not a purely local disease," Dr. Rieviere said. "It is an indication of general diseased condition. As a result the body as a whole must be cleansed and treated as well as the abnormal spot in the flesh."

WATERWAY REPORT WILL BE DISCUSSED

Hoover Calls Meeting of U. S. Section of the Commission.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press)—Hon. Herbert Hoover, secretary of Commerce, as chairman of the United States section of the International Commission on the Great Lakes Ship Canal project, has called a meeting of the section for December 10, to go over the report of the engineers on St. Lawrence waterway which was made public last week. It is likely that the United States section ill have a report to make upon the engineers' findings.

The chief point of importance, Mr. Hoover said is in the fact that a comparison between the costs and advantages of constructing a shipway into the Great Lakes via the St. Lawrence, or through New York State entirely on the United States side, will soon be available. Findings as to the practicability and cost are likely to be assembled, hes aid, in time for submission to Congress at the coming session.

SALES AND BAZAARS

MADOC, Nov. 30.—A very successful bazaar and supper was held by the ladies of St. John's Anglican church on Saturday afternoon and evening.

The usual fancy articles suitable for Christmas gifts were for sale and a new feature this year was a parcel post table on which were parcels of all sizes and descriptions for twenty-five cents. A table of toys and a fish pond were added attractions for the children.

At the supper the table decorations were of red and white and the sudden cold change in the weather made the steaming hot dishes particularly tempting.

The financial returns were very satisfactory, the proceeds of the sale amounting to seventy dollars and of the supper sixty dollars.

CHRIST CHURCH, CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30 — The Willing Workers of Christ Church held a successful bazaar on Friday and Saturday, November 26th and 27th, in the Parish Hall. There were many decorated booths including all kinds of noveltics and refreshments. The booths were wound with streamers of yellow and black, rose and silver, red and green, rosettes of tinsel and many bright colored lights.

The first booth was the country store and contained all kinds of cakes pies, chickens, fruits, pickles, etc., and was managed by Mesdames Douglas, Sargent, S. Smith and Hollings. The plain sewing booth contained many articles, such as aprons, shirts, mitts, etc., with Mrs. T. S. Tait, Mrs. E. Tait, Miss A. Bedford and Miss Helen Tait as convenors. Many handsome articles of fancy work were in the booth, of which Misses Martin and E. Bonnycastle were convenors. Mrs. A. McColl, Mrs. F. Bonnycastle and Miss E. Bedford had charge of the novelty booth which contained many articles of fancy work. The "Wheel of Fortune," managed by Mrs. F. Free, Mrs. M. West, and Miss L. Smith, was a busy centre for the evening. The managers of the candy booth Mrs. Jenkins and Miss G. Maynard, sold a large variety of toothsome dainties. The fish pond, managed by Mrs. N. Dickson, Misses Norma and Thelma Nadoo, and Miss O'Neil, was a busy centre during each day for both young and old took much pleasure in "fishing." Many pretty "hankies" were sold from the handkerchief booth which was in charge of Miss Rose Newson and Miss Maud Light. The baby booth with Mesdames Laurie, J. Linton and H. Moore as assistants sold all manner of wearing apparel for small children. The home cooking booth, in charge of Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. E. Cassan, Mrs. N. Lloyd, and Mrs. E. Lee sold many cakes, pies, jellies, fruit, etc. The refreshment counter with Mrs. A. Linton as convenor and Mrs. E. Tinney, Mrs. C. Benor, Mrs. W. Smith and Mrs. R. Dunk as assistants were constantly busy serving lunches. Mrs. James Dunk and Mrs. Edward Runions were in charge of the fortune telling booth.

The ladies served supper both days and on Friday evening Mayor McArthur of Cobourg and his speakers for the meeting that evening were among the many patrons of the lunch counter.

Mrs. Bessie Jones was the winner of the large fruit cake donated by Mrs. Fred Linton. Miss Ethel Bedford held the lucky number for the handsome biscuit jar donated by Mrs. E. Birks. Mrs. Jenkins received the quilt made by the Willing Workers' Society and Mr. Ralph Locke won the pipes donated by Mrs. C. Nadoo. The ladies realized $575 for their efforts and are to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which everything was managed.

AT WELCOME.

WELCOME, Dec. 1.—Very successful services were held at Welcome United Church on Sunday, November 28th.

At the morning service Mr. Campbell, of Camborne, spoke on the subject of "God's Messengers." He said God had always had messengers since the time of the Israelites. Some of the messengers that are used are: (1) The messenger of fear; (2) The messenger of memory; (3) The messenger of reverence; (4) The messenger of conscience; (5) The messenger of love.

The Welcome choir sang an anthem.

At the evening service the Bethesda choir led the singing, and also rendered two very much appreciated anthems, entitled, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Rock of Ages."

Mr. Campbell's subject was, "The Christian Use of Power," based on Math. 4:3, "Command this stone that it be made bread."

He contrasted the act of Christ a few days previous in turning the water into wine at the wedding feast and his refusal to turn the stone into bread. In each case Christ had the power.

In one case was the pangs of hunger in the desert and in the other the inconvenience and humiliation of refreshments being short at a marriage feast But in one case He refused to do the act because it was for Himself, and in the other He did it because it was for others.

This age is the greatest age in the world's history for the development of power as illustrated in the radio, means of warfare, telegraphy and radium. The possibilities are that development of power will continue to a greater extent. But the question is, "Are the people of today capable of using this power aright?"

Lloyd George says "that people must stop developing means of warfare and work for peace, or the world will go to smash."

If countries develop further means of warfare all the boundaries of Europe will be traced in the blood of man as some are today. Every man has within him latent power. In some it is the gift of speech, the gift of song, the power of leadership. It is our duty to use whatever power we have for the good of mankind and the advancement of moral reform and Christianity.

In closing Mr. Campbell urged that we use our powers in the very highest way possible.

NORHAM NEWS

Miss Lulu Mitchell and Gordon, Douglas and Donald Knight spent a few days in Toronto last week.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Charles Pierson on Thursday afternoon.

Trinity United Church Sunday School is preparing for the usual Christmas tree.

There were 39 attended the People's League on Monday evening.

A social was held in the Church Hall at Meyersburg on Friday evening. The attendance was small on account of the rain, but everyone present seemed to enjoy the contests and games. It was decided to have no December meeting of the Ladies' Aid. The January meeting will be in the form of a social in the hall.

The Mission Band met in the League Hall on Saturday with 16 members present.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, 18, beautiful, and a conscienceless flirt, is playing the love game with a dozen admirers, including BOB HATHAWAY, CHRIS WILEY, a man of bad reputation, and ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman.

FAITH LANE, 20, is in love with Hathaway.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich amateur artist, proposes to Faith and is rejected. When Faith returns home that evening, she finds that Cherry and most of her clothes have disappeared, and that Mrs. Albert Ettleson has come to warn the Lane family that Cherry and her husband are eloping to New York.

Mrs. Lane is seized with a heart attack, and Bob and Faith break all speed laws in getting to Darrow, in an effort to save Cherry from her own folly. They find that Cherry and Ettleson have boarded the limited for New York. A porter leads them to Ettleson's stateroom, which they find locked. At Cherry's scream for help, Bob Hathaway forced Ettleson to open the door, and is confronted with a drawn automatic.

Faith takes the gun from Ettleson, who turns upon Cherry with a torrent of abuse. On the drive back to the town where the Lanes live, Bob shows clearly that he despises Cherry, but when Faith later asks him what is to be done with Cherry, so that she will not disgrace the family and kill her mother, Hathaway offers the sacrifice of himself in marriage.

JOY, 9, interrupts with the news that Mr. Lane is whipping Cherry in the wood shed, and Bob and Faith again go to her rescue. Bob tells Mr. Lane he is willing to marry the girl, but Cherry rudely and violently rejects his offer, saying she has other plans.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI.

In the pause that followed Cherry's shocking, unbelievably rude refusal of Bob Hathaway's offer of marriage, Faith resolutely kept her eyes from his, tried, with all the force of her will, to suppress the rising tid of exultation and relief that threatened to flood her body.

Cherry didn't want him! Cherry had hurled him back on himself with venom and sarcasm, had made his self-sacrifice seem silly and tawdry. Oh, Bob! Poor Bob! Were his eyes hot with anger now, or were they dazzlingly blue with that incredible relief that had glorified Jim Lane for a brief minute, only to pass on, leaving him gray-cheeked and old and tired? Every nerve in Faith's body clamored for her to look into Bob Hathaway's face and read the answer there, but she did not dare.

Joy's nervous, high giggle broke the spell of silence.

"What are you doing up this time o' night, Joy?" Jim Lane demanded, moving toward the door slowly, as if his thin, stooped body were not strong enough for the burden of his troubles and of his shame. "I guess we'd better get to bed, all of us, I hope, you'll not take what my daughter said seriously, Mr. Hathaway. She—I don't think she's quite herself tonight. Good night, sir, and I wish none of this bad business had happened. I—I don't know how to apologize for Cherry—and myself—"

"That's all right, Mr. Lane," Bob Hathaway offered his hand with boyish awkwardness. "I don't blame you—all of us lose our heads sometimes. Good night, everybody."

Faith watched him swing off into the darkness, her pulses pounding. At the very last she had not been able to resist looking at him. And his good night had been aimed at her—at her alone!

When they had returned to the house, Faith begged her father to go to bed, but he shook his head stubbornly.

"No, I'll set up with her. It's nearly one o'clock and you've got to get up early in the morning, to get Joy off to school, and Cherry and Junior off to work. I'll take a half day off tomorrow, and get enough sleep to do me. Think she's lookin' better?" he asked anxiously, his mild, sad eyes fixed on the sleeping face of his wife.

"Much better." Faith lied, with a sob in her throat. "She'll be all right tomorrow, Dad; just you wait and see."

"I wish you'd tell Cherry I'm sorry," he faltered in a husky whisper. "Something come over me all of a sudden—I never thought I'd live to see the day that I'd raise my hand against a girl child o' mine."

"I'll tell her, Dad. She deserved to be punished, but she's too old for—for a whipping. Don't worry, Daddy." Because her pity for him was almost more than she could bear, she stooped and kissed him on his fluttering, wrinkled eyelids—a caress she had never given anyone before in her life.

She found Cherry's door locked.

"It's just me, honey," she called softly.

"Go 'way!" Cherry's strangled voice answered petulantly.

"Just for a minute, honey," Faith pleaded. "I've got a message for you."

After a moment the lock snapped, and Cherry stood before her, gnawing

at her lips and dashing angrily at the tears that were streaming down her cheeks, one of them still reddened with the imprint of her father's hand. She looked amazingly little and young in her clinging silk crepe chemise, her round knees as white as milk above the rolled tops of her silk stockings.

Faith stooped, swung the tiny body up into her arms as easily as if Cherry had been a child, and carried her to her bed.

"You lie there now, honey, and I'll do your face for you, and brush your hair."

When she came back to the bed from the dresser, carrying hair brush, a bit of soft old towel, and jars of cold cream and "skin food," she found that Cherry had rolled upon her side, her kneesdoubled up to her chin, her tiny, rose-tipped fingers pressing into her eyes.

"You mustn't cry like that, honey. You'll be sick." Faith soothed her. "Dad asked me to tell you that he was sorry and ashamed—"

"I deserved it!" Cherry sobbed more violently. "He ought to have covered my body with welts! He should have whipped me till the blood ran! Oh, Faith, I'm no good! I wish I could die!"

"No, you don't, Cherry!" Faith said more severely, but her hands were very gentle as she parted the riotous copper-and-gold curls and began to brush them with soothing monotony.

"You saved me from that terrible man, Faith. You and Bob. Why do you bother about me? Why don't you give me enough rope to hang myself? I'm no good, Faith! Bob knows it—Bob—" Fresh sobs choked off the words.

"Why did you humiliate him like that, Cherry? He doesn't deserve to be treated like that."

"Think I'm going to marry him when he doesn't love me any more?" Cherry flared, her topaz eyes blazing under the aureole of her brushed out curls.

"He was just hurt and angry." Faith read something in those blazing eyes that made her feel that her heart, so newly healed, so newly flooded with hope, was breaking again. "Any man would have been. Cherry. You can't blame him!"

How could she plead with Cherry for him like that, she asked herself in a fury of pain. Cherry had refused him—had insulted him. Why couldn't she let well enough alone—take the gift that the gods were so strangely offering her? But oh, the stark pain in those blazing golden eyes, in that twisted, quivering mouth!

"I'm not blaming him!" Cherry cried, seizing Faith's hand that wielded the brush upon her curls. "Please go away, Faith! Please let me alone! Oh, I wish I could die!"

"Because—because you love Bob?" Faith's white lips asked the words but she knew the answer.

"I'm crazy about him!" Cherry rolled over upon her side again, covering her face with her hands. "I didn't know it, until tonight, coming home in the car. When I saw he didn't love me, despised me, and when I saw you and him together—"

"What do you mean, Cherry?" Faith knelt by the bed and took the shaking little body into her arms.

"He's in love with you." Cherry put her arms around Faith's neck and buried her face against Faith's breast. "You don't think you and Bob Hathaway are the only ones in the world that can be noble, do you? I had to make him think I despised him, so's he wouldn't go on sacrificing himself for me. I couldn't take him, Faith, after you were so good to me. I'm no good, Faith, but I love you a lot."

Once again that day Faith told a lie for Cherry's sake, told it gallantly, with a gay voice, rippled with laughter, that tore at her throat like sobs: "You darling little goose! I'm not in love with Bob Hathaway! I'm—I'm thinking of marrying George Pruitt. He asked me today."

"Really, Faith! Honestly?" Cherry's whole face was suddenly radiant, her eyes like yellow diamonds, as she stared up into her sister's face.

"Yes, really." Faith nodded, but she could not meet the glad brilliance of Cherry's eyes. "But don't say a word about it to mother and dad. I couldn't leave mother while she's so sick—we may be engaged for years, you know—if I take him. Don't you think he's nice?"

The radiance died slowly out of Cherry's face. "You don't sound right," she said slowly. "Oh, Faith, don't go on forever being a self-sacrificing angel! You're lying to me! You're crazy about Bob Hathaway, and so am I, and he loves you and he doesn't love me—any more. I could get him back but I won't try. I want you to have him, even if it breaks my heart."

"Don't be a little idiot!" Faith's voice was husky with tears. "We're a fine pair—swapping Bob Hathaway back and forth between us, as if he had nothing to say in the matter. Sit still on my knees, now, and let me cold cream your face—your adorable, naughty little face that will get you into trouble as long as you live!"

When Cherry was snuggled drowsily into her pillows, Faith tiptoed to her own room, utterly weary, her heart so tired with emotion that it felt incapable of hope or sorrow or pity or love.

She stood for a moment, before beginning to undress, at the open window, through which fluttered the first chill breeze of autumn. As she stood inert, too tired to move, she was suddenly aware of a negro's voice, lifted to the stars in happy, carefree song:

"When de roll is called up yondah Ah'll be there!"

Faith smiled and leaned out of the window to watch the big body of the singer lurching down the street.

"And de saints and de sinners shall be pahted right and left—"

"Saints! Sinners!" Faith whispered the words. How could a just God' ever divide His children into "sinners' and "saints?" There was a sinner in all of us, she reflected, and a saint. Cherry had shown the saint—a shy, clipped-winged little saint—that hid in her sinful, selfish young heart, when she had spat those venomous words at Bob Hathaway—for his sake and for Faith's. And no one knew so well as Faith that an envious-hearted, evil-tempered little dwarf of a sinner dwelt in the depths of her own being, although the family, if they had been called upon to judge, would have called her their "saint."

"Sinner and saint!" Faith's tired mouth stirred in a faint smile. "There ain't no such animals—separately. We're all both." Since there was no one to overhear her, it didn't matter that her meaning was not clear.

The next morning, with Joy starting to school, Junior getting away early on a tour of the county with his "traveling store" of automobile accessories, Mrs. Lane requiring almost constant attention, Aunt Hattie visiting to help out, and the house to be kept quiet so that Mr. Lane could snatch a much-needed nap after his all-night vigil, Faith had little time to brood.

At two o'clock in the afternoon Bob Hathaway telephoned, asking her if she could take time off that evening from nursing her mother to drive with him for an hour. His voice was pleading, even tender.

"I'm sorry, Bob, but I'm afraid I can't get away." She forced her voice to be casually regretful. "Call me up again soon."

The angry snap of his receiver upon its hook was, strangely enough, as sweet to her ears as a bar of exquisite music.

She was dishing supper that evening when Cherry strolled into the kitchen with elaborate nonchalance, her left hand ostentatiously supporting her chin, so that a huge diamond on her slim third finger winked and twinkled like an imprisoned star.

"Cherry! Where on earth—?" Faith set down a dish of Irish stew so hard that the steaming stuff slopped over.

"Old Mr. Cluny wields a wicked checkbook, doesn't he?" She laughed a harsh, metallic little laugh. "What's that moss-covered old saying—'I'd rather be an old man's darling than a young man's slave'?"

KENWORTHY RE-ELECTED

Liberal Who Left Party Returns To House on Labor Ticket.

BORN FIGHTER.

HULL, Eng., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Lt. Commander the Hon. Joseph Kenworthy's switch from the Liberal to the Labor party has been approved by the voters. In yesterday's bye election he was returned to Parliament with 16,145 votes against 11,466 for L. E. Gaunt, Conservative, and 2,885 for Col. C. J. Kerr, Liberal.

Kenworthy is one of the most picturesque figures in the British Parliament. Son and heir of the ninth Baron Strabolgi, destined for the peerage, he is robust, truculent loquacious, an expert parliamentarian, and a born fighter. He served in the navy for eighteen years, was boxing champion of the fleet, and has taken his pugnacity into politics.

SCHOONER ASHORE.

Crew Rescued By Passing Steamer—Vessel Complete Loss.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, Dec. 1 (CP)—The three masted schooner Union Jack, Captain Martin Frampton, went ashore on the Penguin Islands on Monday and is a total loss.

The crew was rescued by the steamer Susu.

OMEMEE U.F.O. ANNUAL MEETING

Successful Year Reported in All Club Activities.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

OMEMEE, Nov. 30.—The Omemee Farmers' Club held its annual meeting for the receiving of reports and election of officers on Tuesday evening, Nov. 16th, in the club rooms.

As the evening was wet and stormy only a fair attendance was present.

Owing to the absence of the President through illness, Mr. R. H. Johnston was appointed chairman.

The Treasurer, W. M. Brown, gave a report of the monies, showing a balance on hand of $63.39.

The Secretary, W. R. Robinson, reported the business transacted through the year of 3 carloads of salt, 1 of coal, 1 of coke, 1 of lime, and 5 tons of binder twine, besides smaller lots of articles, amounting to $3654.82.

Mr. David Weir reported on behalf of the auditors and stated they had audited the books of the Treasurer, the Secretary, the Shipper and the Weighmaster and found each correct.

As the shipper, Mr. Vaughan, was absent in Toronto with a shipment of cattle, the auditors reported the business done as follows: number of hogs shipped, 3308; the value of same being $89,699.54. Number of sows 198; number of selects, 920; thick smooths and heavies, 2190; per cent of selects, 27.7-10; amount of premium on selects, $2,380.00. In this connection the auditors pointed out that the average price per hog for the last four years was in 1923—$21.68; in 1924, $16.66; in 1925, $23.40; and in 1926, $26.80.

The cattle shipped were as follows: cattle, 477; calves, 735; sheep, 598—Total value, $44,493.90.

Total number of cars of cattle, 35. Total number of cars of hogs, 53, also 6 truck loads.

Total business done—hogs, $89,699.54 Total business in cattle, $44,493.90. Business through Secretary —$3,654.82.

Total business—$137,848.26.

The financial position of the Club is as follows:

Assets—Cash in bank	$ 63.39
Due from shipper	145.84
Due from scales	65.00
Due from secretary	83.88
Total Assets	$358.11
Liabilities—taxes	$ 81.69
Note to R. Boyd and int.	106.00
Total	$187.69

After hearing the reports and discussing them, the business for the coming year was taken up.

After some discussion, the membership fee was fixed at $1.00 per year, and the following officers were elected with Mr. Percy Magahey acting as chairman:

President—Percy MaGahey.
Vice-President—Herman Franks.
Secretary—W. R. Robinson.
Treesurer—W. M. Brown.
Directors—George Henderson, D. H. Dick, C. E. Mitchell, Albert Ruth, Melville Elliott and Arthur Rutherford.

Shipping Committee—Vince Franks, R. H. Johnston, S. A. McConnell and Joseph Bradley.

Auditors—David Weir and Harry Deyell.

A motion was passed providing that the shipping committee have charge of the scales.

The President was appointed as a delegate to the convention in Toronto with power to choose another delegate.

The president elect, in a few well-chosen remarks thanked the members for the honor conferred on him and asked for the hearty co-operation of all in the discharge of his duties. He is willing to make some sacrifice for the organization, as he believed in it and is interested in its welfare.

A very pleasant and encouraging meeting was then adjourned with bright prospects for the ensuing year.

MISSIONARY ADDRESS

Given in Cavan United Church by Miss M. Haig.

CAVAN, Dec. 1 — On Sunday evening, Mrs. M. Haig, a missionary on furlough from Formosa, spoke in Cavan United church. Miss Haig had been a teacher at Berchwood and Matchett's schools and has many warm friends in Cavan.

She gave an excellent address, describing the beauty of the island of Formosa, its people and products, and of the missionary work which is being carried on there. The work in Formosa is under the management of the continuing Presbyterian church.

Miss Haig will give a further talk on her work in the Cavan United church on Thursday evening. Everybody is invited to come and hear one of our own missionaries tell of the work in which we are all interested.

Personals.

There was a social evening in the Parish Hall, Ida, on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Perrin, Mr. and Mrs. F. Perrin, Oakwood and Mrs. Kirby, Toronto were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples on Friday.

Miss L. Richardson, Peterboro, and the Misses Ada and Elsie Richardson, Bethany, were guests of Miss Kelly and Mrs. Milligan on Friday and Saturday.

Wedding Anniversary.

On Friday evening about one hundred friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day.

During the evening an excellent programme was given. An address was read by Mr. Richard Matchett and a tray of community plate silverware presented to Mr. and Mrs. Staples from their neighbors and relatives. Lunch was served by the ladies after which the young people danced for a short time.

Attend Winter Fair.

Ray Staples and Will Swain are at Guelph at the Winter Fair, going on Friday from Port Hope with the District Representative, F. C. Patterson.

They with Anson Balson, Hampton, from the Durham Junior Farmers' judging team, judging at the Fair in contest with teams from other counties.

POISON RUMORED AS CAUSE OF KRASSIN'S DEATH

Enemies of Soviet Give Disregard of Principles as Reason.

WAS WEALTHY.

Jealousy of Comrades Due To Riches Another Supposition.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(United Press)—Some enemies of Soviet Russia are speculating on the possibility that poison administered as a punishment for alleged disregard of Communist principles may have caused the death of Leonid Krassin, wealthy representative of Moscow at London. Krassin had been ill for months when he died last week in London. During the early stages of his illness the question of poison was discussed after a prominent French specialist had visited Krassin at the Russian Embassy here. Krassin then was Soviet Ambassador to France. The specialist was reported to have told Krassin to watch his food as he was slowly dying from poison. The newpaper La Presse said yesterday that Krassin was the victim of Communist comrades who were jealous of his wealth, which, according to the newpaper had increased from one million francs in 1917 to 450,000,000 or more than $15,000,000 at the time of his death.

NEW RUBBER SOURCE.

Wild Plant Found in Columbia Provides Good Supply.

RIO HACHA, Colombia, Dec. 1.—(United News).—A wild plant found in many sections of Colombia may prove a valuable source of rubber supply, it is stated at the ministry of industry.

After fifteen years of experiments with this plant, Rodriguez Arcia, Venezuelan Consul here, believes that rubber can be extracted from it in sufficient quantities to interest commercial organizations.

The ministry named a committee to investigate the claim.

OLD MASTERS

Happy the man whose wish and care
A few paternal acres bound,
Content to breath his native air
In his own ground.

Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread,
Whose flocks supply him with attire;
Whose trees in summer yield him shade,
In winter fire.

Blest who can unconcern'dly find
Hours, days and year slide soft away
In health of body, peace of mind,
Quiet by day,

Sound sleep by night; study and ease
Together mixt, sweet recreation,
And innocence, which most does please
With meditation.

Thus let me live, unseen, unknown;
Thus unlamented let me die;
Steal from the world, and not a stone
Tell where I lie.

"Was Soon Able To Sleep Well"

The usual experience of nerve-racked people who use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

When the nerves are starved and depleted you become restless, irritable and suffer from loss of sleep. The regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon lifts you out of this condition by supplying to the system the elements of Nature from which nerve force is created.

Mrs. H. N. Tardell, Harrowsmith, Ont. writes:—"My nerves were in a very bad state, and I did not know what it was to have a good night's rest. I could not eat, and never felt well. After taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a few days I was able to sleep well at night. My appetite also returned, and I felt stronger and better, and after taking three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was quite well."

LOVE—ON OUR OWN TERMS

"I don't think we ought to criticise her, dear," said my sweet Christian friend, "she is doing her best according to her lights and she only wants people to love her."

"But she does such outrageous things, she says such silly things, she is so utterly tactless," protested the critic. "She is always butting in 'trying to do good,' where the best 'good' she could do would be to mind her own business."

"But she means well. It is just her way of trying to make people love her," smiled our Christian friend. "I know she is silly and intrusive and performs her little charities without tact, but we must bear with her. . . ."

"But we all want to be loved—on our own terms," grinned the critic. "I do; I want to be free to criticise people and speak my mind and turn them down when I don't want them around, and I want them to love me just the same."

"And take John," she added. "John likes to swagger and tell fancy tarradiddles and humbug us with stories about the wonderful life he has led and what a dashing devil he is, and call us up when he is drunk, and bring wierd people to our houses—a thoroughly tiresome person. But he wants us to love him—on his own terms."

"Come now, everybody wants to be loved—for themselves alone. They want to go right on doing things in their own way, exuding their own personalities, choosing which good deeds they will do and which leave undone, and doing those they do to suit their own taste, and commit a lot of irritating faux pas and take all sorts of liberties with their friends—and still be loved."

"Mrs. H. wept when she heard your criticism of her," admonished the Christian friend. "It broke her heart to hear your ridicule of her. I told her that was just your line, that you teased everyone, but that your friends knew you and did not take your criticisms seriously."

"Oh, you did, did you?" laughed the critic. "But I was right, fools are fair game. She is rich, wears diamonds galore, has a grand home, and tries to patronize people disgustingly. It was a social outrage for her to get up that charity contribution for little Mrs. S., just because she had heard that Mrs. S. was hard-up. If she wanted to help she should have done it herself in secret, not go round cadging odd dollars. . . ."

"I know, dear. But she did start the fund with $100 herself. And I expect she thought all Mrs. S's friends would want to help. . . ." said the Christian friend. "And just because she wants people to love her, she wanted us to know she was doing a good deed. But, of course, it was tactless."

"Ugh, this wanting people to love us can lead us into some mighty tiresome impeinences. People who want to be loved should cultivate tact first of all. We all want to be loved but we have some queer notions about what makes us attractive. I think the trouble is that we are not content to be loved for such virtues as we really have but want to make believe we have the virtues we love in others as well. You say Mrs. H. wept—and a good job too, if it makes her more cautious and less ostentatious in her charities in future," glared the critic defiantly.

Yes, I am afraid we all know a lot of people who only want people to love them—on their own terms. But this love is such an elusive thing. . . .

FOOD AND HEALTH.

THE DESSERT AS A FACTOR IN NUTRITION

We are indebted to Mr. E. M. Statler for bringing to mind the following anecdote. Commenting on centenary of the Brillat-Savarian, the great epicure, Mr. Statler reminds us of the amusing story about his ninety-nine-year-old aunt. She died as she was finishing a five-course dinner, eaten while in bed. "I feel that I am going," she said; "quick, bring my dessert."

It is easy to recall a childhood habit of disregarding mentally the main part of a meal because of a passionate interest in the final course. Not that children are the only ones who are more interested in dessert than in soup.

Like the old lady, their elders and so-called betters, frequently share this interest and develop just as complete sets of sweet teeth as do the youngsters themselves.

It is because of the general popularity of dessert that it seems logical to treat this group of dishes as an important factor in nutrition. It seems rather a pity that because of a certain deplorable tendency toward over-eating in the matter of sweets that these foods have been made to suffer considerable disgrace when considered in comparison, for example, with the very unpopular spinach and the less popular milk.

The housewife who must think first of the appetizing qualities in her daily meals is very apt to disregard the actual food value represented in desserts. Roughly, these desserts fall into the following classes: Hot desserts, such as baked or steamed puddings and certain pastires such as mince pie; cold desserts such as fruit puddings, ices, pastries, stewed or fresh fruit served in its natural state.

Thinking back to our text, that is, the relation of dessert to nutrition, I charge you capitalize the very popularity of which I have just spoken. Instead of frowning upon a joyous clamor for another piece or pie or "some more ice cream, please," rejoice that there is at least one part of the meal in the service of which you need not lift up your voice in coaxing and cajoling.

Guide and direct this craving for desserts. Let both the children and the grownups realize that you are glad that they "just love cake," but show them how cake must fit properly into the diet scheme as a whole.

Without attempting any scientific analysis of the dishes included in the classification, hot and cold desserts, a few suggestions may help the housewife realize the importance of this very point, that is, the place of dessert in nutrition.

Remember that fruit desserts come first in health value with ices and ice cream second. Reduced to a few words, the matterm ay be summed up as follows: Fit the dessert to the age, digestive capacity and occupation of the individual, to the meal plan as a whole and to the season.

THIS CANADA OF OURS

CANADA'S LARGEST DRYDOCK

Q. Where is Canada's largest dry dock?

A. Canada's largest dry dock is at Victoria, B.C., recently completed and opened. It is at Esquimalt harbor, and its dimensions are: 1150 feet in length, by 149 feet wide. That at Saint John, N.B., is of the same length, but three feet narrower. Both will accommodate the largest vessels afloat, and will thus serve commerce on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

Thousands Have Answered "Yes"

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

By Edson R. Waite Shawnee, Okla.

THAT to get an accurate idea of the value of newspapers in modern life we should consider what they would have meant to William Shakespeare, the great copy writer of all time. For Shakespeare was not only an actor and a playwright, but a writer of brilliant copy as the word is used in writing circles of today.

His plays have never been excelled. They are printed in all languages of the civilized world. Any agency would pay him fortunes to write advertising today. Yet the greatest copy writer of all times often was in financial difficulties and died comparatively a poor man. No collection of his plays appeared until seven years after his death.

Think of what newspaper advertising and publicity could have contributed to the success of this greatest of English writers. Think also of what he could have contributed to newspapers. Advertising would have made Shakespeare an international figure overnight. But with the limited facilities of his days, his fame never extended much beyond the environs of London and his circle at Stratford-on-Avon.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

Woolen stockinette cap with beret top.

Uneasy was the head that wore the crown of almost any hat some few years ago. That was when milliners built velvet hats on heavy, rigid, buckram frames or draped them over the still more torturous wire frames. Now of course there is a tendency to make hats very tight and the women who has to stow away a coil of hair somewhere beneath the confines of one of the new close-fitting hats does suffer some discomfort. It is the penalty she pays for retaining her crowning glory when the great majority of other women have given it up.

In spite of the undoubted favor of more elaborate forms of millinery this season the soft, untrimmed or almost untrimmed felt hat retains its place with many women. It is still the hat that many women choose for the tailored suit, and it is the sport hat of the great majority. The soft beret of the sort that school children wear in France has become popular here in an amazingly short time.

Quite recently we have been introduced to a new informal sort of sport hat. This is the stockinette or jersey cap that apparently hies from England, not from France. Some of the new imported jersey sport suits have these caps to match. Some of these are made in beret shape and can be draped to suit the fancy of the wearer. Others have a tam crown and some of them show fine tucking on the crown.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER
By Mildred Marshall

To the diamond which is today's talismanic and natal gem is ascribed the power to make life easy and comfortable, even luxurious. The Ancients believed that one who wore this gem would never be called upon to work for a living. They also contended that the wearer of a diamond could pass through danger, particularly through plagues without succumbing.

"The Evil Eye shall have no power to harm
Him that shall wear the diamond as a charm,
No Monarch shall attempt to thwart his will,
And e'en the Gods his wishes shall fulfill."

The fortunate hue for wear today is light blue.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1926

Good and evil influences of the stars contend today, according to astrology.

The Sun is in a place read as most favorable to all who seek prominence or who hold public office.

This should be an auspicious rule under which to test one's ability to improve financial conditions.

It is a lucky day for those who seek employment and the seers predict the beginning of widespread business prosperity of an extraordinary sort.

The Moon exercises adverse power today, it is said, for it is in a sign making for uncertainty.

Public attention is to be directed to news of startling and unusual character, astrologers foretell, and publishers of every sort will benefit.

Mars approaching an opposition to Saturn is blamed for the malign influence manifested on the Earth in the shape of fires, earthquakes and mining disasters, foretold months ago.

This aspect is said to be unfavorable to industrial building and to presage increase instead of decrease of crime.

The seers prophesy the death of many women who have been foremost in the arts or public life.

Warning is given to all who dwell on the Earth that they must conserve energies, for there will be many sudden deaths due to heart disease and nerve exhaustion.

Persons whose birthdate it is should benefit through social affairs. Writers should prosper exceedingly.

Children born on this day probably will be very artistic. These usually love nature.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

A new idea of cosmetics seems to have made itself felt among women nowadays. The old idea was—wasn't it?—that cosmetics were used to cover up defects of nature, preparations to make women appear what they were not. It was because of that, perhaps, that cosmetics were frowned upon by many conservative women. It seemed like cheating to make use of such deceptions. Nowadays the idea seems to be that cosmetics should be a sort to preserve beauty as well as produce the effect of beauty. Wise young women look to the future and they are advised by their wiser mothers to spend time enough on their skin and hair, their hands and finger-nails to prevent them from showing the effect of age as it creeps upon them. Indulgence in outdoor sports which is so important a part of every up-to-date woman's program nowadays has its disadvantage as well as its advantage. Sports tend to make women healthier, but too much exposure to open air and too strenuous exertion sometimes mar perfect beauty—or do unless care is taken.

Besides this idea that cosmetics must be used in order to preserve beauty, there is another modern idea concerning these age-old beautifiers—rouge, lipstick, powder, and the rest. Many women realize that their own spirits are improved by them. "I cannot feel healthy when I know that I look tired and pale and haggard. I use a little rouge and just a bit of lipstick more as a tonic to myself than as a device for making myself look what I am not. A little rouge applied in the morning when I am tired and look pale, actually makes the natural color come back into my cheeks. It keeps me from feeling depressed and reacts on my general condition."

Certainly the old idea that a woman who used cosmetics appeared a trifle immoral has almost entirely vanished, even in the most back-woods and conservative neighborhoods. Too much make-up is, of course, still in poor taste, and there are plenty of women who for their own parts do not want to use rouge or lipstick. But they can hardly feel that they are therefore any more moral than their associates who do use these devices.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE INK BERRIES

"There is only one way to catch Uncle Wiggily, I tell you!" barked the Fox to the Wolf.

"And what way is that?" asked the other bad chap.

"We must play a trick on him—get him into some place where he can't get out, and then we'll have him," snapped the Fox.

The two were talking in the den of the Wolf, on the edge of the deep, dark, dismal forest, not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"Perhaps you know of some place where we could get that rabbit so he couldn't get out," went on the Wolf. "And you may know how to trick him. As for me—I don't. I've tried too many times and each time I have failed."

"Leave it to me," snarled the Fox. "A little way back in the woods is a rocky cave. It has a narrow doorway leading into it and only a little window in the rocky wall at the back. A window so small that Uncle Wiggily can never crawl out."

"But how can you get him into the cave," asked the Wolf. "And once you get him in, how can you keep him from jumping out of the front door, which must be large enough for him to come in by."

"Yes," admitted the Fox, "the front door is large enough. This is how I will do it. I will put up a sign in front of the cave in the rocks, and the sign will say: 'Come in here.' I will sign to it the name of Mr. Twistytail, the pig gentleman.

"Uncle Wiggily and the gentleman pig are great friends," went on the Fox. "Once the rabbit has gone in the cave to visit his friend, as he thinks, you and I will be hiding in the bushes. We will roll a big rock in front of the door and the rabbit can't get out."

"But, maybe his friend, Mr. Twistytail, who is in the cave will help him push the stone away," growled the Wolf.

"Nonsense!" laughed the Fox. "Don't you understand? There will be no pig in the cave—the sign will say so, but he won't really be there. It will be a good trick."

"It sounds so, if you ask me!" howled the Wolf. So the two bad chaps printed the sign, saying Mr. Twistytail was in the cave, and inviting Uncle Wiggily to enter. Then the Fox and the Wolf waited.

"Oh ho!" whistled Uncle Wiggily hopping along near the cave. And when he saw the sign he said: "So my friend Mr. Twistytail the pig is in there; is he? Nice and cool he is, to be sure. I'll go in and see him!"

"The trick is working!" whispered the Fox to the Wolf.

"It seems to be!" chuckled the other bad chap, hiding in the bushes. "Get ready to roll the rock."

No sooner was Uncle Wiggily inside the cave, looking for Mr. Twistytail, who of course wasn't there, than "Bang!" the rock rolled in front, blocking the doorway so the bunny couldn't get out.

"Oh, I'm caught! This was a trick! I might have known!" sadly cried Uncle Wiggily when he saw what had happened. "But maybe I can jump out of the back window," he added. Though when he saw how small the rocky window was, he knew he could never get out.

But growing just outside the cave was a bush with purple berries on it. Poke berries they were, and as soon as the bunny saw them he knew what he could do.

"Poke berries are ink!" cried Mr. Longears. "I can reach out, pick some of the berries, smash them in a hole on the rocky floor of this cave and the juice will make purple ink. With the ink I will write a note on my handkerchief as a piece of paper. I will write to the police and ask them to come and get me out of here. It's lucky I found the ink berries, for I have no pencil or fountain pen."

Making some ink of the purple berries, Uncle Wiggily wrote with a stick on his handkerchief a message asking for help. While he was writing it the Fox and Wolf, laughing gleefully, went to call their friends to come and help nibble the rabbit's ears.

Uncle Wiggily tossed his ink-berry message out of the cave window where it fell on the ground and was found by a little bird. The bird took the handkerchief to the Police Dog, who ran to the cave, got the bunny out in time and let him go home. And, when the Fox and Wolf came back, the cave was empty.

United Counties Society Dealt With 290 Children During Year.

14 MADE WARDS.

COBOURG, Dec. 1.—That complaints were received and investigated regarding 290 children coming from 200 families was a statement made at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid of Northumberland and Durham, held at Cobourg. Fourteen children were made wards and fourteen placed in foster homes. Advice, assistance and warning was given in other cases. It was reported concerning the work for children of unmarried parents and mothers of such children, that 20 cases had been dealt with and about $2,000 received in settlements. The receipts of the year amounted to $5,500.

MEETING HELD AT HAVELOCK

Several Speakers Uphold Policy of Howard Ferguson.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 1.—The election campaign was closed last night by a very enthusiastic rally in the interests of Col. T. Dalton Johnston, Conservative candidate in Peterborough County.

Mr. Isaac Barlow acted as chairman. The speakers were Miss Bessie MacMurchy and Capt. J. A. P. Haydon, M.C., of Toronto; the candidate, and John A. Sexsmith. Miss McMurchy said that there were a great many things forgotten in this campaign. Only one issue was being discussed, but there was a great deal else that should be said. Conservatives should be proud of the record of the Ferguson Government and it has been far too good an administration for those who are opposing it, so they just leave it out. The speaker then gave an outline of the achievements of the Ferguson administration. Stating that it had been said that Mr. Ferguson's Cabinet was not behind him at this time; that he was standing alone, which was untrue, as they were with two exceptions standing loyally for him. Mr. Ferguson had ably discharged the duties of Premier as well as those of Minister of Education.

In speaking on temperance, Miss MacMurchy said, "I hold what Mr. Ferguson is putting before us is temperance legislation. We can feel satisfied that a man who can get around him a Cabinet like Mr. Ferguson has, will choose men of honesty to make up the Commission to act under Government Control." The speaker closed with a strong plea that Col. Johnston would be returned as representatives for this riding.

Capt. Haydon, in speaking of the temperance issue, denounced the O.T.A. as a failure. "We are not the wet party," he said. "As a matter of fact we are the dry, and we intend to dry up as much of the wet as we can. The vote taken at different periods show that the people of Ontario are gradually drifting away from belief in the O.T.A. Sir James Whitney realized that you could not go any faster than public opinion. That was the reason he introduced the three-fifths clause. The speaker then reviewed the O.T.A from Hearst to the present, stating that it was the duty entirely of the Attorney-General to administer the law. He also quoted Mr. Nickle as saying when the 4.4 beer was introduced, that the O.T.A. was doomed." We are also told that the O.T.A. has done much good. Let us look at the native wine situation.

Reference was also made to the Volstead Act in the United States. According to figures from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company deaths from alcohol across the line had increased 668 per cent. "They haven't stopped drinking in the United States and we haven't stopped it in Ontario. I hope when the vote is counted tomorrow night that Col. Johnston will have the largest majority that a candidate has ever had in this riding."

"The candidate was the last speaker. He gave only a few remarks on the temperance issue owing to the late hour and closed by saying, "Vote according to your conscience, and if you do that it will be perfectly satisfactory to me and the Ferguson administration."

Mr. Sexsmith also spoke at some length on the evils that existed under the O.T.A., stating that Mr. Ferguson had taken the honorable course, that he might have brought on this election with the promise of a plebiscite next year. If he had wanted office that is what he would have done, but that would have been the cowardly way, the un-British way. "He has come to the people on this, I stand or fall on this issue."

Mr. Joyce also made a strong plea for the return of Col. Johnston to the Legislature, where he has done so much. He said he was voting for a moral issue and had been asked if he would have supported Government Control had it been the policy of the Liberal party to which he replied that he would still vote Government Control because he believed it to be right.

MORE MOTORS IN N.S.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 1.—The increase in the number of motor vehicles in Nova Scotia during recent years is well illustrated by the receipts of license fees collected. The last total showed $573,778 against only $14,839 eleven years ago.

CANADIAN CLUB HEARS LECTURE

W. A. Deacon, of Toronto, Gives Address on Canadian Literature.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK.

"The en-souling of this land of ours must come eventually, in my opinion, through literature. The breathing of the breath of life, the soul, into the nostrils of man, was the last definite act of creation, and so with this Dominion of Canada. Lacking a national religion, we must look to a national culture, of en-souling through the arts. And on account of the national system of education we possess, literature is essentially the elect of the arts. Consequently through writing and authorship will be formed the ideals which will give a unity to us which was merely foreshadowed in the British North America Act. We have no unity today. Sectionalism is the bane of our country. This is the job of our generation, from 1925 to 1950, to lay a foundation of culture in Canada, and by that foundation the super-structure will be governed in years to come."

The above words formed some of the opening sentences of a very fine address on "Canadian Literature," given to a large-sized audience at a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Public Library, the speaker being W. A. Deacon, author and literary critic of Toronto "Saturday Night." The president, Mrs J. Forbes Allan, was in the chair, and introduced the speaker to the gathering.

"The destiny of Canada seems to be to carry to a high pitch the culture and civilization of Europe, and to modify that culture so as to make it more useful to us. If the recent Imperial Conference means anything, it means that Canada must more and more take upon its shoulders the responsibilities as well as the privileges of an Empire state."

Speaking of the beginning of the Canadian literature movement in this generation with the formation of the Canadian Author's Association in 1921, Mr. Deacon went on to refer to the increase in cordiality towards Canadian authors which manifested itself in 1923 and continued to grow until genuine enthusiasm over their work ripened in 1925 and has made this year of 1926 a "banner year" in Canadian literature, with a universal demand for the works of Canadian writers. "Around the book stores of Toronto, people are swarming in, wanting Canadian books. They are asking what are the latest works by Canadian authors, and what is expected in the future. This is the great harvest year."

Going on to speak of the works of some of the older writers, Mr. Deacon gave as a proof of the abiding popularity of Dr. Drummond, the fact that editions of his complete works continue to be printed, twenty years after his death. The works of Archibald Lampman have also been re-edited recently and issued in a very complete volume.

The speaker manifested considerable enthusiasm over the poetical work of Duncan Campbell Scott, Superintendent of the Indian Department at Ottawa, whom he characterized as a "dark horse" in literary circles during the past forty years, but who now is coming into his own. Mr. Deacon read, with pleasing voice and admirable interpretation, this poet's poem, "Forsaken," and also "The Height of Land," and referred also to the qualities of kindness and vigor and keen interest in the young writers of the day possessed by Mr. Scott.

Marjorie Pickthall's poems are being issued shortly in a volume of complete works, and Charles Roberts has a new volume on the press. The reading of "Amberlands," a beautiful thing of fanciful imagery and arresting style, one of Tom MacInness' poems, was much enjoyed by the audience.

Mr. Deacon eulogized the worth of the latest edition of "Canadian Poets," an anthology by John Garvin, which he said was one of the best-selling volumes of the year. Another small book of the year of selected prose and poetry by Canadian writers is "The Voice of Canada," edited by A. M. Stevens, which has been marked for compulsory reading in the schools of British Columbia, and is under consideration in the same way by the boards of education of Alberta and Saskatchewan, this action being significant, said Mr. Deacon, of the desire of these educational authorities that the children of the West shall be conversant with the works of Canadian writers.

Fully thirty volumes of verse have been issued during this year by Canadian writers, with over one hundred volumes of prose, "Not all good, of course, some of them quite bad and others mediocre, but enough good ones to afford an amazing comparison with the output five years ago." Mr. Deacon also referred to the advances made in recent years in the general appearance and finish of books published in Canada, and went on to speak in the most enthusiastic terms of the latest work by Wilson MacDonald, "The Voice of the Wilderness", "the fastest-selling volume of verse since "The Songs of a Sourdough" came out," and one in which, he said, the fame of the author was crystallized, not only in Canada, but in London and New York and the cities of the South, where literary folk were enthusing over this work. Mr. Deacon read samples of Mr. MacDonald's work in "Oaks" and "Exit," the latter exemplifying what he termed one of the curious characteristics of Canada poets' work, their fondness for elegiac themes, embodying the idea of death and decay. Other characteristics were love of the land, "not a patriotic flag-waving quality, but a real love of their own country," a love of the lyric, in their conservative following of the measured line, and a note of aspiration, which is as distinctive of Canada's writers as the sombre tendency in Russian fiction and the minor note of the Irish poets. This unconscious reaching up to the highest things was aptly illustrated in a reading of Scott's "Ecstasy."

Mrs. Allan, at the conclusion of the address, thanked the speaker heartily for his "instructive and delightful lecture," and a standing vote of thanks showed the appreciation of the audience.

Votes of thanks from the Club were also tendered The Examiner and Miss C. McCarthy, for reports of the meetings ,moved by Mrs. F. D. Kerr and seconded by Miss E. Cameron, and to Miss A. Erskine, the secretary of the past year, whose excellent work in the office was eulogized by Miss A. Lancaster and seconded by Mrs. Lionel Scott.

SOUGHT AND FOUND.

O, what has life to give to me
In calm or strife?
O ,what has life that I should be Entered in lists where none may see?
In conflict hard, where ONE must fall
In battles grue, where ONE gives all?
Fare on thou guest, and bring the key:
What has this life to give to me?

Isn't it great that man may live
A brief while in the moil,
That earth so lavishly arrays
And none may hope to foil?

Sojourning here — awaiting there,
And meanwhile face to foe,
A training here to overcome—
Preparing there to go.

Learning to love, as we'd be loved—
To walk with God and men—
Forgiving, where forgiveness pleads
Again and yet again.

The one who sent us here awhile
Will see our struggling fight,
And knows the Cross must come before
The Crown upon the height.

ELECTORS VISIT POLLS

from various parts of the province this morning as everything from drizzly rain to a heavy blizzard, the expectations in the Provincial general elections were that a record vote would be polled in many of the 112 constituencies. The proposal of the Conservative Government of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson to substitute a system of sale of liquor under Government commission for the present prohibitory Ontario Temperance Act developed unprecedented interest throughout the Province. This was reflected in the heavy balloting for the Ontario Legislature to-day, despite the weather.

Snowstorms in North.

Northern Ontario reported snowstorms of mid-winter proportions, and the Georgian Bay district had heavy gales with freezing temperatures. In the populous south-western part of the province there was some rain, with a tendency to snow flurries. The eastern end of Ontario experienced light snowfalls, though the weather was reported mild. The central part of the province registered brightening up early to-day, after a few hours' rain.

In Addington, Essex North, and Sudbury ridings the Conservative Government candidates were returned by acclamation. There are therefore 109 contests, with 239 candidates of Government and Opposiion parties or groups in the field. In nearly all these the issue has settled down to a question of retention of the Ontario Temperance Act or its displacement by Government control system.

U.F.Y.P.O. MEETING.

Debate Held on Temperance Issue of Present Election.

The U.F.Y.P.O. of South Monaghan held a very interesting meeting on Friday evening, November 26th. The principal feature of the programme was in the form of a temperance debate: "Resolved that the O.T.A. is a better system of liquor control than that proposed by Premier Ferguson."

The affirmative was ably taken by Misses V. Bradshaw and A. Brown, while Messrs. H. Campbell and C. Huggins upheld the negative. After considering carefully, the judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

The remainder of the programme consisted of recitations by Misses G. Hutchison and F. Bonnycastle and community singing.

Peterborough Lady Sells Passenger Pigeon To Museum

Bird Shot Near Here One of Species Now Extinct

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (Special to The Examiner).—Final arrangements for the purchase of a passenger pigeon by the McGill Museums were completed yesterday, according to an announcement by A. LionelJudah, curator. This bird was procured from Mrs. A. H. Parker of Peterborough, Ontario, having been shot north of the Kawartha Lakes in that Province. Years ago, the passenger pigeons used to fly over the country in flocks, so dense that they would obliterate the sun, but for some reason or other they became extinct. Ernest W. Wintel, an authority on ornithology, suggests that this wiping out of the species might have been brought about through the clearing of the woodlands. In commenting upon the purchase, Mr. Judah explained that the Redpath Museum now boasts an excellent collection of these extinct birds.

THE ART OF THOUGHT

(By F. M. D.)

I am at present engaged in reading a book, entitled "The Art of Thought." It was written by a well-known English writer, who, in dealing copiously with the subject, has also given the lay mind of ordinary calibre a real task to endeavour to follow his meaning. After reading a few pages, I feel much as an archæologist must feel who, after digging strenuously for a considerable time, unearths an object of value amid the clutter in which he has been working.

There may be, among those who have read this volume, persons possessed of such superior understanding as to have been able to canter merrily through it and enjoy its obscure syllogisms much as a man on horseback might enjoy the scenery through which he is passing. But I am not gifted with such powers of rapid absorption and have to be careful of my diet. After going through two or three pages I have to lean back and try to digest what I have been reading. I have always envied the porous mentality of a man who once informed me that he took for his weekly pabulum from our library, one book of travel, one book of fiction, and one book of philosophy. He said that was the only way to get a full mind; books of travel gave you breadth of vision; fiction showed you life as it is, and philosophy, life as it ought to be. He added that he derived the greatest pleasure and profit from our shelves.

It is a fine thing to possess a mind like that and to have been capable of mastering the philosophy of Spinoza, Schopenhauer, Spencer and Mill in the space of one short winter, in addition to unravelling the plots of many novels and running rampant over the universe in various books of travel.

All the critics are unanimous in declaring that the volume referred to is a good one. For my own part, I am inclined to agree with them, but somewhat in the spirit of the cottar when asked his opinion of the new minister. "Mon, but he's fine," he exclaimed. "I could hairdly unnerstan'a word he said."

The title of the book, however, started a train of ideas in my mind which have kept me busy for a considerable time. Thought is inherent in all of us and it seems at first glance almost absurd to regard it as a thing to be acquired when we are employing it without intermission during our waking hours. But, when one ponders a moment one begins to realize that there is not so much useful thought in the world as there ought to be and would be if the great majority of us took the trouble to exercise it on a scientific basis.

Since the dawn of time untold myriads of human beings have inhabited this orb and gone to their rest, leaving behind them a heritage of progress for their descendants to build on. With the horrors of the last great war still fresh in our minds and with a memory of what history reveals in the story of dynasties swept away, nations submerged and civilizations destroyed, we have need of a fair amount of optimism to cling to the belief that the experiences of the past are going to be used as danger-marks for the future. We prate of our Christianity, we boast of our inventions, we assert that all the wonderful discoveries of the past fifty years are a proof that man is galloping headlong to the enjoyment of his glorious destiny and we would be quite right in doing so if we were sure that our lines of thought were rising to higher planes. For we have only arrived at our present pseudo-culture after æons of intellectual and physical strife and the probabilities are that unless we are prepared to make a holocaust of thousands of our cherished creeds and traditions, which have fastened on to our scheme of life like barnacles on a ship; æons of strife are still ahead of us.

Men will only be saved by getting together on a basis of scientific thought. Not the thought that dreams of personal aggrandizement but that which takes the welfare of the whole world into its purview. If we do not move in this direction soon, disintegration will ensue, for the next war will wipe out creeds, customs and nationalities in short order and the dwelling-places of men will be reduced to refuges for the cockatrice and hyena. We cannot reach our destination by the devious routes that we are pursuing. There are no postern gates in Heaven through which we can crawl. We must learn to march in ordered battalions and not as at present, like so many guerilla bands, proving a menace to society as well as witnesses to disrupted Christianity.

We have to bear in mind that as finite mortals we are vouchsafed very little time in which to accomplish our task. Even if we accept the period mentioned by the Psalmist we shall find that half the seventy years of man's existence is passed in sleep and nutrition and that twenty of the remaining thirty-five years are spent by very many of us in a state of pupilage. But, by far the large majority of men do not reach the age of seventy years nor anything approaching it, and, to crown all, not one in a thousand learns to co-ordinate his thoughts in a way that will benefit himself, let alone his fellow-man.

There are those amongst us who fold their hands and unctuously exclaim that in spite of all our limitations and drawbacks we are moving irresistibly forward. I have seen a man in a canoe carried on the crest of the wave caused by the suction of a ferry boat and following tranquilly in its wake. People who talk like this seem to me to be in the same position. They are quite content to be carried forward in the wake of those who are navigating the ocean of life. If we carry the simile further we can draw the inevitable sequel. Some day the hands of those who grasp the tiller or feed the fires will fail and unless willing hearts are aboard to take their places, the vessel will drift at the mercy of the wind and waves. In what position will those who utilized its powers find themselves when the energy that drew them forward is taken from them?

This is probably the most crucial period in the history of the world. There has been an awakening, one which took the toll of many millions of human lives to accomplish. Is it to be an awakening between two sleeps or is it to be the final one, in which with senses fully alert and steel-clad purpose we are prepared to carry on to the triumphant end?

A few years ago such a proposition as is embodied in the principles of the League of Nations would have received short shrift at every court in the world To-day it is regarded as the only safeguard against war. Societies of fellowship also are springing up everywhere, having for their purpose the alleviation of suffering and the spreading of the message of charity.

There is hope for the future when the body politic of every nation is stirring and there will be greater hope when the evangel broadens out and proclaims that wider charity which endeavours to save the soul as well as the body. The hope of our civilization lies in the development of a social consciousness, carrying with it a new sense of corporate and co-operative responsibility.

These are two or three of the thoughts brought into play by the arresting title of the book and they make one feel that next to that short, crisp adage of Juvenal, "Know Thyself," almost the next in importance might be said to be comprised in the single command, "Think"—for to think well is to ponder gravely every question that comes before one. Not to scamper over it hurriedly but to view it from every aspect. The traveller who walks only one way sees only half the landscape. If he retraces his steps he comes upon many a precipice hidden behind a modest-looking knoll, many a piece of quiet pasturage, many a smiling rivulet shadowed by a fringe of coppice.

Quickly Relieved by Tanlac

Mother of 7 Children Gets Back Former Vitality and Vigor. Recommends Tanlac to Anyone.

Mrs. Henri Scott, 7 Lecavalier street, Montreal, recently said: "For three years my condition was such that I had no desire to even do the ordinary household duties. I was troubled with indigestion. Everything I ate formed a lump in my stomach and at times I was unable to hold my food down and would have headaches that lasted for hours. My nerves were bad and noises would nearly drive me out of my head.

"I consulted a doctor who gave me some medicine which afforded only temporary relief until I was advised by a friend about Tanlac.

"I began taking it and after two bottles noticed a great change in my condition. I can now enjoy my meals and work without any ill effects and the pains in my stomach are gone. I am my old self again and recommend Tanlac to anyone."

Tanlac, nature's own remedy, made from roots, barks and herbs, is sold by your druggist.

QUEEN MARIE VISITS CAROL

Meets Her Son at Restaurant Near His Home.

GOES HOME TO-DAY.

PARIS, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Queen Marie, who arrived at midnight from her North American trip, lost no time to-day in getting in touch with her errant son Carol.

Early this morning she proceeded to Neuilly, where Carol's villa is situated. However, she did not meet him there but in a fashionable restaurant on the edge of Bois De Boulogne. She planned to take luncheon other than at hotel.

Queen Marie has decided to leave for Bucharest to-night as she desires to be present at the Council of Doctors who will decide what can be done for Ferdinand.

Marie is convinced that her trip across the Atlantic will enable her to play a greater role and assume wider authority in the life of Europe by spreading the gospel of international understanding which she developed in the United States.

Court Incompetent.

STILL BLAMED FOR EXPLOSION

Investigators Find What They Consider Parts of Condensor.

BOILERS INTACT.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 1.—Swift developments following on the arrival yesterday of Major H. A. Nealon from the Provincial Fire Marshal's office at Toronto, have turned the investigation into the wrecking of the Hotson Block in a new and startling direction.

Last night the Fire Marshal, with Detectives Thomas Bolton and a detail of police brought out of the eastern section of the wreckage three pieces of equipment which, it is claimed can be identified, if certain other parts are found, as a large capacity still with a condenser more than six feet in length.

The equipment was transferred to Carling street police headquarters and a guard of four uniformed men placed on night and day duty on the spot with orders to prevent anyone from going near the premises or removing any article from the scene. Yesterday afternoon, when the Fire Marshal arrived, a contractor's gang was busy removing the debris and carting it away. This work was immediately suspended and was later resumed under the direct control of the Fire Marshal. Even four engineers representing the manufacturers of the oil-burner with which the heating system was equipped, were refused permission to undertake an investigation. To-day they will probably be allowed to go into the basement, but no one will enter until the Fire Marshal has made his own observations.

It is claimed that the probe is as yet in a nebulous state, and that no attempt has been made to place responsibility for the still on anyone. There had been rumors on the street that a still was in operation in a supposedly unused part of the building. If the missing sections of the appartaus are discovered, however, arrests are expected immediately to follow, with a probability of a manslaughter charge as a result of the death of Mrs. Matilda Crawford, the aged victim of the crash and fire.

Boilers Intact.

The work of clearing away the debris yesterday made possible a closer inspection of the heating apparatus of the destroyed Hotson Block and Crawford store, and established apparently beyond all question that the oil-burner equipment recently installed was not to blame. The boilers are intact and the furnace room is neither wrecked nor badly burned. A drum of oil that fed the burner is partly filled with fuel and did not ignite.

Numerous five-gallon cans which had contained some liquid shipped from a Montreal perfumery supply house were found in the wreck of the Merrill Beauty Parlor and Barber Shop Supply store. They bore labels cautioning as to handling, but whether the contents were explosive has not been determined. Samples of liquid from certain cans were taken by license inspectors.

An inquest into the death of Mrs. Crawford was opened last night, and after evidence for identification had been taken, adjournment was made until December 9. At Victoria Hospital it was reported that Mrs. Merrill and her sister, Miss Fontana, are in an unchanged condition. Both cases are regarded as serious. Fireman Lawrence Inch was removed from the hospital to his own home yesterday afternoon.

Miss Jessie Hunter, 1409 Dundas street, is at her home suffering from shock. It was learned last night that she was a passenger on a Dundas street car which was in front of the Wyatt Building when the explosion occurred. She was rendered unconscious by the blast and suffered severe head and facial cuts from flying glass. One piece of glass shaved off some of her hair.

GETS THREE YEARS.

Postal Employee at Montreal For Thievery From Mails.

MONTREAL, Dec 1 (Canadian Press).—Hector Lecroix, post office employee, was sentenced to three years in jail by Chief Justice Duclos here yesterday. He was found guilty of theft from His Majesty's mails. It was revealed at the trial that the accused had stolen two parcels, one containing a watch of little value, and the other, a ring worth 25 cents.

WEEK-END GAME MAY SETTLE C. R. U. HONORS

Little Likelihood Regina Will Come East To Play Winners.

HELD WORKOUT.

Varsity Will Be Weakened By Enforced Retirement of Three Players.

Ronny McPherson's U. of T. champions have another big obstacle to overcome before they can call it a season. On Saturday the inter-collegiate champions tackle the Senators of Ottawa, Dominion title holders and Big Four champions, at the Stadium. An interesting time should be had by all on this occasion. For all that the blue and white will be weakened somewhat by the enforced retirement of Bales, Rykert and Hutchinson who were almost ruined in the razoo with the tricolor, they are prime favorites to win from the rough and ready crew rfom the capital city of the land. If they regard the trust of their supporters the victory should carry with it the Canadian championship as there is little likelihood that Regina will risk another grand going over by coming east in quest of the cup.

Making it Unanimous.

President A. E. Matheson of the Western Canada Football Union has come to the conclusion that the champions of the prairie region are not strong enough to cope with the Ontario winners and he is against the proposed invasion. Mr. Matheson's declaration as to the respective merits of the eastern and western candidates for football supremacy makes it unanimous. Anyone around this neighborhood could have told him that years ago.

Varsity will have a light workout, just to keep on edge for the tilt with the Senators. They don't need much work in view of their three hard games in as many weeks while the Ottawa outfit have been idling. The whole Senatorial squad will come here on Saturday, including the two Joes—Mil'er and Tubman. The former has decided to stick with his pals until the championship is lost or won.

Montreal Teams in Finals.

Members of the champion Westward Rugby squad have decided to grant the request of the Canadian Rugby Football Union and play the final for the Dominion intermediate championship on the grounds of either Royal Military College or the Kitchener Club. The request was made by the governing body due to the uncertainty of the weather in Montreal at this season of the year. Officers of the union looked upon last Saturday's conditions as a hardship for Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and Varsity, and are of the opinion that better conditions will be found throughout Ontario on Saturday.

Westward have started work in preparation for the game and will go to either Kitchener or Kingston in fit and ready condition.

The Montreal junior champions will play the final either at Toronto or St. Thomas on Saturday.

FEATURING POWERFUL LINE WORK OF BLUE AND WHITE

An outstanding feature of Varsity's victorious game against Queen's in the deciding contest of the intercollegiate series was the powerful line work of the Blue team. The photos reproduced show two successive line plunges in the first, which is reproduced on the right, Howard Stollery has just been down after gaining five yards. Then the ball was handed to Warren Snyder, and the reproduction on the left shows what he accomplished—an eight-yard gain. That gave Varsity "yards" and another chance to smash away at the tri-color line. Varsity had a distinct advantage in line-smashing plays all afternoon.

Player's Neck Broken Has Chance To Recover

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 1.—The condition of Ralph Purdy, 18-year-old quarterback of the Montpelier, O., High School football team, who lies on a cot in the University Hospital here with a broken neck, was given as favorable by hospital authoriites yesterday. Purdy's neck was broken in a Thanksgiving Day game at Peru, Ind., and he was brought to the University Hospital here Friday, where an operation was performed early Saturday by Dr. Max M. Peet. Though it is yet too early to know whether or not the operation is completely successful, Purdy is given better than an even chance for recovery.

LIST OF DEATHS IS DECREASING

AVERAGE AGE 19.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (Associated Press).—Football, with a total of eight deaths and 200 major injuries, had fewer fatalities during the season just closed than in 1925, when 20 youths were fatally hurt. The badly injured numbered only 50 in 1925, however.

The average age of youths who died from football injuries is again 19 years as in previous seasons.

A broken neck, once considered certain to cause death, was not always fatal this year, three persons recovering from that injury. One youth, in uppor New York, competed this season after suffering a broken neck a year ago.

The bulk of major injuries that forced players from contests for three weeks or more consisted of broken shoulders, arms, legs, ankles, wrists and ribs.

Amos A. Stagg, 64, veteran Chicago coach, who has never had a player on his elevens permanently injured or killed, was hurt himself this year. While putting his men through a scrimmage drill in the late afternoon dusk, he got in the way of a fast-charging back and was knocked unconscious. He was back in harness the next day.

Probably the most famous injury of the season was the "geology knee" of Jake Slagle, Princeton backfield star. The hurt was a nerve disorder in his hip caused by aggravation of an old football injury during a geology field trip.

Five men were hurt in the Army-Syracuse game October 16. "Whippet" Carr, leading point scorer of the East at that time, suffered a knee injury that ruined his play for the season. Trapnell, Army back, hurt about the head, and Elias, tackle, with leg injuries, were lost to the cadets for almost the remainder of the season.

Red Grange's Yankees Won't Play the Giants

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (Associated Press).—There will be no professional battle between the American and National League representatives to decide the championship of New York—at least not this year. Charles C. Pyle has refused to countenance a contest between Red Grange's Yankees and the New York Giants because it would interfere with the regular American League schedule, but he will accept a challenge if made early next season.

BAILEY STARS WHEN ST. PATS BEAT PITTSBURG

SCORE 6-0.

Peterborough Boy Starts on Right Wing and Opens Scoring.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—St. Patrick's did their share to knock Pittsburg out of the leadership of the American group of the National Hockey League last night when they took the Buccaneers into camp by 6 goal to 0, the greatest rout of the season today, and what is more the locals deserved the victory by a decisive margin although several of the goals made Goalie Roy Worters of the visitors look rather bad, the puck on three or four occasions slipping into his cage along the ice, but while some of the counters were of the soft variety the little Pirate goalie turned aside a number of drives that looked to be ticketed for the red light. St. aPtrick's lived up to the promise given last week when they held Ottawa to an overtime tie, but last night there was no let-up at any time. Pittsburg tried hard but as the local score mounted in the final period the Smoky City crowd began to get peevish and things began to get hectic, but majors to Duke McCurry and Happy Day in the closing minutes calmed down the gladiators. The game was a strenuous affair, there being a total of twenty-two penalties but many of them were for small offences.

The locals won because they had more speed than the Pirates. Bill Carson was flanked by Irvin Bailey and Happy Day at the start of the game and this trio did most of the front line work although they were relieved by Bellefeuille, Cox and Dennenay for short spells. Bourgeault was inserted whenever the locals were short-handed and Bill Brydge was given a chance to show in the final period when he relieved McCaffrey. Every one of the Irish, starters and relief men, turned in great games, but the hero of the battle was John Ross Roach, who never performed in better style. Long shots were easy for him but he pulled off many at short range and two or three times completely outguessed the Pittsburg attackers when they penetrated the outer line of defence. Roach stopped them with his hands, body and stick and when he couldn't get any of these in action quick enough he kicked them away.

Bailey Scores Three

All the scoring was done by players new to the locals this season, Bailey getting three, Carson two, and Dennenay one, although Day Bellefeuille, Cox and Bourgeault tested Worters many times but without success. Corbeau did not rush as much as he did against Ottawa, confining most of his efforts to defensive hockey, but McCaffrey inserted many bustling attacks although he was unable to score. The Irish forwards gave a great exhibition of back-checking and no matter what combination was on the ice they out-footed the Corsairs, both going and coming. In addition the locals showed some real combination, effective as well as pretty and the fact that they did not score more goals was due to some sensational saves by Worters many of the latter's stops rivalling those of Roach at the other end, but Worters was not nearly as consistent as the local custodian.

Bailey was more at home in the going last night, and he was able to show his real worth. He scored the only goal of the first period, when he accepted a pass from Day outside the Pittsburg defence and stepped through to back-hand the rubber behind Worters. Half way through the second period he was worked into the corner of the rink and when even with the goal he slipped the rubber across towards the net and it caught the goal post and nestled in.

Roach was the star for the Irish, but the remainder were good, Bailey and Carson being more prominent because of the scoring. The teams:

St. Patrick's—Roach, goal; Corbeau and McCaffrey, defence; Carson, centre; Bailey and Day, wings; Bourgeault, Dennenay, Cox, Bellefeuille and Brydge, subs.

Pittsburg—Worters, goal; Smith and Conacher, defence; Milks, centre; Darragh and McCurry wings; Cotton, Drury, Arbour, McKinnon and White, subs.

Referee—W. Bell, Montreal.

LEGION NOTES

The regular meeting of the Canadian Legion was held Monday evening with an enthusiastic gathering of memebrs of the new organization. The meeting was presided over by Comrade J. Abraham, in the unavoidable absence of the President, Comrade C. H. Ackerman. Some fifty new members were initiated last evening, and were heartily welcomed by the chairman and members present. For the first time in the history of the branch a lady member was admitted to membership, Nursing Sister McCarney, who served overseas, a considerable time of which was spent in France. It is hoped that all the overseas sisters in the city will follow the example of their sister "Join the Legion and boost the cause, Sisters."

The heating system now being installed by Messrs. Wallace and Smith is nearing completion and is a great improvement on the old system, as evidenced last evening when it was used for the first time.

The report of the euchre drives was submitted by Comrade Crowe, the chairman of the committee, and showed a substantial profit for relief purposes. The chairman advised the meeting of a euchre drive and dance together, with a free draw, which will be held on December 22nd. This promises to be the tit-bit of the season. The chairman also announced that a free concert and dance for the members and their friends would be held either on the 8th or 16th of December, definite date to be announced later.

The report of the Poppy Committee was submitted by the chairman, J. Abraham, and was unanimously adopted by the meeting.

Comrade Father Costello spoke very feelingly on the passing of the late Comrade H. Rush, and a resolution of condolence was unanimously passed expressing the sympathy of the members of the Canadian Legion to the bereaved family.

A membership campaign on the polling sub-division plan, which was adopted Monday will be put into operation during the coming month. Prospective members are requested to join now, and all ex-service men in the city would help the campaigners if they will send in their names to the Legion headquarters, Murray street.

Comrade Fisher delighted the company present with a few ditties on the piano, and all together a pleasant meeting interspersed with music concluded with the singing of the National Anthem

Poppy Day Report.

Comrades,—

Your committee herewith submit their report of the Poppy Day campaign for the year 1926, which was held on Saturday, November 6th, the result of which will be read separately in the financial statement as attached herewith.

We were favored this year with fine weather and, thanks to the efforts of Comrade Father Costello, a large number of young ladies were present throughout the day selling poppies, and the various stands throughout the city were occupied during the whole day.

Comrade Crowe had the largest sales, having realized over a hundred dollars. Comrade Styles came a good second with ninety-four dollars, and our very hard working lady tagger of other years who came first, came a good third with over $92. There were others of smaller denominations, but who nevertheless contributed larger to the success of the day.

Your committee desire to express their thanks to President Ackerman for the loan of his car during the day, to Father Costello for securing the services of such a large number of young ladies, to all who assisted in selling poppies and everybody who in any way assisted to make the day a success.

All of which is respectfully submitted for your consideration and approval.

J. ABRAHAM, 1st Vice-Pres.,
Chairman Poppy Committee.

BATTING DECLINE IS SHOWN IN 1926 RECORDS

Pronounced Slump From That of Previous Season.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Henry Manush, Outfielder For Detroit Tigers, Wins Crown.

Gradual, though interrupted, decline of the power of the battery in the American League is given striking evidence in the 1926 records released Saturday. The slump the past season was marked from that of the previous season of 1925, when the batters showed signs of reasserting themselves, after being halted in 1924 and its real impressiveness appears when the averages of 1926 are compared with those of 1921, when batting had reached its highest peak and sluggers were supreme.

A few figures will serve to show the slump of the batters. In 1921 the Detroit team led the American league in batting with a team average of .316. Cleveland was second with .308, St. Louis third with .304. New York had an even .300 percentage, The lowest batting team that season (Philadelphia) batted .274. In 1926 Washington was the batting leader of the league with .292, Detroit second with .291. Boston brought up the rear with a mark of .256. A year ago, in 1925, Boston was last with an average an even 10 points above that of 1926.

The slump of the Athletics in hitting the past season was notable. A year ago they led the league with a mark of .307 in 1926 they dropped to seventh position with a batting average of but .269. Washington's work was consistent through the two seasons, with .303 in 1925, and the leadership in the past season with .292.

Cleveland, New York and Chicago tied in batting but in other work showed wide divergence. For instance New York made its extra base hitting count for many runs, scoring more than a hundred over each Cleveland and Chicago. On the other hand, the Cleveland team was tight in allowing opponents runs, being second to Philadelphia in runs allowed opponents. It might appear that only tight pitching saved the Athletics from complete collapse the past season. The Browns allowed opponents more runs the past season than any other team.

Interest attaches to the sacrifice hits record because of the new rule in effect by which any fly on which a runner advances a base is rated a sacrifice. The result of this rule was to increase the number of "sacrifices" materially. The record in 1926 shows 1709, as against 1479 in the previous season.

Home Run Decline.

Home run hitting showed its decline along with batting in general, the total of 414 homers in 1926 being compared with 533 in 1925. Base stealing continued to fall off. In 1926 the total of stolen bases was 664, as compared with 711 in 1925. Washington and Chicago continued to be the leading base stealing teams, as they were in the previous season, but with less thefts recorded for each team.

The Yankees stood out by themselves as home run makers, St. Louis with its short right field being second in this respect. Cleveland led in two baggers, with George Burns showing the way; Washington made most three-base hits.

Figures showing the batting of teams in the American League the past season, with other date that properly is included in offensive play, are contained in the following table:

Club Batting, 1926.

	G.	AB.	R.	OR.	H.
Washingt'n	152	5223	702	761	1525
Detroit	157	5315	793	830	1547
Cleveland	154	5293	738	612	1529
New York	155	5221	847	713	1508
Chicago	155	5220	730	665	1508
St. Louis	155	5259	682	845	1449
Phila	150	5046	677	570	1359
Boston	154	5185	562	835	1325

Individual Batting.

Individual batting honors in the American League for the 1926 season were not decided until the final drive, when Henry Manush, of the Detroit Tigers gradually forged to the front. In mid-season the Detroit outfielder stood well down the list among the batters. Until the first week of June he did not appear much in the game except as a pinch hitter; after that he took his place as a regular man in the outfield and began his move that finally landed him on top. As late as the first week in July he stood but 15th in the list of regular batters in percentage. In the early part of September he still had a trio of rivals to contend with.

Manush, who succeeds his teammate, Harry Heilmann, as the batting champion of the league, fell a victim in a way to the general batting slump among league batters, for his finishing figures as leader were but .377, as compared with the .393 that Heilmann registered the previous year. Heilman by the way got off to a bad start and finished in a tie with a team mate, Bob Fothergill, for third honors. Babe Ruth, of the Yankees was second to Manush with an average of .372.

Ruth maintained the home run honors with 47 round trip hits, was first in total bases hit for, scored most runs, etc., fully maintaining, considering decline in batting, all his reputation and having a wonderful year.

A feature of the league batting was the new record made for most two-base hits, by George Burns of Cleveland, who registered 64. The American League's "most valuable player" for 1926, also was among the top-notchers in batting percentage.

THEATRE

GREAT STORY, FINE PLAYERS, APPEAR IN GOLD RUSH PICTURE.

Seena Owen and Arnold Gray Have Leading Roles in "The Flame of the Yukon."

One of the most talked of motion pictures made in many years, is "The Flame of the Yukon." This is a remarkable photoplay of gold rush days in the Canadian North-West, and it is said by critics to be tremendously dramatic and appealing. Seena Owen, for many years a popular screen star, has the stellar role and she is supported in the leading man's part by Arnold Gray, who is quite unknown to screen fans but who, by reason of his great performance in this picture, is bound to spring into film prominence.

The late Thomas H. Ince originally filmed this gold rush classic in 1917 and has always maintained that it was one of the greatest productions he ever sponsored. Critics agreed that it was an outstanding picture of its day and it served to elevate Dorothy Dalton from obscurity to stardom overnight.

George Melford directed this new "Flame of the Yukon," which will be on view at the Regent Theatre Thursday. Arthur Miller directed the original version and through his work gained a reputation that held him among the topnotchers until he retired as a film photographer.

BOXER INDEMNITY TO BE USED IN CHINA

Extension of Education and Health Work Suggested in Parliament.

LONDON, December 1. — United News. — Extension of education and public health work in China through the use of Great Britain's Boxer indemnity payment was suggested in a plan submitted to-day by a parliamentary advisory committee.

The plan recommends that the $1,750,000 made available to Great Britain be allocated on the basis of 30 per cent. for agricultural education, 30 per cent. for scientific research, 23 per cent. for education in medicine and for extension of public health and hospital work and 15 per cent. for other educational work.

It also suggested that between $12,500,000 and $25,000,000 be raised between 1927 and 1931 for investment in some constructive work in China that will benefit the people.

SENATORS WIN AND MAINTAIN PERFECT RECORD

Beat Boston 2-1 in Fast Game—Detroit Beats Maroons.

SCORE 4-0.

New York Rangers Beat Chicago Hawks in Overtime.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—Ottawa Senators, leaders in the National Hockey League race, defeated the Boston Bruins, 2 to 1 here last night in the fastest game of the local season to date. Incidentally it was also the cleanest, only three minor penalties being imposed.

The experience of the visitors overbore the aggressive eagerness of the young Boston team. Dennenay netted the first Ottawa score on a long life in the first period. Hooley Smith batted in the winner near the close of the third on a pass from Clancy. The Boston goal was the work of Oliver in the second period.

Ottawa's defensive work, particularly the poke work of Frank Nighbor at centre ice, was finished and spectacular. Nighbor and Hooley Smith, the latter following the "old master's" methods, broke the heart of the Bruins by their stick work.

Detroit, 4; Maroons, 0

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—More finished hockey and timely combination spelled victory here last night for the Detroit Cougars over the Montreal Maroons, 4 to 0. It was sweet revenge for the visitors, as they are practically the same team which went down to defeat before the locals in the finals for the world championship here last Spring when Montreal and Victoria, B.C., played off.

The Cougar defence was unbeatable after they had rolled up a margin and even with a two goal lead they had enough edge to take the offensive and double it.

For the first two periods play was about even with Holmes being called upon to make sensational saves. The poke-checks of the former Victoria team were effective.

Rangers, 4; Chihawks, 3

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. — Paul Thompson, a tall and rangy spare forward, of the New York Rangers, broke a fiercely battled tie after seventy minutes of battling at the Madison Square Garden rink, last night, and defeated the Chicago Black Hawks by a score of four to three. It was voted by a cheering crowd of 10,000, the best exhibition of hockey seen here this year or last.

The Hawks looked to be winners until almost in the closing seconds of the third period, when "Babe" Dye, last year with the Toronto St. Pats, tied the score, with but two second to play.

Then it became a matter of "sudden death," that is, the team scoring first, won. The teams tore through one ten minute period with no score and so evenly did they battle that it seemed a tie would be the outcome. But on the first charge of the second overtime period, Thompson broke through, missed one drive at the Hawks' cage, tore from the clashing to two detaining Hawks and as he came out of the mix-up the puck came with him. He turned and shot it into the net before Lehman, the Hawk goalie, could make a move to stop him.

ECONOMIC CRISIS ONLY TEMPORARY

Calles Says Business Men Won't Help To Fight It.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 1 (United Press).—The economic crisis in Mexico is temporary and can be dominated by the Government, President Calles stated in a declaration. He said no good would come of a meeting of Senators with business men of Mexico to take up the boycott as it is impossible to expect "defenders of monopolies" to cooperate in any way that would benefit the masses. "Merchants always make money during a crisis," the President continued. "They have shown complete ignorance of the problems," he said. "The attacks on Secretary of Finance Pani in the Chamber were unjustified, inasmuch as he had honorably managed the Government," Calles concluded.

LOST IN WOODS FOR TWO DAYS

Searchers Find Man Badly Frozen Near Sault Ste. Marie.

FOUND IN SWAMP.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 1—William Nicholson, of Rydal Bank, east of the Sault, lost for two days in the bush has been found by a search party including Stewart McLeod and Murdock Bennett, of Rydal Bank. Nicholson, who was exposed to the most severe weather of the season, had his feet frozen to the knees and his arms to the elbows. When found he was lying unconscious in the snow in an almost impenetrable swamp north-east of Patton Lake. Nicholson was carried by Stewart and Bennett to an old camp of Grigg Bros., where a fire was made. McLeod remained with Nicholson while Bennett went to Paddy Downey's for a team.

In the meantime a party from Bruce arrived. They had a great deal of difficulty in getting Nicholson to Downey's home, but were finally successful. All the attention that could be rendered was given him and shortly afterwards Dr. V. S. Grigg arrived.

The party found Nicholson's socks and rubbers frozen to his feet and had to exercise great care in cutting them off, only a small piece of his footwear being cut off at a time. To show how frost bitten his feet were, it was said that ice formed between the toes as heat was applied. It was some time before Mr. Nicholson regained sufficient consciousness to give a connected story.

SURGEONS GRAFT EYES IN VETERAN

Man To Undergo Operation, Hoping To Regain Sight.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1. — Canadian Press. — If the surgeons are successful in making animal eyes grow in a human's head, Elizabeth Bodenbach, will marry Fred C. Pratley, a blind ex-service man.

Pratley has prevailed upon her to go to Baltimore with him for the operation in the Johns Hopkins University Hospital, but he won't ask her her to marry him, unless he regains his sight.

CAROL DENIES STATEMENTS

Did Not Say What Official Attributed To Him.

MEETING AWAITED.

PARIS, Dec. 1 (United Press).—While all Paris awaited to learn whether or not there would be another meeting between former Crown Prince Carol and Queen Marie, Carol to-day emerged momentarily from his long silence regarding the muddled question of succession to the Rumanian Throne.

Carol authorized the United Press to deny statements attributed to him by General Angelescu, Marshal of the Rumanian Court, who was at Cherbourg yesterday to meet the Queen.

William Findlay Company, Limited, Room 732, Bank of Hamilton Bldg., 67 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont.

Original and broad-gauged lines are being followed in the organization of the general advertising agency of William Findlay Company, Limited. An experienced personnel is engaged in the project. Its equipment is not only extensive but complete. A superior system of agency records and statistics is being built up.

While the William Findlay Company have been serving advertisers since October 1st, as yet few advertisements have been placed by it in publications. Among its clients are a number of leading firms whose advertising warrants the highest class of production. The organization of the William Findlay Company has been developed to give this class of service. The announcement of the names of its clients is being eagerly awaited in advertising circles.

The chief of the organization is well known throughout Canada, and in advertising circles in the United States. As joint owner and business manager successively of two Ottawa dailies, and later as Business Manager of The Globe, Toronto, he has had a wide experience in publishing. For four years he was a partner in one of the larger advertising agencies, and in charge of its Toronto office.

Associated with Mr. Findlay are a number of men who have achieved success in advertising. To the new business each has brought a record of accomplishment, combined with energy and ability.

Henry J. Elder, Director, for several years, was Montreal representative of The Toronto Globe and later on its general advertising staff. More recently he has represented the Canadian Home Journal in Western Ontario. Working on constructive lines as a national advertising solicitor, Mr. Elder has developed a number of national accounts. His entry into general advertising agency work is a transition which follows naturally on his effort and accomplishment in the past.

Arthur J. Francis, secretary-treasurer, is thoroughly versed in the internal operation of an advertising agency, having handled the detail work on a number of national advertising accounts. He formerly was secretary to Mr. Findlay, and later his executive assistant. He relinquished the position of secretary of the Canadian Association of Advertising Agencies on joining the William Findlay Company, Limited.

Donald F. Philp, B.A., Director, as a member of the copy staff of one of the important Canadian advertising agencies, made notable productions for a number of national advertisers. He combines a liberal education and practical experience with a faculty for the visualization of layout and the writing of copy. Mr. Philp is a graduate of the University of Alberta, and holds the Art Supervisor's Diploma of the Ontario College of Art.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Peterborough, Ont.,
November 30, 1926

The Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I have just read the letter of R. C. Braund, and as one of the south-end residents, I can't let it go without a censure to his tactics. If Mr. R. C. Braund is a true temperance man, why not give a good example to the people? For instance, how many barrels of malt does Mr. R. C. Braund sell every week; hops ,etc., to the dear southender?

-Please, Mr. Editor, print this letter. I thank you for the space allowed in this paper.

Very truly yours,
A. CICHETTI.

HEALTH HINTS.

"The blood is the life. Hence, what tends to the making of good blood, and proper circulation of the same is worthy of consideration. The following suggestions are helpful. The stomach washed out first thing in the morning with a cup of hot water, with a little salt in it previous to eating anything. Well masticating a limited supply of proper food (not washing it down with tea or coffee). Drinking a liberal supply of water between meals. Slow deep breathing, when in the open air. Keeping the windows so arranged, that a portion of outside air, will be in the sleeping apartments, during the night. Do not allow to be inoculated into your blood pus or any other poison. Steer clear of all drugs as much as possible. Have regular elimination once or twice a day. Be clean in every sense of the word. If through any cause you have inflammation of any part of the bowels, lay on your back for one half day, having applied a strong mustard plaster over the part affected, reddening the skin thoroughly, but not blistering it. Do not allow natural stubbornness or foolish clinging to customs, that have proved futile, put you in a bad state of health, and thus shorten your life. Spend less money in tobacco, candy and pastry, and more in oranges and other raw fruits. Use your common sense.

WATER LOSSES INCREASE COST

64 TONS LOST.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press). — Water abstraction from the Great Lakes by the Chicago Drainage Canal would permanently increase the cost of navigation of the St. Lawrence River, Hugh L. Cooper, engineer of Stanford, Conn., testified today, when hearings on the subject were resumed before Charles A. Hughes, special Supreme Court Master.

Cooper presented exhaustive data bearing on the economic losses caused by the water abstracted by the canal, and said that the lowering of the level by eight inches resulted in the loss of one indraft for cargo ships plying on the St. Lawrence River. This would be the equivalent to a loss of 64 tons per ship in carrying capacity, he said, and on the basis of a freight rate of 2 per ton between Buffalo and Montreal would represent a loss of $128.

LAKE NAVIGATION IS NEARLY OVER

St. Mary's River Now Almost Impassable—Unusually Cold.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. Dec. 1 (Canadian Press)—In marine circles here the belief is expressed that navigation in the St. Mary's River may close this week. The 29 upbound boats which were held in the ice in Mud Lake have been released by tugs and are proceeding up Lake Superior today. On the other hand zero weather prevailed all through this section last night and today and further tightened up the ice in the lower river. The view is expressed that another 24 hours of the present severe cold snap will make the river almost impassible. The weather here has been exceptional, almost establishing a record for severity at this season. During November 25 3-10 inches of snow fell, which is the most ever recorded in the Sault.

Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Commissioner General in Paris, and a number of other memebrs of the Canadian colony in Paris were at the St. Lazare station to say goodbye to the departing ministers.

STATE MOVES FOR NEW TRIAL

Prosecutor Alleges Improprieties Which Make Fairness Improbable.

HALL-MILLS CASE.

Court House, Somerville, N. J., — Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills murder case, to-day moved for a mistrial, alleging improprieties which made it impossible for him to obtain a fair trial.

The motion was made at the completion of the state's case against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Willis and Henry Stevens. They have been on trial for four weeks on charges of killing Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, a soprano in the church of which Mrs. Hall's husband, the Rev. Eward Wheeler Hall, was Rector.

Judge Charles W. Parker, presiding at the trial, said he would take the matter under advisement. The jurors left the court-room while counsel argued the motion.

Simpson grouped his allegations under three heads:

That members of the jury had been asleep during the presentation of important evidence.

That they had been improperly guarded, one member having been observed in consultation with members of the defence counsel;

And the manifest hostility of some members of the jury to him and to the State's case.

Affidavits supporting the allegations were presented.

Motion Refused

Justice Parker this afternoon denied the motion by the State for a mis-trial in the Hall-Mills case.

Judge Parker made no comment. The jury, which had been taken from the court room, was brought back in and preparations were started for the defence's summation.

PETERBOROUGH U.F.Y.P.O.

Annual Meeting Held, With Miss Hazel Ackison Elected President.

The annual business meeting of the Peterboro U.F.Y.P.O. Club took place on Tuesday evening, Nov. 30th. There was an exceptionally good attendance, about 50 being present and the enthusiasm displayed speaks well for the progress of the club during the coming season.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, Mr. Vivian Milburn and Mr. F. McNeely gave interesting talks on the work of the Y.M.C.A. and gave a hearty invitation to the boys of the U.F.Y.P.O. Club to join the institution and make it their headquarters when in the city. A great number of the boys took advantage of this offer and it is hoped that eventually all the boys of the club will be members of this worthy institution.

A report was then given by Mr. Allan Milburn, one of the delegates to the boys' conference held in Belleville under the auspices of the Agricultural Department of Ontario. It was very interesting and showed how instructive and helpful such conferences are to the young people.

The club then had a report from Miss Ruby Bolton, on her trip to the Winter Fair at Toronto.

Miss Bolton was successful in winning second prize in the girls' judging competition at the Peterborough exhibition and the free trip to the winter fair donated by the exhibition board.

The members then enjoyed readings from Miss Eva Outram and Miss Jessie Tully, which were both heartily encored.

The delegates nominated to attend the county convention were Misses May Wilson and Eulah Hancock and Messrs. Allan Milburn and Gordon Hancock.

Mr. Gordon Hancock was appointed as delegate to attend the annual convention in Toronto on Dec. 14th.

The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, the following members being elected to office.

President: Miss Hazel Ackison.
Vice-Pres.: Mr. Melville Harrison.
Sec.-Treas.: Mr. Gordon Hancock.
Pianist: Miss Mildred Fowler.
Auditors: Messrs. E. Thompson and M. Harrison.
Leaders: Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shields.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Shields for their very helpful services rendered during the past years.

After the refreshments were served the meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

The Programme Committee to look after the next meeting ,December 13th, consists of Allan Milburn, Harry Fowler, Evelyn Darling and Jessie Tully.

U. S. TURNS BACK MANY FOREIGNERS

Most of Those Refused Entry Tried at Canadian Border Points.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 1, Canadian Press. — Of the 10,904 aliens found to be unlawfully within the United States during the last fiscal year, 2102 were deported to Canada.

More than twenty thousand aliens were debarred from entering the country, 15,808 of these being turned back at the Canadian border, according to official figures.

Oil Shares Advance New Strength In Rails

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—A sudden demand for the oil shares featured the resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market. Retention of relatively stiff call money rates was disregarded by speculators working for higher prices on the theory that the higher charge was only temporary.

The advance in the oils was led by Atlantic Refining, which was quickly bid up four points and tended to confirm widespread rumors of "December oil market." Phillips Petroleum and Mid Continent Oil Preferred were bid up to new 1926 peak prices, the buying of the former being associated with merger reports.

Declaration of an extra dividend on Lehigh Valley Common and the resumption of dividends on Colorado and Southern infused new strength in the rails shares. 'Frisco Preferred touched a new top price and Jersey Central was bid up three points.

Nearly a score of issues had established new peak prices before the end of the third hour, including several tobaccos and public utilities. Reynolds Tobacco B was an outstanding weak spot, yielding over three points.

Election Influences Mine Market Business

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.) — A gain of 30 cents in Dome Mines featured the quiet session of the standard mining exchange to-day. Dome touched 12.30. Only 235,356 shares were dealt in at the early session, the election being held responsible for the lack of interest in the market. Gains and losses were evenly distributed over the list. Hollinger Consolidated was up 25 at 1895, McIntyre down 30 at 2440, Mining Corporation ten lower at 279, and Nipissing up five at 620. Wright Hargreaves was also higher, being up ten at 910, while Vipond gained one at 158.

Toronto Prices Firmer, Many Issues Dealt In

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Despite the fact that it is election day in Ontario prices were firmer on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, and a wide range of issues was dealt in. Industrial Alcohol, Smelters and International Nickle were among the leaders. Alcohol was up 3-4 at 27 3-4, Smelters up four at 254, and Nickle 3-4 at 39. Brazilian and British Columbia Fishing each registered a 3-4 gain, the former at 104 1-4 and the latter at 95 1-2. Page Hersey Common was up 3-4 at 59 1-2, while the preferred gained 1-2 at 119. Port Hope Sanitary continued its rise when it went five higher at 125. The unlisted market received attention, Distilleries being 1-4 higher at 4 7-8, Seagram 5-8 up at 16 1-8, Imperial Oil up 1-4 at 37 3-4, and International Petroleum and British American Oil each up 3-4 at 31 3-8 and 70 1-4 respectively.

Wheat Prices Go Up Due To Harvest Delays

CHICAGO, December 1. Canadian Press. — Wheat prices averaged a little higher early to-day owing more or less to reports of delay to cutting and threshing in Argentina.

At first however, wheat was easy, because of fairly large deliveries here and the weakness of the foreign markets.

Opening at ⅜c decline to ¼c advance, wheat sagged all around and then rose to above yesterday's finish. Corn, oats and provisions were firmer, corn starting 1-8c to ½c higher cided gains.

HANKOW STRIKE STARTS SATURDAY

Chamberlain Says There Is No Fear For Safety of British.

LONDON, Dec. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—Latest reports state that the threatened general strike against foreigners in Hankow has been set for Dec. 4, Sir Austen Chamberlain to-day told the House of Commons.

With the possible exception of Hankow, Sir Austen said, there was no reason at the present time to fear for the person safety of British subjects in China's treaty ports.

British forces are available for landing in Hankow if necessary, the secretary said, and as far as he knew, shipping facilities there were adequate to evacuate British forces if an emergency should require it.

He added that there was no reason to fear danger to British nationales living in isolated places in the interior from anti-foreigen outbreaks, although individual cases of danger were bound to occur.

A British sloop will be kept in Hankow and river gunboats will move on the Yangtse river through out the winter, it is said.

How to Play BRIDGE

A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1926, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 5

What are the requirements for a sound no-trump bid by dealer? Practically all of the authorities agree that one no-trump may be bid by dealer if he holds two or more sure tricks divided among three suits. There isn't much difference of opinion as to these requirements but there is considerable difference of opinion as to how these requirements should be applied. As an example of the difficulty, a correspondent has just written for enlightenment as to the meaning of "two tricks divided among three suits." In order to make this phrase perfectly clear, an analysis of card valuation is necessary.

The only cards sure of taking tricks are the four aces. A guarded king, i. e., a king and one or more of a suit, takes a trick just half the time, so is clearly worth one-half the value of an ace. A guarded queen, i. e., a queen and two or more of a suit, will take a trick about half as often as a king, so is worth one-quarter trick. There are four aces, four kings and four queens. Each player is entitled to one-fourth of these cards, or to one ace, one king, and one queen, which is called an average hand. An average hand, therefore, containing one ace, one king, one queen, is valued at one and three-quarter tricks. These values are not enough to warrant a bid, the least required being one queen more than average, or two tricks. If these values are divided among at least three suits, a no-trump may be bid; if the values are confined to one suit, the suit may be bid. It should be noted that if two honors are held in sequence, the lower honor takes the value of the higher. Thus, an ace and king in one suit is valued at two tricks; a king, queen at one trick; a queen, jack at one-half trick. An ace, queen, jack combination, and a king, queen, jack combination are each worth two sure tricks. Please note that these values are all defensive or so-called "Sure tricks;" that is, their values as trick takers when the opponents are playing the hand. Their value in support of their own or partner's best bid is approximately double their sure trick values.

In order to apply these instructions, note the following hands, in which is indicated, after each suit, the value of that suit in sure tricks:

Hand No. 1
Hearts — A, K, 7, 6, 2 (2)
Clubs — 10, 8, 6 (0)
Diamonds — J, 8, 7, 6 (0)
Spades — 8 (0)

Hand No. 2
Hearts — A, K, 4, 2 (2)
Clubs — J, 10, 7, 4 (0)

Hearts — K, 10, 8, 3 (1½)
Clubs — K, 7, 4 (1½)
Diamonds — Q, J, 7, 2 (1½)
Spades — J, 9 (0)

Hand No. 4
Hearts — K, Q, J, 7 (2)
Clubs — Q, 7, 6 (1½)
Diamonds — K, J, 4, 2 (1½)
Spades — A, 4 (1)

When the trick strength is confined to one suit, bid the suit, as one heart in Hand No. 1. Where the sure tricks are divided among three or more suits, as in Hands No. 2 and No. 4, bid one no-trump. Where the sure trick strength is less than two tricks, as in Hand No. 3, pass.

Here is a hand in which the proper lead is a very doubtful question. Think it over and compare results with the analysis that will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 5

Clubs — 8, 7, 3
Diamonds — J, 10, 7
Spades — A, 3

Y / A B / Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart, A passed, and Y bid two diamonds. If all passed, what should B open?

Here is a problem hand that involves a principle that comes up very frequently. It is tricky but easy if you just think it over carefully.

Problem No. 6

Hearts — none
Clubs — 10
Diamonds — A, K, 7, 3
Spades — none

Hearts — none
Clubs — none
Diamonds — 10, 4
Spades — 10, 7, 2

Spades are trump and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win every trick against any defense? Solution in the next article.

WEDDING BELLS.

DUNNETT—MAYBEE.

COBOURG, Dec. 1.—(Special.)—The marriage was solemnized in Trinity United Church, Brighton, on Thursday, Nov. 18, of Edith Elizabeth Maybee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Maybee, to Dr. Frank H. Dunnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dunnett, Brighton. The church was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. Rev. J. S. T. Wilson, B.D., officiated, and Mrs. Addie Wellington Lapp played the wedding music. Miss Florence Smith sang during the signing of the register. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore white georgette and tulle veil caught with rhinestones and seed pearls in Grecian style. Her flowers were Sweetheart roses and lily of the valely.—Toronto Globe.

JACKSON—WILGAR

A quiet but very pretty house wedding was solemnized today at the residence of Mrs. W. D. Wilgar 509 Homewood aevnue, when her elder daughter, Harriet Jean, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to William E. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jackson. The ceremony was performed at half past two o'clock by Rev. J. W. Gordon, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the bridal party. The drawing room was attractively arranged with palms, ferns and chrysanthemums.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harold M. Wilgar, wore a lovely sleeveless frock of white georgette, posed over pink and embroidered in silver, with sash of rose velvet. She wore a rhinestone bandeau and carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. Her shoes and stockings were of silver.

The brides' sister, Miss Eleanor Wilgar, acted as her attendant, wearing a gown of green, with taffeta bodice and overdrape of net, ornamented with French flowers. A long shoulder sash and flat bow of pale pink satin. She wore silver shoes and stockings and carried an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. Fred Morrison of Toronto was best man.

The wedding march was played by Mr. John Crane and, during the signing of the register, a vocal solo, "For You Alone" was rendered by Mrs. Peter Spratt of Lindsay, wearing a gown of navy flat crepe, embroidered in shades of gold and cerise, with black hat and corsage bouquet of bronze baby 'mums.

After the ceremony, a reception was held by the bridal party, with a buffet luncheon. Mrs. Wilgar, mother of the bride, wore black lace over white georgette, with corsagee bouquet of mauve baby 'mums, and Mrs. Jackson, mother of the bridegroom, was in black satin-faced crepe, embroidered in gold, with corsage bouquet of sweet peas and roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson left later on a motor trip to Cleveland, the bride travelling in a dress of golden brown velvet with vestee of pink satin-faced crepe. She wore tan shoes and stockings, a golden brown velvet hat with metallic crown and carried an alligator skin bag. Her coat, the gift of the bridegroom, was of golden brown seal, with long collar of tan fox.

THAT COLD
To successfully combat a cold, it is necessary to speed up the elimination of poisons and accumulated waste from the body. The best way to do this is by restoring normal nerve energy to the liver, kidneys, bowels, lungs and skin by releasing constriction from spinal nerves. CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS PROVE EFFECTIVE in warding off a cold or in breaking up a cold which has become either acute or chronic.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL CARRIED

Ontario Gives Premier Eighty Supporters Opposed to O.T.A.

Seventy-five of Those Returned Are Straight Conservatives—None of Prohibition Nominees Elected—Five Non-Conservatives Favor Control Policy.

PROHIBITION LAW TURNED DOWN AFTER BEING IN EFFECT 10 YEARS

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press)—Ontario has decided to try Government Control in the matter of liquor sales after a ten year period of prohibitory law. The battle of the ballots, waged yesterday after six weeks of vigorous campaigning, is over and the casualties are chiefly on the side of those who championed the Ontario Temperance Act which since 1916 has permitted legal sale of liquors only on doctors' prescriptions.

The Conservative Government, led by Hon G. Howard Ferguson, decided to jettison this act and go to the country on a proposal to introduce government sale of liquor to permit holders over 21 years of age. The two chief opposition groups, Liberals and Progressives, as well as other prohibitionist forces accepted the challenge and declared for continuance of the O. T.A. The verdict rendered yesterday showed that the majority of the people accepted the view put forth in the campaign by the government that the O. T. A., lacking popular support, could not be enforced and that it had fostered a menacing bootlegging element. They elected eighty members pledged to support Government Control and 31 to support the O.T.A., with one riding still doubtful.

Five of the eighty are in opposition to the government except on the control measure but the government's own following of 75 will give them a majority of 38 over all groups in the seventeenth assembly after electing the speaker. Of the thirty who went into battle yesterday morning as prohibition candidates not one returned victorious.

Following is the standing of the parties:

Conservatives	76
Liberals	14
Progressives	12
Liberal Progressives	5
Ind. Liberals	4
Labor	1
Total	112

The four Independent Liberals

PROHIBITIONISTS HEAR RETURNS WITH DISMAY

Defeat of Local Candidate and W. F. Nickle Dampens Spirits.

CHEER ANDERSON

Workers Show Fatigue of Hard Campaign for O.T.A.

Hundreds of Prohibitionists gathered to-night in Reid Street Hall to get the returns as they came in. Their enthusiasm was soon dampened when their candidate went down to defeat along with Hon. W. F. Nickle and many others who were standing for the prohibition cause. The announcement of the election of W. A. Anderson in the county riding was received with much applause.

A musical programme was given and the crowd had their spirits comforted by simple Hawaiian music.

Most of the workers showed fatigue and emotion for many of them had been working hard for many days for a cause which they believed was right, and against a habit which they thought there was only one way to stamp out.

FEW STAY OUT TO GET RESULTS

Citizens Desert Streets After First Few Reports Come In.

LITTLE ENTHUSIASM

The streets to-night showed very little enthusiasm and interest being taken. The crowd went home early, taking it for granted that the Ferguson Government had been re-elected.

By the streets at 10 o'clock one would hardly know that the returns of a Provincial election were coming in, and that political history was being made for this old province of Ontario.

A few men gathered around the Examiner bulletin board waiting for the final extra.

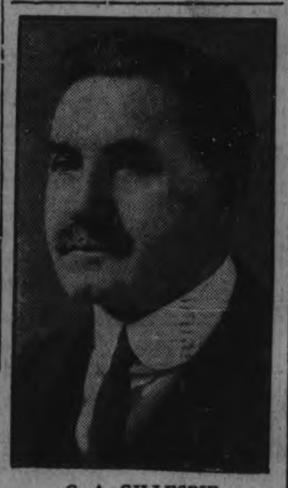
Victoria Hall remained crowded for that is where great enthusiasm was being shown. As the election of members of the Government was announced cheer after cheer echoed throughout the great hall. All the Conservative leaders in the present campaign in this riding were on the platform with also many lady workers.

A hush went over the audience when it was announced that Col. T. Dalton Johnston had gone down to defeat in the county riding for they had expected the Colonel to carry the constituency.

The Liberal committee rooms were very quiet but on the announcement of the Liberal gains in this part of Ontario a few hearty cheers were given.

THE WEATHER.

The temperature was 2 above zero early this morning—the lowest to date. Genuine winter conditions with considerable snow on the ground prevail in sections north and north west, and it looks as if a permanent freeze-up for the winter is here. The rainfall for the month of November was greatly in excess of average, and totaled 4.75 (four inches and three-quarters) on the level.—W. P.



G. A. GILLESPIE
who at 8.20 conceded the election of W. H. Bradburn.

MANY MONTHS BEFORE POLICY BECOMES LAW

Legislature Not Likely To Be Called Before Jan. 15.

BILL NOT READY.

Earliest Possible Date For Control Policy May 1.

TORONTO, December 2. Canadian Press. It is stated here to-day that several months must elapse before the carefully moving machines of law and legislation can bring into operation in Ontario the sale of liquor under government control system in the place of the present Ontario Temperance Act.

It is thought improbable that a session of the new Legislature will be called before Jan. 15th.

There is much to be done in the way of preparation and drafting of the new law before it can be placed before the House. It is stated here to-day that May 1st would be the earliest that the government control measure could be brought into operation.

In the meantime, Premier Ferguson declared in his victory speech last night there will be no relaxing of enforcement of the present O.T.A.

Until the new law goes into effect the existing act must be recognized and respected.

Much interest attaches to the identity of the man whom the Premier has intimated will be appointed to the chairmanship of the commission to administer the new law.

The government has also to deal with the situation created by defeat in Grey South of Hon. David Jamieson, Minister without portfolio; and in Port Arthur of F. H. Keefer, who held the appointment of secretary for Northern Ontario without a seat in the cabinet.

MINISTERS RESTING.

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Ontario's Cabinet Ministers, with the exception of Hon. George Henry, Minister of Highways and Public Works, are resting at their homes to-day after the strenuous political campaign which ended yesterday in the endorsement of Government control. It is not likely that the ministers will return to their desks before next week.

Premier Howard Ferguson's office is swamped with telegrams congratulating him on the return of his government. The Premier will rest up for a day or so. His throat is giving him considerable trouble as a result of the strain imposed on his vocal organs during the closing days of the campaign and his physician has ordered a rest. Until he returns to his office in the Parliament Buildings no action will be taken in connection with adjustments made necessary by the result of the election.

RECOUNT IN PRINCE EDWARD.

PICTON, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Complete figures of the voting in Prince Edward, where W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, was elected yesterday, are not yet available, but the summary of majorities at present in hand shows a majority of 47 for Mr. Raney. The Conservatives are talking of demanding a recount.

NICKLE RETIRING.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—"I am retiring from public life," W. F. Nickle, defeated in yesterday's election, declared to-day. He will resume practice of law here on Jan. 1st. "The people have given their verdict in no uncertain terms," he said, commenting on the election. "I have nothing to say regarding their decision."

Women Invade Smokers But Don't Smoke There

CHICAGO, December 2—. United Press. — Man's last rendezvous, the smoking car, is rapidly being usurped by woman, according to complaints registered daily at the Illinois Central Railroad.

Women are exhibiting a growing inclination to ride in the smoker, the railroad officials said. Not all of them use the smoking privilege, but many prefer to sit down in the smoker as they enter the train, rather than risk getting a seat farther on in the train.

MR. BRADBURN'S STATEMENT

"I want to thank my workers and voters who supported me. It goes to prove that the people wanted a change in the O.T.A., and I believe that putting it in the hands of the Government is a step forward in temperance.

"This issue has been fought on one thing, and that the Government Control policy of Premier Ferguson. I regret that the achievements of the Fergupson Government in the last three years have not been an issue in this campaign, for the accomplishments of the government were enough to elect it without having the other plank in the platform."

ABANDONMENT OF CONCILIATON POLICY UNLIKELY

British Government Towards China Because of Threatened Hankow Situation.

REPORTS NO CHANGE.

General Strike Against Foreigners Has Been Set For December 4th.

LONDON, December 2. Cnadian Press. — Abandonment by the British government of its policy of conciliation towards China because of the threatened situation at Hankow is unlikely.

This was indicated in the House of Commons and other governmental quarters to-day. Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of Foreign Affairs, informed the House that there was no material change in the situation since Monday, when marines were landed. The threatened general strike against foreigners in Hankow, however, has been set for December 4, and there are possibilities in this attitude of the Chinese.

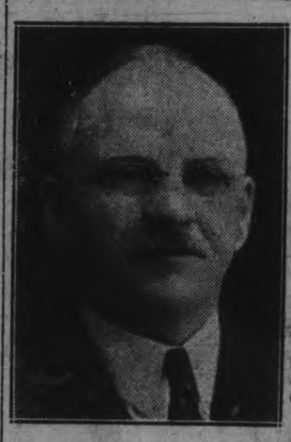
Ample naval forces will remain on the Yangtze River-Kiang throughout the winter, Sir Austen added, and he gave assurances that the diplomatic representatives are in constant touch with both the central and the local Chinese authorities with a view to protecting British subjects.

This means that the British are dealing with the Canton authorities wherever and whenever the necessity arises, just as they deal with the Pekinese. But it is understood that the question of the recognition of the Canton Nationalist regime is authority for the whole of China is not being considered, nor is it likely to be considered until there is something like a definite settlement between the opposing forces of the north and the south.

While recognizing the difficulties of the foreign communities in Hankow, the foreign secretary informed the House that the government is most loath to interfere in the domestic affairs of China, apart from the necessity of fulfilling its prime duty of protecting the lives of British subjects."

AROUND THE CITY.

While many were celebrating the victory last night the firemen had no opportunity to join in as there were four calls during the night, all to chimney fires. At 5.09 to 293 Townsend Street; at 11.56 to 80 Victoria Avenue; at 12.20 to 78 Park Street South, and at 7.57 this morning to 462 Sherbrooke Street.



HON. G. HOWARD FERGUSON,
Premier,
Of Ontario, whose policy of Government control was endorsed by the Province.

W. H. BRADBURN
elected by a majority of nearly 1500 in Peterborough City.

LIBERAL HOPES RISE AND FALL AS POLLS REPORT

Election of Mr. Bradburn Conceded When South Ward Comes In.

CHEERS FOR SMITH

North Ward Also Brought Cheers With Favorable Majority.

Returns came into the Liberal headquarters soon after the polls closed. For fifteen minutes the wires were busy. Number 16 was the first poll to send in the returns, which were in exactly ten minutes after the closing time. The first polls dampened the enthusiasm of the few men who had gathered in the committee room. The early results gave Mr. Bradburn a considerable lead, but the supporters of Mr. Gillespie did not lose heart, for it was on everybody's tongue, "Wait until we hear from Smith."

Monaghan then came in with a huge majority in the suburban part for Mr. Bradburn, but in a few moments the rural district reported with over a hundred majority for Mr. Gillespie. Bridgenorth returns soon came in with a big majority for Mr. Gillespie. The Liberals' hopes went sky high, for the North Ward was giving a dry majority also, but soon the result of the vote in the South Ward was known and defeat seemed to be staring them in the face.

Rousing cheers greeted the announcement of the returns from the North wards and from Smith. The excitement and enthusiasm was intense when Bridgenorth was reported, which pulled down Mr. Bradburn's majority to some 200 votes, but as the other returns were announced, it became evident that the majority could not be overcome. By eight o'clock, Mr. Gillespie conceded the election and thought that the majority would probably be one thousand.

NORTH ONTARIO SHIFTED FROM TORY COLUMN

Returns Progressive to the House When Final Count is Made.

NOON SUMMARY.

Ferguson Now Has 74 Conservatives and 5 Other Supporters.

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—Premier Ferguson's following in the Legislature was reduced by one this morning when Ontario North was changed from the Conservative to the Progressive column. With Manitoulin still to be conceded, the Canadian Press reported at noon today the election of 111 members out of 112, of whom 79 are pledged to support Premier Ferguson's Government Control policy.

Summary.—Cons. 74, Liberals 14, Progressives 13, Liberal-Progressives 5, Ind. Liberals 4, Labor 1, doubtful 1.

SUDBURY, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).Whether Thomas Farquhar, Progressive, or L. B. Diblee, Conservative, is elected in Manitoulin, the only remaining doubtful seat, will not be known until the arrival of the mail boat here some time this afternoon with returns from seven distant polls. Without these returns Farquhar's majority is 90 but Conservatives claim the returns to come will overcome this lead.

Widdifield Re-elected

OSHAWA, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—J. W. Widdifield, Pro., has been re-elected to represent the riding of Ontario North in the Legislature. This was conceded today by T. D. Bell, the Government Conservative candidate, who was thought last night to have won the seat. Mr. Widdifield has a majority of 140, with 42 polls out of 58 heard from. The constituency is therefore unchanged.

DRESSED POULTRY SALE IS A BIG EVENT

Many Organizations Co-operating—Merchants Giving Special Values During Week.

The first annual dressed poultry sale, which will be held in Peterborough on the Market Square and Market Hall, on Wednesday and Thursday, December 8th and 9th, promises to be one of the most unique and largest marketing events ever held in this district.

Poultry dealers will be here from different parts of the provinces to make purchases of dressed fowl from the farmers, within a radius of thirty miles, from whom it is expected more than one hundred ton of fowl will be brought in for sale.

During the week of the poultry sale the merchants of the city are giving special values in all lines, commencing with Wednesday, December 6th to Saturday, December 11th, inclusive, to help inaugurate the event.

While this is the first dressed poultry sale ever held in Peterborough, the City Council, the Retail Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce are right behind the project in order to make it a success, and an annual event in the future.

TINY REPUBLIC GIVES PROBLEM

Andorra Seeks Membership in the League of Nations.

NEIGHBORS. DIFFER.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Correspondent.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—If Breathitt County, Ky, or Kit Carson County, Colo., should apply for membership in the League of Nations, it would be a joke.

But the Republic of Andorra, with its 175 square miles of rocky territory, and its 5,230 total population, when it applies for membership, it is an international complication.

Andorra lies in the eastern Pyrennes between France and Spain. The proposal becomes a hard nut to crack because France is a quite active member of the league and Spain has just announced its intention to withdraw. How can the league discuss the question diplomatically with the two large neighbors at cross purposes like that?

The applicant, smaller than most American counties, is one of the three smallest countries in the world, the others being San Marino, and Lichtenstein. It is unique in that it has no tariff, no taxes, no army.. It is a truly patriarchal community, with a talent for agriculture, a tolerance toward smugglers and a gravity which defies all the jibes of the humorists.

Andorra claims to date its liberties to a charter granted by Charlemagne. The people really are Catalans, who once were subjects of the Spanish Bishop of Urgel.

Centuries ago the bishop and the Count of Foix, a Frenchman, had a quarrel as to who owned Andorra. They settled by giving Andorra to the Andorrans.

The bishop and the count were to be suzerain lords. The bishop today is one of the few Catholic priests who have temporal power. The suzerainty of the Counts of Foix descended to Henri IV. of France, and on to the French Republic. Andorra recognizes this old connection by solemnly paying France a tribute of 960 francs a year, and the Bishop of Urgel 460 francs.

The country is divided into six parishes, and each elects four members to the council, which rules. Each family is controlled by its elder, and only an elder is an elector. His title and estates descend to his eldest son. The council elects a first and second syndic. The first syndic has the executive power.

If any offense is committed, all the able-bodied young men are called out to pursue the malefactor. When arrested, he is turned over to France.

The Andorrans are expert smugglers of the tobacco they raise and which they slip over into France and Spain.

If they get a seat in the league, the Andorrans promise to be supporters of America. In other words, Andorra is strong for President Coolidge's disarmament program. They possess no navy. And their only armaments are a few rusty rifles. But they have a slogan which they would substitute for: "Make the world safe for democracy."

Their is "Make the world safe for smuggling!"

The Government of Andorra. The suzerain Bishop of Urgel, centre, the first syndic at his right, and members of the national council.

WALES COMING AGAIN.

Prince Plans To Spend Two Months at Ranch Next Year.

CALGARY, Alta., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, is going to stay a while when he comes to Alberta next time. In fact he is going to stay two months or so, according to announcement made by W. L. Carlyle, manager of the royal ranch, near High River, Alta. The Prince, he says, hopes to be in Canada next August.

Prof. Carlyle declared that the Prince had been disappointed on his last journeys in that he could only stay three weeks. He will spend as much of the fall as he can next year, according to present plans.

Prof. Carlyle is leaving for England in January and will confer with the Prince.

...Y CRISIS ...THOUGHT ...HAVE PASSED

Rumor States That Basis of An Agreement Is Reached.

MAKE REPORT SOON.

Have Right To Re-open Case When Rate Structure is Announced.

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—No statement as to whether any basis of possible compromise in the wage trouble between conductors and trainmen on Canadian lines and the Canadia Pacific and Canadian National Railways was given out following the conference Tuesday between the companies and the men arranged in the hope of averting a strike.

Stock market and shippers show no uneasiness, however, and there is a rumor that a basis of settlement has already been reached and that announcement of an agreement is likely this week. The rumor states that the crisis is practically over and that the railways agree to the men's demands tentatively, with the right to re-open the case when the new railway rate structure is announced by the Railway Commission, increase to be not paid, but held by the companies at interest, and to depend finally on the scale fixed following rates announcements.

DENY MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

Indications Show That Case Will Be Given To Jury on Friday.

IN SPEECH STAGE.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—Failure of an effort by the state summarily to end it through a mis-trial sent the Hall-Mills case yesterday into the speech-making stage. On the heels of the close of the rebuttal testimony and brief sur-rebuttal, a motion for a mis-trial was denied and the first of a series of extended summing up speeches was begun. Indications last night were that the case would be delivered to the jury Friday.

Only a part of the first speech was delivered yesterday, Robert H. McCarter opening for the defence, holding the floor at the close of the court day when he had spoken for two hours and fifteen minutes. He will probably speak for another hour today.

McCarter devoted most of his argument to the case of Mrs. Hall and her brother, William. Senator Case, to speak today, was expected to stress the alibi set up in behalf of Henry Stevens.

Mr. McCarter launched into a terrific arraignment of many of the 100 witnesses used by the State. At the outset he declared that James Mills, husband of the slain woman, was in better position to know of a love affair between his wife and the rector than was Mrs. Hall. Referring to testimony that m a telephone conversation with Mrs. Mills the afternoon of September 14, the minister was heard to say. "That's too bad." He wondered, he told the jury if Mr Hall could have been commenting on tidings that a letter he had placed in the church for Mrs. Hills had been found by her husband, who was the sexton.

He added that a statement by Mills to Mrs. Hall, when informed that her husband was missing, as was his wife, "perhaps they have eloped," was highly significant.

The lawyer ran the scale of sarcasm and invective as he scored State's witnesses. He made an extended attack on Edward H. Schwartz, Newark, finger-print man, when he reached the fingerprint testimony of the State that the print of Willie Stevens' finger appears on a calling card found near the body of the slain minister.

The fingerprint testimony, he said, is one of the chief claims of the State. Other circumstantial matters he called the "ruffles on the garment." With the fingerprint equation he links the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson who, testifying from a hospital bed in court, identified the three defendants as persons she saw near the spot where the bodies were found. He did not reach Mrs. Gibson yesterday afternoon ,completing a summary of fingerprint testimony which he termed "ridiculous," as the hour for adjournment arrived.

"I charge with all the solemnity that is in me that that card is a fraud," he shouted, as he waved the calling card, known in the case as S-17, high in the air.

U. S. IS URGED TO SEND ENVOYS TO DOMINIONS

Former Ambassador To Britain Makes Suggestion That Ministers Be Appointed.

FOR OTTAWA.

Says United States and British Dominions Are Inseparably Linked.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—Uurging that Congress at the coming session authorize the appointment of envoys to Canada, Ireland and Australia, George Harvey, former United States ambassador to Great Britain, told the St. Andrew's Society at its annual dinner Tuesday night that "our first gratifying duty is to grasp the hand of these new nations."

The revolution of the American colonies saved Great Britain, Mr. Harvey said.

"The successful revolt of the colonies proved conclusively that wherever on earth they might exist, Englishmen, Scotsmen, Irishmen and Welshment must be free,' he said, "free to manage their own affairs, free to shape their own course and to find their own destiny at home and abroad in their way."

Inseparably Linked

The United States and the British dominions are inseparably linked, he said. "We are the world's greatest producers, and they are the biggest purchasers. We have become the greatest creditor, and they are the most solvent of debtors. A breakdown of British guidance and control would spell calamity to the United States," he concluded.

FORM COALITION.

Have Considerable Effect in Stabilinzing Situation in Rumania.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press). — While Queen Marie is speeding homeward the political leaders in Bucharest are understood to have reached an agreement for the formation of a coalition cabinet. This would be expected to have a considerable effect in stabilizing the political situation.

As the new cabinet is outlined, M. Averescu would retain the premiership, and Ionel Bratiano ,the former premier, while not taking any portfolio himself, would be represented in the cabinet by several of his principal adherents.

OBITUARY.

OMEMEE, Dec. 2.—Miss Olive Feir, daughter of Mr. Isaiah Feir and the late Mrs. Feir passed peacefully to rest on Wednesday evening, following a long and serious illness at the Kingston hospital. Ten days ago an operation was performed, the patient rallied and was very cheery as to the outcome of a second minor operation which it was found necessary to perform on Wednesday but her frail condition could not withstand the shock and she passed peacefully away to the land where there is no pain. Miss Feir was of a bright lovable disposition and she will be most sadly missed not only in her home but by her friends who were legion.

The remains were conveyed to Omemee on Thursday evening and thence to the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Johnston.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon. Following a private service at the house, the funeral cortege wended its way to Trinity United church, of which Miss Feir was a valued and faithful member, where the many friends of the family had gathered to pay their last tribute to the deceased.

The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, who was assisted by Rev. Mr. Patterson of Janetville, a friend of the family, both of whom paid a glowing tribute to the genuine Christian character of the deceased young lady.

Many beautiful flowers graced the casket, a tribute of love and respect from the church and many friends.

Interment was made in the family plot in Emily cemetery, the remains being tenderly borne to their last resting place by Messrs. F. G. Sandy, William Brown, H. Lamb, R. H. Johnston, C. Best of Mount Pleasant, and H. Thornton of Kingston.

Left to mourn the passing of a loving daughter and sister are a sorrowing father and three sisters: Mrs. R. Johnston, Omemee, and Mrs. Harry Feir of Manitoba, to whom is extended the very sincere sympathy of a host of friends.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Hannah and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Magee, Mrs. Andrew Magill, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Thornton, all of Janetville, Mr. and Mrs. A. Feir of Peterboro, Mrs. W. D. Feir and daughter of Lindsay, Mrs. Fee of Peterboro and Miss Moore of Peterboro.

ALLEN McDONALD.

NAPANEE, Dec. 2.—The citizens of Napanee were greatly shocked to learn of the death on November 19 of Mr. Allen McDonald, the well known barber on John street, which occurred at his late residence in the early hours of the morning. The deceased although not feeling quite as well as usual during the past week had been at his shop every day and a few hours before his death had assisted in a program which was given in the school room of St. Mary Magdalene church, he being a member of St. Andrew's church Orchestra. Shortly after the close of the concert the deceased came down to his shop and on returning home was suddenly stricken with acute indigestion. Dr. Willoughby was at once summoned but nothing could be done to stay life.

The late Mr. MacDonald, "Mac" as he was known to everyone, with his wife and two children came to Napanee from Toronto about four years ago, he having purchased the tonsorial parlor from Mr. Arthur Young. In his brief residence in town he had built up a splendid business, he being a skilled worker and very popular with every one.

On the formation of St. Andrew's Orchestra three years ago he became a member and every Sunday, rain or shine, he was in his accustomed seat at the Sunday school assisting the orchestra in the musical part of the service.

The deceased was a member of St. Andrew's church, a staunch Conservative and an active member of the Orangemen. In fraternal, musical and business circles he will be missed and the sympathy of the community is extended to the grief-stricken widow and two fatherless children over the sad and irreparable loss which they have sustained.

A memorial service for the late Mr. Allen L. McDonald, who passed away very suddenly on Friday morning, was held in the Sunday school room of St. Andrew's church on Sunday and was attended by a large number of sympathizing friends. The drums which the deceased played while a member of St. Andrew's orchestra were appropriately draped and on them reposed a beautiful wreath. In passing it may be said that in the three years which St. Aindrew's orchestra has been organized and which assists in the musical service of the school every Sunday the deceased had only been absent three times, he also having been secretary of both the orchestra and the Sunday School.

The funeral was held from his late residence to St. Andrew's church, Rev. A. J. Wilson officiating. The officers and members of the local Orange Lodges marched to the church in a body and accompanied the funeral cortege to the station at 11 o'clock, the remains beng taken to Goderich for interment. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Alex MacGregor, George Hewitt, Arthur Kimmerly, Will Coutts, James Moffat and Harry Kerr. The funeral was in charge of Messrs. F. C. Martin and Son.

Mr. McDonald was a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Waller, 500 College street, Peterboro.

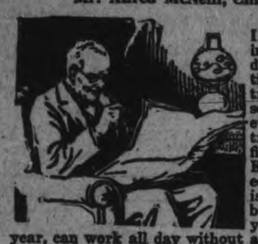
"I was greatly Distressed With Pains in the Back"

Mr. Alfred McNeill, Chapel Rock, Alta., writes:



"During the winter of 1920-21, I was greatly distressed with pains in my back and felt tired and depressed most of the time. Particularly during the night I was troubled with frequent urination, some nights having to rise almost every hour. I tried several different treatments without success, until finally I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they relieved my condition before I had finished the first box. I am feeling better this summer than I have for years, and although in my 67th year, can work all day without any undue fatigue."

SHORT STORY

ANTOINETTE'S ANTIQUES

(By Luella Gordon.)

Antoinette Raven was the sort of girl who was always chasing a new fancy. Her gods were never the same gods for long at a time. A few years ago she had been enthusiasm to her finger-tips for old furniture.

Now she was golf mad. She had accumulated a house full of antique chairs, tables, beds, high and low-boys, spinning wheels, carved chests and sideboards. And there they were, neglected, despised almost, by their owner now that she had taken to the golf greens.

"I'm going to have a sale," she announced to her mother. "I'm sick and tired of this old, dismal, gloomy furniture."

"You're as fickle as the wind, my dear," answered her parent. "It was merely the fact that your grandfather left you his old hermit house back on the other lot that put the idea into your susceptible head. I knew you'd tire of it. And——"

"Yes—I know what you are going to say, mother. You know I am too busy to sell it off myself and that I am going to ask you to attend to it."

As usual, Mrs. Raven did as her daughter wanted her to do. They loved each other very much and if it seemed, at times, as if Antoinette imposed upon her mother, it was all done with affection.

Mrs. Raven really liked people and she had a democratic manner that might have led her into politics.

One of the first persons to ask to see the antiques was a fragile but wistfully beautiful woman. She seemed to be looking for a certain sort of drop-leaf table. She had a lovely voice and instead of leaving her to the mercy of the salesman who had been put in charge of the business, Mrs. Raven walked about with the stranger herself. She was fascinated by her extraordinarily lovely face and manner.

Tucked back in a corner of an anteroom was a table of the kind described. The two women came upon it just as the fading light of day was playing on its polished surface.

"Oh," exclaimed the little woman. "That's the table I want. Let me look at it, please."

She felt it; she almost caressed it. Then, opening up one of the drop leaves she bent down and looked underneath as if to see what sort of support it had. When she raised her head again her exquisite gray eyes were brimming with tears.

Mrs. Raven did not know what to say, what to do, where to turn. She felt like an intruder in a sanctum.

Then, in a moment, having dried the tears, the stranger spoke. "I'm sorry but—that table was once mine. It was the first thing we bought after we were married. We were both young; we both wrote for a precarious living and when we sold enough stuff to buy a bit of furniture we clipped it out and pasted it on the table, or chair or whatever it was. There," pointing underneath, "is a part of the article we sold in order to buy this table."

"And your husband?" Mrs. Raven was moved to ask, timidly.

"We—that is—we do not live together now. He took a night job on a newspaper and—we began not to agree, somehow. Our little home was—spoiled. I've got on my feet since, writing, and I've looked everywhere for this table. Could I buy it?" she asked, wistfully.

"I'd like to give it to you," said Mrs. Raven.

But the stranger insisted on paying for the table and left her name and address when she paid for it. She apologized again for her weakness and emotion and half promised to come to see Mrs. Raven again.

The footsteps of a mysterious Fate led Ned Washburne to the sale of furniture in the old hermit lodge of a late citizen of the town. What he was looking for, aside, perhaps, for color for a story he was writing, he could not have told you.

Mrs. Raven met him and took him about. He took desultory notice of the furniture itself but in the stories behind the acquisition of certain bits he showed vivid interest.

"And this table was sold yesterday to one of the loveliest little women I have ever seen. She had had a tragedy in her life—if the breaking up of her home and the loss of her husband could be a tragedy to the modern woman," said Mrs. Raven. "This table had been earned by her young husband and herself in their early married days and," turning up the leaf to display the bits of paper still clinging to the wood, "here is the story they wrote together."

Ned Washburne had gripped a tall bedpost for support. His head was whirling.

"Why—" Mrs. Raven stood aghast at the white face of the man.

He raised a kindly hand and put it on her shoulder. "That was—my wife. This—is our table."

"Come into the house," begged Mrs. Raven.

The man followed her across the garden and into the comfortable library. There he told her what the little stranger of the preceding day had told her—and more. He did not spare himself.

After an hour of suggestions, plans, surmises as to what could be done, Mrs. Raven was smiling when she said goodby.

Ned Washburne and his still beloved wife were to begin housekeeping anew with the same old table they had struggled to buy.

An address, a telephone conversation, tears, glad laughter and an understanding soul in the person of Antoinette's mother, had brought about the reconciliation.

"So, you see, mother," Antoinette said that night when she had heard the story, "even if I do chase rainbows there is sometimes a pot of gold at the end—for someone."

December second--1925--the new Orthophonic Victrola was publicly played for the first time in the Dominion of Canada.

ON THAT DAY, our country learned with astonishment what remarkable results the new Orthophonic tone chamber can produce, and gained a newer and finer conception of the beauties to which home music may aspire. The reception being accorded this invention has excelled even the most liberal calculations. As a result, all Canada knows of the new Orthophonic Victrola, talks of the new Orthophonic Victrola and everybody wants the new Orthophonic Victrola.

Today, as a year ago, special demonstrations are being given in all "His Master's Voice" establishments. You are invited to go and enjoy yourself. And remember that to be sure it is an Orthophonic Victrola you must be sure it bears "His Master's Voice" trademark,—under the lid.

A PERSONAL TRIUMPH.

Yesterday's results must be viewed as a personal triumph for Premier G. Howard Ferguson, especially if the charge that he forced the policy of Government control upon his party is accepted.

The Ferguson policy has received the endorsation of the majority of the voters in at least 80 of the 112 ridings in Ontario. All but one member of the Cabinet have been returned to office and Mr. Ferguson will meet the new Legislature with about the same numerical strength as before.

Government control swept all the urban centres and the northern parts of the Province while even in rural ridings Mr. Ferguson did better than many people predicted he would.

The lion's share of the campaigning fell to the Premier himself and his Attorney-General, Hon. W. H. Price, most of the other Ministers having hard fights that kept them pinned down in their own ridings.

Mr. Ferguson's task was not an easy one.

He faced the opposition of the Ontario Prohibition Union, backed by many ministers; he found himself condemned by mass meetings of young people and his campaign began amid reports of wholesale defections on the part of former supporters.

Opposition, however, seemed to act as a spur upon the Government leader and single-handed for the most part he staged a fighting campaign in which no quarter was asked or given and which undoubtedly was effective.

THE LOCAL RESULTS.

Peterborough City yesterday piled up a handsome majority for Government control, and the Government candidate, W. H. Bradburn, whose margin over G. A. Gillespie, Liberal standard-bearer, was, when this was being written, approximately 1,500. To those who based their calculations upon the local results of the 1924 plebiscite, the size of the majority was undoubtedly a surprise; they looked for a much smaller margin and many predicted a Gillespie victory.

Howeve., yesterday's vote was taken under much different conditions than was the plebiscite. In 1924 the only real organization was that of the Prohibition Union, the Moderation League being short both in workers and in cars. Yesterday O.T.A. supporters found themselves opposed by a complete organization, well provided with transportation facilities, that was able to get out a large vote and that operated efficiently in all parts of the riding.

It was an unusual election.

Political ties did not bind with their customary tightness with the result that numerous Conservatives voted for the Liberal candidate, or refrained from voting, while Mr. Bradburn undoubtedly received the support of a very large number of Liberal voters.

Just how the defections from the usual party alignments measured up there is no way of telling, but it seems reasonable to suppose from the result that the Government cause gained the most, and this was made the more certain because of the fact that Mr. Bradburn's campaign was conducted by the Conservative organization, while most of the burden on the other side was carried on by the Prohibition Union, the party being naturally under these circumstances stronger in the case of the Government candidate.

The Township of Smith ran true to predictions and gave a substantial Gillespie majority, as did the rural portion of North Monaghan. The semi-urban part of the latter township however, voted very strongly in favour of Government control and this was true of the city itself while, although the defeated candidate secured majorities at a number of the polls and was close up at others, the bulk of the polling subdivision showed big Bradburn margins.

The County of Peterboro, comprising the old riding of East Peterboro, with the addition of Eunismore, Harvey and Galway, elected W. A. Anderson, Liberal candidate over Lieut.-Colonel T. D. Johnston, former member for East Peterborough, by a substantial majority. There had been various predictions as to the county results and Col. Johnston's supporters were very confident yesterday. The returns, however, showed Mr. Anderson well in the lead from the first.

YESTERDAY'S VERDICT.

There is no doubt of the completeness of the victory of Government control throughout the province.

Although here and there rural opposition to any change in the method of dealing with the liquor question manifested itself in the winning of seats held by the Government previously, these losses were made up by a clean sweep at the urban constituencies and by Conservative gains in Northern Ontario.

The final summary at midnight last night, with two seats in doubt, gave Government control 80 supporters in the new House while of course the popular vote throughout the Province, when it is compiled, will reveal a large majority in favour of the Government's proposal.

Of the Government candidates at least 75 have been elected with the policy of Government control which will be supported by Karl Homuth, the only Labor member elected, and by four Independent Liberals.

In 1924 Ontario at a plebiscite returned a majority of some 34,000 in favour of retaining the O.T.A.

To what degree yesterday's turnover can be attributed to a change of opinion on the part of the electors, or to what extent party loyalty entered into the contest, cannot easily be estimated.

Undoubtedly the fact that so many well known and prominent citizens of the Province did not hesitate to state their disapproval of the Ontario Temperance Act and their belief in Government control supplied a lead that made it easier for electors to support that policy yesterday than it was in 1924 when outside of the larger centres there was little organized opposition to the O.T.A.

At all events Ontario has emphatically declared in favour of following the example of Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, leaving only three of the Dominion's nine provinces without some form or other of Government control.

Premier Ferguson has substantial support for his policy.

It will be his duty in compliance with his campaign promises to introduce a system of sale through Government vendors and to deal vigorously with those who disregard the law and it will be the responsibility of those whose votes gave the Premier a mandate to make the change to see that they do their share in making the system the success they have predicted it will be.

Many citizens of the Province will view the introduction of Government control with grave misgivings.

Let us hope for the welfare of Ontario their fears will prove groundless.

Many other citizens expect the new method to produce a greatly improved condition of affairs.

Again let us hope that their confidence will be justified.

For whether either group is right or whether the result will prove to be somewhere between the two, the Province is committed to a testing out of Government control, and worthwhile citizens of Ontario, no matter which way they voted yesterday, will hope that the experiment will be beneficial.

INTERESTING—BUT WEAK.

The Chicago Tribune is noted for its cartoons. It has also achieved some reputation as a defender of the famous Chicago "water steal." Perhaps its attitude in this connection is ogly natural. At any rate, it is in line with the famous declaration of Stephen Decatur, which appears every day at the head of the Tribune's editorial columns. Decatur said:

> Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong.

The Tribune likes this slogan and has adapted it for municipal purposes, also. This explains the frantic efforts of that newspaper to show that Chicago is doing nothing wrong at all in STEALING vast quantities of water from Lake Michigan for the purposes of the Chicago Sanitary District. It means nothing to Chicago that its action is in contravention of international agreemnts. It means nothing to Chicago that millions of dollars damage has been done to Chicago's friends and neighbors in both Canada and the United States. The water steal suits Chicago and saves Chicago money, and so the Chicago Tribune—along, presumably, with most of the people of Chicago—cannot see why anyone should complain.

One of the Chicago Tribune's latest cartoons shows Niagara Falls with "280,000 cubic feet of water falling every second." Farther over in the picture a cow labelled "Our Water Needs" is seen drinking from a litle pond described as Lake Michigan. At one side of Niagara Falls, an old-fashioned plutocrat in a silk hat representing "Canadian Power and Shipping Interests" is waving his arms and crying "Hey! Make him stop stealing my water!" This imploration is directed toward Uncle Sam, who sits on the other side of the Niagara river scratching his head in perplexity while another silk-hatted figure, called "Jealousy of Lake Cities", backs up the contention of the Canadian power and shipping "baron." The whole effort is crowned with the words, "What the Yelling Is All About."

There is, of course, no parallel between Chicago's illegal use of Great Lakes water for drainage canal purposes and the tumbling Niagara. Millions of gallons have been dropping at the Falls ever since the world began and millions of gallons will continue to drop whether man makes power use of them or not. Power is really incidenal. It utilizes the waterfal but it does not take the water away and deflect it to some other channel with consequent injury to shipping in the original body. All the water used by the powerhouses at Niagara Falls flows back again and on its way down to the sea. The water illegally used by the City of Chicago goes out of the Great Lakes forever and eventually finds itself in the Mississippi headed for the Gulf of Mexico. There is all the difference in the world in the two situations.

Another weak point in this thoroughly interesting but extremely vulnerable cartoon is the reference to Canadian shipping interests. Walk to the bank of the Detroit river and prove this for yourself. Stand there for a hour and note the boats that pass. How many of them fly the Canadian flag? The chances are you won't see one. This means, of course, that the Detroit river and the Great Lakes generally are being used, for the most part, by American vessels. The number of Canadian ships is negligible. The damage done to Canadian harbor works and Canadian shipping by the Chicago water steal is only a fraction of the damage caused American harbor works and American shipping. It is any wonder that Detroit and Cleveland and Buffalo and all the other affected points are raising their voices in protest and demanding that the Chicago outlaws be brought to time? Is it any wonder that these important American communities are keenly desirous of having Canada's support in forcing Chicago to behave?

Chicago is in an impossible position any way one looks at it and has no amount of editorial sophistry or clever cartooning can conceal the fact.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Evidently Ontario is going to have to 'trust the Ferguson Government."

It was a cold night for everybody—with cold comfort for those on the defeated side.

The extra hours' voting was responsible for a lot of last minute ballots being cast.

Toronto will no doubt be mentioned in some quarters as a city that can be solid and liquid at the same time.

Peterborough old boys broke even. Dr. Cameron Wilson was elected in South London while Cecil Armstrong was among the also rans in St. George's, Toronto.

All three leaders made the grade, with Hon W. E. Raney finding the going none too good. The Progressive chieftain won by 44 in Prince Edward which had a dry vote of over 5,00 in 1924.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday continued inactive. The domestic trade in coarse grains was also quiet but prices were stronger at 1 cent per bushel.

A fair trade was done in Spring wheat grades of flour and values were well maintained. An easier feeling prevailed in the Winter wheat situation, but prices were unchanged.

The millfeed market continued moderately active and prices were steady. The enquiry for oats was good and the undertone to the market was firm.

Prices for all grades of eggs ruled steady and the market was fairly active. The receipts were 708 cases.

The butter market was active and firm. The receipts were 143 packages.

The demand for cheese showed some improvement, and a moderate trade was transacted. Prices were steady. The receipts were 461 boxes.

The bean market was moderately active and car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel, and broken lots at $3.00 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—With corn the leader, all grain scored a sharp advance yesterday, surprisingly small deliveries on December corn contracts were a feature and so, too, was knowledge that corn receipts yesterday throughout the West had shrunk to about one-third the total a year ago.

The entire grain list finished strong at nearly the day's top figures, corn 2 1-4 to 3 3-8c net higher; wheat 1 5-8 to 2 1-2c up; oats showing 1 to 2 cents advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22 cents.

INDIGESTION
Gas on Stomach Caused Severe Pains

Mrs. C. F. Wheeler, R.R. No. 1, Glen Ewen, Sask., writes:—"For years my eldest son suffered from severe pains and agony from imperfect digestion. He dieted and used artificial digestants, but all to no avail. At last I got him a bottle of and he had not taken the whole bottle before he was greatly relieved. The severe stomach attacks ceased, there was no more gas on the stomach, and he could eat aaything he wished."

WHY NOSE BLEED

If one is subject to regular attacks of nose bleed, it is important that they study to find the cause which is producing this trouble. Outside of traumatic causes, that is, accidents occurring to the nose, all other causes are constitutional and can be removed as soon as their origin is understood.

Children who are subject to nose bleed will be found to have inflammation of the entire mucuous membrane of the nose, and usually have throat and tonsil trouble at the same time. All of this irritation is caused by hyper-acidity of the stomach, which affects all of the mucuous membranes of the body, producing an irritation in these membranes, especially in the nose and throat.

If a child plays hard, creating rapid circulation of blood, a sudden fall or even a sneeze may irritate the mucuous lining of the nose sufficiently to produce a hemorrhage, due to the breaking of small blood vessels. The mother often becomes panic stricken and frightens the child by trying one after another of the cure-all household remedies. The best plan is to let the child bleed for a while, then, if it is necessary to use any treatment at all, a small amount of cotton should be pushed far up into the nose on the end of a match, and allowed to remain for several hours, so that the blood will coagulate more easily.

Another kind of nose bleed is produced from excessive blood pressure. High blood pressure and hardening of the arteries always precede attacks of apoplexy or paralysis. These attacks are caused by a blood clot forming in the brain from a broken blood vessel, which could not stand the strain of the blood pressure. It is, therefore, a very serious matter when these hemorrhages occur in the brain, but often one who has high blood pressure is also suffering from catarrhal trouble and the membranes of the nose will be so weakened and the blood vessels so exposed that a hemorrhage will likely occur in the nose many times before it does in the brain. This is a great relief to the patient, and it used to be the custom years ago for doctors to practice bleeding their cases of high blood pressure. The hemorrhage shoiud be allowed to continue for several minutes, at least, and no great effort should be made to stop it. One quart of blood may easily be lost by the average person with high blood pressure, with out any serious consequences, but with a diminished blood pressure and a great relief from all of the distressing symptoms of this disorde r.

If you are subject to such symptoms as pressure in the head, ringing in the ears and an occasional nose bleed, you should go at once to your doctor and have your blood pressure taken to find out the condition of your arteries.

In every case of hyper-acidity of the stomach, which produces inflammation of the membranes, br in the case of high blood pressure, the cure consists very largely in giving up all of the carbohydrates, which ferment so easily in the stomach and produce excess acidity, and also furnish an excess of calcium, which hardens the arteries.

The main thing to remember is that if your nose does not start bleeding because of a blow, that your trouble is due to systemic causes, and these must be ascertained and removed.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

EAT MORE FISH

Many people use fish on Fridays usually because of certain religious practices, or because this is the day when the markets have the largest assortment of fresh fish on hand.

Fish is a valuable article of food and should be used more than once a week. If more people use some kind of fish two or three times a week, the cost of living would be very greatly reduced, as fish should really be a cheap proteid food, but is made so much higher by the fact that there is usually only one day in the week when it is used.

Every year there are two billion pounds of fish marketed, and this is just enough to meet the demand. If the demand were greater, several times as many pounds of fish could be marketed, as the ocean and lakes which cover the larger portion of the earth's area are full of enough fish to last many years, if no effort were made to restock these waters with them. As it is now, fish is comparatively a cheap proteid, much less expensive than most meats, and just as nutritious as beef.

Great care should be exercised in selecting your fish at the market. With fresh fish, it will be found that the skin and eyes are bright and the flesh firm, so that the pressure of the finger does not leave a mark.

Also, in purchasing fish, remember that one of fine texture is more easily digested than a fish where the flesh is more coarse.

You must remember when you take the fish home that it should be packed in chopped ice, as fish does not keep well at the ordinary temperature of the ice box. Even placing it on a cake of ice does not suffice. Chop some ice very fine, put the fish on clean paper in the ice chamber, pack around it the chopped ice and allow it to remain until you are ready to cook it.

The best way to use fresh fish at a meal is to combine it with the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables. No starches of any kind should be used at a fish meal. One of the most delicious ways of serving fish is to use only a salad of lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers.

No milk should be used with the fish or with a fish meal, as this combination is particularly bad and will cause as much trouble as it did in the days of Moses when he gave out the hygienic law that milk and fish should never be combined together.

Of course, fresh fish is to be preferred to salted, smoked or pickled fish, as fish prepared in these ways is not so readily digested.

Try for a short time using fish every other day, and I am sure that you will find an added interest and desire for this kind of delicious and nourishing food.

ADVICE IS ISSUED ON CHRISTMAS MAIL

Post Office Gives Warning on Necessity of Mailing Early.

The Post Office calls attention to the various ways in which the public can co-operate during the Christmas and New Year's seasons by mailing their Christmas gifts early, particularly parcel post packages for overseas.

The last steamer which will deliver parcels in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe for Christmas is the Montroyal, sailing from St. John on December 7th, the mails for which will close at the Post Office at midnight Saturday, Decemebr 4th.

Those who are sending parcels to the United States should understand that these parcels are not sent direct to the office named in the address but to the United States border Customs office, where they are examined for Customs duty and owing to the immense volume of business at the Christmas period such parcels may be delayed. Furthermore, there may be no Christmas Day delivery in the United States, and in order to make sure parcels get there for Christmas it is suggested that they be mailed in time to ensure their delivery as desired. Insure your parcels at the Post Offices.

The use of small cards and envelopes is discouraged by the Post Office for the reason that they cannot be satisfactorily passed through the electric cancelling machines. The cancellation mark in many cases obliterates a part of the address. The small size makes the sortation and the making up of bundles more difficult and impedes the work, and there is a greater possibility of loss, as small cards or envelopes may fall out of the bundle in which they are tied. It is, therefore, suggested that larger envelopes than 3 in. by 4 in. be used for all mail.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

Nujol acts like Nature, said thousands of doctors

RECENTLY we made a country-wide investigation among leading doctors to learn why they advised the Nujol type of treatment for their constipation patients.

80.7% were prescribing it. A large proportion said it was "The more natural method of treatment." As one doctor put it, "Laxatives are irritating. Their repeated use brings on the laxative habit. Nujol trains the bowels to act naturally but thoroughly."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Nine doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:
1. Nujol is not habit-forming;
2. A more natural method;
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative; 4. Does not gripe;
5. is not irritating; and 6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it!

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

CAR HITS POLE.

OMEMEE, Dec. 2.—While motoring east of Omemee to tow a disabled car to the garage, Mr. Noble Clemett of the Corneil and Clemett Garage, met with serious disaster to his car when the steering gear broke, causing his sedan, which was travelling at a good rate of speed to leave the road and crash into a telegraph pole at the foot of Crawford's Hill, snapping the pole off three feet from the ground. The front axle was badly bent, the bumper and radiator were also drove in, but in spite of the fierce impact, the lone occupant of the car escaped uninjured, and the glass in the car was not even cracked.

The fruits of political victory are often plums.

OMEMEE NEWS

OMEMEE, Dec. 2.—Rev. Walter Henry Nugent, Ph.D., D.D. minister of the Central Presbyterian church, of Portland, Oregon, spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nugent. Dr. Nugent, who is an old Omemee boy, came East to attend the meeting in Chicago of the General Assembly's Committee on apportionment, of which he is a member. This committee apportions the thirteen million dollars to be raised next year for missions to the various synods of the church. The synods later make appointment to the Presbyteries and the Presbyteries to the individual churches.

Dr. Nugent has been for six years head of the Anti-Saloon League of Oregon and knows from first hand knowledge the situation under Government Control in British Columbia. He spoke briefly at the Sandy rally in Omemee on Saturday night, preached in the Trinity United church on Sunday evening and also at the Prohibition rally in Lindsay on Monday evening. He left on Tuesday morning for Chicago.

Congratulations are in order to Mrs. Doube, Omemee, and her brother, Mr. G. Switzer, who last week celebrated their birthdays which fell on the same day. Mrs. Doube has reached the grand old age of eighty-four years, while her brother is still young at eighty-three. Mrs Belsh (daughter of Mrs. Doube) gave a birthday party at her home in the village in honor of the event, when congratulations were extended by numerous friends and relatives.

Among those who attended the Prohibition rally in Lindsay on Monday evening were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Connell, Mr. Irvine Connell, Miss Eva Race, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradley Mr. Gordon Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. D. Weir, Miss Myrtle Weir Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lamb, Mrs. E. Bradburn, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Mahood, Mrs. F. G. Sandy, Mr. T. C. Ivory and Mr. R. Poast.

Arthur and Russell Marshall have gone to Bewdley to spend the winter with their grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Poast spent Tuesday with their daughter, Mrs. M. Lethang, of Ballyduff.

Mr. W. Lodwick, who has assisted Mr. J. L. Brooks in his barber shop, has gone to Toronto where he has secured a position.

Inspector R. F. Downey of Peterboro made a visit to Omemee Public school on Wednesday.

Mrs. O. R. Stalter and Miss Edith Robinson were in Lindsay Wednesday on business.

Miss Lyla Beatty, who has been spending a couple of weeks with her parents and sister in town, left on Thursday to resume her duties as nurse in the State Hospital at Rochester.

Miss Edith Stinson of Peterboro spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. James Bushnell.

Miss L. Curry attended the opening of the Marsh Memorial Hall in Lindsay on Wednesday.

Miss Marion Rea of Peterboro spent the week end with her mother, in town.

The annual bazaar, held under the auspices of the Young Women's Guild of Christ church will be held on Saturday afternoon, followed by a hot supper.

Miss Marion Carey and Rita Kennedy have joined the T. Eaton Co. staff, Toronto. The former in the fancy work department and the latter in the book circle.

Mr. and Mrs. Penfound Mr. and Mrs. George Donaldson and Miss Edna Moore of Lindsay were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lamb on Friday evening.

Mr. Albert Byers of Toronto spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ivory.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Nugent and daughter, Ethel, and Mrs. P. S. Nugent of Lindsay visited the former's parents and sister in town, on Sunday.

Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine and her mother, Mrs. Staples, of Lindsay attended the bazaar held in Trinity United church, on Thursday.

Anniversary services are being observed in the Continuing Presbyterian church on Sunday next.

Mr. R. E. Stinson of Lindsay visited his sister, Mrs. J. Bushnell, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wass and family who have resided in part of Mr. Thomas Rowan's house have moved into Mrs. Shannon's house on Sturgeon street, vacated by Mr. Dave Deyell.

Miss Katie Weir of the Peterboro Business College visited her parents over Sunday.

Friends of Miss Ella MaCrea of Lindsay, formery of Omemee, are sorry to hear of her misfortune, she having sustained a broken rib when in a motor accident last week. Nurse Hilda Clarke of Omemee is in attendance.

Miss Mabel Rowan of Peterboro spent the week end at her home in Omemee.

The long cape of plaid wool, worn with a frock of checked or plaid kasha makes an exceedingly smart fall costume.

How do you feel around twelve?

To romp through a stiff day at the office — bathe and dress — rush dinner — drive out to the Country Club, or in to your favorite hotel or cabaret — then "step" for the rest of the evening—

Are you still able to enjoy it?—or do you droop like a tired seaweed, just when the rest of the party is getting "on the crest."

Evenings out are made to be enjoyed, and it's your natural right to enjoy them as often as you can. And so you would if you were truly fit. So you would if you started and stuck to the "little daily dimeful" of Kruschen.

Those weary yawning bouts aren't the natural consequence of a hard day. They're evidence of an impure blood-stream. Your inside is shirking its job. So long as you're deprived by a sedentary life of proper fresh air and exercise, this sorry state of affairs will continue — until you enlist the aid of Kruschen Salts.

As much as will lie on a ten-cent piece every morning, tasteless in your first cup of coffee or tea, provides just the daily reminder and the daily aid your inside needs for regular smooth working; for this tiny pinch is a full day's supply of those six vital salts which nature prescribes for your internal well-being.

Restored to perfect tune, your eliminating organs expel all the clogging impurities that result in constipation and its attendant evils. Clear refreshed blood is sent dancing through your every vein. You're all a-tingle with "that Kruschen feeling!"

That's the feeling with which you should embark on an evening's enjoyment. Buy a bottle of Kruschen Salts today and start the "little daily dimeful" that does it!

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10-cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it!

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

The dose of a dimeful taken every morning is found in practice just the right amount of a most invigorating daily tonic. The medicinal dose for persons suffering from pains of rheumatism, gout, lumbago or sciatica, or habitual constipation, with inactive liver, etc., is half to one teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water before breakfast. Every druggist sells Kruschen. A 75c bottle lasts three months. This works out at half-a-cent a day for health and happiness. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day and start to-morrow. It's the little daily dimeful that does it!

Conservatives Crowd Hall to Celebrate Bradburn's Victory

Crowd Cheers as Returns Come in Showing Ferguson Candidates Elected — Successful Candidate and Others Express Their Pleasure in Result.

"NO HARD FEELINGS," SAYS WINNER, "COMMON SENSE HAS PREVAILED"

Victoria Hall was crowded to the doors to-night with a throng of people who cheered to the echo the returns as they came in. Each result as it rolled up the Government's majority was cheered to the echo.

E. A. PECK, M.P.

The first speaker called was E. A. Peck, M.P. He said the people of Ontario ought to be proud to-night when they see such men as Ferguson, Price, Henry and others returned, and I trust that you will see old Ontario go forward as she has never done before.

Charlie Lloyd.

Mr. Bradburn, the candidate, spoke next, thanking those who supported him in this election. He had no hard feeling against his opponent. "He and I have been good friends and I hope we remain so for some time. I have a presentiment against some of those gentlemen who came out in the Toronto Star as Conservatives. They were not. They were 'Dyed-in-the-Wool Grits'."

"It was not long ago when I stood on this platform congratulating Mr. Peck, and I said it would not be long until we are here congratulating Mr. Bradburn. Justice and common-sense have prevailed, and I look into the faces of men who are not afraid to support a candidate who stood on a platform because he thought it was right."

FIRST PROHIBITION DEFEAT IN PETERBOROUGH'S HISTORY IS RECORDED IN CITY TO-DAY

Early Returns Show Conservative Candidate Taking Substantial Lead in Most Polling Subdivisions —Herb Martin First to Report Returns.

MAJORITY OF 1,000 INDICATED

Herbert Martin, at Poll 16, was the first city returning officer to report tonight, his bulletin reaching The Examiner at 7.12, giving Bradburn 91 and Gillespie 49. This was quickly followed by Poll 19a, with 51 for Bradburn and 68 for Gillespie, and Poll 14 was third with a tie, 59 each. The first eight polls gave Bradburn a majority of 184. When ten more had reported Bradburn's lead was 602. At the twenty-second report he was leading by 633.

PRESBYETRIANS HOLD MEETING

Large Number From District Gather in Campbellford Church.

HEAR ADDRESSES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 2. — A large number gathered at St. Andrew's Church on Tuesday afternoon and evening to attend the Presbyterian Conventicle. The afternoon session opened at 3 p.m., with Rev. R. Simpson, Moderator of the Kingston Presbytery in the chair. The devotional part of the programme was taken by Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae, after which the chairman made a few brief remarks. Mrs. Charles Milne of Burnbrae sang "Oh Jesus, I have promised," in a fine voice.

The chief address for the afternoon was by Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, who spoke fervently and eloquently on the subject, "Presbyterianism." Mr. Thompson traced the history of the Christian Church, showing that the New Testament Church was the type to which, at Reformation time, the Reformed churches returned. The government of the Church was divided into three classes: Prelacy, Independent, and Presbytery, the latter being the self-governing representation. John Calvin of Geneva was the author of the system of doctrines based on Scripture that underlies the doctrinal standards of the Presbyterian Church. This doctrinal sovereignty is the priesthood of all believers.

Miss Hazel Atkinson sang 'Teach Me to Pray,' after which the chairman closed the meeting with prayer.

The evening service was presided over by Rev. Mr. Simpson, and commenced at 7.30 p.m. A song service of old familiar hymns was held until 8 o'clock. Rev. G. E. Lougheed, B.A., of Havelock, had charge of the devotional period, reading from the 14th chapter of Luke, and leading in prayer.

Mr. J. A. Anderson, secretary of St. Andrew's Missionary Association, gave a few words of welcome and appreciation to all for their interest in this large undertaking of the Association. He explained that it would be composed of representatives of all societies, namely, Sunday School, Ladies' Aid, Mission Circle, Young People's Society, and W.M.S. Mr. Anderson closed with a few words of welcome to the speakers of the evening.

Rev. Mr. Grier then took charge of the roll call, and representatives from Lakefield, Norwood, Havelock, Warkworth, Burnbrae, and Stirling testified to their presence by rising. Mr. Grier extended a hearty welcome to all.

The first speaker for the evening was Rev. Dr. A. S. Grant, secretary of the General Board of Missions. Dr. Grant said: "After a quarter of a century of contention of manipulating the organization of the Christian Church, we come through shattered but able to continue our work true to our standards, and to our good name. After all this strife, there may be feelings of emnity and bitterness but we should struggle to remove these and keep our spirits sweet. The success of organization depends not on size and financial possessions as on the individuals who go to make up that organization. On the question of Union, I would sound one note, no matter what our feelings were, get back to our old foundations. I ask the question, "Who won the war?" The answer is, "The people who did the fighting," and we, as Presbyterians, must stick to our Church and our standards as of old. We are not downhearted even though our backs were to the wall. It is a good thing to strike bottom, for we know then our resources. It is as easy to turn back the waters of Niagara as to put Presbyterianism off the map. The budget of $650,000 means that among 200,000 church members, the expenses will be low, on an average, $3 per member."

"Christian character developed in Christian sacrifice is the greatest asset one can possess. If you knew, as I do, what Presbyterians on the plains and in out of the way places are doing it would put pep into you. Your duty to the sparsely settled districts is to keep your line fences up and not have these in need of religion."

Dr. Grant then briefly outlined their numbers of ministers and students in the different provinces and touched briefly on their foreign mission fields. He closed his remarks with a challenge to get down to business and organize, if you wish to make church work a success.

"Rise up, O men of God,
Have done with lesser things,
Give heart and soul and mind and strength
To serve the King of kings."

Mr Simpson gave thanks to Dr. Grant for his inspiring message, after which the choir sang an anthem.

The next speaker was the Rev. Dr. W. Kannawin, secretary of the General Assembly Board of S. S. and Y.P.S., who gave a splendid discourse on the Young People's work. He said: "The mission work of the Church needs the interests of the younger people. At a meeting I attended of the Synod in New Westminster, B.C., some time ago, the president of the Young People, on behalf of his society there, sent greetings to any Presbytery along the route, so I am pleased to bring them to you, that you will feel you are all one in this great work. Canada's greatest asset aside from material point of view, is the religious organizations, and the greatest of these is the home, church, school and the Sabbath. Nothing pays such great dividends as the time and energy invested on the young people of your community. If we wish to have a good harvest, we must have good seed, good soil, and good cultivation, and beginning with a little child who so easily absorbs all it comes in contact with, is a great privilege and will help them in the doctrines of Christian faith."

Mr. Simpson then spoke a few words of appreciation to Dr. Kannawin for his splendid address, after which Rev. Mr. Mackenzie of Burnbrae thanked St. Andrew's for their kind invitation to Burnbrae to be present.

Moved by Rev. Mr. Mackenzie, that a hearty vote of thanks be given to Dr. Grant and Dr. Kannawin. Rev. Mr. Lougheed of Havelock seconded this and added that he intended to give these messages to his people.

Rev. Mr. Grier, before bringing the meeting to a close, asked the gentlemen of St. Andrew's to remember the supper for them on Friday evening at 6.30 in the Sunday School-room.

The meeting closed by all singing a hymn.

Lunch was served in the Sunday School-room to all visitors before their return home.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

THE Lanes are just an average American family, hard up, but ambitious to better themselves. There is MRS. LANE, fat, middle-aged, a chronic semi-invalid; JIM LANE, the husband and father, a carpenter who is trying to become a contractor on a small scale; JUNIOR, twenty-one, nick-named "Long" Lane, a lovable, irresponsible, rather wild young man; FAITH, 20, the mainstay of the family; CHERRY, 18, a typical flapper; JOY, nine-year-old tow head, who is always making embarrassing "breaks."

FAITH, who stays at home to keep house and drudge from morning till night for the family of six, longs to be out in the world, working, but her loyalty to her family is strong enough to make her unselfish and self-sacrificing. She has few "dates" and little of the bubbling gaiety which charms men.

CHERRY, beautiful, gay, temperamental, is a conscienceless flirt, playing the love game with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, a former "steady" of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect, from whom Mr. Lane has secured a contract to build two bungalows; MR. CLUNY, her present employer; CHRIS WILEY, a man of bad reputation, over whom a girl has committed suicide; and ALBERT ETTLESON, a married travelling salesman.

On a Sunday outing, GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, proposes to Faith and is rejected, because the girl is in love with Bob Hathaway, who has eyes only for Cherry. When Faith returns home that evening, she finds that Cherry and most of her clothes have disappeared, and that Mrs. Albert Ettleson has come to warn the Lane family that Cherry and Ettleson are eloping to New York, having planned to meet in Darrow, fifty miles away.

Bob Hathaway and Faith drive with reckless speed to Darrow, and arrive in time to board the New York Limited and rescue Cherry from Ettleson. On the drive back to the Lanes' home town, Bob shows clearly that he despises Cherry, but when Faith later asks him what is to be done with Cherry, so that she will not disgrace the family and kill her mother, Hathaway offers the sacrifice of himself in marriage.

Faith has begun to feel that Hathaway is falling in love with her, but her love for her sister is so strong that she accepts his sacrifice. Joy, terror-stricken, interrupts with the news that Mr. Lane is whipping Cherry in the woodshed, and Bob and Faith again go to her rescue. Bob tells Mr. Lane that he is willing to marry the girl, but Cherry rudely rejects him.

To Faith, later, the repentant girl confesses she is in love with Hathaway, but that she will not marry any man who despises her. She admits that she is also infatuated with Chris Wiley. Faith, torn between her love for her sister and her love for Hathaway, still hopes to save the thrill-hungry little flapper, and refuses a date with Hathaway for Monday evening. Cherry, however, comes in from work with a magnificent solitaire, announcing to Faith that she is engaged to be married to old Mr. Cluny, her employer, and a very rich man.

Without giving Faith a chance to utter the shocked protests that were trembling on her lips, Cherry skipped into the dining room, snatched her impudent little hat from her head, and flung it expertly so that it became a saucy headgear for the green glass bowl of artificial fruit on the sideboard.

"Hello, Daddy!" In her musical voice there was no hint of anger or resentment for the whipping he had given her the night before. She flung herself like a child against the breast of the stooped haggard-faced man coming on slow, tired feet into the dining room, his spectacles pushed high on his forehead. "Let's kiss and make up, Daddy," she said laying her cheek against the grayish leather of his face, and smiling like a repentant child.

"All right. Let's eat supper," her father said gruffly, his arm stiff about her slim shoulders, but there were tears in his kind brown eyes. "But no more shenanigans from you, young lady!" he cautioned her with a feeble attempt to impress his authority upon her.

"Gee, you sure know how to use the soft soap, Cherry!" Joy, coming in to supper in a soiled and torn play frock, giggled at the unusual tableau of Cherry kissing her father.

"You shut up!" Cherry whirled upon her, her repentant mood shattered. "You needn't think just because Muggy's sick—for heaven's sake, look at that dress! And your hands and face! You look as if you'd been walowing in mud—"

"I ain't done it! Joy shrilled, wiping her hands on the front of her dress. "Me and Grace been making mud pies under the house that's all. Faith give us some dried up old cocoanut to make 'cocoanut layer cakes with. We got a whole bakery, with teeny biscuits 'n choc'lut cakes 'n cherry pies 'n—"

"For goodness sake, go and wash!" Cherry screamed. "Faith, does this child have to go around looking like this? Honestly, I'll die if anybody should happen to drop in and find her looking like that!"

"Today was the first day of school", Faith said. "She wore a new tan linen dress, and of course she had to take it off to keep it nice and clean. And then half a dozen kids came over to do their home work with her, and they got under foot so that I sent them out to play. I didn't care whether they made mud pies or what they did, so long as I could do my work in peace. Slip on that faded pink chambray dress, Joy, honey, and be sure to wash our knees."

"Where's Junior?" Mr. Lane was lading generous helpings into the thick dinner plates.

'Here I am, Dad! I stepped on the gas when I smelled the Irish stew! Don't give me too many carrots, but lots of onions and potatoes."

"This isn't a short order lunch wagon, son", Mr. Lane said mildly, but Faith smiled with amusement as she noted that he gave his son exactly what he had requested. "How's business today, Jimmy?"

"Middlin'" 'Long" Lane grinned, as he shoveled enthusiastically into his heaping plate of stew. "Cleared about nine dolars, I'd say: Gee Pop, when I get the old bus paid for, and can go into business for myself dealin' direct with the jobbers, I'll be 'Get Rick Quick Wallingford, Junior'—and then I won't give a doggone if you do call me Junior."

He raised his head from his almost prayerful attention to stew, to grin amiably at the members of his family. But when his good-humored, boastful glance rested on Cherry, daintily raising a forkful of meat to her mouth, his jaw dropped, and his eyes bulged ludicrously. "For cryin' out loud!" he ejaculated at last. "Where'd you get the headlight? Anybody but an expert like me'd say it was real. Funny—I didn't think Bob Hathaway'd give you a phony sparkler."

"It's not phony," Cherry smiled at him with maddening coyness, as she rested her chin on her hand, so that the big, square-cut, three-carat diamond showed to the best advantage. "And Bob Hathaway didn't give it to me. Didn't you hear me give him the air?"

'Cherry!" Her father's knuckly hand shot out and seized her tiny, rose-tipped hand almost roughly. If that damned scoundrel, Ettleson give you that ring—"

"Ettleson!' Color flooded Cherry's cheeks, and her voice choked with anger. "He doesn't know there's money enough in the world to buy this diamond! He's a cheap skate, trying to take advantage of a girl because she borrowed two hundred dollars from him!"

"Then where did you get it?" Jim Lane thundered, striking the table a sharp blow with his knife.

"From my fiance," Cherry retorted. "I'm engaged to be married to Mr. Cluny."

"The old monkey gland you're workin' for. "Long" demanded incredulously. "Why, good Lord, he's old enough to be your granddaddy."

"But not too old to be a 'sweet daddy'," Cherry shot back at him impudently. "He's not so old—only sixty-eight."

"I'll put a stop to this fool nonsense right now!" Her father tried to tear the ring from the finger of the hand he still held in a vise-like grip.

Cherry tore her hand from his grasp and rubbed her reddened fingers tenderly. "I'm eighteen You're rather overacting the stern parent role lately. But Mr. Cluny like you. He's old-fashioned too. He insists on coming to ask you and Muggy for my hand! And you've almost broken it!"

"When is he coming, Cherry?" Faith rose from the table, as if the sight of food nauseated her.

"Oh, I've persuaded him to hold of till Muggy's better," Cherry told her airily. "Gee, I feel like a mid-Victorian damsel! Asking for my hand!"

Cherry doesn't let a little thing like an engagement to Mr. Cluny interfere with other dates, as the reader learns in the next installment.

BIG SHEEP SHOT.

Horn of Mountain Species Is Over Seven Inches Around.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— A hunting trophy which constitutes a record, recently fell to the the lot of Jack Brewster, veteran Rocky Mountain sportsman. It is the head of a Canadian grey sheep, with six-teen-inch base and the curl of the horn measuring 46 1-2 inches. The horn at the head was 7 1-2 inches in circumference.

Mr. Brewster, along with four other hunters, bagged three moose, four caribou, three goats, four sheep and nine grizzlies.

Right and Polite

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE "why" of social codes is hard for children to understand and really it isn't to be wondered at. We teach and beseech them to tell the truth and be honest and then very plainly by our own actions show them that we have two codes—one for public display and one for private life. For instance, we treat a caller with exaggerated courtesy and after he's gone make remarks about his manners, personality and character. The other extreme of our conduct is the child's. If he doesn't like another he simply says "Go home. I don't want to play with you." The difficult thing for him to learn, and for us too, is to be courteous without being deceitful; to be polite without being exaggerated; to encourage and cultivate only those folks we can speak well of—and then school ourselves to say nothing about the rest.

and the Labor member are the five who will vote with the Government on its liquor policy if they carry out their pre-election pledges.

At dissolution the parties stood:

Conservatives	76
Liberals	11
Progressives	12
Independents	2
Seats vacant	10

The Redistribution Act of last year added one seat, making a total of 112.

All the Conservative ministers were re-elected with the single exception of Hon. D. Jamieson, minister without portfolio, who lost in South Grey to Farquhar Oliver, Progressive, aged 22 years, and a nephew of Premier Oliver, of British Columbia. All the party leaders were elected, W. E. Raney, chief of the Progressives, getting in with a majority of only 44 in Prince Edward, which in the referendum of 1924 showed a dry majority running into the thousands. Two religious leaders, Rev. W. K. Martin, in Brantford, and Rev. A. C. Calder, in Kent West, were elected as supporters of the Government.

All the big cities went with the Government, Toronto returning a solid contingent of 15 members with overwhelming majorities.

The new House will assemble, probably early in February, when the liquor control measure will be presented for approval. Its adoption will bring Ontario into step with all the other provinces except the Eastern Maritimes, which will still operate under prohibition.

ARMY BENEFITS.

Receives Bequest From Estate of Late Harry Rush.

Adjutant Frank Hamm announces that the local Salvation Army Corps has been benefitted by the generous remembrance of the late Mr. Rush. Mrs. Rush, through her solicitors, has forwarded a cheque for one hundred dollars for the work of the Salvation Army in Peterborough.

Mr. Rush was ever a generous giver to the work of the Salvation Army in Peterborough and its work is, to a large extent, a monument that pulsates with life and activity through the practical co-operation of citizens of the type of the late Mr. Rush.

The Salvation Army owes a great deal to the family of Mr. Rush, Mr. Harry Rush, of Windsor, being one of the prime movers and advisers in the building of the 125 bed public hospital operating in the City of Windsor, under the administration of the Salvation Army.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Premier Howard Ferguson's appeal to the country on a policy of liquor sales by permit, has apparently met with popular support, and final returns are likely to show that his Government has been returned with a following at least equal to that accorded him in 1923, when the Conservatives came back with 76 seats against 35 held by all opposition groups combined.

He has 63 Conservatives and three others pledged to his policy, out of 79 conceded elections.

EMPIRE CONTROLS GIANT LESS NET THAT CONNECTS NATIONS OF BOTH HEMISPHERES

Great Britain Has Direct Communication With All Colonies.

REPLACES CABLES

France and America Have the Next Largest Systems.

ARMS of wireless have succeeded in stretching out into the seven seas and drawing the colonies of the world closer to their mother countries.

Direct, immediate communication by powerful radio apparatus is keeping England, France and America in close contact with their possessions, more so than any number of cables could have done.

But the greatest advantage offered to each of these countries by wireless is its release from the necessity of communicating with some of its colonies through cables owned by another nation. Thus the fear of being cut off from any of the colonial possessions, in case of war or any other disaster, is practically gone.

Ever since the war, the great nations of the world have been building nets of wireless communication with their colonies. Now, the two greatest imperial countries—England and France—own powerful stations in each of their possessions no matter how far a colony may be from its mother nation.

America, as the third largest imperial nation, also has a complete net of communication with its possessions—a line to Alaska, another to the Philippines and Honolulu.

The British Empire, however, controls the great radio communication net. Its wireless arms reach out to its possessions on every continent of the globe. On this net, as on its colonies, the sun never sets.

In addition England has succeeded in building up a powerful system of direct radio communication with its possessions as far off as Australia and South Africa, by a single jump. This hasn't yet been made permanent, although direct communication has already been effected.

France also has been able to equip powerful stations in some of her colonies, so as to make one direct jump with her messages. The longest wireless hop between this country and its colonies is from Paris, through the powerful station at La Croix d'Hins, to Saigon in French Indo-China.

Plans are under way for one big hop from the French station to the Pacific island possessions of Tahiti and New Caledonia. At present these islands communicate with Paris through Saigon.

All of the small French possessions in America are in one way communication with their mother country, although a new large station on the island of Martinique will enable the introduction of two-way communication in a short while.

Submarine cable construction has been practically abandoned by England and France, while wireless has taken a large part of the message traffic from the existing cables.

The immensity and importance of these nets of wireless may be compared with the few cables that join these countries with the outside world. France has three cables, only one of which stretches across the Atlantic the other two reaching to two African colonies. England has a set of cables between Halifax and London, and one to South America. While two other sets of cables to Europe are American.

Now, without worry or trouble of cable-laying, by direct contact, wireless has enabled these countries to keep in constant touch with their colonies wherever these might be.

At the same time it throws up a means of international communication which has never been even dreamed of before the days of wireless.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism and gout.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few days after beginning the treatment that the dangerous poisons are leaving your system through the natural channels. Rheuma should please you in a day and make you hopeful of quick recovery in a week or money refunded.

Rheuma acts on the blood, stomach and liver, and must quickly bring long prayed for comfort to distressed sufferers or money back. McDermid & Jury and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

SHORT STORY

She was a source of great interes tot the people in the valley below—that unknown girl who had taken possession of the old Clark farm set aslant on old Smoky Top's slope. Farmers harvesting their crops would pause and glance curiously at the thin spiral of smoke traveling skyward above the treetops and wonder why she was there.

Especially young John Hayes who had recently inherited his father's broad acres on which he and his mother lived alone. For John's brothers and sisters had long ago married and scattered to farms of their own.

"Your turn will come," his mother frequently prophesied. "And I daresay Kitty Weatherby will suit me as well as anybody."

At which her son would clumsily shift the subject. Oh, he supposed he'd marry Kitty ultimately, but for the present he had no wish to settle his fate too definitely. Had his mother known that, since the day he drove to town and parked next a dusty little runabout, his mind had been filled with visions of a slender, brown-eyed girl with sun gold curls clustering under her felt hat, she herself would not have felt so sure of being mother-in-law to Kitty.

As fall drew near, one might indeed have been pardoned for leaning on the pasture bars and gazing at Smoky Top whose sides were a colorful mass of reds and greens and browns, set off by the more sombre evergreens. And, as the season progressed, without rain, John would so lean on the bars. But sometimes he would frown and think of fire.

"Just a spark and she'd be set off like slit shingles," he muttered one day.

Then one evening, out driving with Kitty Weatherby at his side, he suddenly swung off from the main highway on to a hard packed dirt road that wound in sharp, foliage-hidden curves up the mountain.

"This is exciting," giggled Kitty. "Haven't been up there since I was a kid. Besides, I'd like to catch a sight of that city girl. Jim Lawrence—" she paused catching John's quick look, then continued defiantly—"well, he's been working for her, although why he should with his big farm—anyhow, he says she's poor as Job's turkey. That her uncle left her the place and it's the only home she's got and she's got to make it pay. But Jim says it wouldn't grow enough to feed a starving cat."

Her companion's thoughts were a jumble of speculations. So the stranger girl wasn't a rich young lady riding a hobby. So Kitty was still seeing Jim, his old rival.

"What Jim says seems to carry considerable weight with you," he remarked coldly. "Just when—" he paused abruptly. "What's that?" he cried "Smoke!"

The car shot forward beneath the pressure of his foot, while Kitty clutched his arm in terror, both at the mad swerve with which they rounded curves and at the thought of fire.

"Can't you turn?" she managed to gasp.

John shook his head. He hadn't thought of turning—only of going forward to find out just where that fire might be. If it were well above the farm, the wind might carry it by, or a well-planned back fire or trench repel it. At the best he could get the girl and bring her down to safety. His heart glowed within him and he was not conscious of Kitty's grasp on his arm.

"John, where are you going? See how smoky everything is and—oh, do you hear that?" she fairly screamed.

Sounds of crackling came to them through the acrid, darkening atmosphere.

Then, as they swung around the bend, they saw the fire. It was the farm house itself and John's expert eye saw at once that, set as the old house was in the very center of the clearing, there was little likelihood of the surrounding forest catching.

Two hurrying figures were moving to a safe distance what few pieces of furniture they had evidently been able to take from within the building.

John, followed by Kitty, leaped to the ground.

"No use trying to save the house," yelled Lawrence. "Let 'er burn. My wife here——"

"Your wife!" both Kitty and John cried the word.

"Married only this afternoon," shouted Jim, still busy lugging chairs and tables. "Chimney must have caught while we were gone. Sparks on the roof did for the rest. Makes no real difference. Going to live at my place, of course." He threw a tender, protective glance at the girl who seemed lovelier and even more desirable than John remembered her. "The old tinder box might as well go one time as another."

And go it did, burning clear to the ground until only the blackened, smouldering embers were left. And it seemed to John as if, hidden in the debris, were the ashes of his idle dreams. Idle because he had made no effort to bring them to fruition.

"You seem dreadful quiet," complained Kitty as they drove homeward.

For answer, John resolutely put his arm about her plump waist. Then, "It's about time you and I thought of our own wedding," he said. "Mother's been expecting it this long while."

After all, reality was better than a dream. Perhaps.

LOVE LETTERS THAT MADE HISTORY

(By Joseph Kaye.)

THOMAS HOOD AND JANE REYNOLDS

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

Thomas Hood began as a humorist and ended by becoming a celebrated poet. His famous "Song of the Shirt" is an intensely dramatic composition written in poetic form is is one of the first clarion calls of trade unionism. This letter to Jane Reynolds is probably the first letter on record to combine the widely divergent arts of love-making and riddle-making, and it is for this reason that is is preserved. One one side is a warm revelation of Hood's heart and on the reverse, a long list of Tommy Hood's latest and gayest riddles. Here is the letter:

"How delightful it is to please you, dear, I am quite happy ti think I shall fulfill your wish and would exceed it if I could. It is enough to pay me to know that you take delight in my letters; it makes me so proud and happy that I can never write enough. There is nothing in the world so dear to me as your pleasure and that you look for it and acknowledge it at my hands. . . . I keep an eye hard fixed on May and remember my promise. Think of me,thh then, dear, cheerfully and let us dream away the interval of each other. I know when that blessed hour comes, with the delight of clasping you again to my heart, I shall think that the pain of wseparation is all atoned for" . . .

"Now turn the page and here are the riddles:

"Why is a farmer like a fowl? Because he likes a full crop.

"Why is a cow a finer animal than a horse? Because a horse is a courser.

"What is the rudest kind of diction? Contradiction.

"Why are icicles like listeners? Because they are eaves droppers.

"Why is a hatter the most respected of tradesmen? Because he serves the heads of the nations.

"Why are rabbits like electors? Because they live in burrows (boroughs)."

ART STUDY CLUB REGULAR MEETING

Paper on "Sargent and the Boston Museum" Is Read.

A meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association was held on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. W. H. Morphet, Hunter Street, when a very interesting paper on "Sargent and the Boston Museum" was given by Mrs. Vernon S. Foster, and illustrated verbally by reading of matter descriptive of the subject, by Mrs. W. Sangster. The response to the roll call was a Greek Myth.

Mrs. Foster's paper gave an illuminating review of the life and career of John Singer Sargent, of American parentage, who was born on January 10th, 1856, at Florence, Italy, and who received his first impressions of art in the great cities and ateliers of Italy, Paris, Germany and Spain. At the age of eighteen, he entered the studio of Carolus Duran at Paris, and quickly rose to prominence in artistic circles, where his work at one time evoked much spirited controversy and criticism, guardians of academic orthodoxy predicting a tragic doom for the reckless young painter.

His work in the decoration of the Boston Municipal Buildings has made him famous on this side of the water. In 1902, he installed "The Dogma of the Redemption" in the hall of the Boston Library, and in the Spring of 1916, brought the Madonna episodes for the walls and ceiling, also six lunettes illustrative of Judgment, Heaven, Hell, Law, Gog and Magog and the Messianic Era. He spent seven months on the installation, and nearly thirty years had been spent on the work itself. Old ideas were invested with new forms in these massive conceptions.

In 1916, he received the commission for the decoration of the rotunda of the Museum of Fine Arts, and finished the work in 1921. Four large oval panels, four smaller circular panels, four framed and four unframed bas-reliefs, make up the sum total of this scheme of decoration, which is in a much lighter vein than the work in the Boston Public Library, and gives an impression of gayety and ease.

For the best part of five years, the artist toiled over this commission, beginning at eight o'clock in the morning and working until nightfall. He spent many days in constructing a small-scale model of the rotunda, he made small-scale studies of every panel and innumerable drawings from life.

When the Boston art critics were invited to a press view of the mural paintings in the Museum, they found one of the minor panels, depicting three graceful female figures in dancing postures, without a title on the descriptive sheet provided for each member present, and, on enquiring its title, were told that the artist had carelessly replied to a similar enquiry from another source: "Oh, they're just three blokes dancing." In this spirit he had conceived the decorations of the Museum, much less complicated in their symbolism than the paintings in the Library. "Heroic, yet magnificently simple in design and execution," wrote one of the critics.

"Most of the studies, and some of the canvases were done in Boston, but others, including the largest paintings and all the reliefs, were done in England. His methods were not those of a haphazard genius. His plans were carefuly thought out and written down for those who worked with him. When he saw it to violate certain traditions of mural painting, he had definite reasons which were valid to him, and he did not argue the case. The innovations that he introduced were not adopted without due thought and premeditation, and he was always content to leave such things to the test of time."

Mrs. Foster gave here a pleasing description of the different sections of the work, the allusions to classical myths and figures being aptly explained to the audience by passages read by Mrs. Sangster.

The Museum work was followed in 1922 by mural paintings in the Widener Memorial Library in Cambridge, commemorating the participation by Harvard University in the World War. One panel depicts the young soldiers of the nation marching to the relief of the Allies, and the other a conflict between Victory and Death.

As subject and in treatment, these paintings are of a nature to inspire deep emotion, and few fail to react spiritually to their import.

The next meeting of the Art Study Club will be held on Tuesday, December 14th, at the home of Mrs. F. C. Neal, when Mrs. R. J. Kidd will give a paper on "The Madonna in Art," and the response to the roll call will be a Christmas thought.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

S. A. CONVENTION VERY PROFITABLE

Young People of District Gather in City Over Week End.

A very busy and profitable week-end was spent by the Salvation Army Young People, gathered in council on Saturday and Sunday last.

From Cobourg, Lindsay, Campbellford, Port Hope, Belleville, Fenelon Falls and Norland, groups totalling 74 persons arrived and were hospitably entertained by local Salvationists and friends.

The Saturday night programme was voted one of the best ever given in this district and was greeted by a capacity audience. Especially entertaining and instructive were the following items: Primary Class action song, "Three Blind Mice," instrumental items by the Peterboro senior and junior bands, and the Fenelon Falls Y. P. string band; dumbell and Indian club swinging by the Band of Love and the Life Saving Guards; a descriptive dialogue by the Brownston Young People; a modern version of the parable of the "Good Samaritan," by the Cobourg Scouts.

The closing item, a tableau entitled "The Young for Christ," featuring all groups of Salvation Army activity amongst the young. This item made an unique appeal as well as being a revelation to the public of the well-planned programme of the Salvation Army for the betterment of the young. Colonel Robert Henry was chairman of the meeting.

Six and a half hours were spent in council on the Sunday. The first session was well attended with 207 being present; the afternoon and night sessions were also well attended with a total of 668 for the three meetings. Every session overflowed with interest and the crowd of youthful auditors, whose ages ranged from 13 years to 25 years, evidently came with receptive minds ready to accept the instruction imparted. Colonel Robert Henry, chief secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada East, as the chief speaker of the day. His subject for the day was the "Highway of Life." Colonel Adby, Brigadier Bloss, Staff Captain Spooner, Adjt. Ellery, Ensign DeBoivse also gave short practical addresses. Corps Cadet Edith Halcrow of Peterboro, read a paper on "Making the most of One's Opportunities," and Corps Cadet Edna Ford, read a paper on the "Value of Corps Cadet Ship." These papers gave evidence of careful and thoughtful preparation and were favorably commented upon.

The Young Peoples' Band of Peterboro provided the music for the day. They were directed by Y. P. Band Leader J. Halcrow.

The meetings were held in the Canadian Legion Hall, Murray street kindly loaned for the occasion through the courtesy of Colonel Ackerman and the Executive of the Canadian Legion Post.

Immeasurable benefit will undoubtedly be the effect of these inspiring gatherings. Many were the expressions of gratitude for the blessings received.

Nearly five hundred meals were served in the Y.P Tempie, Aylmer Street. Splendid arrangements were made by Mrs. T. Hedge and a number of assisting Young People's workers in this direction.

Adjt. Frank Ham was ably assisted by Y. P. Sergt.-Major R. C.Braund and Asst.-Sergt-Majors Leggott, Boorman and Lashbrook in the entire arrangements for the week-end. The billeting arrangements were under the supervision of Mrs. J. Halcrow, to whom the visitors felt deeply indebted.

The services at the Simcoe street Temple were carried on as usual and splendid meetings were held by Captain Gage of Cobourg, Captain Wright of Campbellford and Capt. Murgratoyd of Lindsay.

HOLDING RECITAL FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Women's Music Club Making Experiment on Saturday Morning.

The Women's Music Club is making an interesting experiment, in the form of a recital specially for young people, to be given on Saturday morning in the Conservatory Hall. These recitals are proving most successful in Toronto, Ottawa, Detroit and other large cities, and there is no reason why they should not be equally so in Peterborough, if the parents and teachers of children will encourage them to attend. They will be of real musical and educational value, and presented in a delightfully informal manner, such as will prove attractive to children. Miss Palmer is to talk, as well as play, to the young people, and after having heard the music they will be questioned as to what it suggested to them.

Mrs. Park is singing three songs from "When we were very young," including "Buckingham Palace" (by request) and the "Three Foxes." also "Mister Bear," and that delightful song composed by Bertha Louise Tamblyn, and sung by Mr. Campbell McInnes, "The Wasted Crust." Miss Logan is playing some very beautiful piano numbers, specially selected by her for her youthful audience.

There is no thought of any financial return from this recital at all. Those taking part are giving their services. It is simply an experiment to see if good music, presented in an attractive manner, can interest the young people of Peterborough as it does in other cities. There is only a nominal charge of five cents for admission.

MAKE PRESENTATION.

Tendered Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Denike on Monday Evening.

NORHAM, Dec. 2—Over eighty people were present at the meeting in the league hall on Monday evening at the close of which a surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Denike, who have been for over thirty years actively associated with the church work in this community and who have purchased the Darling home in Warkworth where they intend moving in the near future. The pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson, called Mr. and Mrs. Denike to the platform and read the following address. The presentation was made by Fred H. Huycke, Mrs. Clarence Brenton and Mrs. David Evans.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Denike —We, the members and adherents of Trinity United Church, having learned with regret, that you are soon to move from our midst, felt that we would not be doing either you or ourselves justice if we did not before your departure, in some tangible way express our appreciation of the very splendid service you have for so many years rendered to the cause of God in this community.

Although through the years we may not have been loud in our praise, we did feel the worth of your assistance and wish you to know that your removal will be keenly felt. For more than half a century your family and that of your forbearers have been stalwarts in our church. You have both taken a broad and keen interest in every department of its work. Your place will be difficult to fill.

Mrs. Denike, you have rendered an unqualified service in our Ladies' Aid, you have been a willing and an efficient worker. Mr. Denike, we feel that as a Trustee and an official in the church you have been unswerving and unstinted in your effort. You have both given freely and graciously of your time, your thought and your money. You will be missed from the Sunday School, the Ladies' Aid, the Preaching service, from business and official meetings.

We are pleased that you are not going far away and hope that you may find it possible to visit frequently your old home church although circumstances may make it more convenient for you to attend Divine service elsewhere.

As a token of our esteem and an expression of our sense of the loss we shall sustain and not because of their intrinsic value we humbly ask you to accept this rocker, fern basket and jardiniere stand. Our prayers and best wishes accompany them and may they ever serve to remind you of past fellowships with your friends here, among whom you shall always find a happy welcome.

Signed—J. F. Everson, pastor; F. H. Huycke, Sunday School superintendent; Mrs. Robert I. Mitchell, president of Ladies' Aid; Samuel Gummer, Trustee Board representative; Miss Lulu Mitchell, president of People's League.

NORWOOD NEWS

NORWOOD, Dec. 2.—The A. Y. P. A. of Christ's Church held a very successful sale and supper in the Foresters' Hall. The rooms were very tastefully decorated with red and green and the ladies were kept busy from early in the afternoon until well on into the evening. Supper was served from 5.30 o'clock and a large number availed themselves of the opportunity to have supper provided by the members. The proceeds were very gratifying.

The W.M.S. of the United Church will hold their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs Riseborough.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Thomas Lumsden on Tuesday to make final arrangements for their bazaar to be held on December 11th.

The regular meeting of the Y. W. A. of the United Church will be held on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Stella Burgess.

The Misses Anna and Laura Kelly, of New York, arrived home during the week on account of the serious illness of their step-mother, Mrs. Daniel Kelly, of Asphodel.

Mrs. B. W. Squire was in Peterboro on Saturday.

Mrs. J. C. Riseborough was in Peterboro on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ball motored to Toronto on Sunday.

A number of the young people of the village have already been trying the ice on the little pond.

Rev. R. F. Stillman preached a sermon on temperance in the United Church on Sunday morning taking for his text part of verse 26 of the 11th chapter of Luke which reads, "And the last state of that man is worse than the first."

Mr Miller, of Knox College, Toronto, preached in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

GERMANY ADOPTS "TUX"

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Full evening clothes are being eliminated from men's wardrobes in Germany by the high cost of living. The dinner jacket or "Tuxedo" is coming into its own for all formal wear.

WARSAW U.F.O. ANNUAL MEETING

David Miller Elected President at Annual Meeting.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, Dec. 2.— The postponed annual meeting of the United Farmers' Club (U.F.O.) was held on Saturday evening. A few discussions took place. The men are sending for their salt. An extra effort is to be made to get new members. The officers are: President, David Miller; vice-president, Allan Edwards; secretary-treasurer, Fred Crowe; delegate to convention, Cephas Payne. The next meeting will be held on the regular evening, the second Wednesday of the month, December 8.

With Friday's downpour of rain the hard freeze on Saturday and Sunday, the roads, even the main ones, are bad.

The October cheese cheques from the Warsaw factory are out. The price paid for butter fat a pound was thirty-five and one half cents.

Ice formed on the pond last week, but the children were warned to keep off.

On Friday afternoon the children had a little programme from three until four o'clock. The senior room had been having examinations during the week.

At a special meeting of the United church W.M.S. a collection was taken up in aid of the prohibition work.

The regular meeting of the United Church Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon. There was a handkerchief shower. Other articles came with most of the handkerchiefs, to help on the bazaar, to be held on December 7. A special collection was taken in aid of the prohibition campaign. There was an extra programme. Mr. J. A. Crowe recited "The Drinking House Over the Way." Mr. Rufus Payne sang "My Task."

On Sunday morning Messers. Lemay and Burrows from Lakefield Regent street church Tuxis Boys, visited the United Church Sunday school and gave a talk on the work of the Tuxis Boys to the boys and men. They were also getting votes for the member of the boys' parliament.

In the evening at the preaching service, Rev. Hassard of the Bible Society Association gave the address. He held his listeners interested every minute for he showed he had a message to deliver and delivered it. He explained quite fully the work of the Bible Society. He showed how it goes hand-in-hand with, and even ahead of the missionaries for the Bible is printed in many languages the missionaries do not use. This year seven more languages were added, so that now the British and Foreign Bible Society's list of translations is five hundred and seventy-nine. He spoke of the copies of gospels being placed in the hands of all newcomers to the country and the Bible being obtainable by the very poorest, through work of this society. After dealing with the Bible Society work he dealt with the prohibition work, giving reasons why the O.T.A. should be upheld.

The annual report of the Bible Society was read. Warsaw district contributed forty-five dollars last year.

PONTYPOOL NEWS

PONTYPOOL, Dec. 1. — The Young People's League met in the basement of the United Church on Tuesday evening under the leadership of the social vice president, Miss J. Barwell. The programme consisted of solos by Mrs. Jessop and Miss C. Terrill; monologue by Mrs. M. Marvin, and readings by Mr. J. Payne. The topic was taken by Miss Barwell, the subject being "Canadian Authors." The devotional exercises were taken by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Terrill. The games were in charge of Mr. J. Payne. Meeting closed by the joining of hands and singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

The shooting match held at Mr. Wright's on Wednesday afternoon was poorly attended owing to weather conditions. Only four ducks and three geese were disposed of. The winners were Mr. J. Payne, 3 ducks, 1 goose; Mr. H. Masters, 1 goose, 1 duck; and Mrs. H. Gould, 1 goose.

Mrs. John Kellett was a recent visitor at Mrs. Robert Payne's.

Miss Iva Shaw and Miss A. Burnstein are attending High School at Claremont.

Became So Weak Could Hardly Stand

Mrs. Wm. Palmer, Tomahawk, Alta., writes:—"Last spring I had a long spell of sickness and became so weak I could hardly stand. I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up. I tried blood tonics and other nerve pills, but they did me no good, and I was getting worse.

I wrote my mother about my condition, and she sent me three boxes of

MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS

After the first box I was feeling much better, so I kept on until I had used the three boxes, and now I feel as well as ever I did when I was a young girl."

Price 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

QUEBEC MEAL TAX MAY BE EXTENDED

Will Be Taken Up When Legislature Meets in January.

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The fourth session of the sixteenth Legislature of the Province of Quebec will open on January 11, 1927, and will be the last of the present Assembly.

There are two vacancies in the Lower House, both caused by the deaths of the occupants in the last session, namely, Quebec West, vacant through the death of Hon. Martin Madden, who was also a member of the Cabinet as representative of the Irish minority, and Temiscouata, vacant through the death of Jules Langlas, former Conservative M.L.A.

In the Upper or appointed House there are three vacancies to be filled.

Premier Taschereau will lead the House for the sixth time, as he became Premier of the Province in 1920. As far as the Cabinet is concerned there has been no change in its composition since last session, and it is not thought that any appointments will be made before dissolution of the Legislature takes place at the end of the forthcoming Parliament

Legislation Proposed.

It is not expected that Government measures will be numerous. However, it is current rumor that a further move will be made by the Government to reduce the burden of the debts of the municipalities as far as the system of roads is concerned.

The Workmen's Compensation Act, which will come into force April 1, 1927, will be given a fair trial before any change is made. Minor amendments, however, will probably be placed before the members.

Extension of the meal tax, which was put into effect about six months ago, to all meals, whether served in hotels, railways or clubs, is forecast, but with some changes in regard to the rate, so as to do away with the necessity of collecting odd cents instead of a clear five or ten-cent tax. Meals are now taxed on the basis of five per cent. on all meals costing one dollar or more. A few changes may be made to the electoral law, especially with a view of having decisions of courts rendered more rapidly than at present.

Important legislation regarding the mining law will also be presented. It is not proposed to make any amendments to the present liquor law.

The prevailing opinion is that the session will be short.

CANADA LEADS THE WORLD

MONTREAL, Quebec, Dec. 2.—Canada now leads the world in the generation of electric power per capita, according to latest statistics available, having a per capita generation of 870 kdw hours. Switzerland comes next with 505 and the United States third with 484.

On Tuesday evening the "Others" Bible Class of the Murray street Baptist Church, held a very delightful Chrysanthemum tea, with a musical programme, in the Sunday school parlors of the church. "Birthday" stalls, where tea was served to patrons whose birthdays happened to be in that particular month, were decorated prettily with mauve and yellow curtains, and 'mums in black baskets were wall decorations. The tea was in charge of the president of the class, Mrs. H. Fry, and ladies in charge of the tea were Mrs. E. Sage, Mrs. G. Post, Mrs. E. Barrie, Mrs. L. Ingram, Mrs. N. Barrie and Miss T. Pearson. A pleasing musical programme included vocal solos by Mrs. L. Ingram, Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Maybee, the latter also contributing guitar selections; also by Dr. S. J. Graham and Mr. Brian; pianoforte numbers by Miss Elizabeth Webber, and cornet solos by Mr. J. Minicolo, readings by Mrs. J. A. Morgan and Miss Phyllis Moore, and renditions by Gallegher's orchestra. Mr. L. Smith, superintendent of the Baracca Class, acted as chairman.

FRENCH COMPOSERS.

The Women's Music Club held its regular bi-monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, with a good attendance of the members. The subject of the afternoon was "French Composers," and a very interesting paper on this subject was read by Mrs. Wm. Blackwell. A fine programme of appropriate music by French composers was prepared by Miss Mary Harstone, with the following numbers rendered in very attractive style: Pianoforte solos: "Les Hirondelles" ("The Swallows") by Godard, and "Papillons et Roses" ("Butterflies and Roses") by Thome, played by Miss Mary E. Wood; pianoforte solo, "En Automne," by Chaminade, played by Mrs. P. P. Westbye; vocal solos, "Retournelle" and "Madrigal," by Chaminade, sung by Miss Helen Lytle; pianoforte solos, "Gavotte," by Lachaume, and "Elegie," by Nollet, played by Miss Mary Harstone; vocal solo, "The Wooing of the Rose," by Caesar Franck, sung by Miss Daisy David son; pianoforte solo, 'Scarf Dance,' by Chaminade, played by Miss Webber; pianoforte solo, "Reflects dane l'Eau" ("Reflections in the Water") by Debussy, played by Miss Marion Adams, and vocal solo, "Aimons," by Goring Thomas, sung by Miss Jean Padget. Accompaniments for the vocal solos were played by Miss Gwen Donley.

Mrs. Allan, president of the Club, made several announcements of interest to the members, among them a request for signatures on the list of those who wish to join the Club members in a trip to Toronto on January 14th, to hear the celebrated tenor, Roland Hayes, sing at Massey Hall.

The paper on 'French Composers' gave an interesting review of the work of French musicians, characterizing the French school, in its introduction, as being "brilliant, sparkling and pleasing."

"In the great revival of learning that followed the Dark Ages, France gained a leading position that she was destined to enjoy for many centuries. In music, her troubadours and trouveers became renowned for poetic skill, and at that period poet and composer were usually one. The art of the troubadours took shape in a dozen different song-forms. In the north, the narrative form was developed, one of these trouveers, Adam de la Hale, becoming a noted performer."

"With the decline of the troubadours and the wandering minstrel came the epoch of counterpoint, and in the seventeenth century, the development of opera allowed France to regain international prestige through the genius of Jean Baptiste Lully, who washed dishes as a boy, but later in life rose to be the autocrat of musical entertainments at the court of Louis Quatorze. Those were the days when 'broken music' was considered as crime, and if a composer began with strings, he had to carry them through a complete number."

Couperin and Rameau were notable early French composers, the first for the harpsichord, the second in opera, and for a long time, the development of music in France simply mean the history of opera.

For many years, Monsigny and Gretry enjoyed much acclaim with operas in lighter vein. Later, the classical school of Paris included as its greatest example Luigi Cherubini (1760-1842) and Francois Boilldieu (1775-1834) continued the school of light opera, though this school soon afterward began to decline toward the modern "opera bouffe." Daniel Francois Esprit Auber (1782-1871) won more real fame with his dramatic "Masaniello" than with all his comic operas.

In the line of operatic development were Halevy, Herold and David, with Hector Berlioz as a vaster genius. Georges Bizet achieved much popular success with his opera, "Carmen," and Gounod came later with his "Faust." Ambroise Thomas, Saint Saens, and Caesar Franck were also alluded to, with a reference to some of their work and Charpentier and Debussy, the latter being characterized as "the best exponent of the modern radical theories."

A Smart One piece Frock

If you are partial to the straight silhouette, you will find much to admire in this distinctive one-piece frock of flannel. The straight bodice smartly fastens under a flat plait at the center front, and added width is achieved by the use of an inverted plait each side of the skirt front. The back is in one piece and quite plain, except for a narrow belt which ties in a chic bow. The collar is of the fitted type, and the long sleeves are finished with cuffs. Buttons adorn the novel patch pockets and front closing. NO. 1209 is for misses and small women and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 (36 bust) requires 2⅝ yards 54-inch material; or 3¼ yards 36-inch. 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Lonely, Pretty, 19, Says She Homely, About 30, Says P.O.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (United Press).—Clara Hamrick, of Wasco, Texas, is "lonely, pretty and 19," according to her own description, but the Post Office Department, entering the field of beauty judging, asserts she's "about 30 and very homely," the description is included in a fraud order issued by Postmaster-General New, closing the mails to Clara's matrimonial projects.

Miss Hamrick joined matrimonial clubs and subscribed to matrimonial agencies, made contact by mail with eligible bachelors and received money from several when she promised to marry them, the Post Office charges.

LADY BANKERS

If I seem to harp on bankers this week, bear with me. I have been meeting them in droves, both sexes. And I am particularly impressed with the humanizing influences that must have been at work on them.

Bankers, like the newspapers, have been strong for injecting "human interest" into their activities. Time was when they had reached a goal of chilly and devastating efficiency. But it proved to be a purely masculine ideal that alienated feminine business—just about the time when women were launching out quite considerably into the business realm. Women had a fear complex towards these cold, aloof, sternly efficient banks. So they reduced any business they must do with them to a minimum.

It was about 15 years ago that Nina Carter saw a vision. She suggested a woman's department of her Chicago Bank, run by women, catering exclusively to women. They let her establish one as a try-out with the result that since then large banks in every city have established these women's departments.

The efficiency was still all there—but much had been added. These women bankers did not expect their clients to be as precisely efficient and all-knowing as themselves. They encouraged confidences, lent their sympathy and aid in solving financial problems, patiently explained awe-inspiring financial customs and baffling documents, and kept their tempers when inexperienced women clients seemed extra stupid.

In fact, with almost maternal guidance, they educated women in the mysteries of finance, not facetiously with ridicule, but patiently, with sympathy. It worked like a charm. Business rolled in upon the heels of "human interest."

After that, the men bankers bethought themselves that possibly numerous male clients were equally awed and embarrassed on these tricky subjects of finance. Possibly a little human interest would not come amiss for the men, too. (Just as editors have discovered that many men write to the "Advice" columns instituted especially for women.)

And now—well, there are hundreds of bright, successful, charming women filling valuable executive positions in the big banks of the country today, and the male bankers take much unction to their souls for having "consented" to the innovation!

Women are no longer afraid of their banks. On the contrary, we make more use of the diverse services they offer than the men ever did. We are not afraid to ask our banker's advice—before the clever stock salesman has secured our investment. We get our banks to help out on our income tax returns. We keep our treasures in their safety deposit boxes. We get them to look over our business contracts. And 75% of the savings accounts of the country stand in the names of women—vide a speech made by a male banker. We have come to regard our banker as our friend, rather than a harsh person with whom it was a continual embarrassment to have to do business.

And it must be good for trade, because so many of the male banker-speakers at the recent convention harped upon it, boasted about it, recommended it. A bank is no longer merely a place where it is safer to keep our money—it is headquarters for sympathetic advice and patient consideration of our affairs, and gracious women bankers are their best asset.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Rose coral has not been worn very much within recent years but there have been occasional indications lately that it will soon be in the height of fashion again. One of the well-known French dressmakers has recently shown coral embroidery. In one instance it is used on gold lace with charming effect.

It is interesting that pearls, instead of losing place in favor, have leaped forward. We were beginning to think that, with the revived interest in all sorts of white crystals, diamante, strass and rhinestones, pearls would have to take a back seat. Moreover, it seemed to some that the fact that everyone could now wear imitation pearls would make them less attractive to the women who could afford to wear real pearls or the higher class sort of imitations. But not at all. Pearls were never more fashionable.

A French fashion writer goes so far as to say that in Paris "every woman wears now a rope of pearls and large earrings." However, this writer adds that pearls are not suitable with sport clothes and should be left off when tailored costumes are worn. But by no means is this rule universally followed.

It is the rope of pearls now that seems to be taking first place, instead of the string of large pearls. The ropes themselves are large and striking, though the pearls of which they are made are small.

Pearl ornaments make excellent Christmas presents, as they are suitable for women of all ages and becoming to almost everyone. There are really no poor imitation pearls, even though they are very inexpensive. That is to say, the cheapest imitation pearl is usually much more attractive than the cheap ornament that attempts to imitate some other stone. If you pay more you get a finer, more attractive ornament, but there is something restrained and graceful about even the cheaper sorts.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

SIMPLIFYING A DIET INFORMATION

One constantly hears distracted wails from those who are striving sincerely to assimilate information contained in more or less scientific discussions on diets.

"Is not there some way in which we can have just a few simple rules?" say these poor creatures, "so that we may construct sensible diets without using up our brains?"

It is possible to construct simple diet plans for the benefit of just such busy folk as these. No one such plan will answer the purpose of every one. Probably no two nutrition specialists will construct plans precisely similar. The subject is so broad both in its content and in its application, however, that is well that this is so. To say the same thing in different words and to say it over and over again for the benefit of more and more individuals and groups is the only way in which sound information regarding diet and nutrition may be broadcasted.

Just by way of making one contribution to such a request I present the following: See that your body is well built and see that to the building go cheese, eggs, dried peas, peanuts and almonds, lima beans, lentils, cottage cheese, beef, mutton, lamb and chicken, fish and whole milk.

See that you have plenty of energy and that when you have extra strain on your system that energy foods are increased. Get your energy from oatmeal, barley bread, both white and that made from whole grains, cornmeal, white potatoes, rice and sweet potatoes.

See that you have plenty of watery foods and those rich in mineral salts and get both of these from bran, green peas, beans and corn, cauliflower, spinach, carrots, celery and lettuce, asparagus, cabbage, beets and squash, tomatoes, oranges, potatoes, apples and melons.

See that you have plenty of fat and get your special supply other than that contained in other foods represented in your diet from cocoa, chocolate, cream, butter and bacon.

Simple, is it not?

That the foods listed in the above paragraphs must be chosen with due regard to quantity, to sensible combinations and groupings for special meals, for individual ages and occupations goes without saying, but any good housekeeper would know how to do that.

Finally, if you will follow the above simple plan you need not worry about not having enough vitamins. All of the vitamins will proceed to make both your body and your spirit glad if you will plan a reasonable varied diet from just the foods listed and there you are.

DRESS By MARY MARSHALL

Black and ruby-colored velvet shawl and hat, painted in gold.

The newest kind of shawls, I am informed, are oblong in shape with fringe about the edges. I am also informed that the really fashionable Spanish shawls this season have the embroidery about the edges and not in the center, as of yore.

But actual observation leads to the conclusion that there is no one newest or most fashionable shawl. Shawls are legion and any sort, providing it is beautiful, answers the requirements of fashion. There are shawls made of fine fur such as ermine or mole and the effect of heavy, deep fringe on the edges is new and most effective. Sometimes these fur shawls are so worked that there is a floral design about the edges—all produced by the intricate handling of the fur.

Jenny of Paris is given credit for a shawl of double crepe de chine, with intersecting lines of rhinestones and edged with curled ostrich instead of fringe, and Reboux's name is attached to a shawl of metal brocade bound with a border of heavy satin. A stole-like end of the satin is left so that this may be thrown around the neck to keep the shawl in place. There are shawls said to be of Rumanian inspiration of bright colored crepe de chine with multicolored embroidery and heavy knotted fringe. Lovely colored wool embroidery is to be seen on some of the new crepe de chine shawls and there are of course velvet shawls. Some of these are painted and others are embroidered with metal threads. A charming shawl used as a scarf is of plain black net edged with heavy black lace. A shawl of the sophisticated sort is of green and silver brocade with very long, heavy fringe of dark green. There are shawls heavily worked with beads, and spangles glisten on some of the new shawls.

Once shawls were the supremely utilitarian garment of every woman's wardrobe and poorer women wore them long after they had ceased to be a la mode simply because they were so useful. The present-day shawl is too lovely, too decorative to be thought of as useful at all. To be sure an evening shawl serves the purpose of shielding the wearer from chance draughts, but no one waits for a draught to wear one of the exquisite squares.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

The pearl, jewel of youth and purity, is the talismanic gem for to-day. Believed to endow its wearer with charm irresistible to the opposite sex, the pearl was also credited by the ancients with the power to endow its wearer with such poise and coolness that none would dare approach her.

To-day's natal stone is jade, believed by the Chinese to endow those born on an anniversary of this date with long life, and the power to enjoy old age.

Gray is to-day's color. It brings peace of mind and untroubled conditions to those who wear it.

The orchid is to-day's flower, and brings with it unexpected pleasure to those who wear it.

YOUR HEALTH

It is a rare day in your experience when nobody says, "I am so nervous!" No doctor ever kept his office hours without being told a long tale by somebody about nervousness.

I have before me as I write, a letter from "A Daily Reader" in Milwaukee, asking "what causes nervousness and what must one do to overcome it?" She wants an article on this subject.

There are almost as many causes for nervousness as there are apples on a tree. Almost every such cause is a thing neglected, or a wrong thing done.

Loss of sleep, indigestion, worry headache, eye strain, rheumatism, heart disease, Bright's disease, diabetes, undernourishment, discontent, self-abuse, over work—almost all the uncomfortable things in the world may produce nervousness.

Nervousness is not a disease. It is a symptom. It is merely a sign of something wrong with you. It is Nature's way of warning you that you are not living as you should.

I am practical enough to know and to admit that it isn't easy and, indeed, it is not always possible to get rid of nervousness. It isn't easy to do it, because it is difficult to remove some of the causes of nervousness. It is utterly impossible sometimes to get rid of the exciting cause.

Fortunately for the distressed, a careful study of the individual is likely to determine what is wrong and then it is a simple matter to make correction of the evil.

I cannot hope to deal today with all the causes of nervousness. But I wish to tell you something about sleeplessness as a cause for nervousness. It is such a common cause that it deserves particular consideration.

You cannot feel right, or think right, or act right if you can't sleep. When you find the cause of sleeplessness and remove it, you will go far towards getting rid of nervousness.

The most common reason for not sleeping well, is some disturbance of the digestive organs. Constipation, intestinal fermentation, gas formation in the stomach, overeating, eating quantities of indigestible food, and failure of digestion because of shallow breathing and lack of exercise—in this list you will be likely to find the cause of sleeplessness and, at the same time, the cause of the nervousness.

The mental condition is important, but, in my opinion, the mental condition is more likely to be the product of physical causes, rather than vice versa. There is no doubt, however, that worry, unhappiness, discontent and all forms of mind consciousness are responsible for the symptoms we all call "nervousness." Get rid of the mental disturbance and the nerves will take care of themselves.

GOOD-NIGHT STORY

MADAM TREE SETTLES A DISPUTE.

One morning Mr. Brown Beetle went to market for his wife, and on the way he spied Mrs. Ant coming out from a rotten tree trunk. He was so astonished he dropped his market basket and asked her what she was carrying in her mouth.

"Why wood chippings, of course," replied Mrs. Ant, dropping the chips down on the ground at the side of the rotten tree.

"But," stammered Mr. Brown Beetle. "I never knew you ants lined your dirt hills with wood chippings. Who gave them to you?"

"Goodness, how stupid!" excalimed Mrs. Ant. Then she laughed merrily. "Why, don't you know I'm not living in an anthill? I'm building a house-cutting it out in this rotten tree trunk." Then, feeling sorry for the stupid beetle, she invited him into her new house to inspect it.

Mr. Brown Beetle forgot all about his groceries when he came out of the wonder house, and he turned around and ran back home as fast as he could go.

"Mrs. Ant is building a new house in the old rotten log!" he cried excitedly.

"You mean under the rotten log," corrected his wife. "I was just by there and she showed me what a lovely place she has."

"Why what are you talking about?" screamed her husband. "I was just there talking to her. She came out of the log, with chips of wood and I saw dust in her mouth. I went through her new house, too."

"What ever has happened to your eyesight?" cried his wife, growing angry. "Why, I saw her coming up from the ground with her mouth full of dirt. I went down into her house and she has a lovely new home. Don't be so stupid."

"Stupid! It's you that's stup—," Mr. Beetle was so excited he nearly burst his brown skin.

"Goodness, goodness! What's the rumpus about?" laughed another voice, as old Mrs. Tree Toad pushed the door of the beetle house open and stepped in. "I don't want to intrude, but really you two mustn't quarrel. What's wrong?"

"But I declare I saw Mrs. Ant building a new home in a rotten tree trunk," stated Mr. Brown Beetle.

"I saw her carry the dirt up from her ant-hill with my own eyes," cried his wife.

"Goodness me!" laughed Mrs. Tree Toad merrily. "The best way to settle a quarrel like that is for all of us to go and see for ourselves," and she led the way to the meadow.

Just as they reached the rotten log Mrs. Ant came out of her doorway with her mouth full of chips and sawdust. She waved at Mr. and Mrs. Beetle and Mrs. Tree Toad; then she called merrily to another ant who was building an ant hill under the log.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown Beetle looked at each other and laughed. They were sorry they had let such a silly The Mrs. Ant building in the rotten log was a carpenter ant, while the one digging in the dirt under the log was an Agricultural Ant, so Mrs. Tree Toad told them. She was glad to think she had settled their argument and they all went home happy.

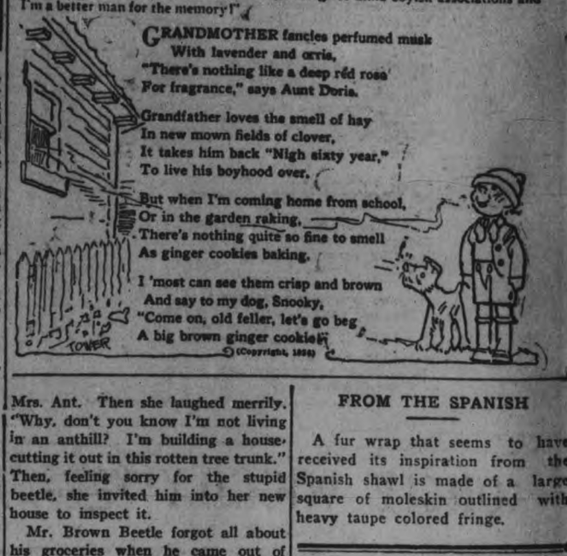
The Ginger Cookie S.

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

OFTEN smells and odors will bring to memory things we would otherwise never recall. Certain smells we connect definitely with events and places and they are never erased. The fragrance of flowers, the odors of certain things cooking we associate with something in the past either pleasantly or otherwise and they have their effect upon us. A man said to me, "Thank God for a mother who maintained an old fashioned cookie jar instead of a bag from the baker, for always the smell of warm baking things brings to mind boyish associations and I'm a better man for the memory!"



GRANDMOTHER fancies perfumed musk
With lavender and orris,
"There's nothing like a deep red rose
For fragrance," says Aunt Doris.

Grandfather loves the smell of hay
In new mown fields of clover,
It takes him back "Nigh sixty year,"
To live his boyhood over.

But when I'm coming home from school,
Or in the garden raking,
There's nothing quite so fine to smell
As ginger cookies baking.

I 'most can see them crisp and brown
And say to my dog, Snooky,
"Come on, old feller, let's go beg
A big brown ginger cookie!"

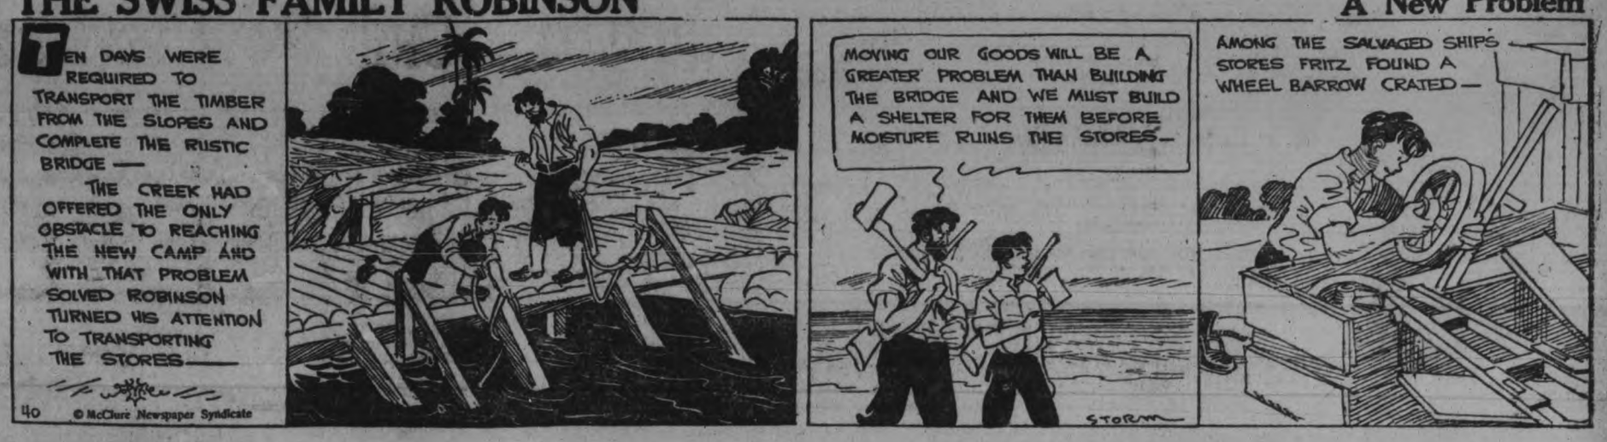
A New Problem



Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

LAW

He built his building on the line.
There was no law that said he couldn't,
He knew the sunlight used to shine
Within my room, and now it wouldn't.
I know he knew, I know he saw,
And yet there wasn't any law
That said he shouldn't.

And what is virtue, what is sin?
And laws, and people who forsake them?
Well, virtue's not to stay within
The laws alone, and never break them.
The really good are good because
They really do not need the laws
Of men to make them.

A man might all earth's laws obey,
From section one to section seven,
Be strictly legal ev'ry way,
And still not get inside of heaven.
The law that makes us rightly do
Is not Bill Seven-Ninety-Two,
Nor Act Eleven.

The laws that make a nation great,
That make a man, if white or yellow,
Are not the laws that statutes state,
Nor yet the laws that lawyers bellow;
Nor all the laws upon the shelf.
Man must do more—must make himself
A decent fellow.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FOOTBALL

(Copyright, 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Stick out your tongue!" said Mr. Possum, and Uncle Wiggily, who was not feeling very well in his hollow stump bungalow, made answer:

"Oh, Dr. Possum! I don't like to stick my tongue out at you. It seems too impolite!"

"I'm not asking you to put your tongue out at me in a saucy way," laughed the animal doctor. "I just want to look at it to see what is wrong with you, but I can't if you keep your tongue in your mouth. Stick it out, please!"

"Hum! I thought so!" exclaimed Dr. Possum

So Uncle Wiggily stuck out his tongue, murmuring as he did so:

"I beg your pardon."

"Hum! I thought so!" exclaimed Dr. Possum looking over the tops of his glasses at the rabbit gentleman's ongue. "You are getting too fat. You eat too much and you don't exercise enough. You must get out more, run, jump and ——"

"Have adventures," added Mr. Longears as Dr. Possum seemed not to know what else to say.

"Exactly, have adventures!" agreed the animal doctor. "I can give you some pills and powders and bitter medicine in a bottle, but, after all, what you need is exercise."

And when Uncle Wiggily, whose pink nose was hot instead of being cold as it should always be, like a dog's when he isn't feeling well, Uncle Wiggily, after taking some of the powders, pills and bitter medicine, said to himself:

"I am going out and take some exercise."

It was when the rabbit gentleman was skipping along over the fields, kicking up his hind legs, dancing, leaping, jumping and turning somersaults that Uncle Butter, the goat, met his friend.

"What's the matter?" bleated the goat. "Are you learning a new dance or going to join the circus?"

"Neither," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I am exercising for my health. Dr. Possum told me to. I am getting too fat, he said, after he made me stick my tongue out at him."

"Exactly what he told me," bleated Uncle Butter. "I came out to do a little exercising myself. But I know a better way than what you are doing."

"How?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Let's play football," said the goat.

"We haven't a ball," objected the rabbit.

"That squash over in the field will do," bleated Uncle Butter, pointing to a field where some squash and pumpkins had been growing in a field of corn, though now everything had been gathered in save one big yellow squash. A squash is something like a pumpkin, you know."

"Play football with a squash!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "That sounds very jolly. Come on, we'll try it!" So the two friends brought the squash from the field and put it down on the road ready to kick. But before they could punt it once, all of a sudden, along came the Skillery Scallery Alligator, looking for something to eat.

"And I think I'll take you!" gargled the bad chap, glancing hungrily at Mr. Longears. "What's going on here, anyhow?" the 'gator asked, as he saw the squash.

"Football! Bah! Nonsense! You'll need none of that when I finish with you!" snarled the bad chap. "Football! Tailball! There she goes!"

With that he snapped his tail around intending to hit the squash a hard blow, which he did. But it happened that the squash was rather soft and when the sawlike tail of the 'gator struck, it sank into the squash and stayed there. Try as he did the bad chap couldn't shake the squash off his tail.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Uncle Butter.

"Laughing at me, are you? I'll soon stop that!" snarled the 'gator. He rushed at Uncle Wiggily and the goat but they easily ran faster than the 'gator did, for the squash on his tail held him back. And so the bunny and Uncle Butter safely reached the hollow stump bungalow after a long run. And right away they felt better, not being so fat.

"I guess that was the sort of exercise we needed!" said Mr. Longears. And the goat said yes.

SANDWICHES

Sandwiches, a tasty little appetizing sandwiches of the sort that you like to serve with afternoon tea, with the bridge party repast or with the late supper after an evening party, are growing more and more popular all the time. Perhaps one reason for this is that they are not—or are not considered—so fattening as sweet, frosted cakes. Women will eat two or three of these little sandwiches at a party, though they might fear that a cake or two would add unwelcome pounds. At this time of the year, when the social season in the cities is in fairly full swing, thousands and thousands of these dainty little sandwiches must be made and consumed every day.

But sandwiches of this sort are not made in the twinkling of an eye. And there are plenty of housewives—especially those who have to do their own work or manage with the services of a single maid—who would be very glad to have someone make sandwiches for them when a party is planned. So if you would like to make a little money for yourself or some pet charity, why not try your hand a t making party sandwiches?

With a little practice you can become expert. You will soon find out just what sort of bread is best for this purpose and just what sort of knife to use. Up-to-date cook books suggest numerous tempting and inexpensive fillings. The "ladies' aid" in one city church easily raised a rather neat sum of money last winter by making sandwiches of this sort. The various members of the organization were willing to give the time required when an order for sandwiches was received, and as two or three women always worked at the task together it was not unpleasant. They found that there was really good profit to be made from these dainties, and on the whole the work was simpler than that of making cakes.

Christmas Radio Club

Went over with such a rush that the entire 25 sets were practically cleaned up in the first week. We judged by the insistent demand, that the public had awakened to the outstanding efficiency of the Day-Fan, and were ready to instal a receiving set that is able to retain its position in the radio world as "A Year Ahead." The fact that the great broadcasting stations use Day-Fan to listen to their own programmes is proof of the selectivity and beauty of reproduction given by this marvellous set.

Day-Fan RADIO

To avoid disappointing those who were unable to secure one of our first 25 Club outfits, we have secured another lot, having a few additional special features to the first lot, a 4-tube set with Bakelite front panel, speaker connection in front, etc., and can now offer

25 more Club sets complete, installed in the home, ready for operation, for only

$130.00

Terms are the same — $2 down and $2 a week.

BIG ILLICIT STILL FOUND IN ILLINOIS

Thousands of Gallons of Mash Found in Huge Outfit.

AURORA, Ill., December 2. — United Press. — The biggest illicit liquor manufacturing plant ever known in Illinois, has been uncovered here. It included 175,000 gallons of mash, seven 25,000 gallon vats, one 10,000 gallon alcohol tank, one 24 ft. column still; two 18 foot column stills.

Four large upright boilers, a 1,000 horsepower steam pump, four 12,000 gallon receiving tanks; a 500 gallon yeast mixer.

Distilling experts estimated the earning capacity of the plant at $10,000 per day.

Wheat Values Drop On Liverpool Losses

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—The unexpected weakness of Liverpool quotations had a bearish influence to-day on wheat values here. Reports of fine weather in Argentina tendered also to weaken the Chicago wheat market. Opening at 1-8c. to 5-8c. decline here, wheat rallied a little, but then turned downward again. Corn and oats, too, were easy, corn starting 5-8c cents off to 1-8 cent up, but subsequently scoring a general advance. Provisions were firmer.

SLANDER SUITS BEING STARTED BY M'ARTHUR

Defeated Candidate Says He Must Defend His Reputation.

PAID OWN BILLS.

Objects To Statement That Liquor Interests Paid For Publicity.

COBOURG, Dec. 2.—The election in Northumberland is likely to re-echo in the courts with slander actions instituted by the defeated Conservative candidate, Mayor F. J. McArthur of Cobourg. One has already been launched for $5,000.00 against W. A. Moore, the Colborne grocer, who is alleged to have stated that "McArthur is unfit to be a candidate because he was found drunk in a ditch."

The other possible suit depends upon the advice which Mr. McArthur receives this afternoon in Toronto with respect to an eleventh hour election handbill which included this statement: "Do not be misled by the letters and newspapers you have been receiving without charge. The liquor interests are paying for them."

In regard to the writ issued against W. A. Moore, Mr. McArthur told The Examiner today that his lawyer, F. M. Field, K.C., had interviewed Mr. Moore's lawyer yesterday and the latter had remarked that "it was only a joke."

"I certainly intend to proceed against Moore," declared Mayor McArthur. If that is his idea of a joke, he may find that it was an expensive one. I was defeated yesterday and the political fight is over, but I still have my reputation and business to defend. I never took a drink in my life. I have been in Cobourg sixteen years and have made a success of my business and as an undertaker I must have the confidence and respect of the people. I believe I have had that respect and I cannot let Mr. Moore's statement pass. He had a chances to apologize. The courts will deal with the case next.

"As to the liquor interests paying for any publicity in my campaign I can show that I paid for my own expenses out of my own savings and if I find that the statement on that handbill issued over Dr. Robertson's signature is actionable I shall certainly seek redress."

The whole purpose of advertising is to show you ways in which you can live better, more comfortably and more happily. Read the advertisements to find out how you may own many things you have always felt were beyond your means.

BARNS DESTROYED.

Farmer Loses Hay and Grain and Many of His Animals.

BROCKVILLE, December 2 — Canadian Press. — Early this morning the barns of J. Roycroft, in the second concession of Edwardsburg, were totally destroyed by fire. In addition to the buildings, thirty head of cattle, four horses, 1100 bushels of oats and a large quantity of hay were destroyed.

200,000 MINERS HAVE LOST JOBS

Government Considers Training Them For Overseas Farms.

1,500,000 ON DOLE.

LONDON, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press cable)—It is officially estimated that the number of miners who have permanently lost their positions as a result of the strike that is now ended is 200,000 and this naturally means an enormous additional burden on the National unemployment funds. More than 1,500,000 men are already drawing the dole or 500,000 above the number at which the unemployment fund or dole is self supporting.

It is understood the government is prepared to give favorable consideration to any really promising scheme for the training in agriculture of miners who have permanently lost their work in the mines, the idea being to fit them for settlement on the land overseas.

Early in january the National Conference of Trade Union executives will consider the general strike of last May.

MEETING TO-DAY TO STOP STRIKE

Railway Heads Confer With Leaders of the Workers.

KEEPING SILENCE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National; E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific Railways; S. N. Berry, Senior Vice President of the Order of Railway conductors, and W. J. Babe, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, are meeting again this afternoon in an endeavor to reach a satisfactory settlement of the wage dispute arising out of the demands of 15,000 railway employees for a six per cent increase in wages, which was refused them recently by a Federal Board of Conciliation. The men have voted in favor of a strike if their demands are not granted by the railway companies.

While it is known that both parties concerned are making every effort to avert a strike, absolute silence is maintained by the railways and the men's representatives as to the progress made in the re-opened deliberations.

TEN INJURED IN TWO WRECKS

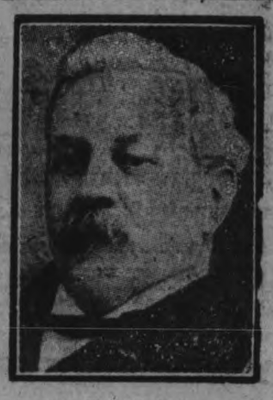
Three Freight Trains Crash, With Two Men Hurt.

EXPRESS DERAILED.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Three freight trains were involved in an accident on the Canadian Pacific Railway Transcona line on the outskirts of the city early to-day. Two train men were injured. A rear end collision wrecked two east bound freights, heading for the Transcona yards of the C.P.R. and a westbound freight a few minutes later crashed into the wreckage.

EIGHT PASSENGERS HURTS.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Eight persons were seriously injured when the Canadian Pacific Railway Vancouver Express was derailed near Tilley, Alta., early to-day. Several cars left the track. A broken rail caused the mishap.



Senator Richard Blain, member of the Canadian upper house and identified for many years with federal politics, who died last week.

ALCOHOL CAUSES DEATH OF CHILD

Provincial Police Investigate Demse of Eght Year Old Boy.

KINGSTON, Dec. 2 (Special).—The Provincial Police have been making a very careful investigation into the particulars surrounding the death of Morris Murphy, aged eight years and nine months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Murphy, Bedford Township. Provincial Officer Clubb refused to make any statement, with the exception that he had made an investigation and had reported his finding to Crown Attorney T. J. Rigney.

From what can be learned, the lad on Sunday, November 20th, left his home for the purpose of visiting his grandparents, but stopped at the home of Edward O'Connor. During Sunday young Murphy played with the O'Connor children. He remained at the O'Connor home over Sunday night. During the night the child complained of being sick, and when Monday morning arrived he was taken to his home, where he died that night. Although the police are not inclined to talk, it was learned that the child confessed that he drank the contents of a bottle which he found in the cellar of the O'Connor home. Dr. Hamilton, Westport, who was called on Monday, made an examination and he declared that the child had died of alcoholic poisoning. It is understood that there will be no inquest in view of the statement of the doctor.

It is alleged that the boy, who claimed that he was very sick during Sunday night, had slept in the hay loft in the shed at the rear of the O'Connor home, along with members of the O'Connor family.

MORE BUILDING THIS NOVEMBER

Fewer Permits But of Greater Value Than Last Year.

AHEAD ON YEAR.

There was a decided increase in the amount of building permits issued in this city for the month of November over the same month a year ago. There is also an increase of $58,530, in the total amount issued this year over last year. In November 1926, 10 permits were issued at a value of $25,140, and in November 1925, 20 permits were issued at a value of $11,660.00.

CUSTOMS FIGURES SHOW BIG GAIN

Seventy Thousand Dollars' Increase Over November, 1925.

The record with has been made by the customs receipts at the port of Peterborough for this year was further boosted by the returns for November which showed an increase of $70,945.27 over the same month last year. In November, 1926, the receipts were $138,912.51, and for the same month a year ago they were $67 967.24.

TRYING TO SAVE CREW OF VESSEL

Twentythree Men on Ship Ashore Near Houghton, Mich.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—Goastguards near Houghton, Mich., were waging a desperate battle with heavy seas today in an effort to rescue the crew of the Thomas Maytham, a Cleveland freighter, hard aground on sandstone off Point Isabelle. The ship carried a crew of 23 and although only a quarter mile from shore, the crew dared not make the dash for land.

CAMERA RIP THROUGH THE HOUSE THAT FORD BUILT

AN EXTERIOR VIEW

THE RECEPTION HALL

THE LIBRARY

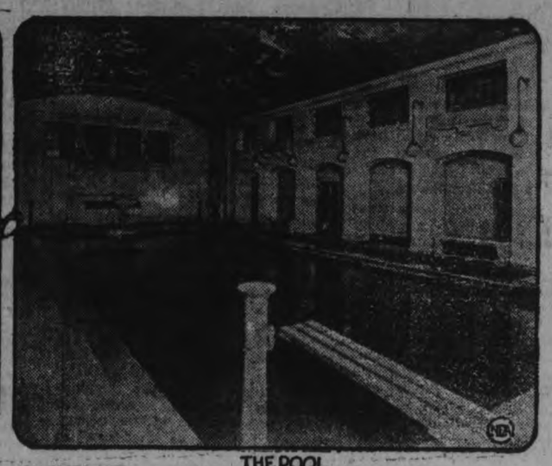
THE FIELD ROOM

Intimate glimpses of the Dearborn (Mich.) home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford are here presented to neswpaper readers for the first time. Mrs. Ford personally supervised the taking of these pictures, and permission to print them was granted to The Examiner by the Ford offices through NEA Service. They reveal the abiding place of the most widely known American and his family as a home of the rarest charm

THE DRAWING ROOM

THE DINING ROOM

THE BILLIARD ROOM



THE POOL

BY ALLENE SUMNER
NEA Service Writer

The same Henry Ford, whose chief loves in life are a little red brick school, an old McGuffy's reader and a raftered inn bright with the brass of old warming pan and andirons, is the Ford who has furnished his own home.

For the palatial home of Henry Ford, set in the midst of some 4Soo acres just outside Dearborn, Mich., to him is a house to glorify the past—a house redolent with that sentiment which Ford has for everything early American or sturdy old British.

Quaint old high-boys and early American chairs, copied by the world's finest furniture designers from pictures of those lares and penates which graced the old homes of Ford's forebears, stand in places of honor.

Perfect of Line.

Mellow and perfect of line they stand on oriental rugs rich with all the dyes of the east, jostling Sheraton and Tudor and Chinese—looking perfectly at home, knowing that they are beloved of a master who puts America first in the furniture world.

A Jacobean chair lords it in a tapestried hallway, behind it a Tudor console table. And through the doorway, set in a wall niche built especially for it, is an early American secretary.

English and American furniture is found in every room. There is an occasional chair suggestive of the old art of Florence, but they are only occasional.

The Ford home is as Anglo-Saxon as Runnymede or Boston Common, as characteristically Ford in an age which flaunts Spanish and Italian decoration as in his Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass.

A Georgian Castle.

The house is Georgian in design. Square and solid, with battlemented towers and many windows, it fronts the River Rouge, set in its lovely nest of trees and flowers and emerald lawn.

It might be an old English castle on the rippling Thames or Avon.

The drawing room is as English as Ford's ancestry, with carved walnut paneling, and furniture that says Tudor, Elizabethan, William and Mary.

This room, as every room in the great house, is carpeted with a lustrous, jewel-dyed oriental rug. A soft, kidney-shaped sofa harks back to early American days. There is a touch of the French in wing chair and paneled sofa a touch of Italy in carved fireside bench. An octagon table, a great Elizabethan table—books, flowers, lamps, cushions, shaded-candled fixtures, framed pictures of Mrs. Ford and the Ford children on a table—these make a luxurious room as livable as that of any Main Street family.

To one side stands a combination organ-piano reminiscent in build of the melodeons of Ford's boyhood.

The reception hall and grand stairway leading from the drawing room is perhaps the jewel of the house. Small orientals cover the polished hardwood floor, and the newel posts, balustrades and walls are marvels of English carving and paneling.

A console hall table rich with Italian scarf, high-backed William and Mary chairs and oil canvas over the table furnish the hall. Rare old English glass window panes glow from the top of the stairs, and the ceiling is the heavy English panelling.

Massive English furniture characterizes the dining room. The heavy Elizabethan and Georgian sideboard bearing a cut glass punch bowl and precious heirlooms of Ford silver, is almost a replica of the one which graces the White House state dining room.

Stately Richness.

William and Mary chairs, richly tapestried, blend with the lustrous oriental rug, and the paneled and carved walls have the stately richness of an old manor house of England.

The round table in such a room defies the decorators who favor the monastic or console type—square or oblong. A similar table and set of chairs fill a recess in front of three vast French windows where the Ford breakfasts are eaten in a flood of morning sunshine.

Recreation is not forgotten in the Ford mansion. There is a swimming pool which combines rare beauty in the form of a splendid fountain with a pool, diving board, showers, dressing rooms, scales, all equipment unsurpassed by any club or public pool in America.

There is a billiard room almost too beautiful to play. All in Chinese, from Chinese oriental to light fixtures and the heavy legs of the billiard table.

Ford's Own.

Ford himself joys specially in his field room. The tang of the out-doors—of the world of fish, fly, mink trap and tangled trail—is here. Rough tables of hickory, early American rockers and straight chairs and bright navaio rugs 'neath a raftered ceiling catch the orange of the fire from a rough fireplace flanked by warming pans and andirons of a storied past.

There is a sun-drenched solarium, gay with cretonned wicker, and a little balcony porch full of old hickory rustic chairs and tables.

Many American homes are furnished more lavishly, more expensively. But I doubt if any is more expressive of the owner's personality.

Scenes familiar to the man, who, with the exception of Premier King, is confronted with the most important position in the present political pot—the post of customs minister, filled by Hon. W. D. Euler of Kitchener, Ontario. The photo on the left shows the new minister and his wife, just before he left for Ottawa. All that Mr. Euler would say about what he intended to do was 'first find out the trouble and then apply the remedy." It is predicted that Mr. Euler will become known as the cabinet minister who keeps his hat on. Ottawa may then, of course, take off its hat to the customs minister who keeps his on. The new minister's father, aged 83, is also shown. The central photo shows the Euler home.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

THAT some years ago when the railways were in difficulties, it was estimated by one high in public authority that the loss to the country through inadequate transportation, amounted to one billion dollars annually.

Today the various records of transportation performance indicate that the railways are furnishing the best and most satisfactory service in their history. The loss through inadequate transportation has been regained. A reliable estimate places an additional value to the public, from present improved service, at another billion dollars annually.

The commerce and industry of the country are constantly growing; likewise the demand for transportation It is unthinkable that there should be a return to the past condition of inadequacy with its attendant losses; avoidable only by the necessary attention by all to railroad credit. To protect the transportation requirements of the public hereafter and insure continuation of the present generally satisfactory conditions, railways must at all times have credit of a kind which will enable the financing of the constantly arising demands for additions and improvements and for more and new equipment. Intimate glimpses of the Dearborn (Mich.) home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford are here presented to neswpaper readers for the first time. Mrs. Ford personally supervised the taking of these pictures, and permission to print them was granted to The Examiner by the Ford offices through NEA Service. They reveal the abiding place of the most widely known American and his family as a home of the rarest charm

The same Henry Ford, whose chief loves in life are a little red brick school, an old McGuffy's reader and a raftered inn bright with the brass of old warming pan and andirons, is the Ford who has furnished his own home.

For the palatial home of Henry Ford, set in the midst of some 4500 acres just outside Dearborn, Mich., to him is a house to glorify the past—a house redolent with that sentiment which Ford has for everything early American or sturdy old British.

Quaint old high-boys and early American chairs, copied by the world's finest furniture designers from pictures of those lares and penates which graced the old homes of Ford's forebears, stand in places of honor.

Perfect of Line.

Mellow and perfect of line they stand on oriental rugs rich with all the dyes of the east, jostling Sheraton and Tudor and Chinese—looking perfectly at home, knowing that they are beloved of a master who puts America first in the furniture world.

A Jacobean chair lords it in a tapestried hallway, behind it a Tudor console table. And through the doorway, set in a wall niche built especially for it, is an early American secretary.

English and American furniture is found in every room. There is an occasional chair suggestive of the old art of Florence, but they are only occasional.

The Ford home is as Anglo-Saxon as Runnymede or Boston Common, as characteristically Ford in an age which flaunts Spanish and Italian decoration as in his Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass.

A Georgian Castle.

The house is Georgian in design. Square and solid, with battlemented towers and many windows, it fronts the River Rouge, set in its lovely nest of trees and flowers and emerald lawn.

It might be an old English castle on the rippling Thames or Avon.

The drawing room is as English as Ford's ancestry, with carved walnut paneling, and furniture that says Tudor, Elizabethan, William and Mary.

This room, as every room in the great house, is carpeted with a lustrous, jewel-dyed oriental rug. A soft, kidney-shaped sofa harks back to early American days. There is a touch of the French in wing chair and paneled sofa a touch of Italy in carved fireside bench. An octagon table, a great Elizabethan table—books, flowers, lamps, cushions, shaded-candled fixtures, framed pictures of Mrs. Ford and the Ford children on a table—these make a luxurious room as livable as that of any Main Street family.

To one side stands a combination organ-piano reminiscent in build of the melodeons of Ford's boyhood.

The reception hall and grand stairway leading from the drawing room is perhaps the jewel of the house. Small orientals cover the polished hardwood floor, and the newel posts, balustrades and walls are marvels of English carving and paneling.

A console hall table rich with Italian scarf, high-backed William and Mary chairs and oil canvas over the table furnish the hall. Rare old English glass window panes glow from the top of the stairs, and the ceiling is the heavy English panelling.

Massive English furniture characterizes the dining room. The heavy Elizabethan and Georgian sideboard bearing a cut glass punch bowl and precious heirlooms of Ford silver, is almost a replica of the one which graces the White House state dining room.

Stately Richness.

William and Mary chairs, richly tapestried, blend with the lustrous oriental rug, and the paneled and carved walls have the stately richness of an old manor house of England.

The round table in such a room defies the decorators who favor the monastic or console type—square or oblong. A similar table and set of chairs fill a recess in front of three vast French windows where the Ford breakfasts are eaten in a flood of morning sunshine.

Recreation is not forgotten in the Ford mansion. There is a swimming pool which combines rare beauty in the form of a splendid fountain with a pool, diving board, showers, dressing rooms, scales, all equipment unsurpassed by any club or public pool in America.

There is a billiard room almost too beautiful to play. All in Chinese, from Chinese oriental to light fixtures and the heavy legs of the billiard table.

Ford's Own.

Ford himself joys specially in his field room. The tang of the outdoors—of the world of fish[illegible] fly, mink trap and tangled t[illegible]—is here. Rough tables of hickory, early American rockers and straight chairs and bright navaio rugs 'neath a raftered ceiling catch the orange of the fire from a rough fireplace flanked by warming pans and andirons of a storied past.

There is a sun-drenched solarium, gay with cretonned wicker, and a little balcony porch full of old hickory rustic chairs and tables.

Many American homes are furnished more lavishly, more expensively. But I doubt if any is more expressive of the owner's personality.

Scenes familiar to the man, who, with the exception of Premier King, is confronted with the most important position in the present political pot—the post of customs minister, filled by Hon. W. D. Euler of Kitchener, Ontario. The photo on the left shows the new minister and his wife, just before he left for Ottawa. All that Mr. Euler would say about what he intended to do was 'first find out the trouble and then apply the remedy." It is predicted that Mr. Euler will become known as the cabinet minister who keeps his hat on. Ottawa may then, of course, take off its hat to the customs minister who keeps his on. The new minister's father, aged 83, is also shown. The central photo shows the Euler home.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

THAT some years ago when the railways were in difficulties, it was estimated by one high in public authority that the loss to the country through inadequate transportation, amounted to one billion dollars annually.

That the various records of transportation performance indicate that the railways are furnishing the best and most satisfactory service in their history. The loss through inadequate transportation has been regained. A reliable estimate places an additional value to the public, from present improved service, at another billion dollars annually.

The commerce and industry of the country are constantly growing; likewise the demand for transportation. It is unthinkable that there should be a return to the past condition of inadequacy with its attendant losses; avoidable only by the necessary attention by all to railroad credit. To protect the transportation requirements of the public hereafter and insure continuation of the present generally satisfactory conditions, railways must at all times have credit of a kind which will enable the financing of the constantly arising demands for additions and improvements and for more and new equipment. The needs of the public which are still ahead, must be provided by foresighted managements, in anticipation and in advance of limitations or congestion. Credit is their necessary working tool.

Dempsey To Be Tunney's Next Opponent For Heavy Honours

SENATORS PLAN FULL INVASION AGAINST VARSITY

Ottawa Fans All Het Up Over Game on Saturday.

LIGHT TRAINING.

Secretary Hewitson Reports Tremendous Demand For Tickets From Ottawa.

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—It's up to Varsity to regain the prestige lost by the Intercollegiate Union last year when Ottawa representatives of the Big Four Union sent Queen's crashing down to a surprise defeat.

On Saturday of this week it is the hope of all concerned up Queen's Park way that the new wearers of the Intercollegiate crown monopolized by Queen's so long will wind up a meritorious season by showing the Senators where they get off at.

If Varsity turns loose another such performance as they did in the final with Queen's or the first play-off with McGill it will be only a question of how great a margin they will enjoy at the finish. Against Shag's men and Hughes' hopefuls they play a team inspired, and in the opinion of the critics no exaggeration in recent years could have made any headway against the blue bunch.

Senators Are Formidable.

In those games they knew what they had to do and they went about their work in the most masterly style, leaving little to chance and attending strictly to their knitting. If they play the same kind of air-tight football in the final with Ottawa the Interprovincial outfit will not have a look-in, according to the wiseacres. But if they go out there just for an airing the husky hoards from the banks of the Rideau may slip down in front. These Senators are not to be despised—they showed this when they walked right into Hamilton and made the Tigers like it; also when they snatched the last minute victory from the burly Beachers, after the latter team had had all the better of the play for nearly four-fifths of the affair.

Whether Varsity emerges victorious in the contest with the Senators or not depends largely upon their attitude in connection with the struggle. It should be a great spectacle, no matter what happens, and although it is not likely that there will be a repetition of last Saturday's great crowd there is every indication that the tussle will attract a goodly concourse, if not a record turnout.

Senators Hard at Work.

From Ottawa comes the news that the Senators are working with greater earnestness than even when they are preparing for their regular campaign. This game is more than a game to them—it is a life or death affair. They are keen to regain the prestige that was theirs before they succumbed so supinely to the Scullers at the Maple Leaf Stadium. Nothing less than a victory will suffice them, and it will be a strong, well trained team that will take the field against Varsity on Saturday. The two Joes—Miller and Tubman—will be on the back division, and the team will be virtually the same as the combination which literally made a runaway race of the Big Four championship.

Varsity enjoyed a light work out on Tuesday. Ronny McPherson didn't ask the boys to do anything out of the ordinary, and unless he changes his mind between now and game time the student squad will not be required to extend themselves unduly. Warren Snyder was out with a picturesque patch over his eyes, which was badly cut in the Queen's game. Rykert and Howard Stollery, other victims of the same struggle, were simply onlookers, and the former is not likely to enact a passive role on Saturday, along with Bales and Hutchinson.

Great Demand.

Secretary Bobby Hewitson of the Canadian Rugby Union reports a tremendous demand from Ottawa. In addition to the thousand tickets originally forwarded to the club a request for 500 more was honored on Tuesday, and the indications are that the Senators will not lack for backing on Saturday. The sale at Varsity Tuesday began slowly, but there was a great rush in the afternoon on the part of the students, and the handlers of the pasteboards had all they could do to keep up with the procession.

There are only two Toronto teams still in the rugby limelight—Varsity in the senior and McCormicks of the Playground League, whose sensational win at Hamilton qualified them to play St. Thomas here at the stadium in the next round of the junior C.R.U. series.

Kitchener intermediates are raising a fuss because they have been ordered to play R. M. C. at Kingston. They claim that the game was originally scheduled for Kitchener, and have notified the C. R. U. that they will not keep the engagement. Three games in eight days in their opinion is too much of a good thing. In this connection Secretary Hewitson points out that this is Kitchener's own fault as they elected to play home and home games with Sarnia instead of a sudden death game.

TIGER FLOWERS DEFEND TITLE

Finishes Training For Bout With Mickey Walker on Friday.

TEN ROUNDS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press). — Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, yesterday finished training for the defence of his title against Mickey Walker, one-time welterweight titleholder, at the Coliseum Friday night.

The match will be ten rounds to a referee's decision, with indications that it will draw a capacity crowd of 10,000, with gate receipts close to $90,000.

Walker also finished his training yesterday, stepping a pair of fast rounds with a southpaw lightweight.

TUBMAN TRAINS WITH SENATORS

Ottawa Star's Knee Much Improved—Flashes Former Running Spirit.

ON SNOWY GROUND.

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.—Despite the snowstorm which visited Ottawa yesterday, the Senators' football squad continued their noon practices in preparation for the game against Toronto Varsity next Saturday. They expect to send a strong team into the contest. Tubman's knee is much improved and he showed flashes of his former running form Tuesday, but, as in the Balmy BeBach game, "Tubby" will not be able to kick and it is as a booter that the Ottawa captain really excels. Joe Miller will again be called upon to do the kicking. Miller did very well against the Balmy Beach squad in this department, and it will be interesting to see whether he will be able to hold his own against Trimble, the great Varsity punter. The Ottawa's husky wing line is in good shape. Its secondary defence is also at the top of its form.

The team will leave for Toronto early Friday afternoon, whereas the fans will take the night trains. The tickets allotted to Ottawa for the game went on sale yesterday forenoon and it is expected there will be a sell out.

EDDIE COLLINS IS "CANDIDATE"

Jack McCallister Also Mentioned For Position as Indians' Pilot.

SEEK TO BUY CLUB.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, December 2.—Now that Tris Speaker has resigned as manager of the Cleveland Indians and is through with baseball for good, the Cleveland baseball fans are casting about for a possible successor.

It is agreed that the task of filling the place of one of the most colorful players and managers the game has known will not be easy.

Speaker converted Cleveland from a dead baseball town in 1915 to a hot bed of fandom in 1916 and has been instrumental in keeping it on the base ball map ever since.

He led the Indians to Cleveland's only pennant and world championship in 1920. Speaker, the dangerous hitter, sensational outfielder and fighting manager, has been Cleveland's greatest drawing card since Napoleon Lajoie sang his swan song.

McCallister in Line.

Jack McCallister, who has been with the Indians for 12 years, as scout, coach and assistant manager, is regarded as a likely successor to Speaker. Eddie Collins, who recently was released as pilot of the White Sox, has also been mentioned. But the club officials have refused comment on either of these prospects.

Speaker's post will not be filled for a month or six weeks, E. S. Barnard, president of the club, says:

"It will take considerable thought and will be no easy task," he added. "And I simply will not discuss tentative condidates at this moment.

"When I have reached a decision —and that is going to take time— I will make the announcement."

H. G. Tremmel, president of the American Fibre Products Company, is interested in the formation of one of several syndicates seeking Cleveland ownership of the Indians.

"Our plans have not been completed," he said. "One reason is that other syndicates are working along the same line."

When Speaker said he was through with baseball, he meant not only as player and manager but also as a possible magnate.

"No," he said when asked if he might join one of the syndicates being formed that hoped to buy the club. "I am taking a vacation from base ball that I expect will last the remainder of my life."

Speaker also denied rumors that he might accept an offer in Boston.

Gus Copulos Leads Hoppe By 100 To 67

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Willie Hoppe, former billiard champion, is having trouble fighting back toward the head of his profession. De Oro, aged Cuban champion, defeated him in a handicap exhibition match last week, and now Gus Copulos, the Greek expert cue wielder from Detroit has a lead of 100 to 67, after two blocks of a 12-block 600-point match.

COACHES AGAIN NAME BENNIES

Oosterbaan Choice For End Position On All-Conference Team.

OTHER STARS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2 (Associated Press).—The Western Conference has eight strong candidates for all-American football honors, two of them being the unanimous choice of Big Ten coaches for their position on the all-Conference team selected for the Associated Press.

Bennie Oosterbaan, Michigan end who has been chosen captain for 1927, and Herb Joesting, Minnesota full back and the greatest point scorer in the Big Ten this year, have the endorsement of all the Big Ten coaches as the best in their field.

Bennie Friedman and Moon Baker, captains of Michigan and North-Western, were almost equally favored for the first All-Conference backfield, which is rounded out by Marty Karow, Ohio State captain.

The other four Big Ten stars picked by most of the coaches were Reitsch, Illinois centre; Nelson, Iowa tackle; Shively, Illinois guard, and Hess, Ohio guard, who was on many All-American elevens last fall.

Johnson, North-Western tackle, named on several newspaper All-Conference teams, was only one vote behind the first and second selections of the coaches, in the closest decision of the squad.

There were 48 players selected by the coaches as worthy of All-Conference rating, with Michigan and Minnesota leading in numbers by placing eight men each.

ERIC RUNS OUT IN THIRD INNING

Hagenlacher Displays Rare Form in Exhibition of Billiards.

LEFT HAND PLAYING.

DETROIT, Dec. 2 — If Willie Hoppe is entertaining any ideas of regaining the world's 18-2 balk line billiard championship he is hereby informed that it will take the best billiards the former master of the green cloth has ever played to unseat Eric Hagenlacher who now wears the crown. Hagenlacher proved to the satisfaction of Detroit balk line followers that he was ready to defend his title at any time by the billiards he displayed in two exhibition matches at the Recreation billiard theater.

Arriving in Detroit only a few minutes before he was scheduled to play, Hagenlacher, who made the trip from Chicago by automobile, ran out his string of 300 in eight innings in the afternoon, having a high run of 80. In the evening he scored his 300 points against David McAndless of Chicago, in three innings.

In the evening game Hagenlacher gave the finest display of left-hand shooting ever seen here. He won the bank and after making two drew a line-up. He then executed three masses in succession with the left hand. The masse is a difficult shot for the best of players with the right hand, but Hagenlacher made these three shots with seeming ease, his left hand form being more perfect than the right hand play of a majority of the experts. He missed after scoring 10. Then followed his high run of 200 and he ran out the string in the third inning with an unfinished 90.

The champion does not play with the snap of Schaefer and Hoppe, the American stars. Neither does he have their perfect form. He bends over more than the Americans, using more of a crouch. There isn't anything slipshod or uncertain about his play. He is positive, appearing sure of every shot, and is careful with even the simplest of caroms. He scores his points rapidly, his position play being perfect, keeping the balls close together and using as few drive shots as possible.

Hagenlacher and McAndless will play again this afternoon at 2:30 and this evening at 8.30. They will close their exhibitions here Wednesday evening.

Hagenlacher—15, 62, 2 62, 0, 80, 63—300; average 37.50.

McAndless—41.

Hagenlacher — 10, 200, 90—300; average 100.

McAndless—30.

LIKELY TO CANCEL BROKER'S LICENSE

Statement Made By Royal Commission To Tresham Alfred Andrew.

VICTORIA, B.C., December 2. — Canadian Press. — Tresham Alfred Andrew, custom broker of Vancouver, was notified to-day that the royal commission investigating the customs department, may cancel his license.

"In view of what has been revealed by Mr. Andrew himself the commission may be disposed to cancel his license," said Chairman J. T. Brown, after Mr. Andrew had testified. "The commission will be willing to hear from him in regard to the matter at the Vancouver sittings."

Mr. Andrew is the broker who cleared the now famous liquor ship "Chris Hoeller" out of Vancouver. His evidence showed that he had also secured clearances for a number of other well known rum-runners during the past couple of years, including the Principio, the Liro di Agua and the Prince Albert.

The fate of the Chris Moeller still hangs in the balance. This liquor vessel with her valuable cargo lies in Victoria Harbor awaiting the clearance which has been denied her.

"If the 'Chris Hoeller' is held up a few days more, I'm broke, and so is my firm and every Canadian shareholder in the company," declared P. J. A. Mosentoff, of the Manitoba Refiners of British Columbia, to the commission yesterday morning.

The Manitoba Refiners is the company shipping 20,000 cases of whiskey, wines and liquors on the 'Chris Moeller' to a man called Roderiouez, in San Blas, Mexico.

CLAIM DEMPSEY HAS NEXT BOUT

Expected To Meet Champ Next Year If In Fit Condition.

OFF FOR MOUNTAINS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Gene Tunney's next opponent in defence of his title will be Jack Dempsey, provided the former champion satisfies Tex Rickard as to his condition.

It is understood that Tex has an agreement with Jack, whereby he is to hie himself to the mountains for several months and lead the simple life. Then he is to return to the ring to meet two, possibly three, opponents, selected by Rickard.

These bouts will serve as trials to determine Dempsey's right to demand a return bout. If the ex-champ polishes off the rival contenders, the ballyhoo for another bout between Tunney and Dempsey will be on.

Many of the ring experts are not sure that Tunney is the better man. The consensus is that Dempsey didn't train properly for the bout that cost him the championship.

The opinion is held, that while his physical condition was all that could have been expected of a man out of the ring for three years, his boxing technique was sadly off.

TOUGH WHEAT GRADING WELL

Costs More To Mill, However, Because of the Moisture.

EXPORTS DECREASE.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 2.—(By Canadian Press)—Tough wheat is not affecting the grade of flour, although it has increased the cost of milling, stated W. A. Black, vice-president of the Ogilvie Flour Milling Company, Montreal, who visited Winnipeg recently.

The farmer, he maintained, was not suffering through the degrading of the wheat to the extent that might be expected. While there was a difference of about eight cents between the price for the tough wheat and straight grades, the surplus moisture was being paid for by the miller, who was compelled to meet the extra cost of the drying operations. There was much greater chance of loss to farmers through moisture in coarse grains than wheat, Mr. Black said.

Export of Canadian flour had decreased in the last few years, due to the tariff wall put up by foreign countries against the manufactured product. Flour manufacturers, Mr. Black declared that when a foreign country discriminated against flour by putting a heavier duty on wheat, Canada should retaliate with an export tax.

The Orient was not a steady customer. Siberia and Australia could sell a flour possessing a greater ration of starch to the gluten, which served the Oriental better than Canadian flour.

Canada sold a large volume of spring wheat flour for the manufacture of macaroni, which Mr. Black said was becoming an important industry in Canada.

KELLOGG VOICES PLAN TO SETTLE TACNA DISPUTE

Would Give Both Provinces To Republic of Bolivia.

FULL COMPENSATION.

Arica, Capital of Province, Would Be Made Free Port.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 1.—(United Press.) —Delivery of the provinces of Tacna and Arica to the republic of Bolivia is the solution of the dispute over the provinces between Peru and Chile, proposed by United States Secretary of State Kellogg, it was learned from a high and reliable source by the United Press yesterday.

Full Compensation.

Bolivia would compensate Chile and Peru in full, including the amounts spent by those countries for public buildings, railroads and other properties during the years of their control over the provinces.

Arica, the capital of the province of Arica, would be made a free port, where the three countries—Peru, Chile and Bolivia—would enjoy equal rights, treatment, and railroad rates.

If Kellogg's formula is accepted, a question which has interested the entire world and caused extremely bitter feelings between Chile and Peru will be ended without hurting the pride of either of the two countries relinquishing their rights to the provinces.

HOWLEY BEGINS REBUILDING TEAM

Hopes Sisler Will Stay as the Browns' First Baseman.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2—Daniel P. Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, arrived late yesterday and immediately went into conference with Phil Ball, owner, and Bill Friel, business manager, on plans to rebuild the club.

Except to reiterate his desire that George Sisler, former manager, would remain on the team, Howley declined to comment on his plans.

"I feel that Sisler is a great player, the best first baseman in the league, and I hope he decides to stay with us," Howley said. "It's up to George."

OVERTIME TIE AT NEW YORK

Chicago Hawks and New York Americans Battle Hard.

SCORE 2-2.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The New York Americans and the Black Hawks of Chicago battled two extra ten minute periods to a 2 to 2 tie in the professional National League hockey game at Madison Square Garden last night. The Hawks tied the score for the second time near the end of the second period, when McVeigh caged the puck on a side shot and that ended the scoring for the night. It was the second stranght night that the Black Hawks engaged in overtime. They lost the Rangers Tuesday night in a "sudden death" game and last night they played eighty minutes of hockey without changing the standing in the league.

Bill Burch and "Red" Green scored the goals for the Americans. Burch's came in the opening period, and Green's in the second after the Black Hawks had tied the score for the first time. The Macks of the Black Haws — McKay and McVeigh — did the scoring for the visitors.

CHINESE SEEK COURT CHANGES

Want "Mixed Court" at Shanghai Returned To Its Former Status.

LAWYERS PROTEST.

SHANGHAI (By Mail) — The question of rendition (meaning a return to Chinese authority) of the "Mixed Court" of this International Settlement constitutes, with related issues, a long-standing and serious irritant between Chinese and foreigners. It also has a wider political and diplomatic scope.

Therefore, the effort temporarily to adjust and alleviate this condition by negotiations now taking place in Shanghai and Peking ought to be noticed in the home countries, and particularly in the United States, as the action of the American Government will be influential and significant.

A brief resume of past events leading to the present situation is essential.

When, many years ago, the influx of Chinese to these foreign residential areas raised the question of their legal status here, and how to regulate them, the Chinese government asserted the principle that while, under extraterritoriality, it relinquished judicial authority over certain foreigners, nevertheless it did not give up judicial authority over Chinese inside the foreign "concessions." After prolonged controversy and negotiations the foreign powers conceded the contention of the Chinese Government that, in effect, its jurisdiction over its subjects was coextensive with the national domain. So the treaties stand to this day; and often the principle has been reaffirmed by foreign Governments.

There remained, however, the matter of judicial action in cases where both Chinese and foreigners were involved; and that led to the setting up of a special "Mixed Court" to try them.

In order not to multiply courts and thereby create confusion, it was arranged for the Chinese District Magistrate also to act as magistrate in the Mixed Court in conjunction with a foreign consular official named as "assessor." The local Chinese magistrate therefore exercised two distinct jurisdictions; an exclusive Chinese jurisdiction over exclusively Chinese cases, and a joint jurisdiction in cases when foreigners and foreign interests are involved.

The foreign consular assessors then exercised only one jurisdiction; that of cases involving foreign interests.

For example, a foreigner would sue a Chinese. The case went to the Mixed Court (which in time became the official title) and was tried before a Chinese magistrate, sitting as senior judge, and a foreign assessor, sitting a junior judge, or, to be exact, really as a consular observer. That was in the beginning. Little by little foreign assessors assumed more and more the full prerogatives and authority of magistrates, a tendency that was resisted by the Chinese and which caused much friction.

Magistrate Fled With Funds.

That, broadly, was the situation when the revolution came in 1911. For a time political conditions in China were disturbed. In Shanghai the magistrate, who was presumed to represent the imperial regime, fled to Japan with a considerable amount of court funds. The foreign authorities took the opportunity, and on the plea of the necessity of carrying on the Mixed Court pending the creation of a new national Government, they virtually took over the court. Later, when a Chinese magistrate was appointed by the Republic he thereafter occupied a position in the court which really is that of a junior judge, and now the foreign assessors really are the senior judges. That is so, even in cases where only Chinese are involved.

The ursurpation was not all at once. It was a gradual process; a taking of authority an inch at a time.

The Peking Government and local Chinese officials frequently asked that the formers status of the Mixed Court be restored. But the local consular and municipal authorities evaded the issue for a long time and held to what they had obtained vicariously.

As years passed and there was a revival of nationalism in China, Chinese resentment about the Mixed Court grew until it became one of the definite grievances of the Nationalists and took a fixed place in the "recovery of national rights" program. After the shooting incident on May 30, 1925, followed by an extraordinary outburst of nationalism, rendition of the Mixed Court became a burning issue.

For some time our consular and municipal authorities have realized that the previous status of the court (or something like it), would not want to relinquish foreign control of it; but to hold it further so prejudices the whole position of foreigners here that it should be given up for political and diplomatic expediency. At a dinner given to leading Chinese a few months ago by the Municipal Council of the International Settlement the Chairman of the council stated positively the purpose (and said it was the wish) of the council to recommend to the Consular Corps and the Diplomatic Corps that the orignal status of the Mixed Court be restored.

Confer With Local Officials.

That probably would have been done here now but for the internal political and administrative confusion of China and the difficulty of finding any responsible Chinese authority to treat with as to rendition. Eventually this difficulty was surmounted by opening negotiations directly with the dictatorship of this section of China. A Chinese delegation composed of the Mayor of the Shanghai-port area, the local Commissioner of Foreign Affairs (supposed to act for the Peking Government) and representatives of some local Chinese bodies, opened negotiations with a committee of five foreign Consuls. By virtue of his position as senior Consul, the American Consul General (E. C. Cunningham) was chairman of the Consular Committee.

Last week it became known, by a "leak", that a provisional agreement had been reached for early rendition of the Mixed Court. What purported to be copies of the agreement were published and created something of a local furore. This furore was whipped up almost entirely by foreign lawyers whose practice in the Mixed Court will be largely curtailed if rendition comes.

Before 1911 foreign lawyers could appear in the Mixed Court only on behalf of foreign litigants. After 1911 foreign lawyers began to appear in the court in exclusively Chinese cases, which opened for the foreign lawyers a new and lucrative practice. Foreign lawyers multiplied, and now a majority of them here depend on Mixed Court practice for a livelihood. Their interest in holding the status quo is evident.

Meetings were called by foreign lawyers to protest against the alleged terms of the provisional agreement. One was held in the court room of the British Supreme Court, I believe, but it was private. A second meeting was held in the court room of the United States Court for China, which, by courtesy, always is used for meetings of the local American Bar Association. That meeting (which was attended by foreign lawyers of several nationalities) published a strong protest against rendition in the alleged terms of the provisional agreement and cited reasons why Chinese authority in the court should not be restored.

Chinese Lawyers Make Reply.

The American Bar Association published a separate report and protest. In substance it alleged that under the original status the Mixed Court was corrupt, its functionaries were venal, and many grave abuses existed. Instances were given.

One instance cited was the defalcation of court funds mentioned previously. By a rather humorous coincidence the newspapers printing the protest published on the same day the news that the Clerk of the United States Court for China, who was custodian of its funds, is charged with having absconded with those funds.

Now, if a hundred or so foreign lawyers will have their practice curtailed by rendition of the Mixed Court, the rising Chinese Bar, composed mostly of graduates of American, English and European law colleges, stand to benefit by the change. For some time the young generation of Chinese lawyers have fretted at having foreign lawyers get the cream of Mixed Court practice.

So the Chinese Bar Association promptly retorted to the protests of foreign lawyers and particularly inveighed at the statement of the American Bar Association. Firstly, they declared that the use of the United States Court for such a meeting was improper and in violation of diplomatic etiquette. Protests were cabled to Washington and no doubt the Chinese propaganda organization in America made something of the matter. Secondly, they declared that the aspersions on Chinese juridical practice are an insult to China and that foreign lawyers who utter them ought to be deported.

It is interesting in passing to discover why foreign lawyers, since 1911, have been able to get the cream of Chinese ligitation in the Mixed Court. Various explanations are given; but I believe the principal reason was traditional Chinese notions of administration of justice. It is a popular presumption with Chinese that justice is a thing to be bought in most cases. Bribery of magistrates and court functionaries has been the rule rather than the exception, if one believes report and evidence. "Justice" went largely by official favor or order. When a magistrate could not be influenced directly, he could be if a litigant was able to reach a Mandarin "higherup."

Litigants Look for "Influence."

When foreigners assumed virtual control of the Mixed Court here the Chinese reasoned that consular assessors needed to be "influenced" and the better way to do that was to employ foreign lawyers. Also Chinese litigants believe, or they used to believe, that foreign lawyers are less apt to take bribes from the other side than Chinese lawyers are. There is the further idea that by thus recognizing foreign authority in the court a certain security is gained by invoking foreign consular favor and protection. (That is true in regard to some consular authorities.)

It appears, then, that foreign lawyers have profited by the very conditions and propensities which they now cite as reasons why Chinese authority should not be restored in the Mixed Court.

Put briefly, the truth is that by the published terms of this proposed rendition the position of foreigners here and their extraterritorial rights are not materially affected. It may be (as I believe) that Chinese get more justice under the existing system than they did under the previous status or than they are likely to get after rendition. But that seems exclusively a Chinese interest.

(I shall not digress now to indicate the humanitarian aspects of this situation.)

The provisional agreement has been referred to Peking, where it will engage the attention first of the Diplomatic Corps and then of foreign offices of the powers. A delegation of foreign lawyers has gone to Peking to put their views before the Diplomatic Corps. And a delgation of the Chinese Bar Association has gone to Peking to put the Chinese side before all concerned.

But I opine that local foreign protests will not avail, and that Mixed Court rendition will come soon. I believe also that it is beter, broadly, for foreign comfort and foreign interst here that it be done.

Aove is shown the Elk Hills, California, naval reserve, which was leased to Edward L. Doheny, multi-millionaire oil magnate, under the Harding regime in the United States. As a result, Albert B. Fall, lower left, former United States secretary of the interior, and Doheny, lower right, are on trial in Washington, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government. Fall is alleged to have received a $100,000 bribe in connection with the transaction.

WAIT MAIL BOAT IN MANITOULIN

Progressive Leads By 90, With Seven Polls To Hear From.

LAST DOUBTFUL.

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— Whether Thomas Farquhar, Progresive, or Le Baron Dibblee, Conservative, is elected in Manitoulin, will not be known until the arrival of the mail boat here this afternoon with returns from seven distant poles. Without these returns, Farquhar's majority is 90, but Conservatives claim the returns to come will overcome this lead. Manitoulin is the only remaining doubtful seat.

ROBERTSON WINS WITH MAJORITY OF NEARLY 1,000

Liberal Candidate Carries Riding of Northumberland Easily.

FIGURES INCOMPLETE.

Rural Voters Favor O.T.A. While Towns Give Small Wet Majorities.

(Special to The Examiner).

COBOURG, Dec. 2.—Dr. W. G. Robertson of Colborne, the Liberal candidate in Northumberland, was the victor in yesterday's election by a majority estimated at 989 at 11 o'clock last night over Mayor F. J. McArthur, the Conservative nominee. Gaps in the returns from Seymour and Percy Townships and several other sub-divisions left the available returns incomplete, but the figures were substantially definite as indicating the final result of a Robertson majority of close to 1,000.

The rural voters dominated the decision of Northumberland, and the hopes of the Conservatives fell short of full realization in the urban centres of Cobourg and Campbellford. It was expected that Cobourg would have given McArthur about 900 majority instead of the 753 margin, but even the larger figure would not have helped the Conservative count against the farmers' swelling totals.

Summary of Early Returns.

The first return received by John Noble, returning officer, at the office of the Sentinal Star newspaper, was from Harwood, No. 8, Hamilton Township, which gave Robertson 79 to McArthur's 46. It clocked in at 7.15 p.m., and a minute later No. 5, Hamilton, A. P. Bras's residence, came through with 39 for McArthur and 34 for Robertson.

Seymour No. 8, Trent Bridge, George Van Volkenburg's neighborhood, gave Robertson 92 to McArthur's 25. At 7.25 o'clock No. 7, Hamilton, Bethel, registered 15 to 35 in favor of Robertson, and at 7.29 p.m. No. 6, Hamilton, Coldsprings, showed 81 for McArthur and Robertson 137.

These first six polls aggregated 244 to 489 for Robertson, and they were all from the townships.

Haldimand was next heard from, Vernonville giving Robertson 142 to McArthur's 38. Stockdale in Murray Township halted the Liberal swing with 155 to 125 for McArthur.

Grafton at 7.40 gave Robertson 161 to his opponent's 119. Then came Hastings Village with 211 to 169 for McArthur.

The Cobourg Road in Percy gave Robertson a 29 to 27 majority. Then came Fenella in Haldimand with 72 to 23 for Dr. Robertson, and so it went while Cobourg was piling up its Conservative majority. Warkworth added to the dry figures and by 8.20 it was conceded by the Conservatives that Northumberland was secure for the Colborne dentist.

Last night Dr. Robertson said he appreciated the splendid support he had received. "I wish to thank all the Liberals, Progressives and Prohibitionists who worked and voted for me. The local co-operation in Campbellford, Coldsprings, Warkworth, Cobourg and many other places was a great help and pleasure to me. I can't speak too highly of the support I received everywhere, and especially in some places like South Monaghan, where I was practically a stranger. I am also glad of the vote I received in towns where I once lived. I am deeply grateful for the confidence placed in me and the cause which I have at heart."

The vote announced here last night was as follows:

Alnwick Township: Roseneath—McArthur 80, Robertson 138.

Thackeray's—McArthur 34, Robertson 41.

North's School — McArthur 35, Robertson 56.

Total—McArthur 149, Robertson 217.

Cramahe gave Robertson 280 Maj.
Hamilton gave Robertson 323 Maj.
Murray gave Robertson 153 Maj.
Percy gave Robertson 133 Maj.
Colborne gave Robertson 45 Maj.
Haldimand gave Robertson 355 Maj.
Seymour gave Robertson 217 Maj.
Campbellford gave Robertson 8 Maj.
Brighton Village gave McArthur 88 of a majority and Brighton Township gave Robertson 80.

Cobourg's majority of 753 was, of course McArthur's greatest asset.

Hastings gave the Conservatives 42.

South Monaghan turned in 194 to 235 in favor of Robertson.

SCREEN ART MAKES STEADY PROGRESS

Proved By Old and New Versions of "The Flame of the Yukon."

The art of presenting pictures has advanced so far and yet so gradually during the past ten years that neither film patrons nor those who make the pictures actually realize the extent of its progress.

That is the opinion of George Melford, director of Metropolitan's new version of the gold-rush classic, "The Flame of the Yukon," which made such an outstanding success when originally presented in 1917.

"'The Flame of the Yukon' is an admirable illustration of my point," Mr. Melford declares. "Picture theatre patrons remember it as a remarkable film in its day, but if he were to see the original version now he would be greatly disappointed. It would appear to him crude and overdrawn, in spite of the fact that it once pleased him so well.

"The basic material of the picture remains just as powerfully dramatic, the charcters are as human and the atmosphere is as valuable as it was, of course, but in filming the story again the techical presentation and the methods of telling it have been thoroughly modernized. Melodrama held down just a trifle, comedy relief more prominent, and thrills carefully handled and many minor touches that are no longer new, have been eliminated. There is as much difference between the two versions as day is from night."

Seena Owen and Arnold Gray are featured in the title role of "The Flame of the Yukon," which comes to the Regent Theatre to-day. Matthew Betz, Jack McDonald, Vadim Uraneff and Winifred Greenwood are in the supporting cast.

BIG SAVINGS CAN BE MADE

The economic trend of the times is toward more direct distribution of food stuff. A big saving in cost of goods is made by the merchant buying direct from the manufacturer, and distributing to the user or consumer at a minimum of cost. The advertisement of The Groceteria Stores in to-day's paper demonstrates this saving to the consumer in a striking degree. 1d, 130, 1001

MANY DEATHS IN NOVEMBER

Marriages Show Great Decrease From Last Year.

MORE BIRTHS.

November showed a decided decrease in the number of deaths in this city over the same month a year ago. The marriages showed an increase. In November, 1926, there were 40 births, 17 marriages, and 19 deaths, and in November, 1925, there were 47 births, 4 marriages and 27 deaths.

OBITUARY.

MARTIN McFADDEN

The death occurred this morning, at his late residence at 482 Elm Street, of Martin McFadden, after an illness of almost a year's duration.

The late Mr. McFadden, who was seventy-two years of age, was one of the oldest of the city's merchants, having been engaged actively in the furniture and undertaking business for half a century, after a few years with Patrick Kane, his counsin. For the past ifteen years, his son, Gerald, who will carry on the business, was associated with him.

Survivors left to mourn his loss are his wife, who was formerly Miss Margaret Sullivan, daughter of the late John Sullivan, and with whom he would have celebrated, had he lived until next year, the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding; two sons, Rev. V. G. McFadden, parish priest of Trout Creek, and John Gerald, of this city; and one daughter, Gertrude, at home. Another son and daughter pre-deceased him years ago.

The funeral will take place from 482 Elm Street on Saturday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral, where Solemn Requiem High Mass will be celebrated at nine o'clock, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

With the passing of the late Martin McFadden, the city loses a picturesque member of the Old Guard of Peterborough. He was one of those who saw the little town of half a century back grow to its present dimensions, and helped to give it the sound basis of its present prosperity by a consistent adherence to the best principles in business and private life. A man of fine Christian feeling, always interested in endeavors of the Church to which he belonged and a constant contributor to charitable enterprises, he had too a quaint philosophy of life which made him an interesting companion. He will be greatly missed, not only by his family, but by a wide circle of friends.

OTTAWA, December 2. Canadian Press. — Sir Joseph Pope, former under secretary of state in the Federal government, and a distinguished figure in Canadian public life, died at his home here to-day, aged 73 years. He had been ill for only a short time.

Sir Joseph has played a big part in the civil service of this country during the past 45 years. He was the son of the late Hon. W. P. Hope, one of the fathers of confederation. He was educated in his native province of Prince Edward Island and came to Ottawa in 1878. He became Private Secretary to Sir John A. Macdonald and his biography of that statesman ranks high among works of that kind.

WILSON—ALLAN.

COBOURG, Dec. 1.—(Special.)—A pretty marriage took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Allan, William street, Cobourg, yesterday afternoon, when their youngest daughter, Alice Eldine, was married to John A. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Provincial Highway East. The house was prettily decorated with rose carnations and greenery. Rev. Dr. A. Brown conducted the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore beige georgette with lace, and carried pink roses and lily of the valley. A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony, and later Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for a —Toronto Globe.

TODD ..THERLY.

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Wm. Hatherly, Otonabee, when her youngest daughter, Annie Laura, was united in marriage to Frederick Todd, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Todd, Benson avenue, Peterboro.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, James, was attired in a dress of golden sand satin faced crepe with shoes and stockings to match.

The wedding march was played by Miss Ruby McAllister, cousin of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Todd were the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents.

PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT MADE BETWEEN RAILWAYS AND MEN VARIED INCREASES CONCEDED

Negotiations Result in Agreement on Compromise Basis.

STRIKE AVOIDED.

Long Conference Ends With Announcement This Morning.

MONTREAL, December 3. Canadian Press. — Announcement that a peaceful settlement had been made on a compromise basis, providing for varying increases to the men, was made here to-day by the men's leaders, S. N. Berry, senior vice-president of the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. J. Babe, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, who have been in conference with railway officials here for several days.

The men demanded a six per cent. increase, to bring them up to the standard rates then in existence in the United States lines.

While they have not been succesful in getting all they want, S. N. Berry stated that the men considered acceptance of the railways' offer, though below what they had hoped, far preferable to proceeding to extreme measures and plunging the country into a strike.

The settlement follows eleventh hour negotiations between the men's leaders and the executives of the railroads, E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways.

The re-opening of negotiations followed mediatory measures taken by the Dominion Government.

The following statement was handed to the Press by the Union leaders:

"Late last evening a compromise settlement of the threatened strike was reached by the President of the two great Canadian railways and the representatives of the organizations.

"The settlement involves varying percentages of increases to the classes concerned and yet by no means what the employes feel they are entitled to. The multiplicity of duties which they are called upon to perform, the fact that the hazards to which they are subjected are greater because of climatic conditions, than employees on railways in the United States, justify [illegible] for higher pay.

"The[re] are, however, not unmindful of the calamity and suffering [t]hat would have been occasioned [by] the strike went into effect, and [in] view of consideration for the public [in] general, they agreed to compromise rather than cause dislocation in transportation services and its serious consequences which inevitably follow a strike at [a] time.

"The representatives of the railways used in support of their position for lower freight rates in existence in Canada compared to the United States, the smaller density of traffic and the consequent lower earning power of Canadian railways in comparison with United States' railroads."

JAIL DELIVERY PLOT UNEARTHED

Citizen Volunteers Information That Five Saws Located Within Jail.

BARS WERE SAWED.

TORONTO, December 3. — The finding of five saws by Governor G. Hedley Basher in a corridor occupied by 18 prisoners, frustrated a jail delivery at Toronto jail, Gerrard street east, on Tuesday morning.

Bars on a window that would have released the prisoners, had been sawn, a screen had been opened, and if the saws had not been found, the prisoners, including some on the way to Kingston penitentiary, would have escaped, probably on Tuesday night.

A man said to have had a saw has been placed in a section of the jail by himself, while three guards, who failed to find the saws, and learn what was going on in the jail, will be dealt with later by Major Basher.

Presence of the Saws.

Relating the disclosure Major Basher stated that he had received information of the presence of the saws in the northwest second floor corridor on Tuesday. Later a citizen volunteered the information. A search of the corridor followed. Two complete saws eight inches long were found in crevices in the corridor, one with an improvised handle used so that the saw would not bend when used to saw the bars. Three smaller pieces were also found, one in a ventilator. The screen on a window had been forced and one bar on the window had been completely sawed and blackened with soap and dirt to prevent detection.

"These pieces of saws were thrown over the wall at the north of the jail," said Major Basher, "a week ago. They had been wrapp[ed] in black cloth, and were apparently thrown there by some man who we have yet to learn about. They were thrown there while the prisoners were exercising, picked up by a prisoner, who I know, and carried into the jail and handed over to another prisoner. One saw was kept by the second prisoner, and the others handed around. Most of the sawing was done on Sunday during the church service."

Gordon Simpson was in another corridor in the jail. Prisoners in the corridor include Norman Neil, under a three year sentence for housebreaking, who has been placed in a cell by himself, as one of the men who had a saw. A prisoner named Holland, recently brought back from Stoney Mountain Penitentiary, was also in the corridor, and the ex-Hamilton police officer, held here pending trial in the hold-up of Lewis Roche, fruit dealer. "Neil admits keeping one saw for himself," said Major Basher, "and giving another man two pieces. But he has not admitted having sawed the bar."

NCAN TO RUN FOR UTILITIES

Member Will Be Candidate For Place in Commission.

G. H. Duncan, an ex-Mayor of the city, told the Examiner to-day, that he had decided to offer himself as a candidate for the Utilities Commission at he forthcoming election.

Mr. Duncan some years ago, was a member of the Utilities Commission, finishing out the term of the late W. H. Moore.

He also served as a member of the City Council for 14 years, and as a member of the Board of Health for 12 years.

Too Lonely On Outside Goes Back To Prison Life

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Overwhelmed by loneliness, Michael J. Harris, 70 years old, paroled 10 years ago from Waupun, where he was serving a life sentence for murder, voluntarily returned to the prison Tuesday. He asked that he be confined there for the rest of his life.

He was admitted by Warden Oscar Lee after an ineffectual attempt had been made by the prison authorities to dissuade the old man from relinquishing the place in society he has held since his parole in 1916.

Harris was obdurate in his determination to go back to the prison where he spent more than 32 years.

MANY WARSHIPS INSURE SAFETY OF FOREIGNERS

Presence of Destroyers on Yangste Quietens Rebellious Forces.

KEEP QUIET VIGIL.

General Strike, Planned For Dec. 4, May Not Be Called.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Foreign warships have insured the safety for the present of foreigners at Hankow, 585 miles up the Yangtse River, where agitation by Chinese radicals became threatening Tuesday under guise of anti-foreign strike.

Other foreign warships have had a salutary effect at Foochow, capital of Sukien province, where Chinese authorities Wednesday professed themselves unable to guarantee protection to foreigners owing to civil war.

Foreign warcraft maintained a quiet vigil in the broad Yangtse opposite Hankow yesterday, while the speedy United States destroyers Truxton and Pope came upstream from Shanghia to reinforce them. On a British boat, the new British minister to China, Miles W. Lampson, left Shanghai to inspect Hankow conditions personally.

The general strike planned for December 4 of all Chinese employed by foreigners, as a mark of displeasure, may not be called. Settlements are being made of industrial strikes in Hankow and factories are reopening.

Japanese warships reached Foochow yesterday, the first of fighting ships asked for by foreign consuls. The United States destroyer Hart was parting the waves yesterday proceeding from Shanghai to Foochow.

In consequence, foreign residents of Foochow, city of 700,000 Chinese, view with some calmness the insurrection of Marshall Sun Chuan-Fang's troops and the approach of the victorious Cantonese forces. Martial law was in force and the Governor confident that he could protect all foreigners.

Tale Of a Beautiful Princess From Europe And Dashing Cadet She Met While Travelling

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Once upon a time there was a beautiful young princess named Ileana of Rumania, and also there was a dashing young commoner, straight and handsome in his military trappings, and his name was Cadet Lieutenant William J. Glasgow of Washington, D.C.

Now it seems that the princess came from her far country and visited the academy at West Point, where the cadet was assigned as her escort. She danced with him throughout the evening, and there were convenient palms, and moonlight and the Hudson in the distance, but finally she had to leave.

Now it seems that the princess came from her far country and stood in the rain and wind to watch her cadet lead his platoon, and again she left. She travelled about the country until at last it was time for her to return to her own people.

But she had not forgotten the handsome cadet, nor the moonlight, nor the shining Hudson, so she asked that he be allowed to lunch with her in New York. The commanding officer said "No," but the princess would not be denied, so she went to West Point on a private yacht and lunched with her cadet there.

Others were present, but they discreetly kept their places, and the beautiful princess talked with the dashing youth. Then again the time for parting came and the princess returned to New York, and later sailed away.

And there, apparently, against all traditions, the story ends.

ACTING PREMIER DENIES RUMORS OF CALLING EMERGENCY SESSION

Will Be One Session, With One Indemnity, Says Robb.

WILL ADJOURN.

Cabinet is Working To-day On Speech From Throne.

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.— (Canadian Press.)— "Nobody can get away with that. This is going to be one session."

Thus Acting Premier J. A. Robb dismissed the rumor that the December meeting of the Federal Parliament would be made an emergency session, involving the payment of an extra honorarium to the members of Parliament for their attendance during the brief, pre-Christmas meeting which begins next Thursday. There has been no change in the plan whereby Parliament is asked to meet, elect a Speaker, hear the speech from the Throne, and possibly to vote an address in reply, but chiefly to consider the estimates for the public services which were left unvoted when the last Parliament was suddenly dissolved last July. The Cabinet meets this afternoon to work on the Speech from the Throne and other necessary preliminaries to the opening of Parliament.

PRINCE GIVES UP STEEPLE CHASES

Accedes To Public's Anxiety About His Safety.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Prince of Wales, according to the Daily Mirror, has decided to abandon the steeplechasing, owing to the public's anxiety about his safety. Some time ago Speaker Whitley of the House of Commons pleaded with the Prince to give up riding in steeple chases.

Trainer Gives Blood To Strengthen Coach

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—AP—Blood from the veins of Frank Hugo, trainer of the Syracuse University cross country team, was used yesterday to add strength to that of Thomas Keane, the team coach, who underwent a double operation for intestinal hemorrhage in Fifth Avenue Hospital. The blood transfusion followed the operation, which Dr. L. H. Conroy said was entirely successful.

SEARCH FOR RUM RUNNER

Cutters Patrol the Gulf of Mexico in Search of French Runner.

TWO HELD ABOARD.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press.) — A vigilant search of the Gulf of Mexico by patrol boats and coast guard cutters last night had failed to reveal a trace of the Arsene J., an alleged French rum runners which eluded coast guard boats Monday night and escaped with J. B. Matthews, assistant prohibition administrator of New Orleans, and a machinist's mate aboard.

The belief was expressed at New Orleans that Matthews and his mate had not been harmed but had been held aboard the ship and would be put ashore at the first port.

The opinion was voiced that the vessel had made for the nearest foreign point, possibly in the Bahama Islands.

Wee Willie's very happy. He Could almost dance a jig.
He's gunna hang mom's stocking up.
And say, it's twice as big.

The Examiner Apologizes

The Examiner regrets very much the unpleasant episode about midnight on election night when an enquirer for news was the victim of a party of hoodlums that invaded the office. The reporter who took the telephone inquiry had gone to another office to get the information desired when three young men, under the influence of liquor, came into the outer office and used bad language. One of them seized the telephone and used lurid language in ordering the party to get off the line.

The police have been asked to apprehend these men and charges will be laid against them, but it is desired now to explain the circumstances to the unknown enquirer.

'Bucky' Harris' Name Now On Social Register

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — United Press. — The "social register," a little book which decides whether you "belong" in Washington, now has a baseball player on its scroll. He is "Bucky" Harris, playing manager of the Senators, recently married to the daughter of former Senator Sutherland, West Virginia. Before his marriage Harris was not in the register.

IMMUNIZATION AGAINST CANCER IS PROPHESIED

Dr. W. J. Mayo Foresees the Prevention of Dreaded Disease.

COMBINED EFFORTS.

Says That Ninety Per Cent. of People Naturally Protected.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press). — Prevention of cancer was seen as a possibility of the future by Dr. William J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., in an address before the convention of the Radiological Society of North America.

The famous surgeon told the 2,000 radiologists that as science has been able to develop "oil chargers" in smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, tetanus and many other diseases, it is reasonable to believe that recent advances in research will develop an immunization against cancer.

"The proper treatment of cancer depends on the combined effort of the surgeon, radiologist and the pathologist," declared Mr. Mayo, "in evolving methods adapted to each patient, rather than adapting all patients to one treatment.

90 Per Cent. Protected.

"Recent research would indicate that an immunologist should be added to this group. A little-considered problem concerns the natural immunity to cancer which appears to protect 90 per cent. of the population."

Dr. E. C. Ernst, St. Louis, was elected president of the radiologists yesterday.

STANDING IN DOUBT.

SUDBURY, December 3. Canadian Press. — At 10 o'clock this morning the tug that left early yesterday to pick up the ballot boxes and election returns at Killarney Quarries, Collins Bay, Bay Finn and McGregor Bay in the Manitoulin Riding, had not returned, having met with ice conditions which made it impossible to get in or out of these points. Until this tug returns the result in Manitoulin will not be known.

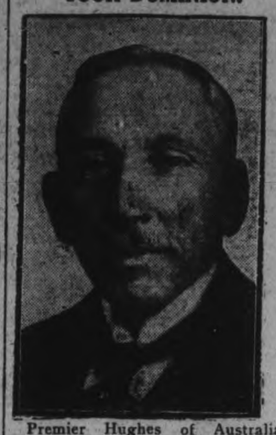
AMERICANS DIFFER ON EFFECT ONTARIO'S CHANGE OF POLICY WILL HAVE ON ENFORCEMENT

TOUR DOMINION.



Premier Hughes of Australia, who will visit Canada on his way back from the Imperial Conference at London. He arrives the latter part of December.

Prohibition Officer Foresees No Difficulty With Runners.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

New York State Adminstrator Expects Bootleggers To Prosper.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — United Press. — Ontario's return to liquor will not increase the general rum smuggling from Canada, but will allow Americans to go at will to the province and drink as much as they desire, the prohibition officials said to-day.

The only problem arising from this new condition in Canada will be to prevent individuals from bringing a quart or two of liquor back into the country after they visit Ontario, Frank Dow, assistant to General L. C. Andrews, Prohibition Enforcement Chief, said.

He added that conditions along the Michigan boundary are acute at present. About 40 dry agents are centred around Detroit, and A. J. Hanlon, special investigator, has been detailed to Michigan to help improve conditions.

Considerable liquor has been coming into the United States from this source for Christmas supplies.

FEWER SALOONS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., December 3. — Canadian Press. — Roscoe Harper, the up state prohibition administrator, sees trouble ahead as a result of Wednesday's election in Ontario.

When the Ontario TemperanceAct goes out and government control comes in next May, the dry chieftain believes the whole northern frontier from Buffalo to Malone will become the chief source of supply for bootleggers throughout the Eastern States.

Mr. Harper said that he expected to see a great decrease in the number of saloons and soft drinkeries —along the Niagara frontier because of the ease with which citizens will be able to get first class liquor across the border. This same condition, however, he believes, will make it almost impossible to prevent rum running.

MORE DIFFICULTY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 3. — Canadian Press. — The result [of] the general election in Ontario [will] give the Ferguson government [a] mandate to institute the sale [of] liquor by the government commission, [and] the widespread comment [in] the United States are jubilant while the [dry] forces are seeking to minimize the significance of the matter. That the change of policy will increase the difficulties of enforcement along the border is anticipated.

Dealing with enforcement along the border the Washington Post, in an editorial to-day, says that with prohibition fairly well enforced along the stretch of Ontario boundary, enforcement on this side did not present the problems that must be envisaged under the new order in Ontario.

WHISKEY CASES BEFORE PROBE

Final Sitting of Royal Commission Held at Victoria.

FROM RUM RUNNER.

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Two battered empty whiskey cases made their appearance before the Royal Commission investigating administration of the Customs Department at its final sitting here yesterday. Produced in the court-room by Joseph E. Miller, inspector of Customs and Excise, for a large part of the Pacific coast, they were examined by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Commission counsel, as to their markings.

Mr. Miller explained that they were part of the cargo of a rum-runner called the "Impala," which he had seized in Barclay Sound with approximately 500 cases on board.

The curious part of the matter was that the cases were from a cargo of in-transit liquor shipped nine days before on the "Principio," and cleared to San Jose, Guatemala, with no duty paid. The "Impala" apparently had obtained her cargo from the "Principio" on the high seas, and brought it back into Canadian waters. The evidence was that the "Impala" had cleared with a liquor cargo for Mintinck Island, where a leper station is located. This cargo she had disposed of.

"Evidently for treatment of the lepers," interjected Commissioner Wright.

The only newspaper printed in Tombstone, county seat of Cochise county, Arizona, is called the "Epitaph."

FOUR COMMITTEES TRANSACT BUSINESS

Preparations Are Made For Final Council Meeting of Year.

Meetings were held last night by four committees of the council, preparing for Monday night's council meeting, probably the last of the year. Ald. Meyers' manufacturers committee was first, and decided that no advertisement should be placed in Heaton's Annual next year.

Under the chairmanship of Alderman Denne, the legal committee considered minor claims for damages due to fals, and ordered them investigated.

Messrs. Anglesey and Withers wil again colect garbage during 1927. Their tender of $8,800, the same figure as last year, was the only one received by the property committee, of which Ald. Hancock ic chairman.

The parks committee was the fourth of the night. The chairman, Ald. Greene, made a report suggesting changes at James Stevenson Park. The four buildings beside the bridge, he said, are very dilapidated and would cost a great deal to make habitable. The rental obtained does not cover the carrying charges on the price paid for them, and he suggested seling a but one to wreckers, who would take them away and find uses for the salvage. The house next the river he would keep as a caretaker's resident.

With the house removed, room would be available for bowing and other sports and the river bank at that point would be a beauty spot.

As an aid to carrying out work at the south end of the park, he suggested that the garbage collectors be allowed to draw ashes as filling during the winter months, and the committee approved.

Ald. Greene's report will be left on file for next year's committee to deal with, and he suggests spending several hundred dolars a year on the property until it is cleaned up.

The chairman was given authority to advertise for caretakers for the four skating rinks and the toboggan slide.

ORMISTON BOUGHT MYSTERIOUS TRUNK

Store Found Where Radio Operator Bought Trunk.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Times says the ownership of the blue trunk mystery in the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case, which, filled with feminine finery, was seized in New York ,has been pinned definitely to Kenneth G. Ormiston, with the discovery of the Pasadena store where is was urchased by the now fugitive radio man and which delivered it to his hotel.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO

Between: Ellen Hayes, Plaintiff, vs. William H. Taylor and others, Defendants.

Pursuant to the Judgment and final order of sale made in this cause and bearing date respectively the 27th day of January, 1926, and the 21st day of September, 1926, there will be sold by Public Auction, with the approbation of O. A. Langley, Esquire, the Local Master of this Court at Peterborough by W. J. Hancock, Auctioneer, at his Auction Rooms at No. 494 George Street, Peterborough, Ontario, at the hour of 1.30 p.m. on Friday, the 10th day of December, 1926, in one parcel, the following lands and premises, namely:

All and Singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate lying and being in the City of Peterborough in the County of Peterborough and Province of Ontario, and being composed of that part of Lot Number Eight South of Dalhousie Street and West of George Street, more particularly described as follows: Commencing at the south east angle of said lot; thence northerly along the western limit of Aylmer Street forty-three feet six inches; thence westerly parallel with the southern boundary of said lot one hundred and fourteen feet more or less to the western limit thereof; thence southerly along said western boundary forty-three feet six inches to the southern boundary of said lot; thence easterly along the said southern boundary to the place of beginning; together with a right of way running from the eastern to the western boundary of said lot over the south three feet six inches of the land conveyed to William Savigny by deed of even date herewith and lying immediately to the north of the lands hereby granted and subject to a right of way in the owners of the lands immediately to the north and their successors in title, over the northerly three and one half feet of the lands hereby conveyed.

Upon said lands and premises is said to be erected a two and one half story dwelling-house built of brick veneer roofed with shingles-in-mortar, and also a garage, said house being known as No. 183 Aylmer Street. The property is said to be in good repair and is situated in a desirable residential district.

The property will be offered for sale subject to a reserved bid which has been fixed by the said Master.

Terms of payment: 10 per cent. of the purchase money at the time of sale and the balance without interest to be paid into Court to the credit of this cause within fifteen days thereafter.

In all other respects the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Further particulars can be had from Messrs. Hatton and Reid, 397½ George Street, Peterborough, Solicitors for the Vendor, or from J. F. Strickland, Solicitor, 375 Water Street, Peterborough, or from the Auctioneer above named.

Dated at Peterborough this 5th day of November, 1926.

FOOCHOW TAKEN BY CANTONESE

City Decked With Flags To Welcome Incoming Forces.

COTROLS YANGTSE.

AMOY, December 3. Canadian 4. Canadian Press. — The City of Foochow was handed over to the Southern forces at ten o'clock last night. To-day the city is bedecked with flags welcoming the incoming Cantonese. The peaceful entry of the Southerners has relieved the tension that existed among the foreign population. The only fear held now is that concerning the radical student element.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

STORE KEEPER FIGHTS ROBBERS

Holds Two Men Off With Butcher Knife While Wife Phones.

ONE ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—With bullets whizzing past his head, James Sammons, aged 55, courageously fought two gunmen in his grocery store, 395 Sackville street, last evening. Mr. Sammons, armed with a butcher knife, struggled with one of the robbers, while his wife, an invalid, managed to get the receiver from the telephone. Her cries for police were picked up by Miss Clifford, 126 Harbord street, an operator in the Randolph Exchange, and relayed to police.

Motorcycle Speed.

Motorcycle Officers Crowson and Leask happened to be in Dundas Street East Station. Both leaped on their motorcycles and sped to the scene, arriving in time to arrest Frank Rioux, aged 26, of Timmins. Rioux, police said, had dropped the gun on the floor. He said his companion had fled when the shots were fired. Rioux is held on charges of shooting with intent and attempted robbery with violence.

LAKE DIVERSION CASE RESUMED AT WASHINGTON

Minneapolis Engineer Was Recalled For Cross-Examination at Hearing.

PRESENT WHOLE CASE.

Water Abstraction From Lakes Would Increase River Shipping Costs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Water abstraction from the Great Lakes by the Chicago drainage canal would permanently increase the cost of navigation on the St. Lawrence River, Hugh L. Cooper, engineer, of Stamford, Conn., testified yesterday when hearings on the subject were resumed before Charles E. Hughes, special Supreme Court master.

Cooper presented exhaustive data bearing on the economic losses caused by water abstracted by the canal, and said that the lowering of the level by eight inches resulted in a loss of one inch draft for cargo ships plying on the St. Lawrence River. This would be equivalent to a loss of 64 tons per ship in carrying capacity, he said, and on a basis of a freight rate of $2 per ton between Buffalo and Montreal, would represent a loss of $128.

Hearing Resumed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Counsel assembled yesterday for resumption of the Supreme Court lake diversion hearing. Under agreement of counsel the six States seeking to curb diversion of Lake Michigan waters through Chicago sanitary canal will complete their case this week, after which a recess will be taken until January 10, when the defendants will begin their rebuttal.

Charles E. Hughes, special master of the Supreme Court, is conducting the hearings, in which seven lower Mississippi Valley States are supporting the sanitary district in resisting the attempt of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York to prevent continued diversion of Lake Michigan waters in such quantities as may burden Great Lakes shipping through lowering water levels. Dr. Sven Norling, Minneapolis drainage engineer, who told of damage to crops and farm lands, through sub-surface drainage in the lakes area, was called for cross-examination at the beginning of yesterday's session.

New York's Case.

Since the hearings recessed two weeks ago, the Supreme Court has ruled that New York may present its entire case in the special procedure, instead of confining itself to issues centred on navigation interests presented in the original Wisconsin suit against the Chicago sanitary district. New York's complaint involves in addition considerations growing out of the Empire State's interest in water power potentialities of the St. Lawrence River.

The recently published report of the engineering survey of the International Joint Commission, which touched upon the relative influences on lake levels of the Chicago and the Canadian withdrawals from the Great Lakes system, also is likely to figure in future sessions of the hearings, in the view of complainant counsel. Plans for bringing the report before Mr. Hughes have not been completed, but counsel have indicated a desire to correct what they term erroneous inferences from the report by various newspapers throughout the middle west.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Faith, be an angel and sew some new shoulder straps on these teddies for me, won't you?" Cherry, rummaging in a cluttered dresser drawer, looked up with her most wheedling smile as Faith appeared at the door. "Here's some orchid ribbon. Make those cunning little flat tailored bows to finish them off, darling. And a little bow in front. Thanks for tinting the teddies, honey. They're as nice as new."

Faith accepted the fluffy handful of orchid-tinted chiffon, with the bolt of satin ribbon, and obediently reached for Cherry's little hand-painted Japanese workbox. "Going out, Cherry? I wanted to talk with you."

"Talk away," Cherry commanded blithely. "Just going to dance over at the Warrens'. Bill's coming for me at eight."

"Do you think Mr. Cluny would approve?" Faith asked stiffly, her eyes on her work.

"Mr. Cluny!" Cherry echoed. "Whats he got to do with it? I'm not dead because I'm engaged. None of his business!"

"Does Mr. Cluny dance?" Faith could not keep the sarcasm out of her voice.

"Good Lord! How do I know?" Cherry laughed, as she slipped a Cinderella-sized silver slipper upon a high-arched, slim foot. "Probably does the waltz very, very solemnly and thinks the Charleston is immoral, because the 'younger generation' is crazy about it."

"Are you planning to teach him to dance, or to give up dancing yourself?" Faith inquired evenly, but her fingers trembled a little as she fashioned the tiny flat bow that Cherry had ordered.

"Oh don't be an old frozen-face!" Cherry cried with sudden petulance. "I'm not so dumb as I look. I know you came in here to bawl me out, make me see the error of my ways, and all that sort of thing, but you're wasting your breath. I'm going to marry Mr. Cluny and you might as well get used to the idea."

"Why are you doing it, Cherry? You don't have to marry a doddering old man—"

"He doesn't dodder," Cherry caught her up sharply. "He's one of the most distinguished looking men in town, and he doesn't look a day over fifty-five or sixty, at the most. As for why—that's easy! He's worth a cool million. In other words, there are a million reasons why I'm going to marry him. Haven't you finished those straps yet? I guess I'll have time to put a fresh coat of liquid polish on my nails. Do you like this new shade?"

"I thought you told us last week that Mr. Cluny has some grown children and grandchildren." Faith scarcely looked at the little square bottle that Cherry was holding up for her inspection. "Don't you realize that he'll leave his money to his children?"

"The law allows the wife one-third." Cherry was frowningly intent upon the smooth application of the thick, red, banana-smelling liquid. "I guess I could manage to gag along on a mere three hundred thousand dollars, there's no law that can keep him from leaving most of it to me. If his son and daughter make too much of a row about his marrying again, he'll cut 'em off with the least the law allows. They've got plenty themselves, and Ralph isn't too crazy about 'em lately."

"Ralph?" Faith raised her eyebrows, as she snipped the silk thread between her strong, even white teeth. "Here you are." She tossed the orchid chiffon garment to Cherry's lap.

"He asked me to call him Ralph." Cherry smiled. "You know, Faith, I honestly think that's one reason he's so set on getting married. He told me he'd gotten tired of being watched as if he were an invalid with one foot in the grave. He's tickled pink at the jolt he's going to give 'em. Oh, Lord! I'm sick to death of this old pink georgette. When I'm Mrs Ralph Cluny I'll have a new dress every day in the week."

"You'll also have to put up with Mr. Ralph Cluny every day in the week," Faith pointed out. "What do you really feel, Cherry? Haven't you any heart? Don't you feel sorry for that poor old man, or for yourself at least? You're not quite nineteen, Cherry, and you talk and act like a hard-boiled woman of the world. What do you feel—deep down inside—about this outlandish engagement of yours?"

The little body whirled from the mirror, and two topaz eyes turned their blazing brilliance upon Faith.

"What do I feel?" she echoed passionately. "Have I got any heart? I feel sick at my stomach at the thought of that old man pawing me, but I'm going to marry him just the same! Don't you think I know what I'm letting myself in for? Ever since I was fourteen years old I've been in love with two or three boys at the same time. Engaged six times. Now I'm crazy about two men, and I guess you know who they are." She struck a tiny clenched fist against her trembling lips, as if to force back the sobs that were rasping her throat.

"Bob Hathaway and—who else?" Faith backed away from the dramatic little figure, her own voice husky and strange in her ears.

"And Chris Wiley!" Cherry flung the words at her sister defiantly. "As for Bob Hathaway, I'm not marrying a man that doesn't really want me. But I swear I'll elope with Chris Wiley, if you and Dad don't let up on me about Mr. Cluny. Right now it's one or the other—Chris Wiley or Ralph Cluny. Chris Wiley makes me forget everything else in the world when I'm with him—drives me nuts, I tell you. It would kill Muggy, and just about kill Dad, too, if I married Chris Wiley. That's the reason I snapped up old Cluny when he was half-way through proposing. I'm just trying to save myself from Chris. Heart? Feelings? You don't know the half of it, Dearie!" she concluded in a bitter note of sarcasm. "There's Bill's car now. Believe me, I'm going to step high, wide and handsome for the short time that's left to me."

. . . BEARER OF INTELLIGENCE . . . DISPELLER OF IGNORANCE AND PREJUDICE . . . A LIGHT SHINING INTO ALL DARK PLACES.

A LINK WITH THE PAST.

Within the past few weeks Peterboro has mourned the loss through death of a number of well-known citizens whose names were household ones in this community.

The passing of Martin McFadden means the severing of another link with the past.

For over half a century Mr. McFadden had been identified with the business life of this city.

In Peterboro and throughout the surrounding countryside he enjoyed the esteem and liking of a very wide circle of friends to whom he had endeared himself by his geniality and never-failing good humour.

The loss of such citizens leaves vacancies that are indeed difficult to fill, for the little group of residents whose connection with Peterboro and its development stretches back over fifty years is steadily dwindling.

Mr. McFadden's death has removed one of the oldest of the city's business men.

LACROSSE AND POLITICS.

The election of Brigadier General Hogarth as Conservative member for Port Arthur over F. H. Keefer, the official Government nominee, and Dr. Eakins, the Liberal candidate, will bring back memories of the old days to Peterboro lacrosse fans of a quarter of a century ago.

The successful Conservative candidate in Port Arthur is the same Don Hogarth whose dazzling stickhandling and speed of foot made him a notable member of the Peterboro Lacrosse Club in the days when this city was a force to be reckoned with in lacrosse.

Hogarth played here during the season that was made famous by the spectacle of the manager of the Orillia lacrosse team being chased all the way from the old cricket field grounds in Ashburnham to the Grand Trunk Station by a mob of infuriated lacrosse enthusiasts, and if memory is functioning properly, the blonde head of the member-elect for Port Arthur was noticeable in the front rank of the pursuers.

Hogarth went north after leaving Peterboro, and is one of many who have made good in that land of opportunity.

This is the second time he has been a member of the Ontario Legislature, and his political success was eclipsed by his military career, which saw him rise to the position of quartermaster general of the Canadian army during the Great War.

NO RELAXATION.

In his speech in Toronto Wednesday night when the result of the election was known, Premier Ferguson announced that there would be no relaxation in the enforcement of the present O. T. A. while it remains on the statute books.

That is a feature of the present situation to which the public should pay attention.

The system of Government control endorsed by the electorate on Wednesday cannot come into effect before May 1st; in the meanwhile the O. T. A. remains law, and the unfavourable vote registered against the measure cannot be accepted as a mandate to disregard the provisions of the O. T. A. while it continues in force.

Those who believe that the result of the election restored to them privileges of which they had been deprived by the O. T. A. would do well to respect that Act until it is repealed; otherwise the pendulum might swing the other way again.

Elections are not won as a rule by the extremists on either side, it is the voting strength of the masses of people in between that decides, and while it is evident that that strength went in a great measure in favour of Government control, it could easily be alienated by an attempt to disregard the existing law.

The people of Ontario would resent any relaxation in enforcement while the O. T. A. remains, and Premier Ferguson should make his declaration as clear and as emphatic as possible.

CAMPAIGN FEATURES.

In the newspapers and in general conversation post mortems on the election results in Ontario are being conducted.

They are at least interesting, if they are not very valuable.

To attempt to explain Wednesday's verdict is not a simple matter.

So many factors entered into the campaign that to pick out any one in particular and say that it was chiefly responsible for the result would be rather jumping to conclusions.

Undoubtedly the amount of public opinion in favour of the O. T. A., which at the last plebiscite was represented by a majority of only 34,000, had decreased in the interim.

Rightly or wrongly, many people who could with no adherence to truthfulness be described as "wet" had come to the conclusion that the Ontario Temperance Act, while contributing greatly to the public weal by wiping out the open bar, had developed other evils that required attention.

And this conviction was strengthened rather than weakened by the mistakes in judgment that in some cases were shown in the carrying on of the O. T. A. side of the campaign.

After the beer parlour portion of his policy had been dropped by the Premier, it was a mistake to dwell upon the operation of such parlours in other Provinces; most people had followed the campaign with unusual keenness and were quick to detect a false note in such statements.

The cause of prohibition, too, was harmed rather than helped by the injudicious attack made upon Judge Mrs. Murphy, whose reputation was so well known everywhere that her motives were considered as above auspicion, even if her opinion as to the merits of Government control might be open to question.

Even the meetings of young people called in various parts of the Province to protest against references to them made by the Premier during the campaign, a series of spectacular demonstrations that were unique in a political contest, lost much of their effectiveness by reason of the fact that they were boomed extravagantly by a newspaper whose articles along the same line as Mr. Ferguson's, published before the Ontario election was announced, had been more drastic than anything the Premier himself had said.

These things helped to some extent at least to give the Government a sweeping margin in the new Legislature, although even without them the emphatic nature of the verdict shows that the O. T. A. would have been badly defeated.

CANADA'S STATUS.

(Border Cities Star)

No bond has been severed, but Canada and her sister dominions have taken a long step forward. Every Canadian who is proud of his country, who believes in his country, should find cause for pride in this. Why should Canadians wish to think of their land being in a secondary position? We have had an inferiority complex too long. It is time we dropped it. Canada is big enough and strong enough and rich enough to stand on her own feet as an equal with Great Britain and with Australia and with the others in the great British family. Britain does not "own" Canada, nor has the British Government any say in our affairs. But we have a common sovereign and common ideals and, to a large extent, common interests. This connection we cannot valuate too highly. No sensible man seeks to relinquish it.

One may disagree with Premier King on fiscal policy and in other ways, but no one can deny the strength of his "Canada First" platform. It is a good platform, a platform from which Canadians can take real inspiration and upon which they can build for the future. Let us keep Canada uppermost in our minds at all times. We are not Englishmen or Scotsmen or Irishmen or Frenchmen or Russians or Italians or anything else but Canadians. Our country is made up of a dozen and one races. We may be of this descent or that, but what our grandfathers WERE is not nearly as important as what we ARE. Mr. King, our chief spokesman at the Imperial Conference, happens to be of Scottish descent. His colleague, Mr. Lapointe, traces his ancestry back to France. But Mr. King is not a Scotsman and Mr. Lapointe is not a Frenchman. Each is a CANADIAN!

This is the thing for our people to grasp. This is the thing for our children to be taught. Canada is our homeland and their homeland. Canada should come first with everyone of us!

LOWER TAXES.

The role chosen by Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, is a popular one. For years Canadians north, south, east and west have been urging that taxes be reduced, and now he reduces them. He is a forunate minister who can help his party these days. Whether the Robb budget or a cabinet concotion, there is no doubt that it did contribute to the success of the Goverment in the election, and some believe that it was the determining factor.

The only flaw in the policy of tax reduction is that circumstances do not fully justify it. These reductions anticipate prosperity which may or may not be realized. "The new budget was just a fortunate preparation for events in their sequence," said Mr. Robb in a recent interview. Public opinion on the question of tax reduction throws some interesting sidelights. We have the Retail Trade Bureau trying to organize a movement to abolish the income tax. Others are opposed to direct taxes nominally on the ground that they are unfair, but back in their heads is a desire to see higher custom duties take their place; they are thinking mainly of protection. There are people who are "broad" enough to advocate tax reduction of any kind, and at the same time to urge upon the government large new expenditures.

But the most important consideration of all is that of national debt. As has been shown in The Monetary Times from time to time, the progress of debt reduction is exceedingly slow, in fact almost negligible. True enough there is a large surplus on Consolidated Fund Account, but that is eaten up by railway charges, and to build upon continued improvement in the financial results of Canadian National Railways operations is also discounting the future to an unwarranted degree.

Canada financed her war requirements almost entirely from capital account. New taxes were put on only to meet the new interest charges. Now that the growth of the country has produced a surplus at these tax rates, would it not be better to go slow in reducing taxes, and rather pay off some of the debt? It is only by the latter process that true and permanent tax reduction can be achieved—Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is nothing in the way of doing that Christmas shopping now.

It is said that the Government Control Act cannot come into effect until May 1st. Many people are likely, therefore, to find the winter of 1926-27 the longest on record.

Hon. W. F. Nickle announces his retirement from public life. But there are strange twists to political developments, and the former Attorney-General may find himself back in the public service.

It looks as if about the only people who voted for E. W. J. Owens, the Conservative selected at the party convention in St. George's, Toronto, were those who supported him at the convention.

Arthur Hawkes failed to sell his "Better Citizenship" proposition to the electors of the Beaches. It was buried under an avalanche of votes.

The only man who made the slogan, "Youth Refuses to Retreat," mean anything was Farquar Oliver, Miss MacPhail's campaign manager, who was the 22-year-old David who slew Goliath, Dr. Jamieson, in South Grey.

South Grey, not satisfied with electing the only woman member of the Federal House, has selected a 22-year-old candidate as its representative in the Legislature.

And now we can get busy on our Christmas shopping. Just a little over three weeks to go.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—The market was well cleared of all offerings at steady prices. A shade firmer feeling for anything of fair quality in the butcher cattle class. Common and plain butcher stuff, including the large proportion of thin cows and canners, were more slowly passed over the scales, but with practically no change in prices.

A fair demand for stockers and feeders took care of two weeks' offerings in this class. Choice butcher lots sold from $6 to $6.60. A small bunch of extra quality heavy steers sold at $7.15.

Small meats firm at last quotations.

A little firmer tone in the hog market.

Choice butcher steers and heifers steady to firm, with good demand.

Lambs, firmer, $12 to $12.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press). — Aggressive buying which found offerings light carried wheat sharply upward yesterday, the rise in some cases going almost 5c a bushel about Wednesday's minimum figures. Predicted rains in Argentina reduced estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus and active demand from millers at Minneapolis, all acted as a stimulus.

Closing quotations in wheat were strong, 3-4 to 2 1-4c net higher; with corn 3-8 to 1 1-2c up; oats 1-8c lower to 5-8c advance; and provisions showing 7 to 65 cents gain.

Wheat prices here finished at the day's top level. Corn advanced in the face of liberal profit-taking sales. It was a popular assertion that present merchantable crop is a billion bushels less than the ten-year average and that the hog feeding ratio is the highest ever known. Oats averaged higher with corn and wheat.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press). — Extreme dullness again marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday. Only a few bids were received from foreign buyers and these were far below local exporters' views. A moderate trade was done in coarse grains with local buyers and prices were unchanged.

The demand for Spring wheat grades of flour continued at a low ebb but prices ruled steady. An easier feeling prevailed in the Winter wheat situation and indications are that a downward revision will take place shortly. The trade was quiet.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a fair demand. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

A feature of the butter trade was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were advanced 1-2c per pound. The receipts were 153 packages.

A fairly active business was done in eggs and prices for fresh and storage grades were firm. The receipts were 697 cases.

The cheese market continued inactive, but values were very firm. Current makes were quoted at 17 1-4c to 17 3-4c per pound, and grass-made at 17 3-4c to 18 1-4c per pound. The receipts were 307 boxes.

The demand for potatoes continued good and a moderate amount of business was done at unchanged prices. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 per bag, New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.75 per bag, and Quebec White stock at $1.60 per bag of 90 pounds.

The market for beans was quiet and car lots of choice white handpicked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel, and broken lots at $3.00 per bushel.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

BREAKING IT GENTLY
By Dr. Frank Crane.

If you have anything to tell me, say it.

Don't beat around the bush and prepare me for your news, or otherwise break it gently.

A young man called to see me the other day and asked if he could have ten minutes of my time. I replied that he could on two conditions—that he spend the first five minutes telling me what he wanted me to do; then he could take the other five minutes and explain why he wanted me to do it.

I don't like to have people prepare me for things. I don't want anything led up to.

I am quickly adjustable, and whatever may be your news I can soon arrange my affairs to receive it.

For people to think they must lead up to things or they must get me first in the proper mood to hear what they have to say is an impeachment of my intelligence.

I am already in the proper mood. I am ready to hear your news. So out with it, no matter what it may be.

This thing of preparing people to receive news recalls the story of an Irishman.

An Irishman was killed in a mine disaster. As they were bringing home his body they deputed Mike, one of his fellows, to break the news to his widow. Mike went on ahead and when he met the widow at the door of her house he said: "Does the Widow McCann live here?"

"No," she replied. "I am Mrs. McCann and my husband is a miner."

"Like the dickens he is," said Mike. "Wait 'til you see what they're bringing up the steps."

This is a good example of "breaking it gently."

The fact is that the experienced mind can adapt itself quicker to anything else than to mystery.

Whatever the bad news may be, we can digest it in time, but one thing we cannot stand is to be kept in the dark.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The rockpile afforded by some southern states has been condemned by the national hobo convention. What's a man going to do for a winter home?

RELATION PERMANENT.

JOHANNESBURG, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—"We fully accept what has been given us by the British Government" Tielman Roos, South African Minister of Justice, declared in a speech here. "The relation now existing between the British and South Africa are permanent. There is now no question of secession or republicanism."

MEXICANS PREDICT SUSPENSION OF ALIEN LAWS WHICH CAUSED DISPUTE BETWEEN GOVERNMENTS

Some Politicians Say Clauses Condemned Will Be Lifted.

BREAK FEARED.

Calles's Enemies Might Start Revolution If Arms Embargo Raised

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—The suspension of those provisions of the Mexican alien land and oil laws which caused the present dispute between the Calles and Coolidge Governments and the appointment of a commission that would endeavor to remove the sources of friction over the laws between the Mexican Government and foreign land-holders, are regarded as strong probabilities by some politicians here.

Although officials have declared that the Government would make no changes in the laws, which go into effect next month, it is known that considerable pressure is being exerted on the Administration by prominent Mexicans who see danger to Mexico if she enforces the laws. It is predicted, therefore, by some that changes will be made that will leave no ground for the United States to break off diplomatic relations with Mexico on this score.

All agree that the uncertainty over the law is having a bad effect on business. It is declared that the possibility of America breaking off relations is giving new hope to enemies of the present Administration because they feel that the American embargo on arms shipments into Mexico would be lifted if relations were severed, thus enabling them to obtain war material for a revolution.

Some Mexicans Oppose Law.

Although many Mexicans are backing the policy of President Calles in upholding these laws, a considerable number object to them. These argue that it is impossible for any Government to maintain itself in Mexico without the approval of the United States.

Since the American press published reports that Mexican-American relations were in danger of being severed enemies of the present Government have redoubled their efforts to make trouble for it. Although so far no real armed movement that could affect seriously the stability of the Government has been reported, yet the arrest and execution of alleged plotters are taken to indicate the existence of considerable unrest and it is believed that efforts are being made to unite the enemies of the Government for an armed campaign.

Politicians contend that so long as the United States continues its arms embargo rebels will be unable to start a rising of large proportions because of lack of ammunition but they say that the minute it becomes possible to buy war material in the United States and land it in Mexico another convulsion will begin.

Won't Discuss Laws, Envoy Says.

Ambassador Sheffield said yesterday that when he calls on President Calles next week to pay a courtesy visit he would not discuss the dispute over the land and oil laws unless the President should express a desire to do so.

Mr. Sheffield's visit will be made to present his respects to the Mexican President following the envoy's recent return from his vacation in the United States. It is not expected that General Calles will bring up the subject of the land and oil laws, as he usually instructs the Foreign Secretary to conduct such diplomatic business.

Some politicians believe there will be no change in the situation until the Mexican Government seizes American property, the owners of which have not complied with the laws.

SIR JOSEPH POPE DIES AT OTTAWA

Was Former Under Secretary of State for the Dominion.

SHORT ILLNESS.

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Sir Joseph Pope, former under-secretary of state in the federal government and a distinguished figure in Canadian public life, died at his home here yesterday, aged 73 years. He had been ill ly a short time.

Sir Joseph had played a big part in the civil service of this country during the last 45 years. He was the son of the late Hon. W. H. Pope, one of the fathers of Confederation. He was educated in his native province of Prince Edward Island, and came to Ottawa in 1878. He became private secretary to Sir John A. Macdonald, and his biography of that statesman ranks high among works of that kind.

MAKES PLEA TO JURORS

Defense Lawyer Says Star Witness Might Be Suspected of Crime.

UNEXPECTED MOVE.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Dec. 3—(Canadian Press) — Holding the hand of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall aloft Clarence E. Case, defense counsel, yesterday afternoon asked members of a Somerset county jury if they believed she pulled a trigger to shoot Mrs. Eleanor Mills or wielded a knife to cut her throat.

The drama came unexpectedly in a crowded courtroom after more than four hours of speech making. Case was nearing the close of his address of three hours and a half. He suddenly left his position directly in front of the jury and moved to stand beside the defendants, Mrs. Hall and her brothers, Henry and William Stevens.

"It will not be amiss at the end of this trial," he suggested, "to say as was said at the beginning, 'Jurors, look upon the prisoner; prisoner, look upon the jurors.'

The three defendants looked hard at the twelve men who will decide their case.

With the tense courtroom silent, the lawyer stepped to her side and seized and raised Mrs. Hall's hand. Members of the audience leaned forward in their chairs and the silence was broken by a murmur sounding like a gasp.

"Are you content that this hand pulled the trigger or drew the knife that committed this crime?" he asked the jury men. "Or this?" tapping Willie Stevens on the arm, "or this," slapping Henry Stevens on the shoulder.

Mrs. Hall, whose composure has not deserted her during the long trial, was evidently not prepared for the attorney's sudden gesture and watched him interestedly as he grasped her hand. Her brothers looked on intently but did not change expressions as they were thrust forward in the picture.

Once before in his argument, Case had asked Mrs. Hall to stand and face the jury. He was recounting that Mrs. Jane Gibson testifying as an eye witness of the crime, had said that she saw a "large, white haired woman" at the scene. The attorney stood beside Mrs. Hall with his hand on her arm. Mr. Case is not a tall man and Mrs. Halll's statute was much below his as they stood together.

"Is this a large woman?" he asked, "and her hair is only gray now, and she was four years younger then."

Mrs. Gibson formed the subject for much of the latter part of Case's address. He finally brought a suggestion before the jury that the state's star witness might be suspected of the crime as logically as the defendants. She was known, he said, to have a habit of shooting and, according to her own testimoney, shot at people and heard them scream." While the only weapon her testimony included was a shotgun, he said she might have had a pistol as well.

Robert H. McCarter, who preceded Case, although he said, "We are not here to accuse anyone of this crime," referring to James Mills, husband of the slain woman as he did Wednesday, pointing out that suspicion could attach the church sexton as readily as the rector's widow and her brothers.

TWO CANDIDATES VISIT HASTINGS

Unanimous Vote For Stuart Carr, However, in Boys' Election.

HASTINGS, Dec. 3.—A unanimous vote was given Mr. Stuart Carr of Campbellford by the voters of Hastings at the election for a member of the Older Boys' Parliament of Toronto. On Friday evening two of the candidates spoke in the Hastings United Sunday school room, Mr. J. McCall of Wooler and Mr. Stuart Carr of Wooler. Mr. Brown of Brighton, the third candidate, was unable to be present.

Each candidate was introduced and spoke on the work, efforts and proposed intentions of the work in connection with Older Boys' Parliament work.

Rev. C. Daniels of Seymour circuit was also present. Rev. M. L. Hinton gave a short address and Dr. J. H. Hess acted as chairman.

An instrumental number was given by Miss Carrie Doxsee and Miss Jessie Wilcox gave a vocal solo. Lunch was served by the young people of the Hastings Club.

STORMS SWEEP ATLANTIC COAST

New England States Feel the First Real Assault of Winter.

SHIPS IN DISTRESS.

BOSTON, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Three ships were in distress off Cape Cod yesterday, with two coastguard cutters splitting the work of asistance as a result of Winter's first real assault on New England. The entire section was in the grip of a sharp cold snap following a day of stinging snowflurries driven before a gale that reached a velocity of 64 miles an hour at the Blue Hills Observatory yesterday morning.

Late yesterday the Boston schooner Horace A. Stone, lumber laden from Port Maria, Que., to New York, was reported in urgent need of help 20 miles off Chatham. Stripped of sails and with both anchors gone, she was rolling in heavy seas half full of water.

The coastguard cutter Acushnet, which a few hours earlier had gone to the assistance of the British schooner White Belle, also stripped of canvass off Chatham, left the Britisher anchored 17 miles east of the cape port and started for the Stone.

The Acushnet got into trouble herself when heavy seas sheared off the bolt on the steering quadrant, but repairs were effected and she got under way again at dusk. The Acushnet wirelessed that she hoped to pick up the Stone later last night and tow her to Vineyard Haven.

The cutter reported the White Belle was safe as long as her anchors held and although the gale was still blowing at a 50-mile rate it was believed that the wind would drop during the night.

Meanwhile the cutter Mojave and the disabled coastwise coal carrier Lemuel Burrows were wallowing in heavy seas south of Nantucket, unable to make any headway.

The Burrows went out of control two night ago when the intermediate engine cylinder broke down. A deep sea tug, carrying an extra hawser to replace one snapped yesterday, left this port yesterday to help the Mojave with her stubborn tow.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Dec 3.—St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. members held a social in their committee rooms on Tuesday evening to which young people of Deloro were invited. A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Colster and daughter Marjorie arrived home from their extended trip to the West on Saturday.

Miss Marion Kirkpatrick of Ottawa is on a visit to Deloro friends.

Mr. H. C. Barlow is the owner of a new car.

STEAMER ASHORE.

German Vessel in Danger of Breaking Up Off Newfoundland.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The German steamer Totila is ashore near Lamaline, on the Southern coast of Newfoundland, according to word reaching the Marine Department here. The crew has been landed but the captain and some of the officers are remaining aboard. The ship is full of water and in danger of breaking up. Steamer, said to be the Fassensen, is standing by and the coastal boat Argyle has been ordered to the scene.

BRITISH POLICY NON INTERFERENCE

Chinese Customs Affair For Themselves, Not Outsiders.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Great Britain's policy as regards the problem of Chinese customs is fundamentally the same as that of the United States it was authoratively stated today. It is regarded as a problem for the Chinese themselves to settle. British forces are not likely to be involved in the anticipated struggle between the Cantonese and the northerners for control of the Hankow customs unless British lives are endangered

Society and Motherhood D on't Mix, Wives Are Told

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Wives unwilling to forego social life should not become mothers, in the opinion of Dr. Florence E. Bambruger, professor of education at Johns Hopkins University.

Addressing the Child Study Association of America, she said:

"The child-bearing woman can not lead a social life and at the same time mold the character of her child. The child returning from school needs a sympathetic ear to help in the solution of some problem that has come up during the day, and, of course, the mother can not be at home to meet the child if she insists on going to her bridge and tea parties."

READY TO SHIP LITHIUM ORE

British Syndicate Has Mineral Worth Million Already Marked.

HAS MANY USES.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—With $1,000,000 worth of lithium ore blocked out in the Point du Bois area on the Winnipeg River, about 90 miles north-east of Winnipeg, the Silver Leaf Mining Syndicate (Canada), Limited, will start regular shipments to Bradford, England, this winter, according to T. B. Ballam, Secretary of the company.

Dr. Kennedy of the Maywood Chemical Works, Maywood, N. J., has reported favorably on the properties, declaring them to be the best of forty or fifty he had ever examined. Other notable engineers to report favorably on the ores are E. Hill, F.R.S., a well-known British chemical engineer; Dr. J. F. Wright, of the Federal Department of Mines, and Prof. G. Stockwell, of the University of Wisconsin, a specialist in raw minerals.

The Silver Leaf Syndicate is financed by a group of businessmen in Bradford, who have changed the concern from a private undertaking to a limited liability enterprise and are raising more capital to develop and enlarge their undertaking.

Surface exploration will be extended with the moving of overburden and further tracing of the deposit. The ore is being removed from the mine by open quarrying and is within ten miles of steel at Point du Bois.

A roller mill is to be installed to prepare 60 to 80 mesh lithium next year. The refining plant is located at Bradford, Eng., and will be moved to Manitoba as soon as the volume of business warrants.

Lithium ores are used in making lithia water, a curative agent for gout and rheumatism; in the manufacture of dyes, glassware, plate-glass, photographic goods, storage batteries, electric lights, enamel ware, white porcelain, bathroom fixtures and flare rockets. Inquiries are being received about the deposits from England, Germany, Holland and the United States.

TICKS KILL OFF MANY MOOSE

Ranger Finds Great Destruction By Pests in Wilderness.

SUCK BLOOD.

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 3.—(By Canadian Press).—Attacked by some strange and unknown species of bloodsucking ticks, large numbers of moose were killed off by these pests in the foothills forest reserves during the present year, according to a forest ranger whose work gives him excellent opportunities for observing the wild game in the woods.

For three months the ranger was continually on the train this summer. During the trip he covered hundreds of miles of little known wilderness, often penetrating into places where even Indians did not know much about the county through which he travelled.

"The moose are not as plentiful this year as they have been in former years," he stated, "a certain kind of bloodsucking tick having a fearful toll of the animals.

"While on the trail, we found dozens of carcasses simply covered with these loathesome parasites, and they had sucked the last drop of blood from the animals' bodies."

Not only do these pests attack all species of animals but they are also responsible for sickness among the backwoods people. Cases are on record of prospectors, trappers, rangers and travellers, who have been attacked by these parasites who have fastened to the bodies of their victims while they were sleeping on the ground or in cabins.

The bloodsucking operation, according to this ranger is painless and the persons attacked may not know he has been infected until stricken with fever and weakness. Big red blotches remain on the bodies of the sufferers for several days after infection, hence the name "spotted" or "tick fever."

The larvae, when hatched by the female, crawl up the stalks of plants and stems of bushes and seize on the first animal that passes by. They then hang on to their victim until they are gorged with blood. They then release their hold and repeat this operation when the blood supply has been absorbed.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Elector of Peterborough County Electoral District.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I wish to thank most heartily all those who supported me in the Provincial election just past, whether by their vote or as a worker in our splendid organization, including many of heretofore different political belief, which, together with the cause I represented, was responsible for my being elected, and I trust that my representation of the county will be such that all the electors will realize that my endeavours are in the best interests of the county and the Province as a whole.

Yours sincerely,
W. A. ANDERSON.

Violet Ormsby Vale, 2 years—Consigned by Ben. Hagerman, of Harold; sold to M. Drumm, Cobourg, for $100.

There were a number of young cattle up to two years sold for prices ranging from $50 up to $100.

One young male was sold for $110. Altogether it was a very satisfactory sale, and the consigners of stock were well pleased.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

LAKEFIELD BAPTIST CHURCH

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 3.—The anniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist church were held on Sunday last, both morning and evening.

Rev. William Spencer, the pastor, was in charge of the morning service and preached a forceful sermon on "The measure and motive of the services of the church."

No services were held in either of the United churches or Presbyterian church in the evening and the Baptist service was of a union character. Rev. S. A. Kemp read the lesson and Rev. T.M. Wesley led in prayer. The special preacher was Rev. Gordon M. Holmes pastor of the Lindsay Baptist church, who delivered a thoughtful sermon from the 3rd verse of the 15th chapter of St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians: "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures."

Satan did his utmost to besmirch the character of our Lord and tried to prevent Our Lord from coming to the Cross for His great sacrifice for the sins of the world. At the cross it was the devil's purpose to end the work of God's Son and His ministry and send His followers away despondent. The death of Christ, underestimated by some, is the great central point of the gospel. Sin came into the world and following that came the sacrifice of blood for sinners, the message which has come all down the ages. The blood of bulls and of goats could not take away sin but they typified Him who would make the one great sacrifice of which the psalmist sang and the prophets spoke. We read a wonderful account in that matchless chapter of Isaiah, the 53rd.

Our Lord referred to His death on several occasions, at His Baptism, His Transfiguration where Moses and Elias appeared with him in glory.

The purpose of Our Lord's coming was not to be ministered unto but to minister and give His life a ransom for many. His ministry was only three years. The gospels are not a biography of Jesus but a record of some of His acts and teaching. Fully half the gospels is taken up with an account of the last week and 1-8 of St. Matthew's gospel, 1-7 of St. Mark's, 1-9 of St. Luke's and 1-3 of St. John's gospel is taken up with the account of Our Lord's last day. There would not be this unseemly proportion unless it was of vital importance as in reading the biographies of great men such as Gladstone. Socrates, and Hudson Taylor only a very minute part is taken up with their deaths.

Our Lord left His Apostles to speak to the people and carry on His work, Our Lord left only two ordinances. Baptism and the Lord's Supper. We read that we are buried with Him in Baptism and at the Lord's supper we partake of His broken body and shed blood. These emblems speak to us of His forgiveness of sin. No other name is given under Heaven whereby men might be saved. We read in St. Paul's epistles about His matchless gift which gave His life a sacrifice for many. If God's thoughts are centred so much on this great sacrifice, what should ours be? For without it we must surely drift to hell—for there is such a place. During the Napoleonic wars a man drafted for the French army secured a substitute who was killed in battle. Later on the original man was again drafted and he told the officers he was killed in battle in the person of his substitute. So it is with us; you died on the cross in the person of Christ, the substitute, and we can't consider the Cross of Christ without thinking of His wondrous love to us. Go out and tell what the Lord has done for you.

Special music was rendered by the choir including an anthem "Peace Be Still" and a solo by Mrs. J. R. Hull, who sang very sweetly, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

On Monday evening the annual congregational tea was held, served by the ladies of the church and which is a real family gathering to which old and young look forward year by year. The daintily set tables were loaded with appetizing viands which were greatly appreciated. Just at the close of the supper a very happy event occurred which was a genuine pleasure to every one present. Rev. W. Spencer asked for the attention of Mr. Wellington MacDonald and read the following address:

To Mr. Wellington MacDonald:

Dear friend and fellow worker:

Having learned with deep and sincere regret of your intention of leaving us for a time we take this opportunity of expressing to you deep affection and sincere esteem. In these years you have rendered large efficient and helpful service to the church and congregation both in pulpit and prayer meeting and other public services, and in wise and judicious counsel, and have made a large contribution to the happiness of the people and the success of the work, and we feel keenly the breaking of the tie which has bound you and the people together. You will be very much missed from our midst and we sincerely hope that in the Providence of God you will soon return that we may enjoy your wise and fatherly counsel and gracious Christian fellowship. We therefore ask you to accept these gifts, not because of their intrinsic worth but as tokens of love and esteem for you and our sincere and hearty appreciation of your valuable services on behalf of the church and its work, may these humble gifts serve to remind you of the bond of love and friendship which you carry with you and also leave with us. We shall be reminded that

"Tis only noble to be good,
Kind hearts are more than coronets
And simple faith than Norman blood."

May the richest blessings of heaven and choicest friendships of earth, both material and spiritual crown your future days with joy and peace.

And if we should not be permitted to meet and work together in life, may we all meet together at God's right hand where partings shall be no more.

Signed on behalf of your many true and faithful friends and fellow workers,

REV. WILLIAM SPENCER
Minister.

Mr. Aubrey Mitchell presented Mr. MacDonald with a handsome club bag and a sum of money.

Mr. MacDonald was completely taken by surprise but modestly disclaimed the virtues attributed to him in the address. He got great enjoyment out of his service to the church and the community and while he prefers to remain in Lakefield business calls him to the West but he hopes to return, but if his absence extends to three months he will start a Sunday school among the children of the community for there are lots of children out there.

Following the supper a sacred concert was held in the church by the choir of Murray street church, Peterboro, under the direction of Mr. Francis Sutton, A.T.C.M. The concert was a genuine musical treat of very high class, and very much appreciated by the large audience. The choir numbers were unaccompanied and of varied character, all so excelent a quality that one could not particularize.

The following is the programme:

Choir, "Come Unto Me" (Bowles)

Negro Spiritual Chorus, "Nobody Knows."

Duet, 'Love Divine"—Mrs. Ingram and Mr. Sutton.

Choir, "Beautiful Saviour" (Christiansen).

Solo, "Souls of the Righteous"—T. T. Noble.

Solo, "The Lord is My Shepherd"—Miss Pearson.

Violin solo—Mr. Francis Sutton.

Reading—Mrs. L. J. Pettit.

Negro Spiritual Chorus, "Steal Away."

Choir, "Behold a Host" (Grieg).

Choir, "Vision of Christ" (Christiansen).

Duet, "The Morning Land"—Miss Maybee and Mrs. Barry.

Male chorus with Altos "Still With Thee."

Choir, "Deep River" (Burleigh).

Choir, "By Babylon's Wave" (Gounod).

Following the concert the choir were entertained to supper by the ladies of the church and a very jolly time was spent. Rev. T. M. Wesley spoke in appreciation of the splendid programme which was such a pleasure to listen to and Mr. Francis Sutton replied in a humorous vein. Several choruses were sung and the evening was brought to a close. The 1926 anniversary will long stand out as one of the most successful in the history of the congregation and one which will always remain a happy memory.

SHORT STORY

(By Martha McCulloch-Williams.)

"If wishes did really turn to horses, I know I'd be riding every day," Roxy complained:

"Midge—what d'ye reckon makes things run so contrary? Look at us! Wantin' everything, got next to nothin'. And Evlyn Dorr that has got everything anybody can want, all set to marry a nice rich husband."

"Would you swap places with her?" Midge asked, a twisted smile curling her lips.

"What can her bridegroom see in her?" Roxy questioned. "So far—only a fortune. D'ye know he's to see her for the first time an hour before he marries her?"

"No! it can't be that way! Who told you?" Roxy cried breathlessly.

"Nobody—i just heard," Midge said. "Couldn't help it. I was out on the back porch early this mornin' when here comes Judge Jacks hot-foot, wantin' Daddy. I hunted him up—and they went in the garden—he told Dad the Dorrs wanted to hire him to come afternoons until the weddin' day—seems Daddy's the only thing wearin' trousers she ain't mortally 'fraid of. And Daddy like the saint he is, said he'd do it gladly—but not for money. He's to halter-break Evelyn against the bridegroom's comin'."

"I understand." Roxy nodded: "He christened her, buried her twin that had a glimmer of sense, and raved her from school—made them get a governess instead."

"Yet—he's always talkin' about his conscience," Midge interrupted, "and is helpin' this poor stranger to his ruin. I'll say for him, though, he r'ared right up firstoff—but old Jacks pulled the weep-stop—sayin' it was a husband or sentence to life imprisonment in a sanitorium—and that would just crush the family."

Roxy nodded energetically. "In that case," she said, "I've got to save him from himself."

* * * * * *

Exactly thirteen days later, the Reverend Kenneth Luton faced in his shabby study, an upsetting presence—something tall, muscular, well-knit, with a determined chin, and eyebrows inclined to meet over very deep eyes. To be exact, Royal Quinton, Esq., Evelyn Dorr's predestined bridegroom, in spite of his outward calm, was tremulous inside. For two reasons—a letter resting in his breast pocket—and the glimpse of a girl's face peering at him through a tangle of roses.

Without preface he began: "I have come, sir, to ask truth absolute—between gentlemen," Quinton flung out. "I am told you know it—you alone. It concerns the girl I am due to marry tomorrow morning. You know her intimately?"

Luton nodded. "From her cradle up," he said. "I begin to guess your desire—explanation if there is one, of why, though the match was arranged at her birth, you have not been permitted to see her since childhood."

This time Quinton nodded, saying through dry lips: "She was just six—and ran away from me screaming to hide behind her mother."

"You know—the worst I could tell you," Luton interrupted. "Evelyn is still abnormally shy—due I think to the sheltering love, the unwise pampering which is all she has known. She will come to you virgin in every way—a spotless page upon which you can print what you will."

"Would you let your son marry her?" Quinton broke in.

Luton smiled tolerantly, answering: "No need to make up my mind over a mythical son. Marry Evelyn, be tender, true and infinitely patient—and happiness is your sure reward."

"Doubtless you are to officiate," Quinton said dully.

Luton shook his head. "I shall not even assist," he said. "Only the Bishop fits with the Dorr consciousness—but I shall be on the sidelines—if you need support."

"I shall need it—God help me," was Quinton's thought. But he made conventional remarks and rushed to his car, in which he drove furiously until black dark, tormented with devils of doubt The letter had run: "Before it is too late demand the truth, from the only one who knows it—my father. I write this because of my conscience—to save you from life-long misery, and him from a crushing remorse." It was signed Roxy Luton.

Dorr pride could not waste Bishop upon any mere handful. Evelyn was too delicate to risk a church ceremony—but at home, with only familiar things about, she wouldn't mind. Besides she was so taken up with wedding finery—the jeweled brocade gown, the veil of priceless lace used by great grandmothers, she had no thought of the groom. A brave show, the bride on her father's arm, sweeping down the winding stair, the flowers, the music, the blotches of kindly faces—no great crowd of course, but enough for a background. Roxy and Midge were in the farthest ranks.

"After all—I'm glad he didn't mind," Midge whispered. "But our parent must have taken liberties with the truth."

Roxy's hand hushed her imperatively. Suddenly at rest, Evelyn lifted her eyes—they fell upon Quinton advancing leadenly toward her. She began to shiver violently—but held silent till the Bishop opened his book. Then with a wild shriek, she rushed to Luton, flung her arms about him—and swooned dead away upon his breast.

Of course it was Roxy whom Quinton married a year later. They do not speak of Evelyn, utterly mindless now and richly content. For once her mother comes bringing along Mr. Luton—whose conscience is still so acute it goads him into doing faithful penance.

RUTH AND NAOMI

Text: Ruth 1:14-22.

And they lifted up their voice, and wept again: and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clave unto her.

And she said, Behold, thy sister-in-law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods; return thou after they sister-in-law.

And Ruth said, Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God:

Where thou diest will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me.

When she saw that she was stedfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her.

So they two went until they came to Bethlehem. And it came to pass, when they were come to Bethlehem, that all the city was moved about them, and they said, Is this Naomi?

And she said unto them, Call me not Naomi, call me Mara: for the Almighty hath dealth very bitterly with me.

I went out full, and the Lord hath brought me home again empty: why then call ye me Naomi, seeing the Lord hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, which returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

RUTH AND NAOMI

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 5: Ruth and Naomi.—Ruth 1:14-22.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.,
Editor of The Congregationalist

No one should attempt either to teach or to study this lesson without sitting down first and reading the entire Book of Ruth. Even if one knows the book through much former reading, it is wise to refresh one's memory of it. Reading the book in this way, one gains a remarkable impression of its great beauty both as a piece of literature and as a spiritual document.

Ruth is one of the most lovable and beautiful characters in the Old Testament, and she has come to symbolize the purest heights of loyalty and constancy. When one says this, there are facts to bear in mind with which are associated the deepest teaching of the lesson.

Ruth was not an Israelitish woman, but was a Moabitess by birth. By reference to Deuteronomy 23:3 one finds that the Moabites were a heathen people, and were under a particular ban according to the Jewish law.

Probably this item in the law was itself an expression of the intense prejudice of the Israelites against the Moabites. It is interesting, therefore, to find this ancient writer of the Book of Ruth, long before Jesus commended the Good Samaritan, commending a woman of a race with which the Israelites traditionally had had no dealing.

Surely, should we not say, "God is no respecter of persons;" and surely likewise, "God is no respecter of races?"

Ancestress of Jesus.

But there is an even deeper aspect of the matter. Ruth, as we find in the closing verses of the book, was an ancestress of David and therefore an ancestress of Jesus himself. How important is the significance of this fact that Jesus of Nazareth was not in his racial ancestry wholly a Jew but had racial roots in those, like the Moabites, outside the pale! In this relationship we find a rich and beautiful symbolism of his universality as Son of Man.

While there is a somewhat regrettable aspect of the crucial incident in this story of Ruth in the fact that Boaz did not acknowledge the right of a kinsman nobly and openly, but only after he had been led to realize his responsibilities through strategy, the book is none the less a beautiful pastoral story which illustrates the more peaceable aspect of life in a crude and warlike time.

Courage of Boaz.

Boaz also, if his responsibilities had been enforced upon him by a woman's strategy playing upon his own weakness, rose to these responsibilities with a noble strength. His words in chapter 3, verses 10 to 12, are the fine, manly words of one who in his best moments recognized justice and right.

The verses chosen for our lesson, while they do not emphasize all the richest and most significant truth of the book, lay stress upon its most beautiful personal aspect. Ruth's words to Naomi, "Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: they people shall be my people, and they God my God: Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me," have become, probably in all language, the richest expression of that love and loyalty which is the deepest bond in life.

Petting Before Marriage Decreases Happiness After

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 3 (Canadian Press) — Prenuptial petting decreased the happiness in marriage of one out of every six women who answered the Boston University questionnaire on love and marriage.

ROYAL SUITORS FOR DAUGHTER OF PILSUDSKI

Lithuanian Prince and Otto of Hapsburg Seek Her Hand.

GIRL THIRTEEN.

Doubtful Whether Marshall Can Resist Pressure To Be King.

WARSAW, Dec. 3.—Following the rumors that Marshal Pilsudski is planning to become King of Poland came the news last night that two members of royal houses are suitors for the hand of Wanda, the pretty daughter of Marshal Pilsudski. She is 13 years old. The first and most logical aspirant is Wadislaws Radziwill, a descendent of the Prince of Lithuania, and the second is Otto Hapsburg, in line for the throne of Hungary.

It is doubtful whether Marshal Pilsudski will be able to withstand the pressure now being brought by monarchists for him to take the throne. So strong has become the monarchist sentiment that Warsaw is practically ready to agree and the provinces are oping for a regime which will be stable.

Marshal Pilsudski in his campaign for reforms has discarded the Socialists, all middle parties and even the Right, and therefore has no supporters in the Diet. He now is trying to form a party composed of industrialists, land owners and professional people with money, which will constitute a permanent inner circle of Government advisers.

Marshal Pilsudski is of a retiring temperament. He wishes to remain in the background and is fighting mightily to retain that position, but the strong ultra-Right party demands that he assume honors as a ruler with a crown and all the appurtenances.

Despite an aversion to monarchy, the new party, which consists of nearly every influential person in Poland, is disgusted with the dallying of the Sejm, the lower house of Parliament. The party insists that dictator assume the sceptre and ermine.

It might be supposed that the nobles of ancient houses wish to restore their prestige, but their action is more of a patriotic move to demonstrate that Poland is a real nation instead of a tribunal combination ruled by the irresponsible nine-tenths, who cannot read or write and do not know even the name of the nominal President.

The host of intelligent advisers which Marshal Pilsudski has gathered have issued a threat that if he does not accept the throne they will disband and leave Poland to her fate. This threat is no idle gesture, for these groups formed influential minorities in Russia, Germany and Austria. The monarchists believe that they have already won the battle and rumors about the formation of the court circle are already rife.

Prince Janusez Radziwill, who has been the principal leader of the monarchists, may have aspirations for a royal alliance for his son, but Wadislaws and Wanda Pilsudski are said to be genuinely in love, although both are young.

One of the most powerful intellectuals in Poland, Professor Zezieckowski, is said by the Monarchists to be responsible for the proposed engagement of young Prince Otto and Wanda.

The Socialists are alarmed by the new discussion and say that Marshal Pilsudski, the representative of the people, is being blackmailed into agreement to become King.

FOUR CONDEMNED.

Will Die For Slaying Cashier During Newark Robbery.

NEWARK, N.J., December 3. — United Press. — Four men will die in the electric chair on Jan. 16 next for killing George N. Connit, cashier for an ice cream plant, in a $13,250 payroll robbery. Those sentenced are all Italians.

FORTY STEAMERS ICEBOUND AT SOO

Four Tugs Working To Free Them Before Final Freeze-up.

ZERO WEATHER.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 3.—A report reaching the Soo at 1 o'clock stated that some forty boats are now ice-bound in the lower river—twenty upbound and twenty downbound—and that four tugs, two working in each of the channels, are endeavoring to release them. The tugs are the Alabama, Illinois, Iowa and Sabin. A car ferry from St. Ignace was expected to reach the scene of the hold-up this morning in an endeavor to get the boats moving again.

Seven steamers, the report said, are securely locked up in the ice in West Neebish Cut, and two, the Miss Thompson and Brentwood, have been released. Three of the vessels held in the cut are in a veritable ice jam. The steamers Coulee, Martian, Gen. Garretson W. K. Mather, John P. Rees, J. P. Cowle, are fast in the ice, and other vessels are locking down from the Soo. Unless the boats are released immediately they will be ice-bound all winter.

Though some local thermometers registered as low as twenty below zero, Superintendent Alex. Burns of the Michigan Soo Weather Bureau places the correct figure at three below, the coldest night of the season. The mercury was on another slump last night.

LIFE-SAVING MEDAL FOR SAVING LIVES

William Reaume, of Wallaceburg, Brought Three From Burning House.

WALLACEBURG, Dec. 3.—The announcement from Hamilton that the Royal Canadian Humane Society has awarded William Reaume of Wallaceburg its bronze medal for life-saving, recalls Reaume's plucky rescue of three children from a burning building here last June. Fire broke out early in the Irwin store on James Street. Residing in the apartments over the store were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Guerin and family. Mrs. Guerin at the time was on a visit to her home in Montreal, while the father and the elder brother had already gone to their place of employment, when the fire broke out. There were three smaller children, two boys and a girl. Reaume was passing the building at the time the alarm was rung in, and pluckily fought his way through dense smoke to the upper storey of the building, where the three children were alone. To do this he was forced to grope his way up the smoke-filled stairs on his hands and knees. Carrying the youngest boy, aged 8 years, in his arms, he guided the other two children.

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

Owing to our stock being so large at the start of this sale. It is taking a considerable longer time to dispose of it. At the present time our stock is still complete with a very wide and well assorted line of Christmas Gifts. Therefore, to-gether with this line and the balance of our Fall and Winter Stock, we are forced to mark our stock still lower, to enable us to clean-up our stock at once. Come To-Morrow, Saturday.

CO-OPERATION IN EMPIRE DEFENSE

Premier Baldwin's Remarks on Best Methods of Defending Empire.

NEED NAVAL BASE.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—In his speeches at the various private discussions on imperial defence before the representatives of the dominions at the recent imperial conference, Premier Baldwin made the statement that the government was less anxious about air attacks than a few years ago.

The government last night issued official reports of Premier Baldwin's remarks, which were largely concerned with the best methods of co-operation and consultation for mutual defence of the interests of the empire. Mr. Baldwin emphasized the vital need of the Singapore naval base, and hoped that the dominions would cooperate with the government in this heavy burden.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 3.—Mrs. E. Stillman returned home last week after visiting her sister in Peterboro for the past month.

Mr. James Gay of Essex spent a few days of the past week with his brother, Mr. John Gay.

Mr. D. A. McCook of Agincourt was in town during the past week.

Miss Harriett Potts left this week to resume her duties as nurse-in-training in Buffalo, after spending the past few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Potts.

HAS CONFERENCE WITH BRIAND

Discusses Matters Dealing With League of Nations Council Session.

OVER DISARMAMENT.

PARIS, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, arrived here last night to confer with Foreign Minister Briand on matters of mutual interest which are likely to come up during the League of Nations Council sessions in Geneva next week.

The French and British ministers probably will settle today the conditions under which the left bank of the Rhine will be evacuated and military control of Germany turned over from the present inter-Allied organization to the League of Nations.

Both M. Briand and Sir Austen, it is understood, will press for a solution of the question of German disarmament and the transfer of military control to the League at the forthcoming session of the Council, because the following session, which will be held in Berlin under the presidency of Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, is regarded as unpropitious for the settlement of such a problem.

Foreign Minister Lalaski of Poland also arrived in Paris yesterday and had a talk with M. Briand in the course of the evening, but the interview is understood to have been a simple exchange of views of matters of general interest.

Among the matters which M. Briand and Sir Austen will discuss today will be the Chinese situation, in order to ascertain whether united action is necessary or practicable. It was said yesterday that there is no talk whatever between the European chanceries of a prospective recognition of the Cantonese government, despite its recent military successes.

There is little to bolster reports that the informal conversations of foreign ministers, which will be held outside the council session in Geneva, will develop into formal conversations, bringing Italy into a discussion of the general situation. There is much of mutual interest, however, it is said, for the British, French and German representatives to talk about.

ANNIVERSARY OF KNOX CHURCH

Special Services For Celebrating Fifteenth Anniversary on Sunday.

OUTSIDE SPEAKER.

On Sunday the people of Knox Church are celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of the opening of their present commodious structure by special services for the day. They have been fortunate to secure as their preacher at these services Rev. George A. Brown, M.A., B.D., the minister of Chalmers Church, Kingston, who is this year president of the Bay of Quinte Conference in the United Church. His reputation as a preacher of sound, sensible, and scholarly ability assures everyone that the messages of the day will be very appropriate and inspiring. They give a cordial invitation to all friends and well-wishers to join with them in their annual celebration.

The Ladies' Aid are preparing to give a fowl supper and programme on Monday evening.

STEAMER "TOTILA" NOW TOTAL LOSS

Reported Piled Up On the South Coast of Langlade.

ST. PIERE, Miquelon, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press.) — The German steamer Totila is piled up a total loss on the south coast of Langlade, Captain Roper of the French steamer Propatri reported on docking here late yesterday.

Captain Roper said he sighted the Totila an hour before reaching this port. He added that there was no sign of life aboard the stranded steamer or on land, but expressed the hope that the crew had been able to get ashore.

A tug and a pilot boat left here yesterday morning soon after distress calls were picked up from the Totila. The messages said she struck in a dense fog and that she believed she was in the vicinity of Green Island. Another tug left late yesterday after Captain Roper reported, in an effort to trace the Totila's crew. The tug was not expected to report back before morning. The Dutch steamer Sassenheim wirelessed that she had also picked up the distress calls, but that her search for the Totila was hampered by the fog.

ANNUAL MEETING.

St. John's Chapter of Brotherhood of St. Andrew Held Tuesday.

The annual meeting of St. John's Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, was held on Tuesday evening, November 30, at the home of W. E. Massey-Cooke.

The regular business was disposed of in order together with the reports.

Prior to the election of the officers for the ensuing year, Rev. Bro. R. C. Blagrave briefly reviewed the work of the chapter for the past year and of its assistance to him in his work in the parish and the good work of the Chapter's officers.

The election of officers for the year was as follows:

Director: Bro. R. N. Stuart.

Vice--Director: Bro. W. E. Massey-Cooke.

Secretary-Treasurer: Bro. H. E. Lang.

Suggestions were then offered for extension work in the parish during the winter months which are to be discussed at the next meeting.

The meeting then closed with the Brotherhood Litany led by Rev. Bro. R. C. Blagrave.

MAN ARRESTED WITH ALCOHOL

Hope Township Man's Car Was Stalled in Detour.

FINED BEFORE.

COBOURG, December 3. — Luck was with the officers of the law when they set out with suspicions of the activities of a bootlegger, and came upon him stalled in a detour, with 20 gallons of alcohol in his car. George Kasovitch, a Russian Pole, living near Canton in Hope Township, was arrested by License Inspector Goodrich, and Provincial Constable Fewtrell, Tuesday night on a charge of illegal transportation of alcohol, and was freed on $2000 bail.

About 6 p.m., Tuesday, the officers came upon four cars stalled on the detour north of Newcastle. One of them was Kasovitch's with four five-gallon cans of alcohol, which he said cost him $15 a gallon in Toronto.

The authorities believe it came from the United States.

Inspector Goodrich said that complaints had been received of Kasovitch's alleged bootlegging. On the strength of this information the police left town on a surprise visit to the Kasovitch place, but he fell into their hands two miles from his home. He admitted to Mr. Goodrich that the cans contained alcohol.

Kasovitch was previously fined $200 and costs for selling, his wife was convicted for having liquor, and he was also under suspended sentence for another O.T.A. offence.

Caves under Arizona's "natural bridge" near Pine, contain springs of limewater in which an ordinary felt hat, if let for a few months, can be "petrified."

HOUSE DESTROYED AT CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. Patrick Kennan Suffers Heavy Loss in Fire Yesterday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 3.—Fire which broke out about 7.30 Wednesday evening completely destroyed the residence of Mr. Patrick Keenan, Booth Street. After supper Mr. Keenan went to see his sister, Mrs. David Johnston, a short distance away, leaving very little fire in the stove, and, as he supposed, quite safe as far as fire was concerned, but evidently the strong wind had fanned the remaining coal till the pipes and chimney burned out, and when first discovered fire was pouring out of the chimney and the whole upstairs in a mass of flames.

The firemen were soon on the scene, but the blaze had gained such headway, that practically everything was destroyed.

Tastes good and IS good!

Many real nourishing foods are not tasty or appetizing. SHREDDED WHEAT (when toasted and properly served) tastes good and is good. The crisp oven-baked shreds of whole wheat have an appetizing flavor and they encourage thorough chewing — that means sound teeth and healthy gums. Everybody knows that the whole wheat is the most perfect food given to man—and the shredding and baking process is the most perfect process ever discovered for making the whole wheat berry palatable and digestible. "Breakfast cereals" come and go but SHREDDED WHEAT goes on forever. Eat it for health and strength. Eat it toasted with butter, or as a hot porridge, or simply pour hot milk over the biscuit.

An enjoyable afternoon tea was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. A. Pearson, Chamberlain street, under the auspices of the Home and School Association of May's school. The guests were received by Mrs. Pearson and Mrs. C. H. Porter, the president of the society. Tea was poured by Mrs. T. Busby, and cake was cut by Mrs. Porter. Mrs. Millard also assisted in the tea room, which was prettily arranged with a profusion of artificial tea roses. During the afternoon a musical program was rendered, with vocal solos by Mrs. Cooper, songs and readings by Messrs. J. Smith and R. Hendry, a pianoforte solo by Eunice Parnell, and pianoforte duet by Margaret and Nettie Pearson.

A very pleasant bridge party for members and their friends was held in the studio of the Conservatory of Music last evening, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association. The entertainment took the form of a Christmas gift bridge, each member bringing and receiving a pretty Christmas gift. The little parcels, tied up in Christ-masy wrappings of red and green paper, were placed in a huge basket of the same colors, with sprigs of holly as adornments, and were distributed at the conclusion of the games. Decorations of the tables were tiny central Christmas trees with candles, and a pretty little Christmas tree, hung with tinsel and glistening Christmas novelties, with wreaths of holly and evergreen, formed the decorations of the rooms. The candy baskets on the tables were also done in red and green, the whole effect giving an atmosphere of Christmas cheer to the event. Twenty-two tables of bridge were played, the prizes, pretty hand-painted pieces done by members of the Art Association, going to Mrs. T. H. Glover and Mr. J. W. Reid. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. William Blackwell, Mrs. T. E. R. Munro and Mrs. F. C. Neal, the latter also acting as general convenor. Service of refreshments was in charge of the convenor of the Refreshment Committee, Mrs. H. F. Connolly, assisted by Mrs. H. W. Morphet, Mrs. E. W. Borbridge, Mrs. R. L. Barns, Mrs. J. John, Mrs. F. R. Shirley and Miss Grace Reinhardt. Miss Marcelle McNulty assisted in the distribution of the candy baskets. Among those present were noticed: Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. T. John, Dr. and Mrs. F. P. McNulty, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt, Mr. and Mrs. P. Manning, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. F. An extremely successful and well-attended tea was held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Turner, Water street, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Luke's church. The handsome rooms were decorated with a profusion of bronze 'mums, and the tea table was done with a large silver basket, surrounded with tulle, and filled with 'mums ranging in shade from cream to bronze, lighted bronze candles in silver candlesticks and Cluny lace cloth. The guests were received by Mrs. Turner and Mrs. G. J. Bousfield and were ushered into the tea room by Miss Margaret Calcutt. Tea was poured by Mrs. John Butcher and Mrs. George Curtis, assisted by Mrs. S. H. Long, Mrs. J. Mackin, Mrs. Wm. Davis and Mrs. Wm. Hepburn. Mesdames Robt. Maniece, T. Maniece, M. Thompson, G. M. Curtis and W. Thompson also assisted in the service of tea. A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. H. Butcher and Mrs. C. Butcher; Miss Florence Adams and Miss F. Burnham had the sale of candy, and a sale of plain and fancy sewing was in charge of Mrs. T. H. Adams, Mrs. L. Jamieson, Mrs. R. McKee and Mrs. T. Moore. During the afternoon, an enjoyable musical programme was given, including vocal solos by Mrs. Wm. Davies and Miss Ruby Quartermaine and instrumental selections by Mr. W. C. Thomson. Accompanists were Miss M. Flowers and Mr. Thomson.

Evening Examiner "Ideal Fashions" by Jean Bell-Hamilton

Smart and Practical

Every smart woman should have at least one dress of the type pictured here. A soft tweed material fashions this straight one-piece dress, having the closing in center front, and an inverted plait in front and each side seam. The collar, forming a V-neck, and the trim cuffs finishing the long dart-fitted sleeves are of contrasting material, while soft gathers are at each shoulder. NO. 1071 is for ladies and is in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards 54-inch material; ⅛ yard 36-inch contrasting. 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

(By Alma Whitaker.)

Matters of etiquette seem to be troubling our readers again this week. Happy people to be troubled by nothing more serious than the finer points of correct social behavior.

Mrs. S. wants to know if it is socially permissible to add her widowed mother's name to the Christmas greetings this year, in addition to her own and her husband's, and whether widowed mother must use her own first name or that of her deceased husband.

Yes, by all means, add mother's name. Legally she resumes her own first name, but socially, where there are others in the family bearing the same last name, widows often retain their husband's first name to avoid confusion amongst the wives of brothers.

Mollie N. wants to know whether vegetables must be served in separate dishes, and whether service plates are essential at informal parties.

No, to both questions. Vegetables are only served on separate dishes at hotels and restaurants, for the convenience of service. Service plates are a formal luxury.

Personal Acknowledgment.

Gordon G., recently a bereaved widower, wants to know whether letters of condolence must be answered personally, or whether a notice in the newspapers suffices.

The notice in the newspapers only suffices where the deceased was so prominent that condolences proved overwhelming. Even so, personal letlets are necessary to special people. Personal acknowledgment and thanks are always good manners.

Doris G. sends us verses about a recent the mewe discussed in this column.

Thanks, Doris. Delighted to have your interest. Am afraid we can't publish verse in this department. We might prove too generally inspiring!

Morgan L. asks some intimate questions about a famous actress.

I don't think I ought to satisfy your curiosity, Morgan. You will find some of the answers in the motion picture, "Who's Who." All that it is discreet to answer!

What Can Mary R. Do?

Mary R. asks us one of the most difficult of questions. What can she, a woman of fifty, until now a protected housewife, do to earn a living? She can play a little music, do a little painting, speak a little French, do a little needlework . . . but she is sure she could not sell anything, and she wouldn't even be good at housework.

Mary is a good argument for having every girl taught a job, no matter how well off her girlhood seems to be. It is also an argument for husbands' life insurance. Mary's husband, who seemed well to do, has died without assets.

Do you play the piano well enough to teach it, or to play in a picture show? Co you speak French well enough to teach it or to do important translatioss? Do you sew well enough to get into the alteration department of a store, or the linen-room of a big hotel? Are you bookish enough to be good at research work: Do you love and understand children well enough to take a governess' job: Perhaps some of these questions will help you discover a salable talent.

One bit of comfort, Mary. Your handwriting is firm and capable . . . your type of character always finds a way.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Visitors and guests sometimes say things like this: "I shall be quite unhappy if you have anything special for me"; "Now, don't go to special pains on my account," or, "Please don't fuss. I shall be cross if you go to work and do a lot of cooking." Things like that, said kindly enough, no doubt, are sometimes just a little annoying to the hostess. In the first place, it is perfectly obvious—or ought to be—that when there is company, save in the house with many servants, and sometimes even then, company means special pains, extra work and some fussing. Also, every one knows that the company usually enjoys the trouble taken to make the dinner especially good. If the guest wasn't worth taking some extra pains for, he would hardly be worth having at all.

Then, when the guest says, "Don't go to work and do a lot of cooking," he somehow seems to indicate that no cooking would be done if there were no guest—as if the family lived off tin cans and delicatessen fare when they dined alone. And that, of course, annoys the hostess. Most women like to assume that company fare is everyday fare as well. They don't want their guests to know that the gold-trimmed dishes are taken out only on special occasions and that the family usually dines off coarse blue and white. If, by chance, a child of the family lets it be known that the family is not accustomed to such elaborate service or such fine fare, the hostess always feels as if she had been given away in a shameful manner.

The truth of the matter is that most women like to go to extra pains for company, but they don't want the company to think of it as extra pains. That is one reason why we all really enjoy company so much—why children clap their hands when company is sugon such occasions the best things will be used, the meal will be better than usual, there will be fresh flowers on the table and mother will be dressed in a party dress.

OLD MASTERS

A flock of sheep that leisurely pass by
One after one; the sound of rain, and bees
Murmuring; the fall of rivers, winds and seas,
Smooth fields, white sheets of water, and pure sky;

I've thought of all by turns, and yet do lie
Sleepless; and soon the small birds' melodies
Must hear, first utter'd from my orchard trees,
And the first cuckoo's melancholy cry.

Even thus last night, and two nights more I lay,
And could not win thee, Sleep! by any stealth:
So do not let me wear tonight away:
Without Thee what is all the morning's wealth?
Come, blessed barrier between day and day,
Dear mother of fresh thoughts and joyous health.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Navy blue crepe de chine frock interestingly trimmed with gold braid.

Braid is one of the forms of trimming that have not played a very important part in recent fashions. Perhaps this is because in these post-war years, when the glamor of warfare has given way to painful recollections, military details in dress are not especially popular. Just before and at the outset of a war you will find that fashions suggesting soldierly uniforms are always far more popular with women than a little later.

For the very reason that we have not seen very much braid recently, it has an air of freshness when we do see it. Interestingly enough it is gold braid that appeals most to the present taste. The usual sort of mohair or soutache braid is hardly brilliant enough for this era of metal tissues and crystal trimmings.

The sketch shows a crepe de chine frock in navy blue, trimmed with gold braid about an inch in width. The effect is extremely smart.

Sometimes a little gold braid is used on one of the new coats. A red velour coat trimmed with gray fur has a plastron on each sleeve and one at the front, made of red braid alternated with gold braid.

Newspaper advertising today is a running account of the commercial history of the times. It includes every development, every activity in the realms of trade, art, science and letters. All of them depend upon advertising for their advancement and expansion.

The influence of advertising grows from year to year. With it, the markets of the world are being conquered. There is not a nation on the earth that has not heard of America's leading products. Advertising has carried the message.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1926

This should be a fairly fortunate day, for the Moon, Jupiter and Neptune are all in benefic aspect. Mercury, the Sun and Mars are adverse.

It is well to make the most of all positive opportunities while this rule prevails. Merchants and manufacturers will benefit greatly.

Neptune smiles on the Earth today and this should clear the mental vision regarding public affairs.

Oil and oil interests certainly are to prosper, if the stars are read aright.

There is a sign indicating extraordinary activities and the increased demand for power generated by gasoline.

Although the seers months ago warned of earthquakes and unusual storms, the end is not yet. The winter is to be exceedingly severe, if the signs are read aright.

Freakish weather may be expected in all parts of the country, the seers foretell. High winds, flooding rains and great property damage are indicated.

This is not a promising planetary government where financial matters are concerned and it is well to delay business with banks and even with creditors.

It is read as an unfavorable time for seeking employment or for soliciting interest in any project.

Politicians should be exceedingly cautious about claiming rewards or for asking any sort of favors while this configuration prevails.

Under this direction of the stars there may be a tendency to look on the dark side of things and there may be many cases of melancholia.

Persistently the seers prophesy extraordinary happenigs in New York, city and state.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy, successful year. It is a time to develop talents or business.

Children born on this day probably will be generous and of fine nature. Girls probably will be unusually fortunate in marriage.

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1926

Benefic aspects dominate in the planetary government today, according to astrology, but there are certain adverse influences.

This is pre-eminently a day for women's activities and it is foretold that many will begin at this time preparation for political careers.

Weddings today should be very successful, even though Mars frowns in a way that betoken possible quarrels.

It is a fortunate day for theatres and the stars indicate many new ventures that will uplift the drama in America.

There is a promising sign for actors and who should find opportunities for great success in really literary dramas.

All the signs appear to indicate that the turning point in materialism has been reached, and that there will be spiritual and intellectual interests.

Again the seers prophesy that the Orient will send not one teacher but many to the United States.

Writers should benefit from this positing of the stars, which makes for breadth of vision and sincerity of purpose.

Mars is in a place presaging renewed interest in military affairs and added honors to army officers.

There is a sign indicating in families and organizations strong differences of opinion and many dissensions.

By the emphasis of individuality among men and women who now are more complex in nature than ever before, many disagreements will continue to be common.

Divorces will be more numerous than ever, it is foretold, and marriage will become less sacred.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect great changes. Removals and unexpected events are forecast.

Children born on this day have the augury of much domestic happiness. These subjects of Sagittarius are loyal in their love.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

NUTRITION AND TALENT

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

If the nutritionist were to suddenly embark on the tortuous path of behaviorism, he might formulate his own particular substitute for the Binet test. We read, for example that studies are being made to determine the extent to which the nature of drawings made by young children is conditioned by their intellectual development.

The nutrition specialist, would not be at all satisfied until he had dug deeper than that. He would institute studies to determne how far the intellectual development of children is influenced by their food! Not that this has never been attempted. Literally, of course, it is being done everyday There is opportunity, however, to suggest to our mothers that when Sally sobs her eyes out because the drawing she made in school "is not so good as Betty's," it is quite possible that Betty's mother knows more about feeding children than does Sally's! Obviously, it is equally possible to over-stress the real thought embodied in this theme. No one wishes to make either himself or the children self-conscious by tracing every bit of accomplishment back to the breakfast or luncheon or dinner that preceded it. On the other hand, approached with sanity, this thought may furnish a bit of inspiration.

How often we have suggested the dangling before un-hungry children not a material reward, but rather future joys of indulging in healthful sports. Let them but drink their milk and eat their vegetables! May it not be equally possible to keep before the eyes of a child's mind some special interest such as drawing or music or what not? Then when progress in the pursuit of any one of these avocations is not wholly satisfactory, the wise and careful mother may delicately suggest that there is a connection between the prosaic occupation of eating one's meals and the joyously stimulating one of following a particular artistic bent.

As for the literal question—"What does complete nutrition do for the aspiring artist?" one can only say "Much!" Certain, it is that a writer, for example, faced with the necessity for turning out a given number of words at a given time, may fall short many words if his system requires food. He may not be conscious of this need, but "a goodheal" tells the whole story without words. It is then, reasonable to apply the results of such experience to the work of those who paint or draw, or sing or play.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WHITE BUTTON

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

"Daddicums," said Baby Bunty in a voice like a lollypop one day as she went up to the rabbit gentleman who was sitting in his easy chair. "Oh, Daddicums, will you, please?"

"Will I please what?" asked Mr. Longears, who, though not exactly Bunty's daddy, let the orphan rabbit child call him that.

"Will you please take us out to look for Christmas trees?" asked Baby Bunty, speaking, now like two lollypops. By that I mean her voice was very sweet and sugary.

"To look for Christmas trees!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "It is much too early to do that."

"It is the first day of December," went on Bunty, who was living, for a time, in the hollow stump bungalow, "and Christmas comes in December. Jingle and Jangle went out, yesterday, to look for Christmas trees, Daddicums."

"And remember what happened to them!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Jingle fell down a dry well and, only that I had a clothes line and got a crooked neck squash from Aunt Lettie, to use as a hook, Jingle might still be down in the well."

"Oh, but we'll keep away from wells," promised Baby Bunty. "Please Daddicums, take us hunting for Christmas trees," and now she spoke like three lollypops.

"Oh, well, come on!" said Mr. Longears at last. He was very fond of sweets. So, there being no school, he led his forty 'leven little bunnies out over the fields and through the woods.

Counting Baby Bunty, there were forty twelve little rabbit children, girls and boys, including Jingle and Jangle, for Jingle was all better from having fallen in the well.

"Now we aren't going to cut the Christmas tree today!" said Uncle Wiggily, as he hopped along at the head of the rabbit parade. "We are just going to look where, in the woods, the best trees grow. And a few days before Christmas I shall come and get it."

Now you might think it easy to pick out a Christmas tree for forty twelve little bunnies, but when Jingle was satisfied with one, Jangle wanted one that was larger. And when Bumble saw one he liked, Stumble, his brother, thought it wasn't quite thick enough. And so it went on, until at last Uncle Wiggily said:

"Now look here! This is all nonsense. Pick out a tree and have done with it. Soon it will be night and we are far from our bungalow."

Then the little rabbit children got over their fussiness and they all decided a certain tree was best. Uncle Wiggily marked where it grew in the forest so he could get it later. And while he was waiting for the bunnies to make up their minds, Mr. Longears picked up from the ground a large, white pearl button off some one's overcoat.

He put the white ribbon in his pocket and, after the tree was selected, he started to hop back home with the forty twelve rabbits. But it got dark sooner than anyone thought it would, and as the path through the woods was very narrow, they had to hop in single file, like the old Indians. Baby Bunty, who was next to Uncle Wiggily, behind him, was all the while getting lost.

She could not see Mr. Longears in the dark forest on account of his black coat and so she continually went down the wrong path, wandering away and leading the other forty 'leven boys and girls astray.

"Dear me! This will never do!" said Uncle Wiggily at last when he had gone after and brought back the lost ones several times. "Why don't you keep watch of me, Bunty and follow closely?"

"I keep losing you all the while," she said." "I can't see you it's so dark. If you only had a long tail for me to hold on by it would be easy."

"There is no use of wishing I had a long tail," said Uncle Wiggily as they stopped after the tenth lost time. "But I know how to make it easy for you to see me in the dark. I will fasten the big, white button I found on the back of my black coat. Then you will only need to follow the button."

"That will be fine!" said Bunty. So with a piece of string Uncle Wiggily tied the large, white button on his coat behind, and Bunty could see that like the headlight of an automobile. So she followed along, leading the others, and soon they were all safe home again. And if the rubber band around the bundle of papers will play a jolly tune when the lead pencil takes a bath in the fountain pen, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily and the black button.

FOOD AND TEMPERANCE

A prohibition leader recently said that although he realized that there was a great deal of drinking going on at the present time, the people who were drinking hard liquor were not the kind of people that he "cared to know." I am sure that if he really knew the truth, he would, indeed, be a lonely man.

If I made the same statement regarding food intemperance, and would say that the people who are food gluttons are those people whom I do not care to know, I am sure that I would lose most of my friends, as food intemperance and gluttony is one of the most common vices, and in my humble opinion causes more trouble than was ever caused by intemperate drinking.

History does not record how many important and disastrous events have taken place because of the condition of some leader who was suffering from beef steak and onions. Napoleon's failure at Waterloo was no doubt because his mind was clouded by an epileptic attack the night before, which followed a meal of friend onions.

One of our recent Presidents, who occupied the Presidential chair for four years, was during that entire time so sluggish from an excess of food and obesity that no important legislation was enacted through his efforts during that entire time.

President Wilson, who died an early death from hardening of the arteries and paralysis, should be alive today if his food had been properly regulated by someone who understood scientific dietetics, as blood pressure and the cause of paralysis can easily be controlled through proper eating.

Carelessness in feeding the late President Harding a dish of canned shrimp was responsible for his untimely death. Even after the effects of the poisoning had partially worn off and his fever had reduced to some extent, he was given egg nogs "to keep up his strength."

Distinguished patients are always in great danger from their doctors, who are afraid to let their patients go many hours without food, fearing the old superstition that the patient has no strength with which to fight the disease unless he is full of food.

Many a meal of indigestible food has led to suicide, and friendships of long standing have been destroyed by a single Welch Rarebit. Those who dine not wisely but too well are dissipating just as surely as one who drinks to excess of liquor.

Since prohibition, we see on every hand the candy fiend who must buy a candy bar or a handful of nuts at every corner drug store. Those who have a passion for "dainties" have no finer desires than those who have a craving for liquor, for if the body does not need candy, one should be just as ashamed to use it as to use the alcohol which the body does not require.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

LINES TO A FOOL

You likely consider you're likely a fool;
You likely are nearly correct;
But, since that is really the general rule,
What more could you likely expect?
The proof of your wisdom is not being wise,
But standing a different test.
You really are smart if you just realize
You're as much of a fool as the rest.

There's hope for a fool who his folly admits,
There's hope that his folly will end;
For holes in your stockings or holes in your wits
You first must discover, to mend.
We all make mistakes, but make more than we might
If we looked for the holes all along;
The fellow who thinks he's eternally right
Is really eternally wrong.

Take comfort from this, and take comfort you can,
Whenever you stumble or fall;
The fellow who scorns you is some other man
With some other folly, that's all.
You'll find, if you figure statistics and such
And a general average strike,
That different men do not differ so much—
We're all of us likely alike.

The Hospital

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

UNFORTUNATELY, childish fears do not always have a tangible basis, but when they do, a little explanation and education often completely dispel them. Joan, for some unknown reson, developed a fear of sick people and hospitals. She dreamed fearsome dreams which helped envelope sick people with a terrible mystery. When we drove past a hospital and saw invalids in bed on the porches, she shrank in fright; so I decided to take her into a hospital to show her what a really normal place it was. Going up the walk, she trembled and clung to me. That was never going to do at all—so we walked on the lawn and gradually made our way to a porch where a sick lady lay—she smiled at us, she talked to us just like any person, and first thing we knew we were inside and it wasn't terrible at all! We saw a sick little boy who was eating tempting things from a tray, the nice nurses spoke to us and they were all just real folks! And after we'd seen the nursery with its rows of most desirable babies—well, we decided a hospital is a very nice place.

MINE BLASTER SMELT FUMES

Claims Dynamite Used in Explosion in London Recently.

STILL ALSO BLAMED.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 3. — An experienced Northern Ontario mine blaster, who claims he smelled the familiar fumes of dynamite or nitro-glycerine immediately after the heavy explosion that wrecked the Hotson Block Monday night, was found yesterday by Deputy Fire Marshal Major Nealon. This man, according to Nealson, was very close to the building when the explosion occurred. He rushed immediately to the scene and, before the first flames burst out, claims that he recognized the smell of exploded dynamite.

No one has been found who will admit ownership of the equipment which, the Fire Marshal claims, is a practically complete illicit liquor still, and which he still maintains could have been responsible for the blast. The Fire Marshal, who is a former detective of the R.C.M.P., is said to have secured tangible clues now which may soon afford a dramatic solution of the explosion mystery.

WOMAN CENTENARIAN'S VIEWS.

BELFAST (Associated Press). — Jane McKee, Ulster's latest centenarian, entertained 200 persons on her 100th birthday but disappeared before the evening was over. She was found out in the garden shooting fire crackers.

She told her friends that whiskey did no one any harm; that she is fond of motoring but dislikes the cinema as she is afraid the cowboy actors will ride through the window, as she calls the screen. She is the mother of ten children but has never been attended by a physician.

FINE COLONISTS TO BE BROUGHT Increased Movement of Desirable Men May Be Expected.

MANY NEEDED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press). — An increased movement of desirable colonists to Canada may be expected for 1927, and if current proposals work out on a satisfactory basis, this movement can be speeded up to 200,000 persons, according to Col. J. S. Dennis, Chief Commissioner of the Department of Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Col. Dennis bases his estimate of the situation on the rapidly spreading interest in the settlement possibilities in Canada evidenced in Great Britain and northern European countries, and on the hope that further arrangements will be concluded for the stimulation of the flow of British colonists on the reduced rate scale. Increased population was the outstanding need of the Dominion, the Commissioner declared.

The Department of Colonization and Development has this year reached the 100,000 mark in comparison to 84,000 persons brought to Canada during 1925. While regarding the advance as a satisfactory one, Col. Dennis pointed out that the number was but a small proportion of the number required if Canada was to speedily acquire a sufficient population to permit reaching a solution of the major problems facing the country. The movement of British colonists to the Dominion, was stimulated this year, he said, by the low transportation rates extended to certain classes of intending settlers. In this connection he hoped that it would be possible to extend the 3,000-family scheme under an arrangement between the British and Canadian Governments. Such an extension, he stated, would permit of the movement of desirable settlers from Great Britain being further augmented. Another factor in the increased movement this year was the agreement between the Government and the colonization departments of both railways under which selected agriculturists were brought out from European countries.

In cloth woven by hand from threads she herself had spun 50 years ago, relatives wrapped the body of Mrs. Paralee M. Stovall, who died at Evening Shade, Ark., at the age of 97.

BUCKSKIN COAT SAVES TRAPPER

Uses Ornamental Fringe To Bind Faggots To Chase Wolves.

CAUGHT UNARMED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—"Some people think that the buckskin jackets worn by trappers are more for ornament than use, but I am willing to announce that they have another think coming," says "Big Bill" Baines, Blackwater River traveller who was in the city recently.

Crossing a barren stretch of muskeg in northern British Columbia, says Bill, he shot away all his shells at an elusive silver fox. However, he was near his cabin and he did not worry, although it was rapidly getting dark.

He was hurrying along, when suddenly behind him an outburst of quavering, blood-curdling cries from a band of timber wolves brought him on guard. Baines took to his legs and so did the wolves. The only thing in sight that seemed to offer a chance of escape was a single tamarak tree. Up this Bill climbed, perching himself on one of the dead limbs.

The wolves arrived at the foot of the tree only a few moments behind the trapper. Uttering threatening howls, the more ferocious members of the band strove desperately to climb the tree, pawing vainly at the trunk, while saliva dripped from their jaws and their eyes glared balefully in the dusk.

It was bitterly cold and the wolves refused to budge. Cutting the fringes from his jacket he knotted them together, then he broke off dead twigs and fastened them into bundles with the buckskin thongs. Setting fire to the faggots, he dropped them amidst the wolves. Stricken with fear, the animals dashed wildly away. Bill gave them a good start, but found himself unable to catch them.

"Yep!" he concluded, "a deer-hide saved my life, and the $15 I paid for the coat was the best insurance I ever took out."

MANITOBA TRAPPERS HAVE LARGE CATCH

Annual Return From Industry About Three Millions.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The industry of fur trapping in Manitoba as a white man's occupation dates back to the time of LaVerandrye, who came to the junction of the Red and Assiniboine rivers in 1738 and established the settlement known as Fort Rouge.

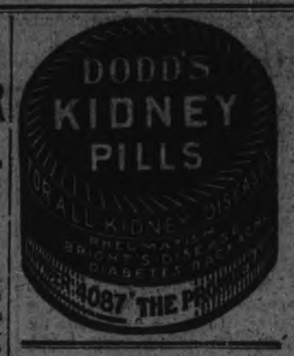
According to Prof. V. W. Jackson, of the Manitoba Agricultural College, Manitoba, has about five thousand licensed white trappers, who produce about $3,000,000 annually.

It is not only in the far north, however, that this profitable industry is carried on. Three hundred only of the above mentioned trappers take out their licenses for work north of the 53rd. Prof. Jackson estimates that 80 percent of the weasel, 64 percent of the mink and martin, 88 percent of wolves, 93 percent of skunk and more than 50 percent of muskrats are now procured south of Township 46.

In addition to the trappers' spoils there are fifty-two fur farms in Manitoba. In 1920 there were only two. The world's fur trade has since the war been transferred over the Atlantic which means that 100,000,000 pelts must be obtained on this continent, an increased demand owing to great wealth.

In Manitoba 7,979 square miles have been set aside as a game preserve, making the province an extensive breeding ground for ducks and geese and the sanctuary of the elk. In the Riding Mountains the elk herd once sunk to the number of 400 but within the last eight years, has increased to 10,000 with a natural increase of over 2,000 a year. The duck, goose and grouse inhabitants have remained fairly stationary by virtue of the age limit, which for the past five years has varied from 140,000 to 190,000. This restriction enables the sportsman to take his share of the natural increase while conserving the breeding stock.

The Sheriff Inkster preserve of 2,000 square miles ranks as the largest breeding marsh on the continent, and whistling swans once almost extinct, are returning in larger numbers every year under the protection of the Game Act.



Shaw Would Meet Tunney In Debate

LONDON, Dec. 3 (United Press)—George Bernard Shaw, world's champion socialist, wants to meet Gene Tunney, world's champion heavyweight, in a battle of wits.

Shaw intimated today that he was waiting for Tunney or his manager to forward terms for such a match.

"I see no reason," said Shaw, "Why Tunney has not written to say that he is coming to see me."

Shaw declined further elucitation of his thoughts.

KING'S CONDITION GREATLY IMPROVED

Hopes To Be at Station When Queen Marie Returns.

BUCHAREST, December 3. Canadian Press. — King Ferdinand hopes to be strong enough to go to the station to meet Queen Marie on her return from her American trip. He is anxious to do this, if only for the purpose of disproving reports of his grave physical condition.

In the way of a preliminary he gave a dinner dance on Wednesday night to members of his court, and it was almost a celebration, for Ferdinand for the first time in weeks was able to indulge his appetite like the ordinary mortal.

After dinner there was a crossword puzzle party, and the King himself is said to have climped a stepladder in the library to get down dictionaries from the upper shelves. And all the while he seemed to be enjoying himself.

Apart from this evidence that the king is gaining strength. Members of the court very close to the sovereign vouch for the great improvement which has been noted recently.

There has been much political discussion over the king's letter to Premier Averescu, declaring the intention of Ferdinand to carry on with the aid and support of his counsellors and people. Each party of the various conflicting sides interprets certain passages in the latter according to its own hopes and desires.

50,000 COSSACKS COMING TO WEST

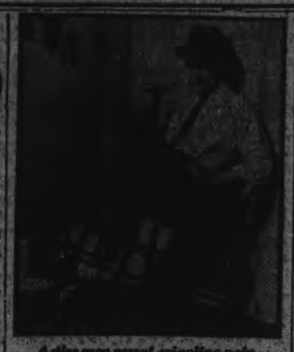
Half Them Have Funds To Start Operations—Other Laborers.

WINNIPEG Man., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Joseph Okulitch, advance agent of 50,000 farmer Cossacks, who desire to settle on the prairies of the Canadian West, has been in conference in Winnipeg with officials of the railway companies, and land settlement agencies to ascertain the feasibility of bringing over his charge at an early date.

Fifty percent of the Cossacks, Mr. Okulitch says, have sufficient funds and equipment to undertake active farming immediately. The remainder are farm laborers. Mr. Okulitch, who was born in Siberia, was assistant minister of food supplies in the Imperial government.

There are 1,500 Cossacks, ready to come to Canada next March, provided existing difficulties against their entry into the dominion, are removed in time. Mr. Okulitch, presented a request to the authorities in Ottawa for assistance in settling 480 families under the auspices of the Russian Agricultural Colonies Society, who are not of Cossack origin. All these people, it was pointed out, are anti-Bolshevists.

Mr. Okulitch will inspect land throughout the prairie provinces and decide upon the location of the first group.



Aches men resent crippling pain

"HAD TO BE CARRIED LIKE A BABY"

Quickly put on feet again by simple home treatment

Laid up for two weeks with an attack of rheumatism or neuritis in the legs, a Canadian writes all the way from Moncton, N. B., to tell of the quick relief he got when he began using a simple, old-fashioned home remedy.

"I could not walk for two weeks," he writes, "I had to be carried around like a baby. But one bottle of Sloan's Liniment put me on my feet again."

Sloan's gives real help to all kinds of muscular pain because it stirs up your body's own curative forces to drive out the germs and poisons that cause the trouble. Just pat it on lightly—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood is sent tingling through the pain-ridden tissues. No rubbing! It's the medicine itself that does the work.

Soon the swelling and inflammation go down. The aching stops. Almost suddenly you find yourself really free from pain, really comfortable at last. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

U. S. LEADERS DISCUSS VOTE

Wet and Dry Chiefs at Washington Comment on Ontario Result.

VIEWS VARY.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 3.—Wets and drys in the capital turned last night to the Ontario elections for their latest vehicle upon which to transport their views.

Senator Edwards, Democrat, New Jersey, a wet leader, saw in the Ontario vote for liquor sales by Government permit an added impetus for the United States anti-prohibitionists' drive for sane wine, beer and liquor legislation, while Wayne B. Wheeler of the anti-saloon league declared that while the "wets guessed right in their plan to put across a wet program" he believed "Ontario will again go dry, because the majority of the electors are in favor of the dry principle."

"The lesson to be learned by the United States from Ontario elections," Senator Edward said, "is that whether we be wet or dry in our convictions concerning the 18th amendment and Volsteadism, prohibition laws now on our statute books are not the solution of our liquor problem.

"The Ontario Temperance Act was a war time measure, just as is the Volstead Act, and both were crammed down the throats of a people more interested in the perpetuation of world democracy than in preachments of prohibition fanatics."

Wheeler recalled that wets in Ontario "had been defeated twice in a direct referendum to the voters." Then, he added, they "gerrymandered ten dry districts out of existence by attaching them to wet districts. Then they raised the wet and dry issues through the choice of members to the provincial Legislature. In Ontario it is legal to raise the question in this way. In the United States the wets blame their defeat on the procedure that requires a settlement of this issue by the election of members of Congress."

REPORT ANGERS ZIONIST CHIEFS

Dr. Pritchett Says Palestine Colony "Unfortunate and Visionary."

MANY REPLIES.

Zionist leaders are aroused by publication of the report of Dr. Henry S. Pritchett of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, who asserted that the movement to colonize Palestine with Jews is "unfortunate and visionary."

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, in a statement telegraphed from Baltimore to Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, declared that all of Dr. Pritchett's arguments, "the usual stock-in-trade of anti-Zionist agitators," have been answered many times. He pointed out that Dr. Elwood Mead, formerly of the University of California and now Reclamation Commissioner of the Department of the Interior, has made a glowing report of agricultural possibilities in Palestine. He was surprised at Dr. Pritchett's summary dismissal of the Rutenberg electrification project.

After summarizing the many important industrial undertakings now under way in Palestine, Dr. Weizmann discussed the political implication of the Palestine enterprises, saying it was merely necessary to point out that Palestine is the only country in the Near East to-day which is being administered, "and efficiently administered," with no miltary force.

Says Arabs Are Protected.

Dr. Weizmann maintained that the fear of displacement of the Arab population by the Jews was groundless, as the Jewish colonization project was safeguarding every right to the native Arab population. The relations between the Jews and Arabs, he said, shows steady improvement. Jews and Arabs are forming business partnerships. Arabs are joining the Jewish Federation of Labor and Arab children are being educated in Jewish schools.

Others who made reply to the statements in Dr. Pritchett's report were Samuel Untermyer, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Judge Bernard A. Rosenblatt and Congressman Emanuel Celler.

In his statement Dr. Weizmann quoted from Dr. Mead's investigations of the farming possibilities in Palestine. Dr. Mead said that the land promised to be a replica of Southern California, that the coastal plain of Palestine was a counterpart of the coastal plain of Southern California, both permitting growth of all kinds of semi-tropical products.

The irrigated areas, according to Dr. Mead, "can be made such a picture of agricultural opulence and rural beauty that they will be a source of pride and satisfaction to the members of the race wherever they live. They can create along the shores of the Mediterranean spots that will rival Cannes and Nice. Sooner or later the homes and gardens around the bay at Haifa will be one of the show places of the world."

Arab Farms Primitive.

Dr. Weizmann agreed with Dr. Pritchett regarding the low standard of living of the Arabs, but said that the latter failed to observe that this was due to the primitive agricultural methods employed by the Arabs.

"The fact is that with the recent Jewish colonization only six or seven years old, many of the Jewish settlements are already on the way toward self-support," he declared. "The fact is that the modern scientific methods introduced by the Jews are being imitated by the native Arabs, with a consequent rise in the standard of living of the native population."

Dr. Weizmann said that Jewish immigrants to Palestine were satisfied with modern standards, and had a right to expect "that liberal-minded men will not injure their chance for obtaining such a living by circulating reports that make their tasks more difficult." He was surprised that Dr. Pritchett "failed to observe the energetic and promising industrial life which is developing to-day in Palestine."

In Haifa, he said, were the Nesher Portland Cement factory, a five-million-dollar enterprise; the Shemen Oil and Soap Works, the Palestine Flour Mills and the Athlit Salt Works; and in Tel-Aviv similar industrial enterprises, incluring the Delphiner Silk Works and some 600 smaller industrial plants.

"It is more than surprising to find out how summarily Dr. Pritchett dismisses the Routenberg electrification project which has only recently been capitalized, and organized with the Marquis of Reading, former Viceroy of India, as the chairman of the board of directors," added Dr. Weizmann. He said that competent engineers have attested that the electrification project will not only provide electric light and power and accomplish irrigation of large tracts in Palestine but for Transjordania as well.

Cites Financial Leaders.

"Is it possible," he asked, "that Dr. Pritchett was not aware of the fact that the Palestine Electric Company which is carrying through the Rutenberg concession, has secured a capital of $5,000,000 for the Jordan project and that the chairmanship of the Marquis of Reading, as well as the presence on the board of directors of such industrialists and financiers as Sir Alfred Mond, Sir Hugo Hirst, James de Rothschild and others, are the best attestation of the soundness and value of the enterprise. Granted that for hundreds of years Palestine was retrograde in an industrial sense, this evidence of industrial possibilities should be greeted with satisfaction and not with a blanket rejection of every possibility for the industrial development of the land."

As to the political and international implications of the Zionist enterprise, Dr. Meizmann said the statesmen responsible for the adoption of the Zionist policy in Great Britain and those in the League of Nations who confirmed the mandate were not indifferent to this question. To-day, he said, the Near East is the only peaceful spot in a part of the world full of unrest "and it has been admitted by those responsible for the security and order of Palestine that Jewish work in Palestine has acted as one of the most potent stabilizing forces for the peace of the country; so obvious is this fact that on his recent visit to Palestine, M. de Jouvenel, the former High Commissioner of Syria, expressed the wish that the Zionists would extend their activities to that strife-torn country."

Relations Improving.

After indicating that the Jews and Arabs were improving in their mutual relations, Dr. Weizmann discussed Dr. Pritchett's fear that restoration of the national home of the Jews in Palestine would express itself in an attitude of "national egotism" and antagonism to other peoples. It seemed to him strange to "charge a people that has been nationally helpless these past eighteen centuries" with "national egotism." The present task of the Jews, he concluded, was based on sound economics, struck at no one nation's welfare, and was bringing blessings to a long-neglected corner of the earth.

Dr. Weizmann finally suggested that those "sincerely interested in advancing the cause of international peace should not be satisfied with superficial and biased observations, but should approach it with a recognition of all the facts that are to-day transforming Palestine, and, as has been done by men like Lord Balfour, Mr. Lloyd George, President Wilson and many others, with a recognition, also, of the background of historic justice and necessity which is behind this effort of the Jewish people for national redemption."

Dr. Wise, in discussing the Pritchett report, said it was a repercussion of the loose generalizations "that can be heard from the lips of any Arab politician, absentee Syrian landlord or Mohammedan renegade." Had he not been assured that Dr. Pritchett had just visited Palestine, Dr. Wise would have believed the report consisted of quotations from Arab newspapers of 1918 and 1919.

WORK FOR CHILDREN KIWANIS SUBJECT

Kiwanian Rev. D. Wren Talks About Underprivileged Child.

The members of Kiwanis Club were treated to masterly discourse entitled "The Underprivileged Child" from Kiwanian David Wren, Minister of Trinity Church, at their luncheon today.

The programme was in charge of the Underprivileged Child's Committee and consisted of violin solos given by Gwen Lucas and George Gatfield and a whistling solo by Miss Mayneord.

Charlie Westbrooke and George Rishor, two of the stand bys of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute rugby team, were the guests of the club.

The learn to swim campaign was inaugurated, several of the members signifying their intention of commencing the work immediately.

Kiwanian F. Neal introduced the Rev. David Wren to the members.

The booster for the occasion was Lloyd Hamilton and the prize winners were F. H. Dawson, J. John and W. H. Merrill.

The thanks of the members to the assisting artists and speaker were given by H. Gilgour, Art Moffat, and W. H. Merrill.

Kiwanian D. Wren

"I am glad to be here, not only for my associations with Dr. Neal, but also as a Kiwanian, as I was a charter memebr of the Kiwanis Club of Midland" declared Kiwanian Wren.

The challenge of youth is the challenge of the age. Every age has had its peculiar task and the awakened interest in the problems of youth is the challenge of the present century. "Yesterday," he declared, "we were not concerned with the problem of youth, but today it is a problem we dare not neglect, if we value the future of this Dominion."

The greatness of the challenge can be realized when a person stops to consider that in the Dominion of Canada today, there are 1,500,000 children of teen age. They, he said, represent the construction of a new civilization.

"As a minister, engaged in the work of humanity ,seeking to guide youth into unexplored regions, I was amazed to find out that so little was being done. My last charge in the City of Toronto was in the downtown section, and in that area there were 150,000 people, most of them living under conditions that were far from being ideal. I was amazed to find that while the City of Toronto was engaged in building fine city buildings, it was seeking only in a very feeble way to safeguard the youth."

Statistics show, he said, that the specially privileged children, the children who want for nothing, number four per cent. The privileged class, those with good homes and who live comfortably number thirty per cent. The undeprivileged, those who have poor homes, and are deterred because of prejudice or poor health from associating with other youth, number sixty-six per cent."

The speaker gave some interesting statistics concerning the youth of the United States which showed, he said, that seven out of every ten youths under 25 years of age were not under the influence or leadership of any Church programme.

"I think every Kiwanis Club could do this in the interests of good citizenship," he declared. "Take four or five boys and give them places in good boarding houses; give them the opportunity that when the doors are opened to them, they can give their contribution in the name of Kiwanis and good citizenship, for the principles enunciated by Our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ."

Man Killed at Detroit Leaves a Wife and Two Children.

BRITISH VETERAN.

DETROIT, Dec. 3. — Efforts to reach the widow and relatives of Jos. Bernard Donohue, a former Major in the British army, and foreman of the Salvage Department of the Ford Motor Company's plant, at River Rouge, who died in Delray Hospital, on Wednesday, as the result of injuries suffered on Tuesday when he was struck by a Pere Marquette switch engine, were being made yesterday by friends.

Donohue, it is believed, had a wife and two children, either in Detroit or Windsor. He has been a resident of Detroit for the last two years. He served in the Coldstream Guards as a Major for 14 years.

Brewery Shares Firm With No Further Gains

TORONTO, Dec. 3 Canadian Press)—Following yesterday's hectic session on the Toronto Stock Exchange when brewery shares held the spotlight, trading slackened off today and issues did little better than hold their gains. Industrial alcohol, the market leader, gained 1-8 at 29 7-8 with Seagrams unchanged at 16 1-2. Both issues were heavily dealt in, however, British American Oil also received a lot of attention and gained 1 3-4 points at 75 1-2. The market on the whole was firm with gains outnumbering losses. Abitibi and Arnold were both up 1-2 at 90 and 19 1-2 respectively. British Columbia Fishing registered a 1-4 point decline at 98 3-4 and Consolidated Smelters led the lower stocks with 1 1-2 drop at 261 1-2; Twin City was down 1-4 at 63 3-4.

Wheat Prices Drop On Argentine Reports

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Reports of fine weather in Argentina and of more liberal offerings of Argentina wheat at Liverpool tended early to-day to weaken wheat values here. The demand for wheat in Chicago lacked snap as compared with yesterday. Opening at 1-8 cent to 5-8 cent down, the wheat market underwent material set-back.

Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, corn starting at ¼ to ½ cent decline, and later suffering a moderate further drop.

Opening prices were: Wheat, Dec. 138¼, May 140 3-4; corn, Dec. 74¾, May 82 1-8; oats, Dec. 43 1-8, May 47 3-8.

NO INSTRUCTIONS TO PREPARE ACT

Law Officers Must Await Discussion of Policy in Cabinet.

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press). — No instructions have yet been issued for the tentative drafting of new liquor laws, according to an announcement from the law offices of the Government today. The general outline of the proposed Act will have to be threshed out in council before it is submitted to the law department for legal phrasing. The Cabinet will meet next Tuesday and commence the work of getting the Act into shape.

It is believed that the first measure to be introduced will be that outlining the Government Control policy.

BONES DISCOVERED IN RUINS OF HOUSE

Authorities Convinced That Aged Man Was Burned To Death.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 3.—The finding of a pile of human bones in the ruins of his home at Joyceville, near this city, has convinced the authorities that Thomas Hamilton, an aged farmer, perished in the flames. The fire took place on the night of November 27th, and since that time Hamilton has been missing. At the time of the fire it was believed that he had lost his life in the flames. Mr. Hamilton was one of the best known farmers in this section.

LOBLAWS START WORK ON STORE

Permit Taken Out To-day For New Building For Groceteria.

CONTRACT AWARDED.

A building permit has been issued to the Loblaw Groceterias, Ltd., to build a big store on Charlotte Street, next to Routley-Braund. T. C. Ephgrave has secured the contract and the building is to be completed by the first of February. The Loblaw Company has a chain of grocery stores throughout Ontario and it has been known for some time that they wished to open a store in this city.

The new building will be two storeys high with the first storey being occupied by a first-class up-to-date groceteria. A five-roomed apartment will be on the second storey.

The building will be 120 feet long and 26 feet wide and will be on a concrete foundation. The walls will be of solid brick. The interior will be finished in fir and pine. A hot water heating system will be installed and the estimated cost of the building is $18,000.

Already work has started; the old building has been removed and the new cellar excavated.

CROWN APPEALS SENTENCE GIVEN

Not Adequate To Crime Says Appeal on St. Catharines Case.

WHIPPING NEEDED.

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Holding that the sentence is inadequate and does not fit the crime, the Attorney-General's Department has lodged an appeal with the Appellate Court for revision of the sentence of fifteeen years' imprisonment imposed on Frank de Young, Walter Liddiard, and Richard Darling, convicted of a serious offence against a woman near St. Catharines some time ago. The Crown holds that whipping should have been part of the punishment and that since good behaviour would take three years and six months off the 15-year sentence, the term of imprisonment is not sufficient.

SIMPSON SUMS UP.

Prosecutor Appeals To "Honest Men" Among Jurors.

SOMERVILLE, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Speaking for less than two hours, Simpson summed up for the State by assuring the jury that the "honest men among you will decide this case."

The prosecutor throughout left the impression that he felt the State's effort was a lost cause among some of the members of the jury, but that he hoped some of the other members would hold for a conviction.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the Electors of Peterborough City Electoral District:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Although unsuccessful in the contest on Wednesday for the cause I represented, I nevertheless am most grateful to all those who supported me in organization work and by their vote and influence.

I was a candidate on this occasion only for the reason that I felt the Ontario Temperance Act was a better form of liquor control than any other, and if it works out that the method to be adoped is more effective, I will be very glad of it.

The contest with Mr. Bradburn was a most gentlemanly and pleasant one, and we can all again settle down to our own businesses without any recrimination.

I have made a lot of new personal friends from the other side of politics than my own, and they also deserve my gratitude. Those of the Liberal faith who opposed me, I know did so conscientiously and now the fight is over I find we have retained the friendly spirit through it all.

If the new method of handling the liquor question works out for sobriety better than the old, there will be no one better pleased than myself.

Yours faithfully,
G. A. GILLESPIE.

J. H. CRIDLAND WAS THE LEADING D.R.O.

The honor of being the first deputy returning officer to compile the results of the voting at his poll in Peterboro City on Wednesday goes to J. H. Cridland at Polling Sub-division No. 16. This was the poll reported to The Examiner first by Herb. Martin, who acted as scrutineer there and not as D.R.O., as was erroneously stated in the first reports of the election.

FOUR DECISION GAMES IN FIRST ROUND FOR CUP

Teams That Played Brilliantly at Week End Frizzled Out.

THREE IN SECOND.

New Brighton and Wrexham Must Battle For Third Time.

Of the five games in the first round of the English Cup replayed Wednesday four went to a decision, but New Brighton and Wrexham must battle a third time to settle which shall meet the winner of the Rhyl-Stoke clash which is still in thebalance. Four of the numerous ties postponed on Saturday on account of bad weather were also played. Three of the contestants passed into the second round, but Wigan and Barrow failed to reach a definite issue, and the team to oppose Crewe Alexandra is still very much a matter of doubt. The uncertainty of Cup soccer was once more brought forcibly home to the fans by the result of the Brentford-Clapton game. On the latter's ground on Saturday the teams struggled through to a one-all draw Wednesday playing at home Brentford waltzed away with the honors and will now face Gillingham, who qualified by defeating Barking by 2 goals to 0 after a scoreless draw Bristoll Rovers, on their own ground, only nosed out Torquay by the lone goal after a one-all tie and are in line to try conclusions with Charlton Athletic on Dec. 11. Reading, who clash with Southend United on the same date, ran away with Weymouth, who held them to a 4-4 draw at the week end. The games staged Wednesday resulted as follows:

Replays

Gillingham 2; Barking 0
Brentford 7; Clapton 3.
Bristol Rovers 1; Torquay 0.
Reading 5; Weymouth 0.
New Brighton 2; Wrexham 2.

Postponed Ties

York 4; Worksop 1.
Crewe 4; North. Nomads 1
Wigan 2; Barrow 2
Chesterfield 2; Mexborough 1.
Huddersfield defeated Wakefield by 10 points to 3 in the Northern Union Yorkshire Cup final played Wednesday.

STANAGE TO COACH PIRATES NEXT YEAR

Former Detroit Catcher Signs Contract With Pittsburgh as Coach.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Jewel Ens and Oscar Stanage have signed contracts to coach the Pittsburgh National League baseball team next season. Ens has been with the Pirates as a player and coach since 1922. Stanage, veteran big leaguer, was manager of the Evansville Three Eye team last year. He was the Detroit first string catcher from 1908 until 1921. The next year he played with Sacramento, Calif., and then, after a year's layoff, went to Toronto in 1924. He rejoined Detroit as a coach in 1925, and then went to Evansville as a pilot.

Britons Will Not Alter Conflict In Golf Dates

LONDON, Dec. 3.—There is no prospect of a change in the dates of the 1927 British open golf championship, scheduled for the week of June 21, to avoid a conflict with the American open event, Henry Gollen, secretary of the Royal and Ancient Club, announced yesterday.

"For years our championship has been played on certain dates, and we are not prepared to alter them," he said, adding that British professionals had made no request for a change.

CANADIENS WIN FROM ST. PATS

Shut Out Toronto Team in Fast Game at Montreal.

SCORE 2-0.

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—The spirited dash of Toronto St. Patrick's in the National Hockey League was halted here last night when the Canadiens defeated them 2 to 0. The locals came back to the form promised a few games ago, and their forwards played their usual lightning game in front of a tightened defence. The likewise fast Irish couldn't get by Leduc and Gardiner, or Moran.

Pete Lepine, playing the regular centre berth, while Howie Morenz was going easy on his bad knee, opened the scoring column after three minutes of the opening period, on a pass from Gardiner in front of the nets after the latter had cleared a rush on his own goal and went up centre ice. Joliat showed his old elusiveness in getting around Corbeau for the second and final score near the close of the second period.

St. Pats made a supreme effort to grasp victory in the final session but the Habitant defence and fast-moving forwards were too much. Their spirited forwards were a menace throughout and Hainsworth was called upon to make some brilliant saves.

The teams:

Canadiens—Goal, Hainsworth; defence, Gardiner and Leduc; centre, Lepine; wings, Joliat and Boucher; subs., Morenz, Mantha, Moran, Gagne, Larochelle.

St. Patrick's—Goal, Roach; defence, McCaffrey and Corbeau; centre, Carson; wings, Bailey and Day; subs., Bourgeau, Brydge, Bellefeuille, Cox, Dennenay

Referee—W. O'Hara, Ottawa.

SUCCEEDS FOHL.

BOSTON, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—William F. Carrigan, who piloted the Boston Red Sox to two successive world championships and then went back to his home town, Lewiston, Me., to lead the comparatively humdrum life of a banker, is in the harness again.

Bill accepted President Bob Quinn's offer of the managership after a five-minute conference. He was promised the highest salary ever paid a Boston manager, it is understood, although no official figure was made public.

Carrigan was the original boy manager when he succeeded Jake Stahl at the helm of the Red Sox in 1912.

Now at 43 he will take up at once the reins relinquished by Lee Fohl, whose regime saw the once pennant-winning aggregation firmly entrenched in the cellar.

Carrigan first won big league attention by his work behind the plate for Holy Cross in 1906 and the same year saw him a regular with the Sox. He was farmed out the next season to Toronto, which then won the International League pennant.

When Lou Criger, the Red Sox catcher, broke his hand, Bill was made a regular. In 1913 when he was appointed manager, the team finished in fourth place.

Club Kept Climbing.

The next year it was up to second, and in 1915 and 1916 the Sox not only carried off league honors, but whipped the Phillies and Dodgers, respectively, for the world title. Then Carrigan resigned.

During the heyday of his career he handled such stars as Ruth, Carl Mays, Dutch Leonard, Joe Wood, Ray Collins, Everett Scott and the famous outfield of Lewis, Speaker and Hooper.

Carrigan has held out against repeated offers to return to the big time. He was successful as a banker and theatrical man and a few years ago he retired to "loaf."

His contract now is for two years.

The Children Will Catch Cold

Mothers should never neglect the first sign of a cold or cough where their children are concerned, for if they do some serious lung trouble is liable to follow.

Mrs. R. T. Hubby, 1022 Barrington St., Halifax, N.S. writes:—"The children are continually getting colds, but I have no trouble with them, for just as soon as they begin to cough I give them a dose of which breaks up the cold within a day or so. I get great results out of it and would not be without it for anything. I can highly recommend it to any one."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

MONEY SIGN BLOCKS PLAY

Pyle Must Get "Cold Cash" For Suzanne's Services.

DECIDE SUPREMACY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—The dollar sign stood yesterday between Helen Wills, Suzanne Lenglen and a proposed tennis match to decide the supremacy between the world's two leading women stars.

Helen Wills is willing, she told the United Press in Berkeley, Calif.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association is willing, its president, J. W. Mersereau told the United Press in New York — providing neither contestant profits from the match, and that the proceeds go to the Lawn Tennis Association for development of the game.

Suzanne Lenglen, however, is not willing unless she gets her share of the gate receipts. At least, her manager, C. C. Pyle, is not willing, he said in Chicago, and Suzanne must do what he says. Pyle said he has money invested in Suzanne and wants it back. After she has returned him sufficient profit, he might consent to such a match for charity, he added

COLLINS LEADS TIGER HURLERS

Official Records Disclose Allowed Average of 2.73 Earned Runs.

THIRD IN LEAGUE.

DETROIT, December 3. — Rip Collins, the robust righthander of the Detroit Tigers, was th most effective pitcher on the staff last season. According to official figures now available for the first time, Collins allowed an average of only 2.73 earned runs per nine inning contest. In this respect he is third in the league, being overshadowed only by Robert Moses Grove of the Athletics, and Garland Braxton of the Yankees. Collins' record is obscured by the fact that he took part in only 30 games, and pitched only 122 innings.

The statistics show three outstanding pitchers for the year: Groves of the Athletics, George Uhle of the Indians and Ted Lyons of the White Sox. Grove was the most niggardly in permitting earned runs. His average was 2.51 and he compiled it by regular and consistent work. Grove pitched 258 innings and of the 45 games in which he took part, 20 of them were complete.

His Control Better.

To a large extent Grove overcame the wildness that handicapped him in his first season with the Athletics. He yielded 101 bases on balls as compared to 131 in 197 innings in 1925. Grove led the league last season in strikeouts, fanning 194 batters.

Uhle, who was first in number of games won with 27, also pitched the most complete games, 32, and the most innings, 318. His earned run allowance was 2.83.

Lyons, toiling for a less successful club than Cleveland, pitched 24 complete games and was credited with 18 victories and an earned run average of 3.02. In addition to that Lyons pitched the only no-hit game of the season, when he shut out Boston, August 21.

Fate of Dauss.

In the matter of relief work, one of the tricks of fate was that handed George Dauss of Detroit on September 5. He is not credited with pitching a complete game all season, yet in the first game of a double header on the date named he pitched 12 innings. He went in as a relief man in the first inning and carried on from then until he was beaten in the 12th round—yet he did not pitch a "full" game!

Dauss was one of the outstanding relief agents of the league, finishing no less than 23 games out of the total of 34 in which he took part. He started in five, in all of which he was taken out, and he got into 12 others in which he was relieved for one reason or another before the finish.

Ed. Wells of Detroit, from July 31 on to the end of the season, started in 11 games, and was not able to finish one of them. He farthest route he could travel was five and two-thirds innings. Twice in other games he went five innings before, in Ty Cobb's opinion he was done for.

FIGHT RESULTS.

(Associated Press).

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Tim O'Dowd, Louisville, beat Claude Wilson, Birmingham (10).

ALBANY, N.Y.—Tony Vaccarelli, New York, won a technical knockout over Johnny Rocco, New Rochelle (4). Jackie Horner, St. Louis, defeated Kid Blair, Utica (10).

VERNON, Calif.—Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Paul de Hate, Compton, Calif. (1).

SPOKANE, Wash.—Al Stradley, Spokane, beat Joe Starr, Toronto (6).

PORTLAND, Ore.—Izzy Schwartz, New York, beat Chuck Hellman, Portland (10).

VARSITY HAS REAL OPPOSITION FOR SATURDAY

Ottawa Expected To Put Up Real Battle in the Finals.

TICKET SALE BRISK.

Rykert, Hutchinson and Bales Will Be Missed From Line-up.

TORONTO Dec. 3—Last week after Varsity put the skids under Queen's the Toronto fans were so enthused they came to the conclusion that there was nothing to it but Varsity in this game with Ottawa. After thinking it all over, however they have arrived at a different conclusion. The majority of course still call Varsity to win, but they do expect to see a real struggle and it won't be any great surprise if the Senators slip over a victory.

What Varsity have accomplished is well known and doesn't need a lot of repeating. But just what Ottawa have in the way of players hasn't been gone into thoroughly by those who have the idea that senior football in the Intercollegiate is the best senior football in the country. Ottawa shattered that argument last season when they trounced Queen's. Other teams have beaten the Intercollegiate champions before. The Intercollegiate have a certain following that the Big Four and the O.R.F.U. do not forget and this certain following think Intercollegiate sport predominates all other.

But to get back to Saturday. Varsity, of course, will be without Rykert, Hutchinson and Bales. They will be missed. Of that there is no question. But Coach McPherson has Morgan to go in at snap and he is the regular, though Hutchinson started last wek. For inside and middle wings he has Stollery, Don Carrick, Jess Carrick, Marritt and Long available. True, he will be hard hit if any of these are hurt, for his relief strength is not there as it has been heretofore.

The Ottawa line is not as outstanding by any means as it was last year when they had Monohan and Timmis to supply the plunging strength But they have a lot of good material of even strength, and in Don Young and Harold Starr possess two high-class tacklers. And Starr can plunge as well. Taking it all round, this Ottawa team looms up as a mighty threat to Varsity's hope of winning the first Canadian title they have had in half a dozen years.

The ticket sale has been brisk, though, as said before the election rush of Wednesday kept many away But they found their way to the wicket yesterday, and it is expected that a capacity house will greet the teams. Ottawa have taken over 1,500 tickets, and sold all of them, so it can be seen how enthused they are. Play will start at 2 p.m. because of the lateness of the season, and because it gets dark so early these days.—Toronto Telegram.

VARSITY GRADS ARE ELIMINATED

Last Minute Goal For St. Mary's Results in Victory.

SCORE 4-3.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—St. Mary's eliminated the strong Varsity Grads team from the S.P.A. series when they won the opening senior fixture, 4 to 3, at the Arena Gardens Wednesday night. With two minutes remaining to be played in the final period, Joe Primeau, St. Mary's brilliant left winger, uncorked one of his de luxe dashes through the centre. He weaved his way through the whole Varsity team to pop in the winning goal.

The line-up:

St. Mary's—Stark, goal; Underwood and Hedges, defence; Sellars, centre; J. McPherson, right wing; Primeau, left wing.

Grads' subs—Bert Plaxton, F. Sullivan, Delahey, Gordon.

St. Mary's subs—Foster, Crompton, Saunders.

Referee—Ernie Parks.

RUSSIAN ADDS ONE TO WRESTLING LORE

Claims He Was Offered Doped Cigarettes From Chance Acquaintance.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (Associated Press). — Alexander Garkawienko, mammoth Russian wrestler, who failed to appear against Wladek Zbyszko in New York a few days ago, has a unique explanation to lay before the State Athletic Commission. While he was watching a preliminary bout, two chance acquaintances in the audience offered him a cigarette. A couple of puffs and Alex. awoke in Central Park, he says.

DENIES RUMOR.

Ex-Heavyweight Champion Denies That Coffee Was Poisoned.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey denied here yesterday that poisoned coffee had anything to do with his losing the heavyweight boxing crown to Gene Tunney several months ago.

"I probably had a little touch of ptomaine a week or so before the fight but that hadn't anything to do with the result. I was perfectly all right when I went into the ring and knew what was going on all the time."

FLOWERS' TITLE AT STAKE TO-DAY

Georgia Deacon Fights Walker To a Decision at at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—The middleweight boxing crown is at stake tonight in a ten-round match to a referee's decision between Tiger Flowers, the Georgia Deacon, who is champion of the 160-pounders, and Michael Walker, former welterweight champion. Flowers is a 7 to 5 favorite to retain his title.

Flowers will win a larger purse if he loses than if he is victorious. If Flowers' speed and boxing skill give him the victory on points he will receive half the estimated gate receipts of $90,000, less the Boxing Commission's 10 per cent. If he loses by a knockout or a decision open to question he will receive instead a $65,000 purse, put up to cover such a contingency by Jack Kearns, Walker's manager. In addition Flowers will get first call for a return match with Walker to try to recapture the laurels which have been his since the Deacon dethroned Harry Greb last February.

Princess Shown How To Calm Crying Babies

LONDON, Dec. 3 (Associated Press Cable).—Crying babies can be hushed almost magically if one knows the trick, Princess Mary, mother of two children, has discovered to her great amusement.

Professor Murdock Cameron of Glasgow University, now in London, was showing a delegation of women, including Princess Mary, how to keep youngsters quiet under almost any circumstances. Whenever a baby cried during the inspection trip in a maternity hospital, the professor took up one baby after another and within a few seconds it would cease its crying.

The professor merely placed the baby face downward on one of his arms, made a few passes with his hand and patted it gently on the back, remarking as the crying ceased: "That's how it's done," much to the amusement of the mothers.

"That is quite a good hint," said the Princess, adding that it might come in useful at night to many mothers, as well as fathers, if the professor would only let them in on the secret of his magic. But he didn't.

JEWS ENTERTAIN CHRISTIAN FRIENDS

Presbyterian and Catholic Clergymen Guests of Rabbis.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press).—A Presbyterian minister, a Roman Catholic priest, and two Jewish rabbis broke bread together last night at the head of the banquet table to which each of seventy men prominent in the city's life brought "my best Christian friend." "To you, my co-religionists," Rabbi Freehof, of the synagogue where the banquet was held, said, "I say America needs all three of us," and Rev. Ralph Davis of the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church responded with the prediction that "One of these days we are going to quit thinking in terms of medievalism." We will learn to tolerate each other because we profoundly respect each other's conviction and inheritance," he said, "not because we believe in tolerance, but because we believe tremendously in essentials.

"For shall I, who am proud to stand here in fellowship with you, betray my convictions in order to be called fellow with you for an hour," he said, remarking that a hundred years ago such a gathering would have been impossible anywhere in the world.

"I preach to you intolerance of ignorance, be it social, religious, industrial, or racial," said Rev. Father Joseph Reiner, S.J., Dean of Loyola University. "Most of all I preach intolerance of ignorance," he declared in holding that "our tolerance of ignorance is the source of our intolerance of each other."

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM TORONTO JAIL

Owner of Saws Found in Corridor—Had Another Hidden.

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (Canadian Press) — Norman Neal, under a three year sentence for shopbreaking and awaiting transfer to Portsmouth penitentiary, escaped from Toronto jail here some time during the night and has not yet been captured. Neal, according to the governor of the prison, admitted yesterday that he was the owner of the five saws found in a prison corridor. A sixth saw was not discovered, although it was believed to have still been in the jail. The prisoner sawed through a bar on his cell and slid down blankets tied together for rope. He escaped from Guelph reformatory some time ago and was to have been sent to Portsmouth Penitentiary shortly.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

THEATRE AT THE GRAND.

The Grand announces as their attraction on Friday night next the eminent English actor Clarence Derwent and his London Company in H. V. Esmond's comedy drama "The House of Ussher" which has been claimed by New York critics "A great play, superbly acted." Coming directly here from an eight months engagement at the Forty Ninth Street and Mayfair Theatres, New York, and with a previous London run of one year, Peterboro will now have the privilege of seeing this much talked of play. Mr. Esmond has written in terms that provide, despite the tenseness of the many situations, little opportunity for shouting on the stage.

Those who enjoyed "The Vortex" and Galsworthy's "Loyalties" should not fail to visit the House of Ussher. No finer play has come out of England. The cast includes besides Clarence Derwent, Esther Mitchell, Will T. Chatterton, Thomas McElhany, Bailey Hick, Ferdinand Hast, Elfrida Cornell, Henrietta Adams and others.

AT THE CAPITOL.

BEBE DANIELS IN "THE CAMPUS FLIRT"

The lively Bebe Daniels is the star of the feature picture, "The Campus Flirt," showing at the Capitol Theatre for the last half of this week. The pretty little actress, who has not been seen here in some time, has plenty of scope for her audacious characterizations and merry ways in the story of "The Campus Flirt," which depicts the struggle for domination in the mind of a youthful maiden of a tendency toward snobishness and real, democratic American instinct, the latter finally winning out.

As the heroine of the feature, which has much comedy in its unfolding, Bebe Daniels enacts the role of an American girl who has been educated in Europe and returns to view the world and its people through a monocle. She goes to an American college, where she falls in love, unwillingly at first, with a waiter, who turns out later, of course, in the amiable way of the movies, to be a rich youth. Then she goes in for athletic supremacy and gains considerable fame for her exploits in sports. The sections showing these episodes are full of life and vigor, and the whole story throbs with the restful spirit of young America, and has plenty of comedy interjected into its picturization. It is an interesting picture of a light type.

"The Flame of the Yukon" Scores a Hit at Regent Theatre.

The vast improvement in motion picture production within the past decade, was admirably indicated when a new metropolitan version of "The Flame of the Yukon" was presented at the Regent Theatre yesterday. If you can remember the success achieved by Dorothy Dalton as "The Flame" in Thomas Ince's virile production made in 1917, you will be more than delighted with this latest version which presents Seena Owen and Arnold Gray in the leading roles.

This is an extremely worth-while photoplay. The scenes, laid in the Canadian North-West during the early gold-rush days, are superbly presented. The story is good and the main incidents, notably as realistic a fist fight as was ever seen on the screen, are intensely thrilling. Miss Owen was highly artistic as "The Flame," while Mr. Gray was an admirable foil in the leading man's role. Jack McDonald as Sourdough, Matthew Betz as Black Jack Hovey and Vadim Uraneff as Solo Jim, were excellent in their portrayals.

SEE THAT THE LIVER IS ACTIVE
You've heard it today—the story of the bright young woman, whose energy is sapped by bilious headaches and constipation. Complexion blemishes or sallow skin perhaps give the first warning. Then the attacks of headache become more frequent, and a chronic state of nervous depression ensues.
Women in business and in the home, in need of a gentle tonic and laxative that assists Nature in cleansing the system of poisons, and keeping stomach, liver and intestinal tract in a state of healthy activity find prompt relief and permanent satisfaction in the use of

OBITUARY.

MRS. WILLIAM ANDERSON
The death occurred last night of Mrs. William Anderson at 11 p.m. at her late residence, 22 Sherbrooke Street. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Armstrong of Janetville. Left to mourn her loss are a loving husband and one daughter, Mrs. A. Tivey, and one son, Cyril; also three sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Ingram of Toronto; Mrs. J. Nasmith, Lindsay; Mrs. G. Hutchison of Janetville, and James and Christopher of Janetville, and John of Lindsay. The funeral will take place from her late residence at 2.30 p.m. on Saturday. Rev. Mr. Wren of Trinity Church will conduct the service. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

JOHN BULLER.
The funeral service of the best known conductors identified with the Canadian National Railways, and who retired from service in May, 1924, was held Toronto, on Wednesday afternoon, late John Buller, one of the in the presence of a large number of his former business associates and friends. Numerous handsome floral tributes bespoke eloquently the esteem in which the late Mr. Buller was held and the great loss which his death occasioned among his large circle of friends. The services were conducted by Rev. J. E. Ward, rector of St. Stephen's Anglican church, and the pall bearers were his three sons, F. J. Buller, L. W. Buller, and William Buller, Peterboro, brother of the deceased, Mason W. Buller, grandson, and Bailey Thompson, of Port Hope.
Officials of the various railroads with offices in Toronto were represented.
A number of former conductors now on the pension list were also present to pay their respects.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of Donald Menzie, who passed away Dec. 2nd, 1925;
Sadly missed and ever remembered by his wife.
—Inserted by his wife.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of Herbert H. Meehan, died December 3rd, 1925.
Gone but not forgotten.
—Wife and son, John.

FIVE WAR LORDS UNITE FORCES IN NORTHERN CHINA TO CHECK ADVANCE OF THE CANTONESE

Leaders Pick Chang-Tso-Lin as Chief in New Alliance.

FIGHT TO DEATH.

Workers Make Attempt To Hold British Vice-Consul Prisoner.

PEKING, Dec. 4 (Associated Press). — The Northern war lords formed an alliance yesterday to halt the victorious sweep of the Cantonese forces which within a few months has given them control over territory peopled by more than 200,000,000 and has caused the reign of the militarists of the North to totter.

The war lords' much-heralded conference in Tientsin, having dragged out a vacillating course for more than a fortnight, produced its first tangible result in the election and installation of Chang Tso-lin, dictator of Manchuria, as generalissimo of what is proclaimed the union of all Northern forces.

Labelled Ankuonsiun, or the "country pacifying army," the union's avowed purpose is "to relieve the distress of the people, exterminate rebels, and strengthen the nation's foundations." By "rebels" is meant the Cantonese.

It is noteworthy that while the principal northern militarists are [illegible] and subcommanders and marshals [illegible] Sun Chuan-fang and General [illegible] Tsung-Chang its chief lieutenants, the union excludes Marshal [illegible]-fu, long ago one of China's most skilled commanders and erstwhile overlord of China's central provinces, being ally of Chang Tso-Lin.

Wu's exclusion means that he no longer is counted among the effective opponents of the Cantonese.

Announced plans provide for five [illegible] armies composed respectively of Manchuria, Shantung, Kiangsu, Kanshi and Honan provincial troops.

Despatches from Tientsin describe Chang Tso-lin's picturesque installation. The Mukden war lord, clad in [illegible] Chinese robes, stood before the incense table and took an oath to uphold the Ankuonsiun purposes, which hereafter, Chang, Tsung-chang [illegible] Sun Chuan-fang departed for their respective capitals, Tsinan in Shantung Province and Manking in Kiangsu.

Despite the ringing tone of the announcement, the war plans

Ontario Liquor Laws Aid U. S. Enforcement

DETROIT, Dec. 4 (United Press).—With Americans in this district soon to enjoy the privilege of buying authentic liquor legally and conveniently across the Canadian border, the Mayor of Detroit believes Ontarios renunciation of prohibition will be a tremendous aid to law-enforcement in this "dripping wet" city.

"I feel certain that half of our police and jail problems will be eliminated," Mayor John W. Smith told the United Press. "Almost as much relief may be expected in our hospitals."

JOHN J. TURNER HOST AT SUPPER

Entertains Kiwanis Club Executive at End of Year's Activities.

A BACKWARD GLANCE.

John J. Turner was the host last night at a delightful impromptu supper, when he entertained the members of the executive committee of Kiwanis Club.

In was the last meeting of the year, and in a review of the work done during 1926 great credit was given President J. J. Craig and Mrs. Craig, Vice-President Isaac P. McNabb and District Trustee John I. Allen for the leadership and inspiration that had welded the club into a harmonious working unit. Mention was also made of the splendid wealth of ideas emanating from members of the club, and of the support given the directors by every member.

In response to a standing vote of appreciation of his services and the services of Mrs. Craig, the president disclaimed personal credit, pointing out that the accomplishments of 1926 were built upon the foundation laid under the leaders of other years. It had been a splendid year of achievement, he said, in which every individual member of Kiwanis Club had a working part, and the club would go forward to new heights in future.

John J. Turner, replying to an expression of thanks to which every member spoke, told of the worth of belonging to Kiwanis Club, and the spiritual satisfaction of taking a part in the activties of the organization. The thing worth while in life is the helping of others, he said, and this is the object of Kiwanis Club.

There were present: John J. Turner, John J. Craig, John I. Allen, Charles D. Cook, Isaac P. McNabb, John A. McKone, Walter Oke, Harold Perry, Harry C. Huffman, Walter Kidd, John Chadwick and John R. Heron.

They'd Walk Over a Mile For a Drink, These Bugs

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—(A.U.)—There are bugs that will creep miles to get a drink. German entomologists at night paint trees with a solution mostly of alcohol. The bugs like it so well that it is easy to make them totter into collectors' bottles.

CITY WILL ISSUE DEBENTURES FOR STREET LIGHTING

Utilities Commission Also Authorized To Borrow For Transformer.

COMMITTEES MEET.

Two Extra Men Will Be Hired To Assist at Sewage Disposal Plant.

Improvements to be made by the Peterborough Utilities Commission to the lighting in the west-end of the city, and a new transformer for the sub-station, will be financed by debentures. The Finance Committee last night authorized the preparation of the necessary by-law for presentation to the City Council on Monday night. Messrs. Bradburn and Matthews of the Commission attended last night's meeting to give information regarding the matter. The new lighting in the West Ward will cost about $9,700, and the new transformer $13,500.

A proposition from the Toronto Convention and Tourist Association to distribute literature for the city and one from the Ontario Motor League for an advertisement in the road guide were turned down.

Chairman Ald. Phelan expressed to Relief Officer F. Miller the regrets of the committee at his decision to quit office at the end of the year, after having served the city efficiently in the position for thirty years. Asked if he would reconsider, Mr. Miller said that he would soon be seventy-nine years old and he felt that he deserved a rest. The Mayor, the Chairman and Mr. Armstrong were appointed a committee to consider his successor and to recommend some recognition of his services.

Board of Works.

City Engineer Parsons was given authority by the Board of Works to sell such girders from the Hunter Street Bridge as the city does not require at $7.50 a ton, a purchaser being in sight for some of them.

The suggestion of the Humane Society that the lanes which are not wide enough for two vehicles to pass be made one-way lanes was turned down as the lanes are private property and it was feared that regulations of traffic in them might lead to liability to keep them up.

Mayor Holloway suggested and had placed on the slate for next year's Council, the purchase of a silent policeman for use at the corner of Hunter and Water Streets, and of several "No parking" signs for various parts of the city.

The C.N.R. will be asked to consider the installation of safety devices at the crossings on McDonnel Street at Park and on Park Street at Westcott, where the lines run diagonally across street intersections.

White Cycles and Sports will be asked to move pipes from the curb in front of their store. These are, or were, used for pumping bicycle and automobile tires and complaints have been made of their danger to pedestrians.

Ex-Ald. Joseph Crowe attended the meeting to give information regarding the sewage disposal plant. Certain articles needed to complete the plant or to improve it, will be purchased, and the manufacturers of the city will be approached with regard to allowing waste and other products to go into the sewers, causing blockades and possibly interfering with the bacterial action of the disposal plant.

The question of increasing the staff was also taken up. During the winter the danger of freezing makes it necessary that the plant be run all the time. It was suggested that two men would be enough, but Mr. Crowe pointed out that this would mean no holidays or Sundays. Two operators, with a relief on Sundays, was also suggested and declared impracticable, so the Mayor, Chairman Ald. Fife, and the City Engineer were authorized to make arrangements for two more men. Next summer it is planned to build two houses down at the plant and the difficulty of access will be done away with, and it may then be possible to run it with a staff of two.

There were present Mayor Holloway, Aldermen Phelan, Fife, Meyers, Greene, Hancock, Denne, Ackerman and MacDonald.

Part of the present irrigation system in the Salt river valley, Arizona, was built by prehistoric Indians.

M'ARTHUR ISSUES WRIT AGAINST ROBERTSON FOR $25,000 DAMAGES

Action Launched in Toronto on Friday Alleging Libel.

HIS SECOND WRIT.

Also Claims $5,000 Damages From W. A. Moore, of Colborne.

(Special to the Examiner.)

COBOURG, December 4. — Mayor Fred J. McArthur launched his second election law suit yesterday in Toronto. Frank Regan, Toronto lawyer, acting in his behalf, issued a writ against Dr. W. G. Robertson, of Colborne, Liberal member-elect in Northumberland for $25,000 damages for alleged libel arising out of the wording of a circular said to have been issued by Dr. Robertson during the election campaign.

The words complained of by Mayor McArthur were to the effect that certain printed publicity propaganda, urging the election of Mr. McArthur, the Conservative candidate, should be disregarded because they were "paid for by the liquor interests."

Such a handbill fell into Mr. McArthur's hands on Wednesday and at noon Thursday he went to Toronto to obtain legal advice as to whether he had grounds for an action against Dr. Robertson. He returned home last night and informed the Examiner that he had held a conference with several lawyers in Toronto and upon their advice had instructed Mr. Regan to issue a writ.

"This is not a question of trying to unseat Dr. Robertson," Mayor McArthur said. "It is a personal matter. My reputation is at stake and I will spend every dollar I have to vindicate myself. This action will go to the Supreme Court of Ontario."

Mayor McArthur asserted in his campaign that "the liquor interests" were not contributing any money "to further his campaign." He had repeated that statement publicly at meetings he held and last night he declared that the circular he complains of caused "direct personal injury to myself and my business. We shall go into the courts and demand that my opponents prove the truth of the statement on that circular."

The writ for $25,000 damages was issued yesterday, and last week started legal proceedings against W. A. Moore of Colborne, for $5000, for alleged slander in a statement attributed to Mr. Moore that Mr. McArthur was not fit to be a candidate because he had been found drunk in a ditch.

During the campaign Mr. McArthur proclaimed that he never drank liquor, that he was a "tee-totaller," and also that no brewery funds were used by him in paying his election expenses.

FERRY TO BUCK ICE IN CHANNEL

Will Try To Release Forty Vessels Icebound Near Soo.

SNOW PREDICTED.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 3. — Canadian Press. — The car ferry from St. Ignace, which was expected to buck the ice in Neebish Channel this morning and release the 40 vessels icebound there, had not left St. Ignace, but is expected to make the grade to-day. During the past 24 hours only one vessel has succeeded in passing the Neebish down bound.

The steamer Huronic of the Northern Navigation Co., is among the boats locked in Neebish channel ice.

The up bound boats are now in a similar predicament to those in the wets channel and cannot move.

Only one boat has passed down bound through the Soo locks since midnight.

There is very little encouragement for shipping interests in the weather forecasts, which predict shiftings winds and snow.

CANADIAN BULBS.

British Columbia Trying To Obtain Business Held By Foreigners.

VICTORIA, B. C., December 4.—Canadian Press. — To reduce the heavy importations of foreign bulbs by meeting the home demand with Canadian grown produce, is the object of British Columbia horticulturists who hve recently entered the bulb industry on a large scale.

More than 3,000,000 bulbs of various varieties were imported into Canoda from Europe last year. So far British Columbia has only commenced to produce bulbs to a modest extent, but a market is being found for them throughout Canada and in many sections of the United States.

'Lonely, Pretty and 19" Really '30 and Homely"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (A.P.) Clara Hamrick of Waco, Tex., described by herself as "lonely, pretty and 19," and by postal inspectors as "about 30 and very homely," has been barred from use of the mails under a fraud order issued by the Post Office Department. The department said Miss Hamrick accepted money from various male correspondents on promise of marriage but always evaded such commitments.

SAYS EMPLOYES FOR CUSTOMS UNSATISFACTORY

Many Appointees Have Never Qualified For Clerical Work.

LITTLE SMUGGLING.

Opening Session of the Royal Commission Sittings at Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—When the Royal Commission investigating the department of customs and excise opened its sessions here, the first witness called was George A. Allen, customs collector at the Port of Vancouver. At the request of R. L. Calder, K.C., commission counsel, he produced a statement covering the staff at Vancouver. It showed a personnel of 215.

Speaking generally, Mr. Allen stated that the class of employees sent by the civil service commission or customs appointments during the past few years was unsatisfactory. They were doing their best but many of the appointees had never been qualified for clerical work. Technically, said the collector, his recommendation was supposed to be a factor in promotions of employees. As a matter of fact, however, his recommendations did not seem to be of any importance in promotions.

"Have you ever had any evidence of organized smuggling on a commercial scale" asked Mr. Calder.

"No," replied Mr. Allen. He said that there had been a little smuggling by merchants, but not much.

"Is there under-valuation going on?" "Yes, continually."

The witness said that cases of undervaluation were reported to Ottawa and that in a number of cases, values of imports for duty purposes were raised. Ottawa, he said, handled these cases quickly.

"Have you been obliged to write off any amending entries?" asked Mr. Calder.

"We are not allowed to write them off," said Mr. Allen.

EXHUME BODY BURIED IN 1924

Coroner Will Investigate Death of Allenford Man While Hunting.

FOUND WOUNDED.

OWEN SOUND, Dec. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—A coroner's investigation will likely be held into the circumstances surrounding the death of James Elder, of Allenford, while hunting in the north woods more than two years ago. Following an investigation instituted by the Attorney-General's Department exhumation of the remains has been ordered by Crown Attorney Freeborn, of Walkerton.

Elder, who was 25 years of age, was a member of the Allenford Hunt Club, members of which were hunting on the shores of Lake Georgia, in Algoma, in November, 1924. He was found about two miles from camp suffering from a wound, given first aid, and taken to Killarney, where he died while awaiting removal to Owen Sound.

RINGLING DEAD.

One of Famous Circus Owning Brothers Dies in Florida.

SARASOTA, Dec. 4. — (Canadian Press.)— Charles Ringling, circus man, financier and railroad builder, died at his home here last night after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Ringling was one of the famous Ringling Brothers who years ago organized a wagon show and from this developed one of the largest circus organizations in the world.

Record Slow Trip Made By This Carrier Pigeon

BATH, Eng., Dec. 2.—What is called by some European papers a record slow trip for carrier pigeons ended here when a bird released in Varenns, France, early four years ago reached home recently. It is believed that the pigeon alighted to rest and was held in captivity until it escaped and then resumed its homeward flight.

SOVIET PAPERS SAY PILSUDSKI PLANS ATTACK

Preparing For War With Russia, Possibly Next Spring.

WANTS LITHUANIA.

Will Abandon Danzig Corridor if Memel Secured as Port.

MOSCOW, Dec. 4. United Press.—The Soviet press warns editorially of an anti-Russian attack by Poland, possibly by next Spring, for which Premier Pilsudski is said to be preparing.

The Pravea, the organ of the Soviet government, charges Poland is negotiating for the consent of Germany and other western powers to a conquest of Lithuania and Memel, a sea port on the Baltic, after which Danzig corridor would be abandoned. The same paper says Pilsudski is planning to extend the Polish eastern frontier across Bugneman.

MANY CHICKENS OFFERED TO-DAY

Other Fowl Plentiful on the Farmers' Market This Morning.

EGGS ARE UP.

The farmers' market was loaded with fowl this morning, and prices of chickens had a wide range from 20 to 30c a pound. Ducks and geese were quoted as usual, at 25c a pound. Cream was 25 and 30c a pint; butter was quoted at from 36 to 38c a pound, and eggs from 70 to 75c a dozen.

Sales in the basket section included home made cooking, Christmas embroidered articles, also tiny dolls and cradles, and painted flowers. One lady had duck-feather pillows at $5 a pair.

Downstairs the vendors were occupied mainly in trying to keep warm. Potatoes were $2.25 a bag; mutton was 20c a pound; pork 19 and 21c, and beef 10 and 12c. Apples in barrels were $3.50 for pippins; $5.50 for russets and $7.50 for Spys.

TWO SMALL LAKES CAUSE FREEZE-UP

Not Enough Current To Prevent Freezing Below Soo.

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—(Canadian Pres..)— The site of the worst tie up on the lakes in history, Hay and Mud lakes, is slightly below Sault Ste. Marie. Leaving the Soo, boats take a short trip down the St. Mary's river, emerging into Mud lake, which is a narrow body of water, with Neebish Island at the lower, or south end. Around Neebish, another narrow channel runs into Mud Lake. There is not enough current running from either channel into the small lakes to prevent freezing, and it is feared that before ice breakers can open up the channel sufficiently to clear the boats the last ones may be frozen in until spring. Steamers bound up, and hurrying to make another trip before insurance rates are raised on Dec. 12, are steadily adding themselves to the ice bound string. Damage due to delay in shipping grain from the head of the lakes to the lower ports cannot be estimated and, as most of the up-bound boats pick up cargoes of coal, the delay in delivery of fuel will also cause considerable loss.

FIRST BURMA LADY LAWYER.

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 4. — (Associated Press).—Burma, known as the land of the pigeon blood ruby and of the tinkling bells made famous by Kipling, has taken another step in its stride toward women's rights. Ma Pwahee, the daughter of a Burmese official of the Rangoon municipality, is the first Burmese woman barrister.

Ma Pwahee is the only Burmese woman to adopt the law as a profession.

LIEUT.-GOVERNOR COCKSHUTT IS MENTIONED AS CHAIRMAN OF NEW LIQUOR COMMISSION

Toronto Paper Says He Has Accepted the Position.

NOT OFFICIAL.

Term as Lieutenant-Governod Has Expired, But He is Still Acting.

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—A Toronto paper says today in its news columns: "It was learned to-day that His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Harry Cockshutt would be head of the new commission (to administer the proposed new law for the sale of liquor under Government control). Naturally, seeing that the Premier has not made his official announcement, the announcement does not come from official sources. Nevertheless, it is stated on good authority that His Honor has accepted the position."

Col. Harry Cockshutt's term as Lieutenant-Governor expired some time ago, but at the request of the Dominion Government he is continuing in the post for the time being. Col. Cockshutt's home is at Brantford, Ont.

Gypsy Rites Are Binding In Marriage, Says Court

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(A.P.)—Marriage by Gypsy rites is binding, Magistrate Corrigan decided here yesterday. He dismissed a charge of assault brought against Samuel Ranko, 19-year-old Gypsy, who had been married to 14-year-old Lena Stokes at Fall River, Mass., by a tribal chief. Her father brought the charge against Ranko.

Frank Kaslov, ruler of 500 Gypsy families, testified that the Gypsy marriage custom had prevailed hundreds of years and a girl often marries at the age of 12.

HASTINGS MAN IS ACQUITTED

Judge Huycke Says Community Should Not Have Tolerated Conditions.

"MOSQUITO VALLEY."

(Special to The Examiner)

COBOURG, Dec. 4—In acquitting a resident of Hastings village who was charged before him in the County court here yesterday with robbery and assault, Judge Huycke of Peterboro directed a rather sharp comment to the village authorities for failing to check and prevent the conditions that produced this case.

The chief witness for the Crown alleged that a sum of $65 had been stolen from him during a drunken carousal on August 14th last, in what is popularly known as Mosquito Valley, a thicket of young poplars, burdocks and other undergrowth close by the intersection of the two main streets and at the rear of a bank property.

"It seems to have been a common thing for men to go there and take liquor," said His Honor, "and apparently many knew of the place and resorted there. This case reflects discredit on the men who are involved in it, for those who were there that afternoon were drunk. It is not creditable to the people of Hastings that a public resort and conduct such as I have heard of today should have been tolerated. The authorities should see that it is cleaned out. I suppose the cold weather will take care of that for a while but next summer something should be done to prevent it."

Addressing the defendant Judge Huycke said that although there had been some strong evidence against him a reasonable doubt had been created by the defendant's explanation of what had occurred.

"And when I hear the evidence of the reputable citizens of Hastings who have come here today and who say you have always had a good reputation I shall have to find you not guilty. I am afraid all of you were on a spree, and those who were there should be ashamed of themselves."

THE WEATHER.

This Saturday morning, at daybreak the thermometer recorded 3 degrees above zero. Later on during the forenoon, it went to 3 degrees below zero, while at noon it had risen to 7 above zero. This is the first zero weather of this season; would it were the last.—W. P.

FIRE DESTROYS PARK COTTAGE

Charles Perry's Summer Home at Chemong Burned to Ground.

OTHERS THREATENED.

Last night about 11.30 a fire broke out at the cottage of Charles Perry, at Chemong Park. The citizens of Bridgenorth soon rallied to the scene of the fire, but they were unable to save the cottage. The one adjoining it caught fire several times but was put out each time by those who had gathered to fight the fire. Only for the citizens of Bridgenorth the fire last night might have burned many of the cottages at the park. The cause of the fire is unknown.

BOOTLEGGER DROWNED.

Thin Ice Stops His Boat, But Fails To Support Him.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 4. — A bootlegger bringing a cargo of 250 cases of Canadian beer across Lake Erie was drowned in Swan Creek early yesterday when he attempted to walk across. Swan Creek between Monroe and South Rockwood is frozen over. After crossing the lake the bootlegger smashed his way through the thin ice on the creek for some distance, the weight of the loaded boat making this possible.

At length the ice thickened so that the boat would not crush it and the bootlegger attempted to walk ashore. He broke through the ice. His body has not been recovered.

PONTIAC SIX

1927 Calendars

Believing that Calendars are one of the best ways of keeping the name of a quality product before the public, we have ordered an exceptionally large number of PONTIAC Calendars this year, and are therefore, anxious to get them into as many homes as possible. Besides being useful, owing to the large figures, they are very beautiful and artstic, having an inset of one of Canada's picturesque mountain scenes, and are quite in keeping with and representative of the quality of this popular automobile.

Fill In The Coupon

Feeling that there are many people who would like to have one of these Calendars, who are not on our mailing list, we would request you to fill in the coupon below and forward it to

A. Brown & Son

383 Water Street

and one will be mailed to you at once. It is advisable to mail your coupons at once, as we will have to supply them in the order received.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

I HAVE been greatly interested in the doings and sayings of the United Lutheran Church in America as reported in several papers; especially what it has had to say with regard to the place and purpose of praise in the worship of God. It seems that there is within this denomination a Committee on Church Music which is not afraid to express itself. Some committees never commit themselves. They just meet and discuss certain matters, pass resolutions of a more or less harmless nature, take care not to offend anybody of any account, shake hands, say good-night and then go home. They are more decorative than creative or corrective. They seemto be a necessary part of the organised Church; but nobody expects them to do any real work other than meet and pass resolutions.

A COMMITTEE THAT FUNCTIONS

However, this Committee on Church Music seems to be of a different calibre. It is made up of men who go about with both eyes and ears open. Men, they are, who think, and then are neither slow nor afraid to say what they think. They must have known that in certain quarters their words would not prove acceptable: but rather that what they had to say would make enemies of some whose friendship for the sake of peace and harmony would be worth cultivating. Nevertheless, they felt that some things ought to be said whatever the cost might be: therefore, they 'took the bull by the horns," and went ahead and uttered certain things, which, if taken to heart by those to whom they were principally addressed, are likely to do much to improve the ministry of music.

AT IT BEFORE

This was the same committee that gave organists a jolt two years ago by attacking them for playing jazz music in churches; and accused manufacturers of selling theatrical organs to unsuspecting congregations. Their findings at that time were so unusual that when they had spoken organists were left gasping. Never, in all their previous history, had they been addressed after fashion. Indeed, many of them ome to think that they were a nto themselves. They had been as if the music of the church a matter which they alone had usiness to interfere with. The might be the preacher's throne, he sermon might be all his con- but the music lay outside the ince of everyone except the organist the choirmaster. So you can easily agine the commotion it caused in usical circles.

PUTTING THE CHOIR WHERE IT "BELONGS"

One report of the business done by is committee is set forth in a leading agazine under the caption: "Putting e Choir Where it 'Belongs'." And also speaks of "Show Pieces" as ing calculated to display the musical ll of those who are there to lead the e of the congregation, rather than d to devotional inspiration. The committee says in effect that the choir ould lead and in certain parts of the will ce alternate with the congregation, or it should never dominate the con- gation or regard itself as a group entertainers. It is suggested that re had better be no anthem at all er than what they term "inappro- te show pieces." And another er in commenting up these words "This is surely a protest that is ely."

IMPROVING THE WORSHIP

"Our worship would gain immensely if choirs would spend less time in the preparation of anthems and devote more to the music of the liturgy and the hymn tunes. These belong pre-eminently to the people, and the first concern of the organist and choir should be to procure congregational singing in accordance with the psalmist's words: 'Let the people praise Thee, O God; let all the people praise Thee.'

"In many churches the liturgical music is sung very indifferently—sometimes atrociously; and all hymn tunes are taken in the same tempo, whether set to words expressive of the highest joy or the deepest penitence. Thus hymn and tune and the devotion of the sincere worshipper are ruined."

WHO IS AT FAULT?

Now, any honest reader who knows anything about church affairs, such as congregational singing, anthems and organ voluntaries, must know that there is good reason for the criticism bound up in this report. A certain worshipper had good ground for saying, when commenting upon the poor, half-hearted way in which the doxology had been rendered—supposedly by the choir and congregation—in a certain church—

"That singing would not be heard behind a hair-net; and if God is pleased with such praise, then, all I've got to say is that, He is easier satisfied with such things than I would be!"

"Organists and choirs may often be justly blamed for all these aberrations; hence, as those charged with the responsibility of making the musical part of the service all that it should be as worship, they should, above all things, penetrate into the meaning of the liturgy and hymns and the musical forms in which they are clothed so that they may play and sing not only with the spirit, but with the understanding also."

THE DIFFERENCE IT WOULD MAKE

What a difference it would make if these words were laid to heart by organists, choirs and congregations! Many might not be able to define the difference but even the most stupid would detect it. There would be 'a lift' to the praise of the people such as would have its influence upon the preacher. He would be inspired with a new spirit. His prayers would reflect the change; the reading of the Scriptures would be different; and even a poor preacher would be transformed into one who would have less difficulty in holding the attention of the people.

I certainly hope that the report of this committee within the Lutheran Church may reach many congregations within all denominations; for the condition of things as dealt with in the report is not confined to any one sect.

THE CHOIR'S ACTS

"All the choir's acts must be acts of worship, and if an anthem be sung, it must be chosen with due reference to the day, season, or occasion, and be sung in a manner to inspire devotion. Much that is in utter conflict with this is heard in our churches. Better no anthem at all, and in its place a congregational hymn tune, than the kind often heard and the undevotional manner in which they are frequently sung, not only by poor choirs, but sometimes by choirs that pride themselves on their proficiency."

THE NEW YORK SUN

Such efforts to restore the ministrations of the choir to their proper place as an essential of the religious ceremonies and not as a mere interlude of display have been made in all denominations in recent years, observes the "New York Sun," which tells us further:

Abolition of mixed choirs or so-called 'quartets' in the Roman Catholic Church was comparatively without difficulty, for there were the Gregorian music, and the old rule of the choir's duty to fall back on. In the most elaborate churches of the Protestant Episcopal communion the music of Palestrina and other ancient composers is used on account of its solemn and devotional character. There are equally impressive and spiritual passages in the music of other composers. Much of the church music of Italy to-day is operatic in character and lacks the austerity required in the churches which have returned to the Gregorian form. In spite of the efforts of authorities, it is not always easy to stick to the most sacred chants. Yet they are what most of the governors of churches demand and what the churches seem destined eventually to get if their officers are sufficiently powerful to enforce their wishes.

PRAISE IS COMELY

I have read somewhere that praise is comely. That is, it is good to hear, good to see, and good to be with. But the praise that is thus spoken of is not in the nature of a performance; for the place where it is rendered is not the proper place for a performance since it never was designed for entertainment but for worship. It is not to one another that we sing. It may, at times, be for one another, and oftimes with one another, when "all partake the joys of one," and "the common peace we feel," yet our praise is not for entertainment but for edification. We don't sing within the house of God to display our own powers but to extol the Lord because of our indebtedness to Him and to His power.

There should be that in the work of the organist and the choir that will encourage the most timid soul to express in song the sincere feelings of a heart in love with Christ. As it too often is now in the average church, the majority of worshippers are more discouraged than encouraged by the lead or, it might be more correct to say, the lack of lead. Choirs are greatly honored in having committed to them the leadership of the praise of the people; but they should never allow themselves to forget that they are at their best when they succeed in getting the whole congregation to take part in the praise of the sanctuary. A congregation that is encouraged to sing by a choir whose delight is to lead rather to dominate, is a congregation that will really appreciate the best efforts of organist and choir when engaged in the anthem or other music peculiarly their own. Too often one gets the impression by the interest manifested by the choir in the anthem, as compared with lack of interest in the congregational singing, that with the choir the anthem is everything, but 'any old thing will do'for the hymns.Such an attitude is fatal. It will handicap the best preaching; stifle all enthusiasm in the service of God's House; and be the death of all that's worthwhile at the time of public worship.

THERE SHOULD BE CO-OPERATION

Between the organist, his choir, and the minister, there should be the closest and most sympathetic co-operation. They should get together frequently, and have a free exchange of thought, all with a view to rendering the best possible service for God. Working thus with each other there might be no limit to what could be accomplished through such co-operation. Let them agree as to what is the great object of all gatherings of the people on the day set apart for worship, and they will soon agree as to the best kind of music, and how it should be rendered.

—Allan Fairbairn.

A Glorious Hope

I WAS CALLED TO SEE a Masonic brother in the icy grip of death. He whispered: "I have a great want." I replied: "You have tender care, hosts of friends, enviable repute, and a chance to live." He gasped: "I want to know my sins are forgiven." The plank I threw to him was this simple message: "It is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief." He closed his eyes and floated on it into the calm harbor where the surges cease to roll.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

I HAVE read a tract called "In Search of the Beautiful." It sets a person before us who resolved to seek and find the beautiful; and he bethought himself of the mountains of Switzerland, and the sunny plains of Italy, and the forests of America, and ever so many of the wonders of the world. But, before he completed his arrangements, a little bird whispered, "Begin at home." The little bird was wiser than the man. The beautiful is always with us. "Oh, my friend," says one writer, "make the place where God has put you beautiful. If it be but a tent in the desert, make it beautiful. If it be only a cottage in a lonely street, or an attic-room in a cottage, or a fireside, or a bench in a workshop, or a berth in a ship, or a seat in a school, or a place on your mother's knee, or a place in her heart, make it beautiful. And the sadder, the darker, the poorer the place is, be the more eager to make it beautiful." That is advice to make any boy or girl richer far than they can ever be with the help of gold. There you have an ideal to inspire a worth-while life

Why Join The Church

DR. TALMADGE tells of an an old sea-captain who was riding in the cars toward Philadelphia, when a young man sat down beside him. He said, "Young man, where are you going?" "I am going to Philadelphia to live," replied the young man. "Have you letters of introduction" asked the old sea captain. "Yes," said the young man, and he pulled some of them out, "Well," said the old sea-captain, "haven't you a church certificate?" "Oh, yes," replied the young man. "I didnt suppose you would want to look at that." "Yes," said the sea-captain, "I want to see that. As soon as you get to Philadelphia, present that to some Christian Church. I am an old sailor, and I have been up and down in the world, and it's my rule as soon as I get into port, to fasten my ship fore and aft to the wharf, although it may cost a little wharfage, rather than have my ship out in the stream, floating hither and thither with the tide."

You need not teach a bull to bellow. That which nature teaches of itself you need not inculcate.

The Value of Mission Study.

THE Rev. W. J. Gregory has this to say in a plea which he makes for the study of missions: "There is no study that so broadens the intelligence and gives so much true culture as the study of missions. It brings one into contact with all countries and nations; it makes him familiar with their mode of life, their art, architecture, industry and religion; it interests him in the government that controls them, the superstitions that fetter, and the social movements that affect them. In a word, the study of missions cultivates an intelligent interest in humanity from the highest point of view."

Dan Crawford's Friend.

DEAN BUELL, of Boston University, writes as follows: I heard Robert S. Guptill the other day at a ministers' meeting and I said: "This is Dan Crawford, author of 'Thinking Black,' come back again in the flesh." In wit, sang froid, sand hard sense and religious fervor, this Down East Yankee, Bates College and Boston University Theological School graduate, a jack of all missionary trades, with administrative versatility like John Wesley's, is already in many respects the peer of the world-famous Scot whose dying messages he received. In the cool sanity of his Christian faith, as he faces the appallingly difficult problem of laying the foundations of Christ's Church among the rawest of raw heathen, he reminds one of the indomitable William Taylor.

Famous London Church.

REV. H. L. SHEPPARD, on account of ill-health, has recently resigned as minister of that great church in Trafalgar Square which has just celebrated its bi-centenary. The Archbishop of Canterbury writes that tens of thousands of people all over the world will join their praise and thanksgivings with those of the congregation; and the Archbishop of York says that the great revival at St. Martin's has been "mainly due, under God, to the genius for love and sympathy and insight into human needs, and the message of Christ's Gospel which has been given by Mr. Sheppard." The late Vicar states that the church is not asking for any material gift, nor for publicity, but for prayer. A thankoffering fund has been limited to gifts of five shillings, and it will be equally distributed among churches of all denominations in the parish who are willing to receive their share.

Mistaken Identity.

AN INTERESTING news item informs us that Rev. D. S Spencer, for fifty years a Methodist missionary in Japan, who was reported killed in a railway wreck in that country last August has written to his brother, W. E. Spencer of New London, Conn., explaining that the body of another victim was erroneously identified as his. Rev. Mr. Spencer is seventy-two years of age, and holds a pastorate at Kumamoto. His son, Rev. Robert Spencer, also is a missionary in Japan.

The Churches and War.

FROM London comes the report that over a hundred English Congregational ministers have signed the following solemn covenant:

Believing that we are called by our understanding of Christ to unreserved abstention from war, and to a complete dedication to peace as the only true defense of our most treasured loyalties and loves, we covenant together before God, praying that in the day of calm we may win others and that in the time of storm we may stand firm to our witness.

What Shall We Do?

WRITING to the Presbyterian Advance, J. R. Robertson says: Our religious professionalism and commercialism have got us on the toboggan—sliding down. We have abolished worship and the study of God's word and are trying to get our religion by proxy; and church advertisements and solicitations for money are based on the offer to do something of a religious nature for the ignorant mass in the church or out of it. The Bible is almost hopelessly neglected. The knowledge of our people of the Bible is almost nil. There can be little religious faith without spiritual knowledge.

Reverence for holy things, the spirit of devotion, the spirit of Christ, are unknown and unexperienced by the present generation. We go to church without the spirit of devotion, see the people, the styles, and enjoy the rhetorical phrases of sermons; and if the preacher flatters our "superior complex" we are greatly pleased; but that gets us nowhere. Our services are seldom of genuine spiritual uplift and divine worship. We have even forgotten that the prime object of going to church is to worship God.

Real Greatness.

TO LIVE for God's sake, and for God's sake to become the servant of others; to soothe the sorrows, and lighten the burdens of the oppressed; to make the world's crooked places straight, and its rough places plain; to rescue the perishing, raise the fallen and cheer the desolate; to do all these offices of love with unwearying patience and self-denial and not grudge the expenditure of ease, and health and life itself, when called for; such is our Lord's idea of greatness; according to W. G. Blaikie. And all whose eyes have been opened to see the truth as it has been revealed in the Word of God will agree with him.

Tired of Being Happy.

I STILL think that the best and most logical criticism of Christian Science that I have ever heard was one unconsciously given by a parishoner who had fallen from grace and became an avowed worshipper with the new sect. But after an absence of some months he was once more in the old pew. The pastor sought an opportunity to talk with him to find an explanation. He was not very communicative as he told of his experience, but he was very positive on his desire to return to the old fold.

"I got tired of being so awfully happy all of the time," he said.

Perhaps it is a good thing to have an unsound hobby ridden hard; for it is sooner ridden to death.

What Think Ye of Christ?

Proofs Of Christ's Diety

HE WAS oppressed with hunger; but He feeds the thousands in the desert, and He is the living and celestial Bread. He was parched with thirst; but He cried aloud, "If any one thirst, let him come unto Me, and drink"; and He promised to be a fountain unto believers. He was weary; but He was the rest of those who are "weary and heavy-laden." He was weighed down with sleep; but He walked lightly on the wave, and He rebuked the winds, and He bare up Peter from the rolling billows. . . . If the things which evince His humanity have offered thee a pretext for error, let the circumstances which attest His Divinity remove thy mistake.

—Gregory Nazianzen.

BASEBALL CELEBRITIES.

Even those who take but a passing interest in baseball will feel a sense of loss in the retirement of such famous players as Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins, whose names are known not only where baseball is played but wherever baseball events are reported.

Great players all three—the dashing Cobb with his wonderful batting record and his cyclone baserunning; the brilliant Speaker than whom no better centre fielder has ever donned a uniform, and the dependable Collins, making difficult chances look easy and hitting with regularity and effect.

Their long connection with the game has been studded with triumphs and unmarred by the slightest suspicion of dishonesty or disloyalty to their clubs.

No game could lose such brilliant exponents in one season without feeling the loss; baseball will be just a little less colourful next season, and baseball reports will be just a little less interesting, especially to older followers of the game, when the familiar names of Cobb, Speaker and Collins are absent from the box scores and from the headlines.

VOTERS' LISTS

Every election finds the names of qualified electors missing from the lists.

Numbers of citizens in Peterboro on Wednesday were amazed to discover when they applied for a ballot that they could not be provided with one because the list did not contain their names.

A woman who has lived 36 years in the one house was among those who found themselves unable to use their franchise.

No system is infallible, of course, and mistakes are bound to creep in, but there is a general feeling that some better method of compiling voters' lists is necessary.

It is true, of course, that voters were warned to consult the lists early in order that errors could be corrected, but especially in the case of citizens who for years have voted from the same address, there is a tendency to take it for granted that the lists will be correct.

Such confidence sometimes proves to be unjustified, and leads to disappointments on election day that might be avoided under a better method of preparing the lists.

THE GOVERNMENT'S OPPORTUNITY.

The decisive nature of the mandate given Premier Ferguson and his Government on Wednesday to introduce a Government control policy gives the Government a golden opportunity to increase its prestige and to bring about conditions that will take the liquor question out of politics.

Mr. Ferguson and his Ministers should devote most of their time before the Legislature meets in the framing up of a control act that will include the best points in the systems in force in other Provinces, and as far as possible eliminate the weaknesses of those systems.

The people want such an act; thousands of those who supported Ferguson candidates on Wednesday did so because they felt that the Government had made good in its handling of other problems and could be depended upon to make good in dealing with the liquor problem.

That public opinion in the Province endorses the idea that there should be available a legitimate source of liquor supply cannot be doubted; yet it can also be assumed that the people as a whole are anxious that this source should be securely guarded against conditions that would prove harmful to the public good.

How these safeguards can be provided and how abuses of the control act can be dealt with are questions that should closely engage the attention of Mr. Ferguson and his Cabinet.

The responsibility is theirs; the bringing down of legislation that will aim at redeeming the promises made by the Government during the campaign is a duty that is expected of them.

In this connection The Examiner is in agreement with The St. Catharines Standard's statement that "Government control must control with no half-way measures about it."

This is The Standard's view of the situation:

"The tenor of the speeches against Government control of liquor was that a decision of that kind would be a deplorable blow to the cause of temperance, setting back the path of progress twenty years or more. Only time can prove whether that will be so or not, but in giving the Conservative Government such a decisive mandate the people of this Province have reposed in it a tremendous trust. This is no occasion for cock-crowing or braggadocio, but one for serious introspection on the part of every member of the Cabinet and the Legislature, to see that they take every possible precaution to prevent abuses and excesses. The Government has claimed that the new laws will be an improvement on the old; that they will remove the evils created by the recent temperance legislation; and it is the bounden duty of the Government not only to enforce the new regulations, but to strengthen them when circumstances show that they require strengthening. In short, 'Government control' must control, without any half-way measures about it.

"The terrific turnover compared with 1919 proves beyond all doubt that the O.T.A. was temperance legislation in advance of the times. Perhaps the longest way round may be the shortest, after all, in trying to reach the ultimate objective of prohibition, or as near to that point as is humanly possible. In any case, prohibition is not in sight today, tomorrow, nor even the next day. There are some who might even contend that the O.T.A. has hampered the cause of temperance by arousing resentment against laws restricting common social customs, by making it a crime to do in the strictest moderation that which has been done from generation to generation as a matter of normal habit, and by arousing among the rising generation a desire to partake of forbidden pleasures just because they were forbidden and for no other reason. Be that as it may, the fact is that conditions gradually undermined the belief of the people in the efficacy of an ideal which seemed sound in theory but proved unsound in practice."

ABOUT APPLE MARKETING.

British Columbia has demonstrated that people at home and abroad will buy apples that are carefully grown, attractively packed and of guaranteed quality. Growers of that Province, too, must find it profitable to market their product in this way or they would not continue in business year after year. They are doing this despite the distance, and they are skimming the cream of the trade. British Columbia apples come to Ontario stores in boxes with each apple wrapped. Not one is wormy or has a scab—each apple is unblemished.

On the other hand, in the same stores Ontario apples are offered in a bushel basket, are not particularly healthy in appearance and not very clean. Many have all the appearance of pick-ups, and therefore it is not surprising to be told that buyers who can prefer the Western product. Possibly the reason why Ontario growers are indifferent in this respect is because they don't take the apple business seriously. The trouble in most cases comes because some other person planted the trees. Hence the remark is frequently heard: "It doesn't pay us to bother with apples. You've got to go right into the business."

There may be quite a lot of truth in that, but the real point is: When a person sees these B. C. apples offered for sale it creates the desire to eat an apple, but when one looks at the Ontario apples that were displayed in the bushel basket alongside it roused up no such idea at all. It has been demonstrated that people can be made or induced to eat almost anything from raisins to yeast cakes if the idea is sold. A man is making a fortune selling salted peanuts in bags because he advertised them. Oranges—whole crops—have been sold that looked as though they would glut the market—because the public mind had been prepared in advance.

No doubt it's true that putting apples on the market in that way is a business by itself—a specialized industry. There's nothing strange about that, because nearly every business that is forging to the top now is specializing in several things (1) in quality, and (2) in the best methods of distribution. Ontario can grow Baldwins, Kings, Spies, Greenings, Wealthy, McIntosh Reds, Snows and others. When these are produced in sprayed and cultivated orchards they are of a quality that cannot be surpassed. Put this quality fruit in wrappings, packed in attractive boxes, and it will sell at a price to produce a profit. The market Ontario has at its door is away and beyond that enjoyed by British Columbia. The B. C. growers have demonstrated that it can be done, and the first step is to produce apples of quality.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

PARLIAMENTARY OPENING NEXT WEEK.

The next interest on the Canadian political stage is national. The sixteenth Parliament of Canada will convene next week at Ottawa, when the new King Ministry will face the House of Commons and the Speech from the Throne will be delivered as written by Premier King across the seas. There are indications that for the first session at least it will be smooth sailing for the Government. There is a general disposition reflected all through the country to afford the administration a chance to get its bearings and to permit full opportunity for it to get on with the business of the country. This is as it should be. Moreover, Parliament meeting and adjourning just before the Yuletide season also means something. The atmosphere politically will correspond to that of the season.

It should not be taken for granted, however, that powerful as the Government may be in votes supporting it, that it can afford not to bestir itself and forever keep looking forward with progressive and business measures. There are 91 members of the Conservative party who will be keenly critical of governmental inaction, and there is also said to be in formation a ginger group of Progressives, elected without any assistance whatever from the King forces, who will make certain demands for the West, which if not met, will stir up a hornet's nest. There is a group in Alberta which promises to raise the separate school question over the natural resources bill. It is also expected that Messrs. Woodsworth, Heaps and Bourassa will endeavor to translate many of their theories into action, and if their requests are ignored, there is the making of interesting trouble in the days to come.

There is little doubt but that the voice of the West, as the reward of a working majority for the Government, will be more strident than ever. Rural credits will be to the fore, also the Soldiers' Settlement Act. Delay will cause fretfulness and distrust. The real anchor of safety for the Government, however, is in the sound judgment of Hon. J. A. Robb, who undoubtedly had much to do with the victory last September. Mr. Robb promises further tax reductions, which with the revenue showing of the country this year can be made. Tax reductions are always popular, and if the Minister can apply the same to income taxation, he will gain a lot of strength. Moreover, it is not expected that Mr. Robb, with the Government having a fairly safe majority, will do much tariff tinkering. There should be the promise of stability. The West which is prosperous will hardly be as insistent as in the past for the reduction of the price of the implements of production.

But the life of any Parliament is fraught with pitfalls. It is the unexpected which causes embarassment. But there will be very little of that sort of thing in the first session. We do hope that the constitutional question will not be given exaggerated importance, but that the administration will apply itself from the very start to real business, that which affects the lives of the people far more transcendantly than technical questions relating to our status as a Dominion. Enough has been heard of the constitutional question; let us get down to work and take care of the destiny which awaits this Dominion. —St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

We are waiting to hear from aldermanic candidates. No crowding, please, gentlemen.

Mr. Raney picked a safe riding, but he didn't leave himself much margin at that.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—The bulk of cattle receipts this week, as for several weeks past, consisted largely of surplus and unfinished farm stock, not suitable for stable-feeding during the winter. In many cases perhaps farmers have marketed the unfinished stock for the simple reason that they have not feed grain on hand, due to unfavorable weather and harvesting conditions this Fall. At all events, there has been an over-supply of thin and common cows in the market this week, while the supply of good finished butcher steers and heifers has been comparatively scarce. But for the fact that trade conditions are generally good, with an active demand for butcher cattle showing some degree of quality and finish, the markets would have been badly congested. While there has been a moderate sized hold-over of the commoner cattle, the closing market practically absorbed all the left-overs as well as the late offerings of fresh cattle.

Export business was comparatively quiet, shippers taking only about 350 cattle.

Next week's export requirements will also be light, the demand being for a few heifers for Manchester. The week following it is expected there will be an active export demand for choice finished steers.

Choice butcher steers and heifers were steady to a shade firmer in the week-end market. Medium and common steady.

Stockers and feeders were in good demand at steady prices.

Cables firm at $11.50 to $12 cops.

Sheep and lambs firm.

Hogs firm at the close, on basis of $9.75 f.o.b. and $10.65 off cars.

Hogs 30,000; late bulk desirable 170 to 230 pound weights $11.75 to $11.90; packing sows $10.50 to $11.00; bulk better grade slaughter pigs $11.50 to $11.75; few selected lots upward to $11.85.

Sheep 12,000; best natives $13.65; bulk desirable lambs $13.00 to $13.50; fat ewes $5.00 to $6.50; top $7.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values had a general downward slant yesterday owing a good deal to ice conditions threatening to interfere with the Canadian crop movement. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-2 to 1c net lower, with corn 1-2 to 1 1-8c down; oats 3-8 to 7-8c up, and provisions varying from 20 to 25c decline to 5c advance.

Corn went lower with wheat and as a result of profit-taking on account of the recent sharp bulge in the corn market. Oats advanced because of more attention given to likelihood of a reduction soon in the oats visible supply total.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).— Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.85.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was generally quiet owing to the fact that prices bid were in most cases below working basis and only sales of a few odd loads of wheat were made to outside ports. There was some demand for wheat in the local market and a small volume of business was done in No. 1 Northern at 10 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, while No. 2 Northern sold at 5c lower, and No. 3 at 1c under, c.i.f. Bay ports. The market for oats was stronger with a inoderate trade passing.

A feature of the flour trade was the easier feeling that developed in the market for Winter wheat grades and prices were reduced 10c per barrel. This was attributed to the recent weakness in wheat, and the limited demand. The market for Spring wheat grades was quiet but firm.

Owing to the steady increasing demand for all lines of millfeed of late for both local and country account, the small offerings and the reduced production, the undertone to the local market is stronger and indications are that values will be advanced in the near uture. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and prices were steady.

The market for fresh and storage eggs was active and prices for fresh firsts were quoted 5c per dozen higher. The receipts were 1.037 cases.

The trade in potatoes was rather quiet ,but the undertone was firm. Earlier in the week sales of car lots of Quebec white were made as low as $1.35 per bag of 90 pounds, but sellers yesterday were firm at $1.40 to $1.45, and New Brunswick Green Mountains on spot sold at $1.50 to $1.55 per bag.

Further strength developed in the butter market and values were marked up another 1-2c per pound, which was attributed to the keener competition between local and outside buyers. The receipts were 163 packages.

The tone of the cheese market was firmer with a moderate amount of business passing over the cable and on spot. The receipts were 1,562 boxes.

Mrs. Storm's brother is in their house and is taking some of Mr. Storm's work.

Harold Darling and family have moved to Peterborough permanently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Foster and family are gone to Peterborough for the winter.

Miss Laura Bowen is in the hospital.

Albert Batten, Jr., will live on Harold Darling's farm.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The Lord's will has been shown to us in a most explicit manner and to those of us who believe what we say about the Lord's will it must be a time of thankfulness It is not for us to think that the Lord is right or wrong, because He does what we want or the reverse. Let us all, therefore, on the Sabbath Day unite in heart and voice in the praise of the triumph of Government Control.

J. H. BURNHAM.

TRUTH WILL OUT.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Truth will out even if not till after the election. The Globe of Thursday says: "The bootlegger will now have a competitor," and also, "Will the bootlegger now allude to the government as my hated rival?"

Now in all fairness isn't that just exactly what Mr. Ferguson contended? He proposed to take the business out of the hands of the bootlegger and control it, and now The Globe admits that control will be the "hated rival" of the bootlegger. The bootlegger will now disappear or almost so and the home-brewer will not find it necessary to make poison. Thus the two greatest curses of the age in Ontario will be removed.

BE FAIR.

HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN

Dear Mr. Editor:

A spirit of warm friendliness towards the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto exists all over the province and it increases with the years. It has been enhanced to a considerable extent by the clinics which have been conducted in so many centers in Ontario by doctors from the Hospital who have picked out curable cases which up to the time of the clinic had been seemingly hopeless—eventually sending the little patients home from the Hospital healed and fitted to be valuable assets to their municipalities, instead of remaining useless and pathetic burdens.

Your readers, in common with the people in all other progressive communities, are interested in the Hospital and what it is doing. The keen interest in crippled children manifested by the Rotary, Kiwanis, Gyro, Lions and other service clubs, throughout the province, has been of grand assistance in bringing in unfortunate children, often from remote districts to the various centres where the members of the Hospital staff have attended and have been able to hold huge clinics with the result that there has been a steady stream of children admitted to the Hospital from all over Ontario, for a long time.

This is but one branch of the thorough service rendered by the Hospital. It is the best equipped institution of its kind on the continent for the treatment of all child ailments. No Ontario child requiring its servces is refused admittance and all that modern medical and surgical skill combined with loving care can accomplish is bestowed upon the sufferer, without distinctions as to religion or nationality, or because those responsible for the child are in poor circumstances.

Heavy expense is involved in this merciful work, Mr. Editor, as you can realize. Ordinary sources of revenue ,including grants, fail to cover the actual cost of maintenance of the little patients, notwithstanding thrifty management. Old friends and new ones are relied upon to help in paying the difference and they include the readers of your valuable paper. The Hospital for Sick Children does not share in the funds of the Toronto Federation for Community Service, because it takes patients from all over the province.

Please ask your readers to remember the Hospital for Sick Children when they are doing their Christmas giving.

Faithfully yours,
H. H. WILLIAMS,
Chairman of the Trustees.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Although The Globe of Dec. 3rd says that "in the rural ridings which were expected to uphold dry principles there was a turnover of about 180,000," and therefore admitting as most prohibitionists now do that the upset of the O.T.A. was both general and complete I am not one of those who would shut the door on discussion or prohibit it.

There are I understand two main factors of the prohibitionists' contention. One is that since restrictive measures are necessary, prohibition (so far as humanly possible) is the best restrictive measure. The other factor is that it is an admitted fact that we should help our fellow man and thus our duty points to the introduction of the best restrictive measure. On the face of it this contention is fair and convincing enough to deceive most people. Only experience will convince them that there is something radically wrong about it and experience has just done so. We will see if Government Control is any better.

But the point that I wish to make is that it seems strange that while we are ready to prohibit the means and making as well as the consumption of fermented liquors God is not. At once the question arises therefore "Is there really a God?" and if so why will He not help us to prohibit by doing His own share. To some it seems absurd that in everything even into Hell itself man is permitted (not prohibited) by God to go to perdition if he wants to and all possible means of temptation are allowed by God to continue to beset him. To the believer, that is the full believer, not the half-believer, the answer instantly suggests itself—belief in and reliance on God. But half-believer, or sceptic, says: "Oh! that's all very well but that won't alter the fact that we, humans, can save a vast number and that it is our duty to do so." But how? They say by Prohibition! God says by Salvation and therefore by preaching and spreading the good news. Is it our duty then to save those who won't be saved? "No." The prohibitionist says "yes." That is where we differ. One bows to the will of God and teaches the doctrine. The other proposes to supplement it by something of his own and as we have just seen his plan is confounded.

J. H. BURNHAM.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—One of the speakers at the Fergusonite jollification on Wednesday evening asked the question "Where is Merrill?" Well I am on the job and at least 40 per cent of the Conservatives in the city are still on the job. If you don't think so, compare poll No. 28 which when in the Dominion elections Peck's vote was 213 and Duffus' vote was 71—just three to one in favor of Peck — Wednesday's vote was Bradburn 125 and Gillespie 168. The Examiner last night just had it upside down; the biggest turnover in the city. Now it is up to Mr. Ferguson to verify his promises and stop bootlegging and to clean up immorality up our side lines and make our citizenship of a higher type or get off the job.

Yours, etc.,
W. H. MERRILL.

MRS. HALL AND TWO BROTHERS FOUND NOT GUILTY BY JURY FOR MURDER OF MRS. ELEANOR MILLS

Jurors Return Acquittal Verdict After Five Deliberatoins.

RECEIVED CALMLY.

Set Motion For Bail on Second Indictment of Murder.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—As calmly as she had sat through twenty-four days of trial, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall last night heard a Somerset County jury say that she and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, were not guilty of the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills.

Five hours and two minutes after they left the courtroom the jurymen returned with the verdict of acquittal. The names of the defendants were called one by one, Mrs. Hall's being the last.

Her face lighted when "Not guilty," was the reply of the foreman to the question: "Harry Stevens," from the clerk of the court. There was an added radiance when the same announcement followed the name of William Stevens, for "Willie," although older ,has long been his sister's pet, and last night's verdict meant that Willie can soon go with his friends, the firemen, to fight blazes, large and small.

When she, too, was declared "Not guilty," Mrs. Hall's smile faded, to be replaced by a look of calm satisfaction.

Four minutes after the verdicts had been announced, the court was adjourned, and the three defendants surrounded by their relatives, who had crowded forward, left the courtroom ,the brothers to return to jail pending a motion for bail on a second indictment charging the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and Mrs. Hall to her New Brunswick home.

Mrs. Hall also is under indictment for the murder of her husband. There were no tears in Mrs. Hall's eyes when the verdicts were announced, but she seemed on the verge of tears as she walked from the courtroom, probably for the last time. Her lawyers said they were tears of joy and her voice choked as she acknowledged their handshakes.

Lieut.-Commander Arthur N. Carpender, her cousin, placed his arms about Mrs. Hall when the jury filed in, and kept her in close embrace until she arose to leave. There was, however, no apparent danger that she would collapse.

Henry Stevens smiled as the last verdict was read after looking stolidly ahead through the first two announcements. Willie, as usual, grinned broadly throughout. As he followed Henry to the tunnel leading from the courtroom to jail, Willie walked with his head up looking for some hand to shake. He has done most of the handshaking for the family during the trial.

Judge Frank L. Cleary was in line and the man who dropped "Willie" for an hour while he became William Carpender Stevens in an an impressive stay on the witness stand, shook hands warmly with the judge against the Cantonese remain nebulous. There has been much marching and counter-marching of troops and issuance and countermanding of orders.

The Shantung troops of Chang Tsung-Chang, who had advanced as far south as Pukow, not far from Nanking in Kiangsu Province, are reported to have retired northward. However, it is generally indicated that Chang Tso-Lin will establish headquarters in Tientsin.

One army, under Chang Tsing-Chang, it is believed, will advance toward the Yangtse River to support Sun Chuan-Fang, whose provinces have been invaded by the Cantonese. The northernmost force of the Southerners is at or near Anking in Anhwei Province, and first contact may be made there with the enemy.

Other force, directed by Chang Tso-Lin is expected to advance into Suiyuan district, the local name for north-west Chiihli Province and Northern Shansi Province, to strike the Kuominchun (National Army) remnants of the Peking Government which was overthrown last April. The Kuominchun has become menacing recently in its attempt to form a junction with the Cantonese forces likewise supplied with Russian officers and munitions.

Possibly a third force will be despatched by Chang Tso-lin southward along the Peking-Hankow railway to occupy territory at present belonging to Wu Pei-fu.

There are two known deterrents to the immediate advance against the Cantonese in the eastern section: First, the uncertain attitude of Wu Pei-fu's forces, whose three chief lieutenants have been openly flirting with the Cantonese. If these forces, now holding Chenchow in Honan Province, join with the Cantonese and strike eastward along the Lunghai Railway, they would seriously menace the Northerners' flank.

Second, is the threat of a descent of the Kuominchun troops from the Suiyuan district.

These considerations abruptly halted the impetuous Chang Tsung-chang's previous plans to drive into Kiangsu Province. This province, previously his, he is known to have been eager to regain.

A telegram has been received in Peking purporting to set forth the retirement of Wu Pei-fu from command, owing to dissension among his followers.

HANKOW, Dec. 4.—British Vice-Consul Hutchinson on Wednesday afternoon went to the offices of the Chinese Commissioner for Foreign Affairs in an attempt to settle the British Cigarette Company's dispute.

Chinese pickets, who numbered some 5,000 men armed with staves, later prevented Mr. Hutchins from leaving the building. At 7.30 p.m. the pickets said the Vice-Consul would be held up until an agreement was signed, and they added that two other foreigners were also held up there.

The strikers at the British Cigarette Company, which had announced the closing down of its factory, have refused to be paid off and organized a big demonstration demanding that the factory be immediately reopened on their own terms.

It is reported that Mr. Hutchison has been released and also that he got away by leaving through the back garden, Chinese officials assuring the pickets that the departing individual was the Italian Consul.

Tse Chinese were compelled to give the strikers $3,800, "paid by officials on account of the British Cigarette Company."

The strikers issued a manifesto saying that they are "fighting British imperialism and striving to secure the emancipation of China. Laborers will not cease to fight until the goal is attained."

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE HISTORIACL ASH HEAP

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Some archeologists have been tracing life by digging around in the Kjokkemoddingn (laugh that off! It means "kitten middens" of the British coast.

They have found dung heaps which are prolific in information about the people who lived in the far distant time when they were accumulated.

These dung heaps are composed mostly of shells. There are oyster shells, and shells of mussels, and cockle shells.

These shell fish would not think of living with each other, and hence they must have been gathered by man. They were formed by those parts of their meals which the early men and women found it impossible to eat.

Strong as were our pre-historic ancestors, they drew the line at oyster shells.

There were also fragments of bones and animals and birds, pieces of pottery, implements of stone and wood, and sometimes burned earth and stones.

From all this the investigators made a fair picture of the gentlemen and ladies who formerly inhabited the cost of the British Isles and ate shell fish.

Spurn not the dung heap. Some day when this civilization shall have passed and earthquakes or glaciers shall have removed New York and London, and with a few remaining men a new civilization shall have sprung up, perhaps on the coast of Africa, their savants will be poking around in our garbage heaps to see what manner of men we were.

From the skeletons of cats, rats and other exterminated animals, they will decide that we once ate these lively creatures.

Tin cans will be proven to be Ford cylinders, and bricks with advertisements burned into them will show the kind of books we had.

A New York rag picker has gone out of business because, he says, women do not wear enough clothes now to make the investigation of their refuse profitable.

But cheer up. Fifty thousand years from now our waste heaps will be considered valuable historical documents.

MR. MacNAIR GIVES HIS EVIDENCE

FINDS "FRUIT-A-TIVES" BEST CORRECTIVE FOR CONSTIPATION

MR. S. MacNAIR.

Mr. S. MacNair of New Mills, N.B., is one of the thousands who owe much to "Fruit-a-tives". Full of gratitude he writes the simple truth as follows:

"I can honestly say that 'Fruit-a-tives' are the best intestinal regulator I have ever used. Other remedies, and I have tried a great many, cause pain and griping, but 'Fruit-a-tives' always act easily and effectively. I was inclined to be constipated before, but now I am feeling first rate, and most sincerely recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to everyone."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the sworn enemy of constipation. Made from the intensified juices of fresh fruits combined with tonics, it is a natural medicine. It is not habit forming.

Don't let constipation plague you. Get back the bloom of health, the sparkle in your eye, the feeling that life couldn't be better. Begin at once, with "Fruit-a-tives"—25c and 50c a box anywhere—everywhere. 541

WHAT DO THE BAGPIPES SAY? WIN $1,500.00 IN CASH PRIZES

Read the Message of the Bagpipes—WIN A BIG CASH PRIZE

Down the street, in gay array, march the Campbell Highlanders, led by the famous Campbell Band, whose pipers are playing one of the best known Scotch airs.

Can you read the words of their message? Start at the top left, and this is what you see: "HET BELLCAMPS RAE COGMIN OT REFFO YUO SLAVUE." The letters in each word are a little mixed, but the words in the sentence are correctly placed. Rearrange the letters in each word, put each one into its right place, and you will see that the bagpipes' music is a message from the famous Campbell Hosiery Mills. For instance, the second word, BELLCAMPS, when the letters are correctly placed, will read CAMPBELLS. Can you solve the puzzle of the other words? Take your pencil and try it NOW.

This advertisement may never appear again. Act now! $1,500 in cash money prizes will be awarded to the winners of this fascinating puzzle contest.

FIRST PRIZE $1,000 Cash

2nd prize $150.00 cash
3rd " $100.00 cash
4th " $75.00 cash
5th " $50.00 cash
6th " $30.00 cash
7th " $15.00 cash
8th " $10.00 cash
9th " $10.00 cash
10th " $10.00 cash
11th to 20th prizes each $5.00 cash

20 PRIZES IN ALL

How the Prizes Will Be Awarded

The highest possible total any competitor can secure is 500 points. For each of the 37 letters you place correctly you will receive 10 points—a total of 370 points. 50 points will be given for general neatness and appearance. 80 points will be awarded for fulfilling the terms of the contest.

The persons securing the total of 500 points, or nearest thereto, will receive the first prize —$1,000 cash. The other cash prizes will be awarded—in order—to those obtaining the next highest totals.

Why These Splendid Cash Prizes Are Being Given

It is the custom of large concerns to spend big sums of money in advertising their goods. Instead—to spread the fame of Campbell Hosiery Mills, our high-quality products and our money-saving methods—we sell direct from the mills to our customers, and offer these huge cash prizes. If you want to win $1,000 spend a little time to solve the Bagpipes' message. You are not required to sell anything in order to win any of the prizes offered.

Read These Simple Rules

1. Give the name and date of this newspaper.
2. Send in your answer on one side of one sheet of paper only. Write your name and full address plainly in pen and ink in the upper right hand corner. State whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss.
3. Employees and their relatives, or persons connected in any way with the Campbell Hosiery Mills, are barred from the contest.
4. Only One Answer may be submitted by a person.
5. Answers will be judged and prizes awarded by a committee of prominent business and professional men, not connected with the Campbell Hosiery Mills. The names of these gentlemen will be announced to all who enter the competition before the closing date, June 30, 1927. Their verdict will be final.
6. All answers to this puzzle shall become the property of the Campbell Hosiery Mills.
7. As soon as we have received your answer you will be advised of the number of points gained, and asked to fulfill a simple condition.

CAUTION—Remember, Neatness and General Appearance will be the chief considerations in awarding the last 50 points.

Read Rule No. 2 carefully before writing your answer. Don't delay—Send in your answer today.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

By Alma Whittaker.

ANWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Ella H. wants to tell us about a good woman employer. She says she has worked in many homes and rarely found the mistress considerate and reasonable, but she has struck one now who seems almost too good to be true.

'An awful thing happened to me," writes Ella "that most mistresses would never overlook. I went off my day out and visited some friends. A man they knew had given them some wine and we had a party. It was poisonous stuff and it laid me out. I never went back for four days. Does she greet me all mad as she could have been? No, she says, "Oh, my dear, I am so glad you are safe, we were afraid you had a bad accident. We have been telephoning everywhere, even the hospitals." So I tells her the truth and says how ashamed I am and I guess she don't want me back. I wouldn't have served her like that for anything, her with young children and working as she does. But she says she knows it was a bad accident and won't occur again and for me to stay at work . . . and she hasn't mentioned it since and just tells the family I was pretty sick. I like working for a business woman, they are fairer and kinder and not everlasting interfering."

Thanks, Ella. We like that sort of letter—we get too many of the other kind.

Maurice L. says he is six feet 1 inch and very much underweight, which prevents him being accepted either for military or football at college. He is also troubled with "hives" and does not get much sleep. What can he do to fatten up and get rid of the hives? Maurice is 18, and being out of the football breaks his heart.

My physician says you probably grew up too fast, Maurice, so you must drink lots of milk and take as much rest as possible for a while. He also says that if your trouble is really "hives," a good dose of castor oil, and a teaspoonful of milk of magnesia after meals will get rid of them. A solution of baking soda will relieve the itching.

The college medical department will tell you how to take proper care of yourself.

Agnes B. has a good husband, two young babies and a mother who lives with them. They are financially well to do and keep help. So Agnes wants to write—preferably stories for children and little verses—but both hubby and mother laugh at her and discourage this, and although the house is a large one, there is no place in it where she can have privacy and try her writing. Do I consider it wicked of her to be ambitious and want to do things?

No, Agnes, I think it is natural and charming, and children's stories are wanted too. Don't let the family discourage you. Just coax them into rearranging the household so that you can have some privacy. I am sure you are clever enough to win your way.

Molly T. T. says her husband's mother is 76. Three times lately they have all been summoned to her bedside (40 miles away) only to have mother "stage a death-bed scene" and then brighten up and get better. So Molly refused to go the last time, as she was without help and it was too hard to take the children along. "She might live for years," says Molly, "and go right on staging these death-bed scenes. But my husband is so angry because I did not go. Is it my duty to go every time the old lady feels melodramatic?"

Poor Molly—It is a difficult situation. I think you should have a talk with her doctor. He could tell you her exact condition. If she is really on the verge of death, you must try to make the sacrifice.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Has it occurred to you that the graceful art of writing social notes is becoming more important? At least it seems to be more important now than it was a few years ago in this country. In England and France the well-worded, well-appearing, little social note has never lost its social importance—but there was a time during and after the war when in this country it seemed as if we became rather careless about this sort of thing.

We found it so much more convenient to telephone dinner and bridge party invitations. If you wanted to invite the Browns and the Smiths and Mrs. Smith's brother to dinner to meet your husband's sister, you telephoned to the Browns and asked your husband to deliver the invitation to Mr. Smith, whom he met every day in business and to pass the invitation along to Mrs. Smith's brother. That sort of informality is of course still usual, but we really do seem to be coming back to the courteous, old habit of sending written invitations.

It is really imperative to be able at any time to send forth a creditable sort of little note. This means that you must have the right sort of stationary as well as a presentable sort of handwriting. But as everyone knows there are lots of women in fair circumstances who never seem to have just the right sort of paper for the social note, and plenty of college graduates whose notes are fearfully immature. We are inclined to smile at the idea of having girls taught in school the graceful art of writing social notes and yet this really is an important social asset to any woman.

FASHIONS

NEGLIGEES.

By HEDDA HOYT

(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(United Press).—Negligees are incense for the soul! There was a time when only an ill or lazy person lounged about in a negligee, but today the fashionable woman wears them at tea time, the housewife spends quiet evenings at home adorned in their alluring softness and the business woman dons them as one might sip a cocktail. They act as a stimulant for her tired mind.

Kimonas and boudoir robes of utility type have been discarded for luxurious robes of silk, velvet, metal cloth and lace which would be fit to rivet and gaze of kings.

The modern housegobe is more like an evening gown in its colorings and gorgeous fabrics.

Geranium velvet with wide sleeves of gold lame cloth forms a model combining a popular color and material. The bodice is bloused at a low waistline and the skirt dips to the ground at the rear. A green velvet negligee with Dolman sleeves which are snug at the wrists has deep lapels of white fur and a fur hemline. Ostrich adorns lapels of many models.

The penchant for metals is reflected in trimmings and in the entire upper portions of pyjama suits. For instance, silver or gold pyjama coats are worn with colored trousers of velvet or satin. Appliques of the trouser material are used on the lower part of the coat. The three-quarter length coat is the model best liked this season, when the pyjama is used as a lounging robe. Most women prefer negligees on dress lines rather than trousered types, however. There is a tendency toward train effects, flowing sleeves, cape-backs and dainty feminine lines.

It is said that American women prefer straight-lined robes to the more intricate models which the French women favor. Materials are ornate, however, both in France and in America. Chinese Mandarin coats with satin robes beneath them are well liked as usual. The jumper dress is copied in some models and Spanish shawls with apertures for the head and arms are also included this season. Reds, greens, purples, coral, amethyst, rose and burnt orange shades have met with greatest approval.

SOMETHING FOR CHRISTMAS

A Christmas candle delivered in person on Christmas eve makes a little present far richer in thought and sentiment than the small price involved. You may buy suitable little brass candlesticks for no more than five or ten cents. To the handle of then stick tie with red ribbo a little card of Christmas cheer. Fix a red candle into the candlestick and start forth. It may be that you will have several of these candles to deliver. Just as you reach the house where you wish to leave the candle, light the wick and have it burning as you hand it in at the door. If you have a knack of verse writing you might write a few lines on the little card to the effect that the lighted candle brings your wish for Christmas cheer and your request that the little candle be allowed to burn itself out on Christmas eve.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Azure blue velvet frock with tulle on one shoulder and rhinestone ornament at waist.

In planning your winter wardrobe, don't overlook the fact that blue is a color to be reckoned with. It is really smart—light, dark, medium, dull and bright.

Roughly speaking, the shade of blue depends on the place of the hands on the clock. For street wear navy blue or some one of the darker bright shades is appropriate. Lighter shades of blue were worn for sport wear and general daytime wear last summer and there is good reason to believe that the light shades of blue will be much worn in the daytime at the winter resorts after Christmas. But for town wear at present it is only the fairly substantial blues that look smart by daylight.

For evening wear the light shades are in favor and some of the brighter shades as well. There is a baby blue that has been used in some of the new taffeta frocks and a brighter shade known as bluet. Azure blue is lovely in the evening and this is the shade of the velvet evening frock shown in the sketch.

Paris blue is one of the brighter shades suitable for day or evening that has been much shown recently. Drecoll of Paris favors a duller shade known as fog blue.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The cat's eye is today's talismanic gem, and is believed to protect its wearer against deceit and treachery, and also to warn him against deceiving others.

Today's natal stone is the emerald. To benefit by its powers, one should wear it in a ring on the left hand. The ancients believed that it brought to its wearer the power to achieve success through seeing far into the future.

Green is today's lucky color, bringing to those who wear it good luck through travel.

The red carnation is the flower for today.

THE TONIC THAT GIVES STRENGTH

After Acute Disease the Blood Must Be Built Up Before Recovery is Complete.

Fevers and other acute diseases like pneumonia and influenza, leave the patient weak, with thin blood and unstrung nerves. The period of convalescence is often long and trying, and years of poor health have frequently followed so brief an illness as an attack of influenza or pneumonia.

Much of this sort of misery could be avoided by taking steps to build up the blood so that it can carry to the nerves and other tissues of the body the elements they need to restore their normal functional activities. To build up the blood and restore it to its rich, health-giving vigor, no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From first to last it is their mission to improve the blood and thus restore good health and vigor.

The value of these pills in conditions described above is shown by the statement of Mrs. Rebecca O'Brien, Pembroke, Ont., who says: "In Nov., 1923, I was stricken with pneumonia, and at the time but little hope was held out for my recovery. However with the best of care I was able to walk about after some months. But I did not recover my strength. The doctor told me I was anaemic. My appetite was poor, I grew nervous and restless, I was deathly pale and practically gave up hope of ever being strong again. However, remembering that in my girlhood I had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, I decided to try them again. By the time I had used two boxes there was no doubt the pills were helping me. Continuing their use I was soon able to attend to my household duties. I continued taking the pills, however, until I had used twelve boxes, by which time I was enjoying better health than at any time in the previous ten years. In gratitude for what the pills have done for me, I give this statement in the hope that it may point the way to health to some other weak, despondent woman."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1926

While Venus is in benefic aspect today, according to astrology, there is a strong adverse rule. Mars and Saturn are in evil place.

This is a time for public activities on the part of women who are to exercise greater interest in politics and good government than in previous years.

There is a promising sign for women's clubs and for reform organizations which they will project in the coming months.

Mars is in a place threatening the peace and safety of the people everywhere. Crime is to reach such limits of daring that citizens will rise as in an army of combat, astrologers prophesy.

Today is rather menacing to the affairs of older men and women. The youth movement may overturn more traditions.

Great fluctuations of public opinion will disturb Great Britain, a London astrologer foretells. The government will have new difficulties it is forecast.

The violent death of a European ruler and the suicide of a foreign financier are forecast.

Again a new toxin for influenza is prophesied as a result of a new epidemic, which may prevail in the winter months.

Health will now be a matter of national concern and this anxiety will precede some sort of an epidemic, astrologers forecast.

Secret diplomacy is to be a matter of anxiety all through the winter, for the stars will encourage subterfuge and double dealing.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a strenuous year in which quarrels and disputes take place.

Children born on this day may have adventurous and stormy lives. These gifted ones often pay for talents, but are likely to make world fame.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1926

This should be a partly fortunate day, according, for the Sun, Jupiter and Uranus are all in benefic aspect. The Moon, Mars and Saturn are adverse.

All the signs appear to indicate a tendency toward new leaders, whom the people will welcome.

Education is well directed and the universities this year should prosper marvelously.

Big business is subject to the most stimulating influences making for sudden wealth to many, for great events are to demand much from merchants and manufacturers.

This should be a favorable day for diplomatic procedure of any sort since the understanding is likely to be quick and the sense of proportion good.

Much controversy between old ideas and new will be apparent in the coming months when strong reactionary tendencies will be apparent.

Widespread religious awakening is indicated and many religious and philosophical teachers will gain followers.

Craft and incompetence in many cities will be uncovered, the seers foretell, and in one of the central states revelations will be especially sensational.

The planetary aspects are menacing for the eastern and northern states, astrologers say. Storms of great violence and upheavals of nature may be expected.

Warning is given the people that something grave is to happen which will curb extravagance and reach the value of thrift.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a drab year, but they should be able to prosper by rising superior to circumstances.

Children born on this day probably will be fond of ourdoor life. These subjects of the Archer often are exceedingly retiring and studious.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BLACK BUTTON

The Fuzzy Fox met the Woozy Wolf in the forest one day and said:

"I know how we can catch Uncle Wiggily!"

"Tell me any bedtime story but that!" snarled the Wolf. "I have heard you say a dozen times, that you knew how to catch that rabbit, but something always goes wrong."

"This time everything will go right!" barked the Fox. "Listen! Uncle Wiggily now wears a big white button on the back of his coat. I heard he put it on to be stylish, but we can easily follow him by that white button, even in the darkest woods, and so we shall catch him."

"Uncle Wiggily doesn't wear a big white button on the back of his coat to be stylish," snapped the Wolf. "I heard about it. He and some of his little rabbits were lost the other night, and the only way they could follow him was by the white button."

"Well, if they could follow him, so can we," said the Fox. "I may be wrong about one thing, but I'm right about the other, and that is we must catch that rabbit if we want anything to eat. Are you with me?"

"I'll try it just once more," said the Wolf. "But are you sure Uncle Wiggily is going to walk in the woods after dark?"

"He has gone to play Scotch checkers with Uncle Butter the goat," answered the Fox. "He always stays late. We'll hide outside and follow him, which we can easily do by the white button on his coat. When we get him in the middle of the woods we'll jump out on him."

"Very well," said the Wolf. "But something tells me we are going to take a kerflumox of this."

"Nonsense!" said the Fox. "Come on."

So the two bad chaps slunk along until they reached Uncle Butter's house, where inside playing Scotch checkers was Uncle Wiggily. And in the midst of the game Aunt Lettie, the goat lady, happened to notice the white button on Uncle Wiggily's overcoat which hung in the hall.

"He doesn't need that white button on there any more than a cat needs two tails!" said the goat lady to herself. "And I need that white button to sew on my coat for the one that dropped off. I'll give Uncle Wiggily a black button in place of it. He'll never notice the difference." So Aunt Lettie made the change, and a little later, when Uncle Wiggily hopped out of Uncle Butter's house, the rabbit gentleman was wearing a black button where the big gleaming white one had been, but he didn't know that.

"He doesn't need that white button on there."

"Here he comes!" whispered the Fox to the Wolf as they were hiding in the bushes near the front steps. "Be ready to follow him."

"I hope everything comes out all right," snarled the Wolf.

By this time Uncle Wiggily was down the steps and on the ground, and as there was a light in the window of Uncle Butter's house the two bad chaps could easily see the rabbit for a time, even if he had no white button on the back of his coat.

But after they got out where it was dark, in the woods through which Mr. Longears must hop to reach his hollow stump bungalow, the Wolf said:

"I don't see any white button."

"It must be there. It was on his coat when he went in the goat's house," whispered the Fox.

"Run a little closer and run a little faster. We'll get him."

Hearing the patter of feet behind him, Uncle Wiggily thought it might be bad chaps, so he hopped very fast and slipped down a side path to take a short cut home. Faster and faster ran the Fox and Wolf, and, all of a sudden, the Fox cried:

"I see the white button! Come on!" He ran as fast as he could, with the Wolf beside him, for that bad chap also saw something white gleaming ahead in the dark woods. But, all of a sudden there was a bang and a crash and the Fox cried: "Ouch!" And the Wolf cried "Wow!"

"What happened?" asked the Fox when he saw no more stars and could get up after being knocked down.

"We ran into a white birch tree!" howled the Wolf. "Uncle Wiggily has got away. I don't believe he ever had a white button. It must have been black. But the white thing we saw was a tree with light bark and we bumped our noses hard against that. I knew this would be a flummox!"

The Fox had nothing to say, and the two bad chaps slunk home. But the rabbit gentleman was safe in his bungalow, wearing his black button. And if the lollypop doesn't try to crawl in the bed with the goldfish I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily and the surprises.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

THAT a newspaper gives you more value for the price than any other commodity you could buy. Where could you get the information and entertainment a newspaper affords for a few cents a week?

THAT a newspaper is the most perishable article sold. Even more so than meat or fruit. What is more dead than yesterday's newspaper? News, to be news, must be served to the public rapidly. The average reader wants to learn something that he does not know and he likes to be surprised. Circulation can be built only by the confidence of the public that when a newspaper is purchased there will be something to read that is worth while.

THAT news alone does not make a newspaper. There must be other features that will appeal to minds that think along different channels. No newspaper hopes to please its readers with everything that is printed in its columns. The editor hopes, however, that each feature printed will appeal to at least 40 per cent of the readers. If it does he will be satisfied.

GELATIN

The largest amount of gelatin is obtained from bones, hides and membranes of animals. This gelatine is extracted by boiling or by a chemical process. Some of certain grades is used for commercial purposes and the finer grade sold is edible gelatin.

Gelatin is a protein, but not as complete a protein as beef, because it is lacking in amino acids, but it is a very valuable addition to the diet, as it is easily digested and makes other foods more palatable.

Excessive acidity in the body will be neutralized by gelatin, so that it is especially desirable for those suffering from hyperacidity of the stomach.

There are many forms of gelatin put on the market under various trade names. These are quite as wholesome as the plain gelatin, being flavored with acids imitating fruit juices and colored with harmless coloring.

It is possible to use gelatin with almost any other article of food. Ice cream can be more easily made at home if gelatin is added, as ice cream prepared in this manner hardens more readily.

The most common manner of serving gelatin is to use it at the end of a meal as a dessert, with plain or whipped cream, but it may also be used in different forms during the course of the dinner. One way of preparing an attractive and nutritious dish is to chop up some non-starchy vegetables, such as celery, asparagus and carrots and put a small portion of this mixture into each cup of gelatin just before it begins to harden, so that you have a gelatin salad when it cools. The cups may be inverted on a salad plate when ready to serve. This makes an attractive as well as a palatable salad.

Gelatin also has medicinal value different from any of the other foods. If large quantities of it are taken, the coagulating power of the blood is increased. If one is subject to hemorrhages, this can be overcome by using gelatin each day for a short time. In the case of excessive uterine hemorrhages, the flow can usually be stopped after two or three packages of gelatin have been taken.

Prepare the gelatine by putting a small quantity into a cup and pouring hot water over it. This can be taken as soon as it has been cooled down sufficiently.

Prepare the gelatine by putting a small quantity into a cup and pouring hot In this way the patient can take the contents of several packages within a few hours. During an acute bleeding attack, the results will seem quite marvelous.

If you are going to have teeth extracted, do this a day or two before going to the dentist and you will only have the minimum amount of bleeding.

Add gelatin to your daily diet, substituting it for the harmful desserts that you may be now using.

OLD MASTERS

The sun upon the lake is low,
The wild birds hush their song,
The hills have evening's deepest glow
Yet Leonard tarries long.
Now all whom varied toil and care
From home and love divide,
In the calm sunset may repair
Each to his lov'd one's side.

The noble dame, on turret high,
Who waits her gallant knight,
Looks to the western beam to spy
The flash of armor bright.
The village maid, with hand on brow
The level ray to shade,
Upon the footpath watches now
For Colin's darkening plaid.

Now to their mates the wild swans row,
By day they swarm apart,
And to the thicket wanderers slow
The hind beside the hart.
The woodlark at its partner's side
Twitters his closing song—
All meet whom day and care divide,
But Leonard tarries long!

FOOD AND HEALTH.

WHEN THE CHILDREN ARE LEARNING

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

"At least I have learned what I can't cook," says a graduate of one of our well known home economics colleges. This observation was, of course, made by a girl old enough and mature enough to do her own thinking. There is a principle there, however, that may help mothers when they are guiding the younger children in their first attempts at home cookery.

Teachers frequently make use of the advice of letting their students learn by mistakes. What is known as the university method of study follows this principle. The student is shown the laboratory, given the problem and left to work it out. So when the children first begin to cut out cookies from left-over bits of dough, why not utilize this same principle?

Of course, it takes more time! Of course, it is "lots more bother!" But so does living take time and so is living a bother if we do not keep our eyes above the bother and fix them on the joy of final accomplishment.

To return to the children. One must not waste good food material, of course, in letting the youngsters work out their culinary salvation. The very fact that they are making cookies from left-over bits gives an idea for this work as a whole. Plan to let them work with left-over bits of dough with the last half cupful of white sauce and so on. Give them small dishes so that they may bake their little half cupfuls of scalloped dishes or brown their tiny "dabs" of biscuit without undue waste of good food material.

Naturally, when they come to go to school, they will have more formal instruction in cookery and this is well. So many mothers, however wait until the cooking teacher begins her work before they themselves take any interest in the children's learning to handle food material. How much better to let the interest begin in the plays at home instead of having home interest follow the first dismal attempts at cookery in school. In such a series of talks as this, the interest always begins and ends with the nutritional aspect of any question discussed. When the tiny children have their natural interest in cookery trained at an early age, we are doing far more for them than teaching them to bake ginger snaps. Unconsciously, they are absorbing information that later will be invaluable to them in their studies in nutrition. No one was ever yet well fed who was fed on badly cooked food!

LECTURE GIVEN ON IRISH POETS

Works of Synge and Keats Taken Up Py Professor Pratt.

AT Y.W.C.A.

The work of James Synge and William Butler Yeats, two of the best known of modern Irish poets, was the subject of the lecture last evening, one of a course on Modern Writers, being given at the Y.W.C.A. during the winter season, by Professor A. E. Pratt, of Victoria University, Toronto. The speaker illustrated his discourse with some very interesting excerpts from the works of the two poets.

"The Irish movement is one of the most significant of the age," he said, referring to many of the illustrious names associated with this movement, in Douglas Hyde, Gavin Duffy, Stopford Brooks Lady Gregory, James Synge and William Butler Yeats, the latter the most famous of them all.

"Yeats' poems are simply re-habilitations of old myths in exquisite rhythm, with no attempt at realism. But James Synge made an imporant departure from the study by the Irish writers of the shadowy past in Irish legend. He went to the homes of the peasants of Ireland, seeking to reproduce in rhythm their language when excited, when under the influence of sorrow, of tragedy and of laughter. He thought that some people, in moments of strong excitement, express themselves in rhythmical language, and he wished to reproduce this rhythmical language of the heart in prose and in poetry. His "Riders to the Sea" is as great a tragedy, within its limitations, as has ever been produced, and there is sorrow in every line of it, poignant and moving, just as there is laughter in the words of "The Tinker's Wedding." In his portrayal in words of emotion, Synge uses language that is as sweet as a nut."

The professor read passages from "Riders to the Sea" giving a splendid impression of the tragic pathos and elemental simplicity of its story, the tale of Moira, the mother, her two daughters, Norah and Kathleen, and the two sons, Bartley and Michael, both of whom are taken from her by the cruel sea.

Comparing the work of the two men, the speaker said that the poetry of William Butler Yeats was far removed from life in the ordinary acceptation of the term. He steered clear of anything that might be socialistic or pragmatic in character. He wanted to speak only of the Ireland "of the heart," and to present beautiful subjects in a beautiful way. Yeats' "Cap and Bells," read by the professor, was a fine example of his delight in fanciful verbal melody, in symbolism without meaning or reason. His idea of poetry is the transcription of a dream, with symbolic gestures and images, and he inclines to the belief that poetry is the expression of the sub-conscious mind, seeking translation of its hidden desires and impulses. He is a firm believer in the Freudian philosophy that all of our fiction, art poetry and even religion is simply an expression and fulfillment of a wish that has never been, and may never be fulfilled in reality, but only in dreams. To Freud, art and literature are escapes from reality and Yeats' poetry is an expression of this theory. It is the purest type of poetry as it was in the far distant past when the Irish race was dreaming.

Professor Pratt made an interesting comparison of the poetry of Yeats and Swinburne, giving bits from the work of each. Swinburne excels in syllabic and alliterative devices packing everything possible into the line, while Yeats believes that the line should be broken by frequent pauses, and that poetry should contain enough melody to send the reader almost to sleep and enough jarring pauses to keep him awake. The speaker concluded his discourse with a reading or two of the loveliest of Yeat's poetic bits: "The Song of the Wandering Angus" and "The Lake Isle of Innisfree."

A hearty vote of thanks was voiced by Miss Margaret Hamilton, in the chair who also thanked the assisting artists of the evening, Miss Agnes Logan and Mr. Maurice Park, whose instrumental and vocal contributions to the programme were rendered in their usual splendid fashion, and evoked much applause from the audience.

Old World Appearance But Modern in Every Way

By J. Aime Poulin.

This delightful example of English domestic architecture combines an exceedingly attractive "old world" appearance with everything modern in the way of convenience and comfort.

The outside dimensions are approximately 44 by 42 feet. The main walls are of rubble stone construction with the gables and projections finished in white stucco. A slate roof using gray and red colors in the proportion of two to one would be very charming, or a less expensive and almost equally effective alternative may be achieved by using dipped cedar shingles, one half black, one third brown and one sixth red. The architect also suggests the exterior woodwork be painted white.

Entering the front door one finds a roomy and convenient coat closet at the left and in the same vicinity, easy access to the kitchen and dining room. At the other end of the hall is the stairway landing and the living room entrance.

We all appreciate the effect upon entering a large, bright, and tastefully furnished living room. They are three important factors, especially the first two because in their case it is a matter of as it is in the beginning so shall it be forever after. This room is 14 by 24 feet and bountiful light is assured by the large window area which is furthermore not rendered obsolete by such counteracting influences as verandah ceilings, etc. In addition to the two groups of windows at each end of the room, there is also a small high window surrounded by built in bookcases at either side of the fireplace. You will notice that the door openings have been so placed as to complete a balanced treatment of the entire room which is very popular from a furnishing viewpoint.

The dining room is 12 by 16 feet and has direct access to the back porch and terrace, supplemented of course, by an attractive garden.

Every modern convenience for the woman who does her own housework has been provided for in the kitchen and pantry, and much attention has been devoted to the saving of steps. This is perhaps best illustrated by the position of the room itself in relation to the front and service entrances.

Upstairs are three bedrooms; four clothes closets; two bathrooms; dressing room connecting the owner's room with one of the bathrooms; linen locker and trunk room.

The hall is so arranged as to almost provide another room: with its window seats under the dorners it would be a splendid play space for the children.

Two of the bedrooms are 11 ft. 3 in. by 14 ft. and the clothes closets in these rooms are provided with a small window. The other bedroom is 8 ft. 6 in. by 11 ft. and has direct access to a private bath room which would be a very desirable arrangement if a maid is kept. If not, this bathroom might then be made accessible from the hall in order to also serve the other bedroom and afford more privacy to the owner's suite.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications for this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address, Mr. J. Aime Poulin, 49 Rue King Ouest, Sherbrooke, Que. Copyright 1926, MacLean Building Reports, Limited.

SELECTIONS FOR SENATORSHIPS

Graham is a Certainty, Percy Parker For Tariff Board.

KERNAHAN LIKELY.

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—Hon. George P. Graham will be appointed to the Senate in place of the late Senator Blain. It is understood when he was named chairman of the tariff advisory board that this was merely to keep the genial George in harness until there was a vacancy in the Red Chamber. Now he moves up. It is reported here that Percy Parker, a strong Toronto Liberal, will succeed Mr. Graham as head of the tariff board.

The vacant Irish-Catholic senatorship in Ontario is reported to be earmarked for W. T. Kernahan, head of the O'Keefe Breweries, and a strong supporter of Liberalism in Ontario.

DR. LINGWOOD STARTED HERE

Retiring Teacher of Malvern Collegiate Moves To Lakefield.

GREATLY LOVED.

Seldom has the retirement of a Toronto teacher been as keenly regretted as that of Dr. F.H.Lingwood, who was the guest of honor last night at the commencement exercises of his old school, Malvern Collegiate.

Dr. Lingwood was born in India. Upon being complimented on his easy, mastery of languages and histories he has been known to admit laughingly to the existence of a family legend in which one of his ancestors, a Bristol officer, married a beautiful Indian princess. Another Lingwood in the service of the Indian government, so thoroughly mastered the language that he was able, with the aid of disguises, to go among the people and keep the government in touch with brewing trouble in time of unrest.

Dr. Lingwood spent but a short time in India, being sent to England for his schooling at an early age.

Taking his B.A., from London University he came to Canada 34 years ago, and began his teaching of young Canadians in the town of Peterborough.

In Canada, Dr. Lingwood has taken further degrees, his M.A., from Trinity College and his Ph.D., from Queen's.

It was near Peterborough, in the village of Lakefield, that Dr. Lingwood met and married Miss Emily Atwood; and it is to this beautifully situated village on the banks of the Otonabee River, that Dr. and Mrs. Lingwood have now retired.

Dr. Lingwood left his Peterborough school to teach in the High School at Kingston. From there he went to Simcoe, Norfolk county, where an old pupil says, he is still most affectionately remembered.

Recalled to Kingston in later years Dr. Lingwood had the interesting experience of teaching the children of his former pupils.

Dr. Lingwood came to Malvern high school, Toronto, in 1909, when the school was very small. Here he took an active interest in promoting the school sports and was the original founder of the literary society and school paper.

PLEASING RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY

Pupils of Mrs. Greenslade Show Talent and Fine Training.

A very pelasing recital, well attended, was held in the Conservatory of Music hall last evening, given by three pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade; Miss Mary Wood, A.T.C.M., pianiste, assisted by Miss Violet Buckham, soprano, and Mr. Charles Clark, tenor. The recital was splendidly acrried out, the numbers by the three assisting musicians evoking much applause from their hearers. Miss Wood, whose graduation in music and receipt of the degree of Associate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, was celebrated in this recital, played some very difficult numbers with ease and precision. Her assured delivery of difficult music her carefull execuction and her smooth, crystal-clear tone, make her pianoforte renditions exceptionally pleasing, and she had excellent support in the attractive, graceful tones of Miss Buckham's soprano voice and the fine tenor of Mr. Clark.

Miss Wood received a number of beautiful floral tributes, and Miss Buckham was presented with a pretty bouquet. Mrs. Greenslade also received a bouquet of roses from her three pupils.

Mr. R. Gliddon presented her diploma to Miss Wood, commenting on the work of the students in obtaining this degree and on the impetus given to their studies by the examinations necessary to obtain it.

The following is the programme, in which special mention should be made of Miss Wood's rendition of the Mendelssohn Chopin and Rubenstein selections, the latter a seldom-played, attractive number, and of Mr. Clark's excellent handling of the excerpts from Handel's "Creation."

Piano—Andante and Rondo Capriccioso, Mendelssohn; Miss Mary Wood.
Vocal—In Native Worth (Recitative and Air from Creation), Handel; Mr. Charles Clark, Tenor.

CHARGES DROPPED DEFENDANTS FREED

Court House, Sommerville, N. J., Dec. 4. — All the defendants in the Hall-Mills murder case were released from custody to-day when Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker, on motion of Attorney General Katzenbach, quashed the indictments which remained against them after yesterday's acquittal of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, for the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills. Indictments quashed to-day were as follows:

Mrs. Hall and her two brothers, and their cousin, Henry De La Bruyere Carpender, charged with the murder of Rev. Edward W. Hall, Henry Carpender, charged with the murder of Mrs. Mills.

Attorney General Katzenbach took charge of the proceedings, when Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson telephoned that he would not come to Somerville for the proceedings.

Lita Chaplin's Mother Blamed For Troubles

WICHITA, Kansas, Dec. 4. — (United Press.)—A defense for the behaviour of Lita Gray Chaplin is offered by her father, Robert E. McMurray, a printer here, who blames his divorced wife for the marital trouble of the Chaplins.

"What Lita needs," he said, "is someone to lean on besides her mother. Lita has a lot of sense, but of course she's young."

Even when Lita had juvenile roles, her mother set a fast pace with the daughter's $300 a week contract by buying automobiles and other luxuries," he said.

Dome Mine and Hollinger Slump On Listless Market

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—Trading was listless on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, with only 267,385 shares changing hands and gains and losses being equally distributed over the list. Dome Mines was weak, the issue opening at 1175, but slumping to 1130, down 30 cents. Hollinger Consolidated was also weaker, declining 5 at 1880. Similar loss was recorded in Mining Corporation at 278. Consolidated West Dome Lake was up 3-4 at 23, Gold Hill Mines was 3¼ higher at 46, and Nipissing was up two at 650. Premier registered a gain of three at 200, and Vipond Consolidated was up one at 158.

Wheat Scores An Advance Pressure To Sell Existed

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Disclosure that great pressure to sell existed in wheat market gave prices an upward swing to-day after a set-back at the start. Buyers here were encouraged on account of steadiness of Liverpool quotations in face of larger shipments. Opening at 1-8c. to 1-2 censt decline, Chicago wheat prices quickly scored a material advance. Corn, oats and provisions were firmer, corn starting at 1-8 cent to 3-8 cent up and later showing gains all around.

LLOYD GEORGE WARNS BRITISH AGAINST WAR

Says Pressure Is Being Brought To Bear on Government.

TO ACT IN CHINA.

Record of West in China Black, He Tells Liberal Audience.

BRADFORD, Eng., Dec. 4.— (Canadian Press.) —China is but struggling for the fundamental right of every free and self-respecting nation, former Premier Lloyd George declared in addressing a Liberal meeting here to-day.

"There are some people anxious for war in the Far East" he said. "It is interesting to find the usual preliminaries to war in the Tory press—tales of outrages, suggestions of worse to come, and panicky stories naturally calculated to make people anxious.

"The record of western civilization in China is indeed black. We forced opium upon China against the will of its greatest moral teachers. It is not surprising that China has rebelled against the indignity, humiliation and injustice inflicted upon her by western powers."

Great pressure, he said, was being brought to bear upon the British government to do something impulsive and provocative in the Far East, and it was essential that public opinion should be aroused.

"I record my warning," he declared.

AMOY, Dec. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Several detectives of the defeated northern regime in Foochow were captured and killed this morning by students who had been convicted of radical activities and imprisoned. The number slain is not known here. The students had been released only recently and had started out on a campaign of revenge.

PRINCESS FAVORS COUNTRY LIFE.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (Associated Press).—Princess Mary is more devoted to country-life than other members of the Royal families. With two children on her hands, the Princess has been taking less interest in London social affairs, and it is announced that she will spend most of the winter at Goldsborough Hall, in Yorkshire, and in planning many hunts with the Bramham Moor pack of hounds.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

NATIONAL STEEL CASTINGS LTD. TO LOCATE IN CAMPBELLFORD; WILL BE VALUABLE INDUSTRY

wn's Ability To Offer Good Power Contract Attracts Firm.

USES ELECTRICITY.

Plant Will Employ About 25 Men and Produce Two Tons Daily.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 4. — angements have been practically mplete to establish in Campbell rd a new industry to be known as National Steel Castings Ltd., which will manufacture small steel and alloy castings by the electric furnace method; electric current being the principal fuel utilized in the process. The fact that Campbellford is able to make a definite term contract for power at favorable rates, constitutes one of the chief reasons for locating the industry in this town.

The foundry, when completed will contain as initial installation, one Moore "Lectromelt" furnace having a maximum daily capacity of about two tons of steel castings, will require about 260 H.P., for operation, and will employ about 25 men.

The product small steel and alloy castings of high quality, will have an almost unlimited market in Canada.

While there are a number of foundries in this country making large steel castings less than half a dozen plants are electrically operated, or specialize in the smaller product.

Consequently the delivery on small steel and alloy castings is generally —slow, and a considerable quantity, valued at several millions of dollars, is imported annually from the United States and European Countries.

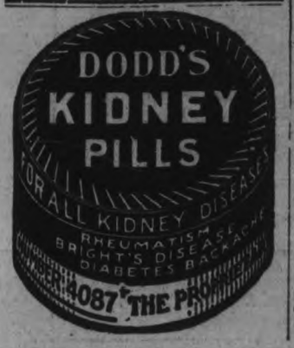
Among the industries regularly absorbing small castings, either in the manufacture of their goods, or for repair parts of their process equipment are the autombile and tire industries, the manufacturers of agricultural implements and electrical apparatus, the general machine trade, the pulp and paper plants, and the very important mining industry of Northern Ontario and Quebec. The railways also use large quantities of steels castings for equipment repairs, but this class of castings is of somewhat lower grade and price than the proposed product of the Campbellford foundry.

With leaders in Canadian business and finance prophesying a period of immediate and general prosperity in this country and with the enormous expansion in the pulp and paper industry now in progress, and the rapid and considerable development of mining in Northern Ontario, there is every prospect for the success of a business which will supply such essential machine parts as steel castings.

In nearly all manufactures of iron or steel where small castings are used, there is a steadily growing tendency to substitute steel for iron, the superior strength of the former being well worth the additional cost.

The parties interested in the proposed local steel foundry are, most of them, quite well known here and include S. B. Wright, manager of Deloro Smelter; T. A. Brown of Toronto; N. L. Turner of Belleville and J. C. Birmingham and F. S. Lozier of Campbellford.

Messrs. Wright and Turner are men of wide metallurgical experience, and the latter, who will manage the plant here, has for the past three years, managed and operated successfully an electric steel foundry, using equipment similar to that proposed to be employed in the local plant.



Pupils Whitewash High School Principal

EUGENE, Oregon, Dec. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—J. W. Swan, Principal of Eugene High school, who has been at odds with the student body over football matters, was drenched with whitewash poured from above when he appeared on the stage at an assembly of students and faculty members yesterday.

DECLARES BODY WAS PLANTED

Claims Father For Purpose of Throwing Guilt on Son.

CONTINUE SEARCH.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Dec. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— A conviction that the body of Clara Olson was "planted" for purposes of discovery on a hillside overlooking the home of her lover, Erdman Olson, and to direct suspicion toward him, was voiced yesterday by Albert Olson, father of the missing 18 year old college boy, who was charged with the girl's murder.

Clara, 22 year old farmer's daughter, an expectant mother when she disappeared from her father's home on Sept. 9, was found yesterday by a searching party in a shallow grave within a quarter of a mile of the tobacco plantation where Erdman lived with his parents.

The search for young Olson, who disappeared from Gale College a day after her father had threatened his arrest if the girl was not produced, brought word to Crawford County officials to-day that suspects are being held at Danville, Ills., Des Moines, Iowa, Evansville, Wis., and Crawfordsville, Ind. The sheriff, viewing a suspect at Wwight, Ills., reported that the youth held there was not Olson.

of common pleas, who has sat with Justice Charles W. Parker of the Supreme Court throughout the trial.

A tense courtroom heard the end of the trial, one month to the day after it began. The jury went out at 1.44 and came back at 6.46, to return all three verdicts in two minutes.

Before the jury entered, Justice Parker issued a sharp warning to the crowd not to make a demonstration of either approval or disapproval. His injunction was followed to the letter, but there was some cheering in the rotunda outside the room, almost the minute the first "Not guilty" was uttered.

A newspaper reporter tried to get through the doors, ordered closed by the court, and was dragged by three bailiffs before the bench for a reprimand.

Few people here last night believed that any of the defendants would be tried on the second indictment or that Henry De La Bruyrere Carpender, their cousin, would ever go to trial.

CHILDREN LIKE THEM

Baby's Own Tablets Are Effective and Easy To Give.

You do not have to coax and threaten to get the little ones to take Baby's Own Tablets. The ease with which they are given, as compared with liquid medicines, will appeal to every mother. None is spilled or wasted; you know just how big a dose has reached the little stomach. As a remedy for the ills of childhood arising fro derangement of the stomach and bowels they are most satisfactory.

Mrs. Rose Veyer, Willimantic, Conn. says:—"I used Baby's Own Tablets in the Canadian Northwest and found them a wonderful medicine for children's troubles, especially indigestion and constipation. I have also given them to my children for simple fever and the restlessness accompanying teething and they always gave relief. I can recommend Baby's Own Tablets to all mothers."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Faith," said Mr. Lane, appearing on noiseless, stockinged feet at the doorway of his wife's room, where Faith was trying to make the invalid comfortable for the night, "George Pruitt and his sister are on the front porch. They want to see you."

"My land! Can't you ask 'em in?" Mrs. Lane's fretful, feeble voice demanded from the depths of her pillows. "And you lookin' a sight! I've told you a thousand times not to set around in your stockin' feet. Does seem to me like you could manage to look like somebody! What's she like? Stuck up little priss, I'll be bound."

'Seems like a right nice girl" Mr. Lane answered mildly. "Not what you'd call pretty exactly, but stylish and lively. - Would you like 'em to step in and see you, Martha? They'd be right glad to, I know. Nothin' stuck up about them young people."

"Give me by bood-war cap, Faith —that crocheted one of yellow and pink. And my yellow silk dressin' sack. And my carnation talcum. It's in the top right-hand bureau drawer."

'Do you really want to see them, Mother?" Faith hesitated uneasily. She had met Selma Pruitt, had admired the lively girl's wit, her ability to mimic those whom her capricious sense of humor chose as fair prey, but had hoped her talents would never be turned upon herself or her family.

"Reckon you're ashamed of your mother," Mrs. Lane accused her. "Your fine friends are too good to be brought into your own home."

Without another word, Faith found and brought to her mother the articles she had demanded, helped her adjust, over her straggling, thin gray hair, the absurd crocheted "boudoir cap" and fastened the lace-trimmed yellow silk "dressing sack" over the vast bosom.

"Hello, Faith, you splendid young goddess!" Selma Pruitt's laughing lyric-soprano voice called out. "You always make me feel like an underdone half portion of squab. I've brought your Romeo with me —simply pining away he was, poor darling. What in the world have you done to our Georgie?"

"Awfully glad to see you, Selma." Faith offered her hand with shy dignity. "How are you, George? You aren't emaciated. I'm sorry Cherry isn't here. She went to a dance at the Warren's house."

"At the Warrens?" Selma demanded, with staccato surprise. "That's odd. Frances Warren and Joe Stevens came by our house ten minutes ago to ask us to go to the movies with them."

"Then——' Faith drew a sharp breath, but smiled quickly. "I must have been mistaken as to where the dance was to be. Bill Warren called for her."

"But Bill——" Selma began, looking toward George, who silenced her with an imperative frown and jerk of the head, unseen by Faith.

"My mother would like to meet you, Selma." Faith led the way into the living room. "She's ill, you know. She doesn't see many people, and she's rather lonely. Would you mind—just a few minutes?"

"Love it," Selma Pruitt answered promptly. "Come along, Georgie, and quit making faces at me. You look like a gargoyle. Hes so afraid I'm going to make a break about you and him, Faith. I teased the poor darling into confessing that he'd proposed to you and you'd turned him down. Please reconsider —fr our sakes. He's been a terrible person to live with since he developed this unrequitted pash."

"Oh shut up! I see myself telling you anything again!" George Pruitt growled at his sister.

"This is George's sister, Selma, Mother. "Faith made the intodruction briefly.

'I been readin' about your doin's in the society columns." Mrs Lane extended a puffed hand. "So you're George's sister! I s'pose it's time the two families was gettin' acquainted, seein' as how George is monopolizin' Faith's time so's she can't hardly turn around without steppin' on him. I don't know what we'll do without our girls when they marry and leave the old folks to scratch for themselves, but as I tell Mr. Lane, 'life is just one thing after another,' and we wouldn't want——"

"What an adorable cap, Mrs. Lane!" Selma came to Faith's rescue with a rush of words. "I do wish I could crochet. What stitch do you call that? It looks so intricate."

"I'll teach you," Mrs. Lane offered affably. "It's the popcorn stitch. You chain three——".

Faith, blinded with tears of mortification, turned abruptly toward the door. George rose instantly and followed her, overtaking her in the hall.

"Don't mind Selma", he pleaded in a whisper. "I couldn't help telling her. She's a good sport, Faith, and she's crazy about you. All that's the matter with her is that her tongue is loose at both ends. Are you mad at me, dear?"

"No" Faith choked. "But shee'll make fun of Mother to all your friends. She's just leading her on—"

"I'll strangle her if she does," George Pruitt said savagely, under his breath. "You haven't changed your mind, have you dear? I—I'm pretty miserable Faith."

Faith backed against the wall, weakly, for temptation had swooped down upon her overwhelmingly. If she were engaged to George, Bob Hathaway's undeclared, scarcely realized love for her would die still born. And if she told him frankly that Cherry was flinging herself into an old man's arms because he, Bob, did not care for her, would not his infatuation flame into life again?

Wasn't it the only way to save Cherry? And maybe—sometime—she could learn to love George. He was such a dear, would be so good to her.

"Don't ask me—now," she whispered, giving him both her hands in an unmistikable gesture of promise.

Cherry insists that the house be done over in honor of the rich Mr. Cluny's promised visit. And the young lady is caught in a lie.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

MacAlpine—Lain.

A quiet wedding took place at the Seymour parsonage at 10.30 on Wednesday morning, Nov. 24th, when Violet Gertrude Lain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lain, was united in marriage to Mr. Kenneth Canfield MacAlpine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacAlpine, all of Seymour. Rev. C. D. Daniel performed the ceremony, the young couple being attended by Mr. Carman MacAlpine and Miss Veta Lain.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. MacAlpine left on the C.P.R. train from Havelock for points west. They will reside in Stanwood.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a pair of earrings, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links.

WEDDING BELLS.

WILSON—ALLAN.

COBOURG, Dec. 4.— The residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Allen, William street, Cobourg, was the scene of a pretty marriage on Tuesday, Nov. 30th, when their youngest daughter, Alice Eldine, was united in marriage to John A. Wilson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Provincial Highway East. Rev. Dr. Alfred Brown conducted the ceremony. The house was pretti ly decorated with ferns and rose carnations. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, were a gown of beige georgette and lace, with large black velvet hat. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and lily of the valley. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome silver coffee service.

Immediately after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served, the table being centred with the wedding cake in a bed of tulle with rose tapers. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left later for a trip.

The makers of carnival hats say that after Valentino's death, public taste swung from sheik turbans to Ben Turpin derbies for fancy dress parties.

BRITISH COLUMBIA PROVIDES TREES

Christmas Greens For Entire Coast Grown in Province.

VANCOUVER, B.C. Dec. 4.—(By Canadian Press).—British Columbia forests are again being called upon to meet the Pacific Coast's demands for Christmas trees.

Thousands of young trees are being cut in the province mainly on Vancover Island, and will be shipped to California and other coast states during the period intervening before Christmas. Already several large shipments have been made.

Last fall buyers came from the United States and let several contracts for supplying these trees in carload lots but prices have advanced owing to the fact that government is insisting on the payment of stumpage which some contractors evaded in past years.

Despite the volume of the Christmas tree business—close to 300,000 being cut last winter—the effect on the commercial forests of the province is not appreciable, according to experts.

BARN BURNED CROP DESTROYED

Threshing Outfit Had Just Been Set on Barn Floor.

TWO DAYS' WORK.

LINDSAY, Dev. 4 — A fine big barn belonging to Mr. Charles D. Logan of South Verulam, was burned to the ground at 6.30 last night. Mr. Creighton Cosh had set his threshing outfit ready for today's work when a pile of straw at the side of the barn was seen to blaze and soon the entire structure was enveloped in flames. All the machinery was removed except the separator of the threshing outfit, which was totally consumed. It was estimated that there was enough grain to keep the threshers going for two days. There was some insurance on the barn, but it will not nearly cover the loss.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

NATIONAL STEEL CASTINGS LTD. TO LOCATE IN CAMPBELLFORD; WILL BE VALUABLE INDUSTRY

wn's Ability To Offer Good Power Contract Attracts Firm.

USES ELECTRICITY.

Plant Will Employ About 25 Men and Produce Two Tons Daily.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 4. — rangements have been practically mplete to establish in Campbell- rd a new industry to be known as ational Steel Castings Ltd., which will manufacture small steel and al- oy castings by the electric furnace nethod; electric current being the principal fuel utilized in the process. he fact that Campbellford is able to ake a definite term contract for ower at favorable rates, constitutes ne of the chief reasons for locating he industry in this town.

The foundry, when completed will ontain as initial installation, one Moore "Lectromelt" furnace having maximum daily capacity of about wo tons of steel castings, will re- quire about 260 H.P., for operation, nd will employ about 25 men.

The product small steel and alloy castings of high quality, will have an almost unlimited market in Canada.

While there are a number of foundries in this country making large steel castings less than half a dozen plants are electrically operated, or specialize in the smaller product.

Consequently the delivery on small steel and alloy castings is generally —slow, and a considerable quantity, valued at several millions of dollars, is imported annually from the United States and European Countries.

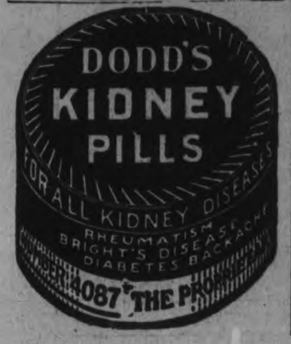
Among the industries regularly absorbing small castings, either in the manufacture of their goods, or for repair parts of their process equipment are the automobile and tire industries, the manufacturers of agricultural implements and electrical apparatus, the general machine trade, the pulp and paper plants, and the very important mining industry of Northern Ontario and Quebec. The railways also use large quantities of steels castings for equipment repairs, but this class of castings is of somewhat lower grade and price than the proposed product of the Campbellford foundry.

With leaders in Canadian business and finance prophesying a period of immediate and general prosperity in this country and with the enormous expansion in the pulp and paper industry now in progress, and the rapid and considerable development of mining in Northern Ontario, there is every prospect for the success of a business which will supply such essential machine parts as steel castings.

In nearly all manufactures of iron or steel where small castings are used, there is a steadily growing tendency to substitute steel for iron, the superior strength of the former being well worth the additional cost.

The parties interested in the proposed local steel foundry are, most of them, quite well known here and include S. B. Wright, manager of Deloro Smelter; T. A. Brown of Toronto; N. L. Turner of Belleville and J. C. Birmingham and F. S. Lozier of Campbellford.

Messrs. Wright and Turner are men of wide metallurgical experience, and the latter, who will manage the plant here, has for the past three years, managed and operated successfully an electric steel foundry, using equipment similar to that proposed to be employed in the local plant.



Pupils Whitewash High School Principal

EUGENE, Oregon, Dec. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—J. W. Swan, Principal of Eugene High school, who has been at odds with the student body over football matters, was drenched with whitewash poured from above when he appeared on the stage at an assembly of students and faculty members yesterday.

DECLARES BODY WAS PLANTED

Claims Father For Purpose of Throwing Guilt on Son.

CONTINUE SEARCH.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Dec. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— A conviction that the body of Clara Olson was "planted" for purposes of discovery on a hillside overlooking the home of her lover, Erdman Olson, and to direct suspicion toward him, was voiced yesterday by Albert Olson, father of the missing 18 year old college boy, who was charged with the girl's murder.

Clara, 22 year old farmer's daughter, an expectant mother when she disappeared from her father's home on Sept. 9, was found yesterday by a searching party in a shallow grave within a quarter of a mile of the tobacco plantation where Erdman lived with his parents.

The search for young Olson, who disappeared from Gale College a day after her father had threatened his arrest if the girl was not produced, brought word to Crawford County officials to-day that suspects are being held at Danville, Ills., Des Moines, Iowa, Evansville, Wis., and Crawfordsville, Ind. The sheriff, viewing a suspect at Wwight, Ills., reported that the youth held there was not Olson.

of common pleas, who has sat with Justice Charles W. Parker of the Supreme Court throughout the trial.

A tense courtroom heard the end of the trial, one month to the day after it began. The jury went out at 1.44 and came back at 6.46, to return all three verdicts in two minutes.

Before the jury entered, Justice Parker issued a sharp warning to the crowd not to make a demonstration of either approval or disapproval. His injunction was followed to the letter, but there was some cheering in the rotunda outside the room, almost the minute the first "Not guilty" was uttered.

A newspaper reporter tried to get through the doors, ordered closed by the court, and was dragged by three bailiffs before the bench for a reprimand.

Few people here last night believed that any of the defendants would be tried on the second indictment or that Henry De La Bruyrere Carpender, their cousin, would ever go to trial.

CHILDREN LIKE THEM

Baby's Own Tablets Are Effective and Easy To Give.

You do not have to coax and threaten to get the little ones to take Baby's Own Tablets. The ease with which they are given, as compared with liquid medicines, will appeal to every mother. None is spilled or wasted; you know just how big a dose has reached the little stomach. As a remedy for the ills of childhood arising fro derangement of the stomach and bowels they are most satisfactory.

Mrs. Rose Veyer, Willimantic, Conn. says:—"I used Baby's Own Tablets in the Canadian Northwest and found them a wonderful medicine for children's troubles, especially indigestion and constipation. I have also given them to my children for simple fever and the restlessness accompanying teething and they always gave relief. I can recommend Baby's Own Tablets to all mothers."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Faith," said Mr. Lane, appearing on noiseless, stockinged feet at the doorway of his wife's room, where Faith was trying to make the invalid comfortable for the night, "George Pruitt and his sister are on the front porch. They want to see you."

"My land! Can't you ask 'em in?" Mrs. Lane's fretful, feeble voice demanded from the depths of her pillows. "And you lookin' a sight! I've told you a thousand times not to set around in your stockin' feet. Does seem to me like you could manage to look like somebody! What's she like? Stuck up little priss, I'll be bound."

'Seems like a right nice girl" Mr. Lane answered mildly. "Not what you'd call pretty exactly, but stylish and lively. Would you like 'em to step in and see you, Martha? They'd be right glad to, I know. Nothin' stuck up about them young people."

"Give me by bood-war cap, Faith —that crocheted one of yellow and pink. And my yellow silk dressin' sack. And my carnation talcum. It's in the top right-hand bureau drawer."

'Do you really want to see them, Mother?" Faith hesitated uneasily. She had met Selma Pruitt, had admired the lively girl's wit, her ability to mimic those whom her capricious sense of humor chose as fair prey, but had hoped her talents would never be turned upon herself or her family.

"Reckon you're ashamed of your mother," Mrs. Lane accused her. "Your fine friends are too good to be brought into your own home."

Without another word, Faith found and brought to her mother the articles she had demanded, helped her adjust, over her straggling, thin gray hair, the absurd crocheted "boudoir cap" and fastened the lace-trimmed yellow silk "dressing sack" over the vast bosom.

"Hello, Faith, you splendid young goddess!" Selma Pruitt's laughing lyric-soprano voice called out. "You always make me feel like an underdone half portion of squab. I've brought your Romeo with me —simply pining away he was, poor darling. What in the world have you done to our Georgie?"

"Awfully glad to see you, Selma." Faith offered her hand with shy dignity. "How are you, George? You aren't emaciated. I'm sorry Cherry isn't here. She went to a dance at the Warren's house."

"At the Warrens?" Selma demanded, with staccato surprise. "That's odd. Frances Warren and Joe Stevens came by our house ten minutes ago to ask us to go to the movies with them."

"Then——' Faith drew a sharp breath, but smiled quickly. "I must have been mistaken as to where the dance was to be. Bill Warren called for her."

"But Bill——" Selma began, looking toward George, who silenced her with an imperative frown and jerk of the head, unseen by Faith.

"My mother would like to meet you, Selma." Faith led the way into the living room. "She's ill, you know. She doesn't see many people, and she's rather lonely. Would you mind—just a few minutes?"

"Love it," Selma Pruitt answered promptly. "Come along, Georgie, and quit making faces at me. You look like a gargoyle. Hes so afraid I'm going to make a break about you and him, Faith. I teased the poor darling into confessing that he'd proposed to you and you'd turned him down. Please reconsider —fr our sakes. He's been a terrible person to live with since he developed this unrequitted pash."

"Oh shut up! I see myself telling you anything again!" George Pruitt growled at his sister.

"This is George's sister, Selma, Mother. "Faith made the intodruction briefly.

'I been readin' about your doin's in the society columns." Mrs Lane extended a puffed hand. "So you're George's sister! I s'pose it's time the two families was gettin' acquainted, seein' as how George is monopolizin' Faith's time so's she can't hardly turn around without steppin' on him. I don't know what we'll do without our girls when they marry and leave the old folks to scratch for themselves, but as I tell Mr. Lane, 'life is just one thing after another,' and we wouldn't want——"

"What an adorable cap, Mrs. Lane!" Selma came to Faith's rescue with a rush of words. "I do wish I could crochet. What stitch do you call that? It looks so intricate."

"I'll teach you," Mrs. Lane offered affably. "It's the popcorn stitch. You chain three——".

Faith, blinded with tears of mortification, turned abruptly toward the door. George rose instantly and followed her, overtaking her in the hall.

"Don't mind Selma", he pleaded in a whisper. "I couldn't help telling her. She's a good sport, Faith, and she's crazy about you. All that's the matter with her is that her tongue is loose at both ends. Are you mad at me, dear?"

"No" Faith choked. "But shee'll make fun of Mother to all your friends. She's just leading her on—"

"I'll strangle her if she does," George Pruitt said savagely, under his breath. "You haven't changed your mind, have you dear? I—I'm pretty miserable Faith."

Faith backed against the wall, weakly, for temptation had swooped down upon her overwhelmingly. If she were engaged to George Bob Hathaway's undeclared, scarcely realized love for her would die still born. And if she told him frankly that Cherry was flinging herself into an old man's arms because he, Bob, did not care for her, would not his infatuation flame into life again?

Wasn't it the only way to save Cherry? And maybe—sometime—she could learn to love George. He was such a dear, would be so good to her.

"Don't ask me—now," she whispered, giving him both her hands in an unmistikable gesture of promise.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

MacAlpine—Lain.

A quiet wedding took place at the Seymour parsonage at 10.30 on Wednesday morning, Nov. 24th, when Violet Gertrude Lain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lain, was united in marriage to Mr. Kenneth Canfield MacAlpine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacAlpine, all of Seymour. Rev. C. D. Daniel performed the ceremony, the young couple being attended by Mr. Carman MacAlpine and Miss Veta Lain.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a pair of earrings, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links.

WEDDING BELLS.

WILSON—ALLAN.

COBOURG, Dec. 4.— The residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Allen, William street, Cobourg, was the scene of a pretty marriage on Tuesday, Nov. 30th, when their youngest daughter, Alice Eldine, was united in marriage to John A. Wilson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Provincial Highway East. Rev. Dr. Alfred Brown conducted the ceremony. The house was pretti ly decorated with ferns and rose carnations. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, were a gown of beige georgette and lace, with large black velvet hat. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and lily of the valley. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome silver coffee service.

Immediately after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served, the table being centred with the wedding cake in a bed of tulle with rose tapers. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left later for a trip.

The makers of carnival hats say that after Valentino's death, public taste swung from sheik turbans to Ben Turpin derbies for fancy dress parties.

BRITISH COLUMBIA PROVIDES TREES

Christmas Greens For Entire Coast Grown in Province.

VANCOUVER, B.C. Dec. 4.—(By Canadian Press).—British Columbia forests are again being called upon to meet the Pacific Coast's demands for Christmas trees.

Thousands of young trees are being cut in the province mainly on Vancover Island, and will be shipped to California and other coast states during the period intervening before Christmas. Already several large shipments have been made.

Last fall buyers came from the United States and let several contracts for supplying these trees in carload lots but prices have advanced owing to the fact that government is insisting on the payment of stumpage which some contractors evaded in past years.

Despite the volume of the Christmas tree business—close to 300,000 being cut last winter—the effect on the commercial forests of the province is not appreciable, according to experts.

BARN BURNED CROP DESTROYED

Threshing Outfit Had Just Been Set on Barn Floor.

TWO DAYS' WORK.

LINDSAY, Dec. 4 — A fine big barn belonging to Mr. Charles D. Logan of South Verulam, was burned to the ground at 6.30 last night. Mr. Creighton Cosh had set his threshing outfit ready for today's work when a pile of straw at the side of the barn was seen to blaze and soon the entire structure was enveloped in flames. All the machinery was removed except the separator of the threshing outfit, which was totally consumed. It was estimated that there was enough grain to keep the threshers going for two days. There was some insurance on the barn, but it will not nearly cover the loss.

T.C.C. BEATEN BY PARKDALE

Last Period Rush Parts Teams of Rival Canoe Clubs.

SCORE 8-3.

TORONTO, Dec. 4. The rival canoe clubs dropped their Senior hockey hopes over the boards at the Arena Gardens last night for a fixture in the S.P.A. Trophy, and the Parkdale paddlers qualified to continue in the race while Toronto dropped by the wayside. A last period rush put the Red Ringers out of the running, as only one goal parted the teams at the end of the second period, Parkdale finishing strong to make the final score read 8 to 3 in their favor. For two periods the result was in doubt, although Parkdale had a slight edge in the play, but Toronto faded in the final session while Harry Watson's troupe collected four goals and displayed its best hockey of the night.

For an early season game—the first for both teams—it was very good, and the Red Ringers with a little more practice will give the best a battle. Parkdale had a decided margin on the back division, while the front line was more finished, displaying flashes of mid-season combination. Parkdale's strength on the rearguard gave them the victory, Lount and Radke being both strong defensively, while their rushes were a great help. Toronto's defensive pair were not near as strong on the offensive, and seldom made any excursions up the ice. Parkdale was also better fortified with substitutes, the second string being almost as good as the regulars.

The teams:

Parkdale — Goal, McAllister; defence, Lount and Radke; centre, Heffernan; wings, Clayton and Morris; subs, Paul, Miller, Cole, Armstrong, and Humphries.

Toronto Canoe Club—Goal, Stone; defence, Bury and Wright; centre, Bond; wings, Grant and Dibble; subs., Lee, C. Goldsmith, L. Goldsmith, McKay and Miller.

Referee—Harold Farlow.

FIELD IS HARD FOR FINAL GAME

Zero Weather Will Make Things Uncomfortable For Spectators.

PLAY ANYHOW.

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press).—The road to glory will be a hard one for whichever team emerges with the honors in the 'Varsity-Ottawa Rugby Dominion final, which will be staged here this afternoon. The freeze-up after the mild weather yesterday and the light covering of snow, will make the going hard and the pigskin chasers will need plenty of padding when they hit the iron-like field. It is not going to be comfortable in the stands today either, for a stiff wind is blowing this morning, and the temperature is around zero. However, the Bytown squad arrived last night with a large squad of supporters and the game will be played regardless of the weather.

CALLE'S POLICIES WELL SUPPORTED

On All Points Affecting Relations Between Mexico and United States.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4.—(Canadian Press).—From all parts of the republic, says an announcement yesterday from the presidential office, innumerable messages have come to President Calles assuring him of support on his policies on all points affecting the relations between Mexico and the United States.

There have been all sorts of contradictory reports as to the policies of the government and the various oil interests the last few days, and there was even a greater state of confusion yesterday when it became generally known that the Mexican office had issued a statement denying knowledge of an announcement issued at the Mexican embassy in Washington Thursday. This embassy statement, as received here in press despatches, caused the Mexico City papers Thursday to proclaim that a rupture between the United States and Mexico had been averted because the United States' demands appeared to be satisfied. In addition to denying knowledge of the embassy's statement, the foreign office announcement emphasizes that the government's petroleum and alien land law policy is unchanged.

THEATRE

ANOTHER FINE ENGLISH PLAY

Graphic Character Study, Excellently Acted, Is "The House of Ussher."

By GEORGE W. STARK.

This is the first occasion that has been offered in a local playhouse to observe the work of Mr. Derwent, the English actor, who brings to the city an English company in a peculiarly moving and a forthright drama from the pen of the late Mr. Esmond, likewise English. The importance of England to our native stage is a matter that impresses this locality more and more as this season advances, for were it not for such morsels of comfort as are thrown to us from across the seas, we would starve for honest legitimate entertainment in our theatres, or else subsist on the pale diet afforded by the generally unimportant musical enterprises that have enhanced this way.

"The House of Ussher" is a sturdy play, well-founded, well-built, keen, epigrammatic and a sound exposition of character. Mr. Derwent is a splendid actor, cunning, forceful and with a shrewd intelligence in the direction of character portrayal. His company is, with one or two minor exceptions, excellent and in the person of Miss Mitchell, it is superlative. Such a combination of play and players is irresistable and so, along with the others in the non-too-late assemblage at the New Detroit last night, I was profoundly moved by this fiction and its enactment.

The play is a graphic and well-knit study of heredity and environment, being an exposition of a sharp conflict in the strong wills and perverse dispositions of a father and his daughter, whom circumstances have made almost strangers to one another. This sort of thing was done beautifully a few weeks ago in the same theatre in the case of "Young Woodley," wherein we discovered what may happen to a young, sensitive and lonely boy who has been allowed, through parental indifference, to go it on his own. But in this case we have a highly sensitive girl, with a dominating personality and a will to follow her own devices. Life has not been kind to Constance Ussher. Her mother turned out badly and deserted the family. Her father, keenly intent upon amassing the Ussher millions by divers unpleasant, if not actually underhanded methods, had left her to her own devices. Her aunt, a selfish and an acrid spinster, had nothing in her heart for her but malice. Her sweetheart until the very end of the play seemed to be a weakling. Her life in the Ussher home was a formidable thing, for there was nothing provocative or exciting about the place.

Her romance is not pleasing in the sight of her father, who seeks to wreck it, and almost does. Then by her father's own financial methods she achieves something of a fortune for herself. And suddenly everything works out quite all right and there is almost a hint of gayety in the gloomy precincts of the Usshers as the curtain falls.

Mr. Derwent plays the role of the master of the Ussher establishment, plays it profoundly, with something of a Shylock's vast concern over his daughter and her ducats, and something too of the pathos of a man who has learned almost at the evening of his life that sympathy and understanding, one for another, are more to be desired than wealth and position. Miss Mitchell, as the daughter Constance, should and no doubt will be heard from further. She has uncommon intelligence, a great spirit and never-failing charm. Among the others, I liked best the work of Miss Cornell as the acid-tongued aunt, an unforgettable picture of discontent and shrewdish concern over the smallest affairs of all her relatives. Mr. Hick and Mrs. Hast do excellent work.

The play is done in three acts, the single scene depicting the library of Jacob Ussher, such a library as a man of Jacob Ussher's singular character would inhabit. — Detroit Free Press.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE ACE OF CADS."

Charlie Chaplin and Adolphe Menjou share the honors of the bill at the Capitol for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Adolphe Menjou has been a villain in many pictures. He has been the hero in others. But not until recently did he attempt playing both roles in the same vehicle.

"The Ace of Cads," coming to the Capitol on Monday, presents Menjou as the hero who purposely became a villain in the eyes of a girl who loved him. Paramount's popular star declares it the most remarkable character he has ever portrayed in that he plays the same episode twice, first as the hero and then as the villain.

This picturization of Michael Arlen's popular short story, directed by Luther Reed, proffers Menjou as a young English Guards lieutenant very much in love with Alice Joyce. A comrade, Philip Strange, 'frames' him and Miss Joyce finds her fiance in a compromising situation. She breaks the engagement and marries Strange.

Twenty years pass. Menjou discovers the daughter of his former sweetheart, Suzanne Fleming, enamored of him. When the mother asks that he leave her child alone, he makes himself a cad—an ace of cads—by telling the girl a story.

Without using names, he depicts her father as the betrayed and himself the betrayer. One sees Menjou and Strange performing the identical action of the earlier sequence with Menjou enacting the false friend.

Here is a novel idea, "the new twist" which stamps this picture as something distinctly different and unique.

In addition to the regular feature picture, the Capitol also presents a re-issue of what has always been conceded Charlie Chaplin's greatest early picture—"A Dog's Life."

Many of man's missteps and sins made in the name of hunger have been forgiven him, for hunger is said by psychologists to be the most primitive of all human instincts.

Although the world may not owe every man a living, it is nevertheless a fact that governments and individuals have set up institutions which provide for those who are unable to obtain food.

In "A Dog's Life," the prime motive for Charlie Chaplin's capers is a longing to get his teeth into something nourishing. At the opening of the story, Charlie is awakened from his outdoor sleeping quarters in a fence corner by the tantalizing odor of steaming viands offered for sale by a passing hot-dog vendor.

This leads to a number of spirited adventures with the police, who resent in the name of the law Charlie's ambition to gather 'round a festive board without paying the usual fee. Later on, Charlie's faithful dog, famishing for something to test his teeth upon, digs up a well-lined pocketbook that some crooks have buried in the ground. And when Charlie attempts to spend the money found in a nearby cafe he meets the big moment of his career, for it brings him in contact with a beautiful cabaret singer who is herself starved for kind words and love.

As for being hungry, Charlie has nothing on the mutt. The mutt, however, gets its teeth in some hot dogs while Charlie is busy talking prices to a hot-dog vendor.

Hunger leads Charlie and his mongrel pup on to happiness. Perhaps the world really owes everybody a living who has the ambition to collect.

"A Dog's Life" is being released by Pathe.

AT THE REGENT

NEW PICTURE HAS CAST OF UNUSUAL COMIC STRENGTH.

Bert Roach, of "Excuse Me" Fame, Is a Riot in "Money Talks."

If "Money Talks" isn't the funniest comedy ever made, it isn't the fault of the cast. For this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which is coming to the Regent Theatre on Monday, has just about the funniest cast, no offense intended, that ever congregated in one picture.

Forgetting for the moment the leads, who nevertheless are expert comedians, there is Bert Roach, who made such an unqualified hit in "Excuse Me." Bert plays the part of Al Waters, the goofy drunk, who is not quite sure where or why he is going anywhere.

Then there is Ned Sparks, for years considered one of the foremost comedians on the stage and screen. Neds plays the part of Lucius, the pessimistic advisor of Perkins, the part which is portrayed by Phillips Smalley. Smalley has not been exclusively identified with comedy roles, but has been a character actor for years.

Dot Farley and Polly Moran, both old time comediennes, have important roles in the production, and add immeasurably to the general hilarity, and George Kuwa, the Japanese actor, presents a new type of comedy role.

Kathleen Key gets her first taste at comedy in "Money Talks," having been identified with dramatic roles heretofore.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE XLII—The First Writing Materials. by MAX HAHN

Practical Budgeting - - By Wilson Craw

Economic conditions and political events in Europe and in America exert their influences on the course of prices and the cost of living in Canada. We are a great exporting people and it is necessary that our governments find a ready market in foreign countries for that immense surplus of food stuffs which we have to export. Among events which have affected the international situation and influenced the course of trade, industry, and prices, in the past two years has been the Dawes' plan for solving the problem of reparations, and the Locarno conference and security pact.

Closely connected with these conditions in the question of price levels is the problem of foreign exchange, which has a most decided effect on the commodities which we have to trade in. In countries where the exchange has been stabilized since the Great War, the prices have shown a tendency to remain stable and perhaps decline a little.

Crop conditions also influence prices and in 1925 we in Canada were blessed with a bountiful harvest that has had a great effect on the world market, for in other countries the crops were not as abundant as ours and considerably below the average, especially the wheat yield. Our farmers realized more for their crop than they would have if the crop conditions the world over had been good. The result of this alone has put the cost of living per week for the family budget of twenty-nine staple foods on a somewhat higher level than at any time in the past four years. This higher level was also due to the fact that higher prices were being obtained on the foreign market for the large quantities of bacon, pork, potatoes, butter, and cheese which we had to sell.

In the year 1926, the movement of prices has been slight and the weekly family budget for October has shown to some extent to be lower than in the earlier part of the year. In retail prices the cost per week of twenty-nine staple foods, for an average family of five, has practically remained unchanged during the past year and in October it was estimated at $10.93 as against $10.89 a year ago. This sum represents the amount spent for food alone, but the Department of Labor has estimated that the cost of fuel and light for the same family in the month of October would be $3.32, the cost of rent, $6.86 a week, making a grand total of $21.14 to feed and house a family of five during the month of October.

This budget does now show the minimum cost for an average family, but it is calculated in terms of the average prices for the cities for which reports are received. It includes twenty-nine staple foods, laundry starch, coal, wood and rent. These calculations are estimated to represent from sixty to eighty per cent of the expenditure of an ordinary family, according to the total income and for the average family these expenditures are estimated to be about two-thirds or sixty-five per cent of the total icnome.

The statistics show Peterborough below the average in the cost of living, when it is compared with some sixty other cities throughout Canada. Nearly all kinds of meats are above the average price given for the whole of the province. Butter, milk and eggs are considerably below the average and for many of the other necessaries of life the price charged in this city is somewhat below the average price for the province.

Ontario is found to be one of the dearest provinces in the Dominion to live in. It ranks second with British Columbia coming first.

The question may be asked "What does this budget consist of, and what are the quantity and cost of each commodity for this standard family of five?" It is estimated that two pounds of sirloin beef steak at a cost of $0.59 is required; a two-pound shoulder roast at 31.8 cents, a one-pound veal shoulder roast at 19.9 cents, a one-pound mutton hind-quarter roast, which would cost 29.3 cents, one pound of fresh roast pork at 30.8 cents, two pounds of salt pork at 56.6 cents, one pound of breakfast bacon at 44.4 cents. In the matter of meats a family would have a pretty good variety and not too much of anything. Two pecks of potatoes are estimated to be sufficient and these would cost 61.9 cents. There is also four pounds of granulated sugar at 31.6 cents and two pounds of yellow sugar at .15. Ten pounds of flour and fifteen pounds of plain white bread are also required at a cost of $1.67, two pounds of dairy butter and one pound of creamery butter, would cost $1.11. Two pounds of cheese are thought to be necessary and would cost .66, with two dozen eggs at .84, and six quarts of milk at .69.

Other commodities on the list are—five pounds of rolled oats, two pounds of rice, two pounds of lard, two pounds of hand picked beans, one pound of evaporated apples, one pound of prunes, a half pound of tea, a quarter of a pound of coffee, and one-eighth of a pint of vinegar. All these commodities are estimated to cost $10.93.

In looking over the list it seems a fairly liberal supply for a healthy family of five. On the other hand, with a family with an income sufficient to do so would buy less meat nad perhaps more fruit fresh and canned vegetables.

The rent, which is estimated at $6.85 a week is the prevailing rate for six-roomed houses of two classes in districts extensively occupied by the working man. The first-class is a house in good condition, favorably located in such districts with good modern conveniences. The second class is for houses in fair condition, less desirably located, but still fairly central, without modern conveniences.

Taking the cost of rent, food, heat and light to be $21.14 a week for the standard family and this represents about two-thirds of the total income of the wage-earner of such a home. It would be then necessary that he receive about $31.00 a week to meet all expenditures.

BUDGETS---

By Alma Whitaker.

I am occasionally asked to help housewives budget their incomes, and I have just come across some interesting budgets offered by the woman's department of a big bank.

Personally I dislike bookkeeping and am a bit of a duffer at it, but that has not prevented me keeping strict household accounts ever since I was first a bride. The results are so interesting and helpful that the trifling exaction of it has been well worth it.

Budgetting means apportioning one's resources carefully and trying to arrange one's life accordingly. And nothing helps so much in keeping the family finances on the right side of the ledger.

These budgets suggested by the bank include incomes from $1200 a year up to $6000—and everyone of them insists upon a margin of savings.

Here are five of them, as worked out after careful investigation and computation, and with regard to present costs. Those savings items are probably required to cover emergency expenses, such as illnesses, weddings, births, deaths, which come to all of us. Yes, I can see where the savings budget must not be reduced. None of these budgets seem to make any allowance for "help," so it is just as well for mother to keep her health and strength up to the mark. It is well to note, too, that the automobile and the children's allowances have to come under "operating expenses." In the text accompanying these budgets I notice that "an invalid, requiring special attention" is not permitted until the income reaches $6000 a year!

BUDGET NUMBER

Marrying On A Budget

By Wm. Edgar

The greater part of our adult life is taken up with the earning and spending of money; two processes on the mutual relationship of which, the happiness of individual or family is dependent. The advice of Wilkins Micawber to young David Copperfield:—"Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen pounds nineteen and sixpence, result, happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pourds and sixpence, result misery;" is worth pondering over by bachelor (or spinster), and benedict alike. In order to avoid the unhappy consequences sketched with such eloquence by Dickens' famous character, and at the same time be reasonably supplied with the necessities, and at least a portion of the luxuries of life, the wise man or woman spends his or her income along a carefully thought-out plan.

A budget is entirely a matter of individual choice and personal desires.

One sacrifices here because a want is greater there. All persons do not emphasize exactly the same factors in living. One reason why the budget system apparently fails so often is that people are either vague, or not quite honest with themselves as to what they want. A budget forces self-examination, and this is a healthful, though sometimes embarrasing and humiliating process.

It is easier, for a time, to do without the budget and feel that one is prospering than to admit that one has spent, say, twice as much on amusements as the income warrants.

It is a good thing to govern expenditure in accordance with a budgeted plan, even before marriage. The practice is a great aid to the checking of unwise expenditure, and affords good training in the restraint of the impulse to spend at random, and this promotes self-discipline, so necessary in those who are to live together for many years with a plain statement of money already expended, or to be spent, before him, the spender sees all his items in their exact proportion. This frequently shows the necessity of a re-allocation of the percentages ear-marked for individual items and may cause a change in the entire methods of spending, leading to more efficient handling of the money, or possibly effecting a greater saving.

The untrained budget maker is afraid of percentages which appear like ferocious beast ready to devour all attempts at carefully planned distribution of the income, but he must think in these terms, and always keep in mind the necessity of a proper proportioning of his items of out-go. The need of putting personal expenditure on a business-like basis is impossible without this method of comparative distribution which is moreover a wonderful aid to saving.

The most important result of the keeping and adhering to a budget is this formation of conscious standards for each group of expenditures. These of course, result from the making and use of any good, practical budget. No good budget is ever worked out until the maker has first formulated his standards and, by comparison, eliminated the unworthy or unnecessary, substituting for them standards measured by each other and fitted to the income, so that one group is not unduly considered at the expense of the other.

What is to be done in the case of an illness, or an unexpected emergency, which causes the passing beyond the limits set for any particular group? The answer is obvious: he must either use savings or reduceexpenditures for the less essential factors in that group. A similar system should exist throughout the entire budget. If he departs from the original plan, it should be because increase in income makes the departure possible, or by making a conscious change, relinquishing some planned expenditure or reducing the quantity or quality purchased.

At the end of the year he has more valuable information and training than he could acquire in many years from the study of the experiences of someone else.

A certain amount of happiness depends on lack of worry, a sense of security, knowledge that one is fairly well prepared for probably eventualities. Another measure of happiness arises from the ability to get things that we greatly desire. Still more comes from the consciousness that we are moving along life according to plan. Only the animal lives from day to day. Man being gifted with reason is called upon to prepare for the days that lie ahead. This keeping of a budget shows the road along which one is travelling. There are but few rules to be kept in mind, the chief being an injunction to avoid making a too complicated system of finance which might fail to stand up to the wear and tear of everyday use.

Keeping a budget will not however accomplish the impossible. One cannot live on a scale above one's income, no matter how carefully the accounts of income and expenditure are kept.

But it is of immense assistance in enabling one to get fully 100 cents for every dollar. It is the method adopted by cities, state governments and every-up-to-date business firm; and it is a method good enough for the average man. The thing necessary to realize is that skill in using money is just as essential to progress and well-being as skill in earning it. It is by the way money is used that satisfaction accrues. Food, clothing and shelter are the essentials. If, to secure these things we have to spend all that we earn, life becomes drab. Underneath labor unrest; strikes for higher wages and angry recriminations concerning the workers' standard of living is the growing realization that there must be a fuller and freer life over and above the mere provision for actual physical needs.

Ignorance or carelessness in spending is as potent a trouble-maker as is lack of means. If one has not the knowledge or the will to spend the amount possibly earned very skilfully, in such a way that the requisite food clothing and shelter can be purchased, without wiping out the little margin that should be used for the purposes which American home economists group under the single heading of "Higher Life," then poverty is present. One can possibly earn less than his neighbour, and withal be the richer, because he knows how to secure the desired returns.

we need to learn anew that wealth is not counted merely in terms of dollars and cents. Money is merely our chosen medium of barter and exchange. It is worth only what we can get with it. If we know how to use our resources, so as to get what we want, we are rich. If we have not that knowledge we are poor, no matter how high may be the figures of our total receipts.

Children earning money who feel no sense of responsibility to the family are in grave danger of acquiring bad habits which will imperil their future. A middle course must always be found which will allow freedom for action and growth and yet preserve family ties. The growing boy or girl should be entrusted with his own money responsibilities, for the development of the needed character that will enable them to steer for themselves when the guiding hand of parent is no longer present.

Important as is the use of the budget for the single person, it falls into insignificance when compared with the results of budget-keeping in the family, large or small.

Household administration is a business. Statisticians tell us that 90% of all earned income is spent by women. Further, they add that only 30% of that spending is done efficiently—which seems to show that there is much room for the improvement that invariably follows the introduction of the family budget.

A family budget is not a court of domestic relations, where husbands and wives are to be shown the error of their ways, but it is a chart almost indespensable if financial shipwreck is to be avoided. It is a preventative and a means to happiness that is too often neglected. It is an adjuster as well as a plan. Home economics experts, who in many of the most important magazines in the continent have given practical advice on home-makers' problems, recommend this method as the most effective way of locating the source of puzzling difficulties of family spending.

For the young couple the most encouraging promise of a sound financial future is the frank discussion before marriage of all money problems. Schools and colleges are giving practical courses in home management. New books and pamphlets on budgeting are appearing every year; indeed, in some of the American cities the savings banks and department stores have engaged "budget experts" to give free and helpful advice on the subject.

In the home, the making of a budget forces one to face clearly the limits of income and to decide definitely what things are necessary to happiness and what can be done without; in other words to formulate a definite standard of living to be altered only with the alteration of income. Other advantages of planned spending in the home need only to be mentioned to be realized. Economy and wisdom in buying, since one's needs are known so long in advance; due regard being given to each group of expenditure, regular and increased savings, stoppage of minor wastes, and a better rounded life, are the outstanding benefits.

The smaller the income to be plotted the more necessary it is that one hand shall hold the purse strings. For the task, it is essential that the better domestic financier be chosen—and that despite her limitations, and despite many gibes to the contrary, is more

Work Is a Certain Cure For The Spendthrift

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"What's that, dear?" asked the Girl's mother as the girl came into the living-room with two bundles.

The Girl laid one package on top of the phonograph and tossed the other on her mother's knee. "Just some little things I needed. Those are brassieres and silk stockings. Those are six new records."

Her mother opened the small package—the charge check in the handful of silk nothings bore the figures, "seven dollars."

"It seems just a day or two since you got stockings," she said with a sigh. "And these brassieres really don't have ten cents worth of silk in them. A dollar seems high. You have about a dozen now."

"Now, Mums, don't grumble," said the Girl. "I get the cheapest things I can. Those other stockings ran the first time I put them on. My lands! You'd think seven dollars was a fortune!"

"What records did you get?"

"Six of the peachiest things you ever heard. 'Knick Knack Gnu' is just hot off the stove."

"You got six a week ago!"

"My lands! If I asked the kids to dance to them now, they'd walk out on me. Absoluiely old, they are. Say, Dick, run along and get me ten gallons of gas. I'm taking the girls to the country. Pops, I'm sorry you have a cold but it's jolly nice to have the car all the time."

Pops counted up. "Thirteen dollars and a half in one morning. And the day was young. Besides, there was always another day!"

The Girl had taken typewriting one time to help her with her papers at school. It was the one useful thing she knew. "Pops" had an idea. "My stenographer is sick and I wish you'd go to the office with me to-morrow and take some letters," he said.

She put in a long busy day. At five she was very tired. He handed her three dollars. "What I always pay a new girl," he explained. He kept her for a month, gave her three dollars every night and did not permit her to spend a cent she didn't earn.

She learned to darn runs, to do without records, and the old car got a rest. And she learned how hard it is to get a little bit of money. The most usefu knowledge in the world!

UNEXPECTED GUESTS - By Jeanette

The learned people who discourse at length in magazines and periodicals on divers matters of more or less interest to the human race harp often and lengthily on the proper methods for the feminine population of the world to pursue, in roping and retaining a husband. They tell the ladies, these wiseacres, how to look, how to use their eyes, how to act, how to walk, how to dress, in order to at all times keep the admiring attention of the menfolk focused upon them. They describe the masculine preference in gowns, they discourse weightily on just what a man admires and what he doesn't like in a woman, they tell the ladies how to reduce, how to exercise, how to think and eat and pose and talk, all to the same end, the capture of a man who will act as a permanent meal ticket through life. And then, later, they come along and start all over again, with greater emphasis, on ideas which have to do with the retaining of this elusive male. In these days of easy divorces and languishing females on all sides, ready to pounce on an unwary husband, it seems is a very difficult thing to keep a man in good humour.

Yes, they do all this, and do it over and over again, but do you ever see anything along the line of advice to husbands on how to keep their wives? Very rarely. And yet there is many a woman who probably rues, at odd times, the day she promised to love, honor and keep the man she picked out for her own out of a hundred or so likely males that she might have had, if she had taken a notion to go wandering over the world in search of a suitable soul mate.

And one of the odd times is undoubtedly the day when the husband brings home the unexpected guest. Looking at the angle fairly, it must be rather a trial to be an unexpected guest, at that. To be volplaned, as one might say, in aerial language, into the bosom of a family and have the lady of the house eyeing one in vinegary style, the while she pours honeyed words over one, cannot be the most comfortable situation in the world. Probably the unexpected guest, as well as the lady of the house, often has occasion to heap curses on the head of the luckless host, whose good intentions are based on the fond, if somewhat shaky, belief he has in the ability of his wife to stand up under any disability and emerge victorious.

Imagine the scene, back stage, as one might say, in a home of the ordinary type when the front door opens and the master of the house enters jauntily, as he has an inalienable right to do, of course, at the dinner hour, bringing with him an out-of-town buyer, for example. Everyone knows that gentleman of this class are used to table d'hote of the most expensive type. It is part of their business religion to feed d'hote of the most expensive type. It as well as the firm's expense account will stand. And the lady of the house, forsooth, engaged in drying her fingers on the kitchen towel, is confronted with the realization that all that waits on the festive board is the remains of yesterday's roast and some boiled potatoes, cooked in their skins, if you please, because this is washday and she hasn't had time to prepare them properly, also a dessert composed of the plain but hardly showy materials comprised in a jar of jam and a loaf of nut bread.

And all the serviettes are in the wash and the cloth is an old one with darns in it, because she made a clean sweep of the laundry this morning, and did it all up at once.

Well, patience is a virtue that it has been said is "seldom possessed by man and never by woman." Ensues a wild rush for assistance of a neighborly sort. Mrs. Jones, next door, is a good sort. She forgets temporarily the episode yesterday in which her small son figured as the aggressor against the tiny daughter of the house in a hair-pulling contest, with a subsequent exchange of harsh words between two parents, and she sends over the cabbage salad she has made for lunch. But she has no serviettes that will do, having also immersed her available supply in the family wash, and the other neighbor, Mrs. Smith, is a mean women and cannot be approached in an emergency of this sort. A last minute hasty search upstairs reveals some large-sized dinner napkins in the rear of a bureau drawer, and they are pressed into service. Jimmy, the small son of the house, who never uses a serviette anyway, disgraces the family by tying his sample about his neck, but minor matters are lost sight of in the effort to get the guest filled and away in a reasonable time, so that the lady of the house can have hysterics in peace and quiet, and get ready for the meal of hot tongue she will serve up to her husband when he returns at supper time.

It is finally managed. The guest passes a miserable hour in an atmosphere of veiled animosity on his hostess' part and of forced jocularity on the part of the host, who retails all the stale jokes he can think of and laughs with mirthful glee when the gravy splatters on his nervous wrist and bedews the tablecloth. He eats portions of cold lamb and cabbage salad with a mental shudder at the risk to his intermittent dyspepsia and consumes quantities of bread and butter in an effort to fill the vacuum unappeased by soggy potatoes and strawberry jam. "A good time is had by all," as the country chroniclers put it, and the guest breathes freely only when he leaves the house and is once more on his way.

Of course, there are women who are always prepared for any emergency. There are marvellous cooks who can take a spoonful of cheese and a few biscuits and turn out a delicious rarebit, or make yesterday's leftovers look like real chicken salad. There are housekeepers who always have a reserve supply of spotless linen on the shelf, and who don't get heated up over the presence of an unlooked for guest and who have the knack of making a man feel that he is welcome, even with cold poison in their hearts. But these ladies are few and far between. The average woman isn't prepared, to any great extent, for emergencies, and yet she should be, in these days of concentrated foods and comestibles that can be prepared at almost a moment's notice. There are tinned meats and tinned fishes, canned soups and canned fruits and "minute" jellies and puddings, to say nothing of "ready to serve" vegetables that also come in tin containers. And they are all available to the multitude. With a few eggs and a tin of lobster, a canned soup, a jar of preserved pineapple and a box of fancy biscuits, any woman ought to be able to fix up an emergency meal, that is, if she had these things on the shelves. The trouble is, most women don't keep such supplies handy or forget to replenish them at proper intervals.

A lady who doubtless has a fine idea, if she would reduce it to a workable formula for ordinary people, says she cooks ahead of time in an effort to really enjoy her guests who come for week-ends. She says with great frankness, "You are usually weary unto death on Monday when you call after the departing suitcases: 'Come again real soon, the latchstring is always out'."

She followed out an elaborate plan of cooking on Thursday and Friday and Saturday, so as to be able to enjoy her week-end. On Thursday she made cookies and boiled eggs, prepared French dressing and mayonnaise. Then on Friday she boiled a ham, cooked sweet potatoes and spiced and sugared them. On Saturday she prepared the dry ingredients for muffins and nut bread, also her fruit cocktail for the Saturday night supper, made cottage cheese for salad, boiled the chicken for her Sunday chicken pie, made Russian dressing and prepared her vegetables. Even the celery for the salads was washed and placed in a damp muslin bag and the pie crust made and wrapped in waxed paper and placed in the icebox. Anyone, then, who thinks of serving such things on the menu could easily follow out this plan, or adapt it to other dishes. Foresight and forethought would doubtless save many a hostess a sick headache and frazzled nerves.

There are many scraps around the table that are not wasted food.

FEMALE FIRE BRIGADE.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—(Associated Press).—After the police-woman the fire-woman. The first women's fire-brigade in Germany has been formed in the village of Oberioch, situated high up in the Allegaeuer Alps.

It came ito being because the housewives of the town, solicitous for the safety of their homes, were not satisfied that the existing fire-brigade, comprising virtually all the brawny males in the hamlet afforded sufficient means of protection should a big fire break out in their absence at work in the forests.

The women fire-fighters however, are for the most part not less husky than the men.

Say It With Thrift - - A Short Story

Two young men were discussing life in general and marriage in particular, as young men will.

"A man should not marry," said Giles Harrington, "until he is drawing at least seventy-five a week, can show a bank balance of four figures, and is prepared to finance his own home.',

"In my opinion," retorted Dick, who was the son of old Doc. Winters a notably loved but thriftless person, "he should marry when he finds the right girl."

"And I maintain," insisted the other, "that unless conditions that I outlined are met, she will not remain the right girl but prove the truth of that saying about love flying out of the window when poverty comes in at the door."

Now it is possible that, at the time of this conversation, both young men had alread y become interested in Martha Endicott. Martha was a very pretty girl who had had various suitors, but when Giles Harrington and Dick Winters entered the lists, people made no bones about saying Martha would ultimately choose one of the two.

However, it was not very long after the above discussion on life in general and marriage in particular, that both young men saw fit to call upon Martha. Not together, nor on the same day, yet near enough so that possibly the discussion had something to do with it.

Martha was seen out driving one day with Giles, the next at the theatre with Dick. On Sundays, both Dick and Giles would drop in at the Endicott home.

But they were rivals, and each man knew it. In between calls on Martha, each man was hustling for all he was worth, trying to make himself worth more, for the sake of the woman he wanted to marry. If it was going to be a case of the better man winning, it was going to be nip and tuck between the two. A tremendous boom of business in the town increased Giles' law business and brought more practice to Dick, who was taking over his father's medical work. Giles bought a piece of property so far out of town that wise old ladies winked and said, "He'll be building a house on it for himself and Martha Endicott." Then a nationally known firm put up a factory near by and Giles sold out for double what he had paid. Dick took a run-down two-family house in payment for a bad debt and before the year was up it was wanted badly by the owners of the apartment house on either side, so that Dick turned a penny he had not expected to turn.

Dick was inclined to be free with his money, yet no one ever accused Giles of niggardliness. One merely spoke of him as "a thrifty man" with a suspicion of admiration in the saying of it. While of Dick one said, smiling, and shaking one's head a bit deprecatorily, "easy come, easy go. Dick's a good spender."

He would have lavished gifts upon Martha had she allowed him to. But she was singularly fastidious in her treatment of both men, and what she did not permit Giles she did not permit Dick. Fortunately, perhaps, their invitations seldom clashed so that she was forced to decide between them. Dick did not invite her to the few intellectual affairs that came to town, as did Giles. He was more apt to run in unexpectedly as he was on the rounds of his morning calls with something impromptu.

As, for instance, "I'm taking the kids in the ward out to the circus this afternoon. Want to come along and feed the animals?

And Martha would go, as lively as any of the youngsters, coming back to slip into a low-necked gown and evening cape to hear the Patio players in Shakespearean repertorie with Giles, the highbrow.

As chance would have it, both chose to propose the evening of the annual bazaar given by the entire town for the hospital, on the lovely grounds of the hospital itself. It was always a busy day for Martha, and when evening had come and the strain was a bit over, she was glad to slip into one of the stone seats backed against a mass of shrubbery and listen to the sweet strains of the entertaining violinist.

Giles came first, and plunged into his declaration without preamble. "I've loved you for years, Martha, but would not speak until I had what seemed to me adequate possessions to offer you. Some people accuse me of being over thrifty, but what I have done I have done for you."

It was hard for Martha to do what she did, but it had to be done. She laid a pitying hand on his knee, for she knew what her words would mean to Giles. "Some time ago, Giles," she began tenderly, "Dick Winters told me frankly that he loved me, but was not in a position to marry me. He refused to bind me, although I think I was quite willing to be bound. I must be free, he said, to marry anyone else, if I wished, only he wanted me to know that he was working and saving for me. Perhaps he won't ask me again, but, if he does, I am ready."

"In other words," said Giles bitterly, "he set you aside like a savings account, to be there when he wanted it."

"Perhaps," said Martha. "There are many kinds of thrift, Giles."

Giles had left her and she was wondering if, after all, Dick had not perhaps changed in feeling since that far-away night when he had told her of his love, when she felt herself drawn into a pair of strong and eager arms.

"Oh, Dick!" she murmured and met his kiss with uplifted lips.

BEWARE OF DEBT - By C. J. Beauclerc

"Anticipated rents, and bills unpaid,
Force many a shining youth into the shade,
Not to redeem his time, but his estate,
And play the fool, but at the cheaper rate."

—Cowper.

Debt is one of the rocks on which the ship of matrimony often comes to grief. It has been said that when the wolf comes in at the door, love goes out the window, and surely one of the wolves is debt. The home where the housewife is continually stalling the butcher, or the baker or any other purveyor of household necessities, or the husband looks in a window when the coal merchant is coming along, is one where there is little happiness.

Many a young married couple starts out with money enough to furnish a little home, and with rosy dreams of the future. They calculate for hours beforehand on the exact distribution of the salary, and the system or lack of system to be followed. Then, after the wedding things go smoothly as long as no untoward expense looms up. The ordinary household bills are met, with a little over. His insurance premium comes due; she needs some new clothes, and their carefully considered plans go by the board. A payment on the chesterfield or the coupe, or on the home itself, is passed up to provide for this. Next pay there are two payments to meet, and as other expenses occur they sink deeper into the morass.

If there has been no system matters are even worse. They have allowed for no expenses. Every dollar that doesn't go for grub and other immediate expenses is spent on shows, candy, etc., each living and spending as in the days before the wedding. Then comes something too big to be met out of one pay, and they're stuck. Installments have to be arranged and unless strong will power is exerted in cutting out many little extravagances, the grocer is apt to find his account assuming large proportions.

These are allconsiderations of expenses that could be provided for. Many systems are used which care for these and insurance, coal, clothing, and other occasional expenses are met without trouble. But let sickness occur or a period of slack times, and the money that comes in is not enough, and debt is again the result.

From this debt arise many of the troubles. The wife, denied some little luxuries or conveniences, becomes irritable; her husband, worried about raising money for his bills, is in no mood to pass over her peevishness; they fight and she goes home to mother. Again, she may consider certain things her inalienable right, and goes out and buys clothes which he cannot pay for, charging them to him. The Examiner then bears in its columns a little notice, "The undersigned will not be responsible for any further debts contracted in his name without his written order."

Magistrate Langley and other judicial officers of the county have some labors, caused by this matter for cases of non-support are often preferred when the husband is the extravagant partner of the house and spends his money in the poolroom or playing poker with his old companions. The grocer presses, wifey can't pay, and the cadi is called upon to pour oil on troubled waters.

Careful planning would seem to be the only way to escape this bugbear of debt. Not only is it necessary to allow for every necessary expense, whether it has to be met at every pay or once a year, but there must be provision for the rainy day. Many different systems are advanced, the followers of each waxing almost argumentive at times in presenting their claims. All have their good points, and when one is adopted only one other thing is necessary, and that is to follow it.

It is easy to get off the track. Something special comes up, such as a chance to get clothing at a bargain, and there isn't enough money in the clothing fund. "We'll stall off the butcher for a week," is the decision, and then it is found much harder to get caught up than it was to stay square with the world. Adopt a system and stay with it is the only way to keep out of debt, with its resultant worries and troubles.

HAPPINESS "ON TIME"

How much of your weekly pay envelope, Mr. Man and Mrs. Woman, is spent before you receive it?

How much just automatically goes each week for those necessities and luxuries which you are buying "on time"—the piano, the radio, the diamond ring, the automobile, the furniture, the washing machine, the vacuum cleaner, the phonograph?

Last year, according to some recent statistics, practically five billion dollars' worth of goods was bought on time in America.

More than half of this amount was for automobiles only.

There are conflicting views on this buying "on time" subject, among both economists who study the subject as experts and laymen who know what they want when they want it. There's no end of argument.

It is hard to believe, however, that a nation composed of men and women workers who are happy and contented because they can enjoy life as they peg along at the daily job, knowing that at night there is the radio, the auto, the piano, the family atmosphere cheerful because of the "on time" vacuum cleaner or electric washer, can be anything but a better and richer nation than one composed of sullen, restless, unhappy, self-denied souls.

Old Man—Son, can you direct me to the bank.

Kid—Yes, sir, for a quarter.

"Isn't that mighty high pay."

"Not for a bank director mister!"

PLANNING WITH FORETHOUGHT OR GOING HAPHAZARD

* * * * * * * * *

"What do you think, Eliza? Arabella is buying her fur coat on the installment plan!" Mrs. Grey's lips were set in righteously straight lines and her eyes were cold as steel as she made the remark.

"What an idea!" was Eliza's horrified reply. "Why does she do such things, I wonder?"

Jane didn't say anything. She knew the story was forthcoming.

"Well, Mrs. Grey continued, "we were talking about household expenses and she told me she was buying her sewing machine, her chesterfield suite, and her coat on the budget plan. She makes up her budget for the year and says it works out well buying things that way. I didn't agree with her. I said that if I couldn't pay cash for a coat or a chesterfield suite, I wouldn't have any, and she replied, 'Well, if I waited until I had ready money I'd never have any'."

Jane then joined in the conversation by asking:

"But doesn't Eliza's husband buy farm implements on the budget plan? And didn't they get their radio that way? And haven't I bought things on the buget plan? Don't we all buy that way at times—our monthly bill at the grocers, our ice supply, our club memberships, church dues—why, Mrs. Grey, it isn't any disgrace to buy anything, even a party dress, on the budget plan if you find it works out all right, and that you are keeping within your means."

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," retorted Mrs. Grey, "but I'll pay cash or go without."

"Your idea is good," Jane replied, "but business today is carried on so largely on the budget plan that I think it may well be introduced into the household as the home is just as important as the office, shop or factory. If we keep no housheold accounts how can we tell how much it costs to live, or whether we can affaord this or that? The modern housewife, in many cases, has been a business girl, and if she introduces the methods acquired from her experiences in the household there's no question as to the results."

Mrs. Grey and Eliza seemed interested in the topic so Jane continued: "We must acknowledge that the credit system, today, is often carried to excess, but if we locate the truth about the bad results from buying on credit we should find that many women buy on credit when they have no idea of how and when the bill can be paid; also that they know little or nothing about a family budget. A woman should never place herself in the demeaning position of having to ask John for a dollar or two every day. A regular amount is her due, and it is part of her duties to keep a household account. If you don't believe in a family budget don't have one, but for goodness sake don't juggle the household expenses."

Jane concluded her speech with a little flourish, and Eliza smiled as she said:

"This reminds me of a conversation I listened to the other day on the matter of buying books on the installment plan. One woman wanted a certain fine set of books, but she hadn't the cash and she wouldn't get them. A friend spoke up: 'I have, as you know, a rather nice library, and I don't mind telling you that nearly three fourths of the books it contains were purchased on the budget plan. My husband and I make up our budget in January. Everything from taxes and insurance to church dues and holiday trips are listed. We sometimes move a few dollars designated for one thing to something else, but we know how far we can go in the matter. I did not always keep household accounts, but one day I asked a friend who kept poultry how much she got out of it, and she said she hadn't any idea. That set me thinking, and I decided to keep household accounts. I wouldn't know how to manage without my family budget know, and I try to keep my account book as tidy as my pantry shelves. I am impressed with the idea.," concluded Eliza, "and I'm going to try the budget plan."

"Well, Eliza, I'll see how you come out," Mrs. Grey decided, "then perhaps I'll try it, too."

Jane always likes to have the last word, so she said:

"The farmer's wife must keep her accounts differently from the woman living in town or village, because the farmer buys so much on the exchange system, but all should study the market."

WHAT MEN THINK ABOUT BUDGETING

AS TOLD TO JAMES TURNBULL

"Do you keep a budget?" "Eh!" wes the only response. Again I repeated, "Do you keep a budget?" "What are you talking about," he countered. I explained that I was an enquiring reporter in search of material for a story on how various families apportioned the salary of the wage earner in order to take care of the multitude of demands to be met. "Oh," he said, "I get you." He then said "I never bother about that part of the business. I give the wife so much and it is up to her to do the rest."

That ended the interview as far as he was concerned, so I hastily made my exit.

I made my way to another man, one who I had reason to know was most methodical in regard to the conducting of his business affairs. I put the question to him and received in reply an interested look. But it stopped at that. Not to be deterred, I changed the question and asked "Have you a system in use at your home that takes care of the various expenses you are up against." That fetched him for, no sooner was the question out of my mouth, when he answered "I have." I commenced to seek my pencil, saying to myself "This ought to be good." I was fooled however, for in the next breath he declared, "It is the wife and I leave it all to her." Then he began to get curious and says, "Are you figuring on getting married yourself?" I hastily assured him that I had no such intentions but was merely carrying out the instructions of a city editor, who wanted a feature story for the magazine section.

I tried two or three more and invariably received the same response and more than once I found myself thinking, "What a lot of happy homes there must be with all these chaps trusting so implicitly in their wives."

However I kept on, knowing that somewhere in the city I would have to find some fellow who kept track of the household money. He took some finding, but I eventually landed him and lucky for me, he was just in the mood for talking about it.

During a preliminary barrage lasting about ten minutes he recited the many exceptional qualities possessed by his wife, and I smiled sweetly, wondering if he would never come to the question of the budget.

The power of the press asserted itself and he came down to earth. He explained that from the first day he was married his wife had insisted that his pay be placed on the table when he brought it home. They then got together and figured out the expenses that had to be met. At first, everything went smoothly, and just as he was beginning to think that two could live cheaper than one, a flaw developed in the scheme.

His wife wanted a new hat and said so in no uncertain tone of voice. He referred her to the budget which she had inaugurated but it was to no avail. She declared that the budget simply took care of the household expenses and had nothing to do with her getting new clothes.

They compromised, according to his version of the story, but reading between the lines, I knew that he had purchased her the new hat. After that, however, they had a new addition to the budget. It consisted of a weekly allowance devoted toward clothing, and which commenced to grow, as naturally new finery was not a daily affair. Since that first quarrel over the new hat the budget plan has worked fine, he said, for excepting a very occasional instance, the money seems to be there when it is needed. He commenced to talk about his wife again, so I departed as speedily as possible. Going out of his office I could not help but think that this chap was in the same box as the other fellows, only he would not admit it—that his wife was the budget.

The next fellow I encountered was not only opposed to having a budget, but firmly declared that there was no need for one in the average home. By this time, however, I was warming up to the subject and was not so easily rebuffed. Look here, I said to him. "When your wife bakes a cake doesn't she follow out the instructions contained in a recipe and by adding so much of this and a little of that she at last places the appetizing result in front of you." He admitted that there might be some measure of truth in what I was saying. Well then, I said, if that is necessary to the baking of an ordinary every-day cake does it not follow that a somewhat similar system is needed to compound a mixture that would result in a happy home. I thought I had him, but I was sadly fooled. "It's easy seen you're not married or you would not talk that way. Look here," he said, kind of confidential like—"the only reason there's no budget out our way is the wife. She gets all my pay and gives me so much for smokes, so that I never have to worry."

I gave up at that. I learned one thing however. Though an organized budget, that is, a system of figuring out, week by week just how much is required to manage the home, is not exactly in vogue in every home, in every home there is a budget and it consists of only this—THE WIFE.

It's a long run of luck that doesn't end in economy.

SOMEBODY'S BUSINESS

He Was Seen Going in a Restaurant With a Blond! Who Was She?

I've never approved of the practice of married men sneaking off to the city on "business conferences," with the sole intention of— Well, as I say, even in the abstract I've always considered such practice detestable. And when I realized that poor little trusting Mrs. Esterly, three months after the honeymoon—

Of course, people might say that since I didn't know Mrs. Esterly, it was none of my affair. But to my way of thinking, our duty to others transcends mere convention. So when I saw Esterly sneaking in furtively for an after-the-theater supper with a shameless bedizened blond I decided to do something about it. I decided to write to Mrs. Esterly.

Out of fairness to Esterly I admitted his shamefacedness in the whole nasty affair, but out of fairness to Mrs. Esterly I refrained from gilding the blond. Then, after expressing my profoundest sympathy, I posted the letter and turned in.

I was still in bed the next morning when Esterly, to my surprise, called to explain. To inform me that the blond—that is, Mrs. Esterly—

I am still in bed.

MOTORING WARDROBE

Leather motor coats, formerly brown, ugly and useful, combine brightness and novelty as worn by the English woman this fall. Some are lined with fleece and beautified with a deep hem and collar of plaited leather. A blue leather coat with trimmings of black and whie leather in a checker board effect is another version. Sometimes the coats are made in two-color leathers, while others have the plaiting in contrasting colors.

Tell Me

The story without words! The tale that needs no astute interpretor, because it is clothed in the universal language! There are eyes that hesitate and stammer, that falter and seem to stumble. Woe to the listener, then! He will get a half-told tale, a story without an end, and he will pay the penalty.

But the eyes which talk unhesitatingly and frankly, without a trace of uncertainty—how enthralling is their narrative! Like the music of the brook; and the song of the birds they radiate charm and faith and sincerity. And, eventually they'll tell you the old story of the love that is yours for the asking.

DOLLAR STRETCHING - By C. M. C.

It's amusing the way different people look at the matter of budgeting. Some think it is a miserable bore, and to others it is a keen source of interest. Some people find it one of the miseries of life and others derive a good deal of fun out of seeing how far they can make a dollar go.

There cannot be any set form of budget, for every individual has his own problems to work out, and his own bill of expenses. This is a time when uttering a platitude is quite justifiable, for "circumstances alter cases" truly enough when it comes to planning a budget. The budget that would suit the farmer's household very evidently would not fit the city dweller's. Nevertheless, it is interesting to compare notes and valuable suggestions are often to be found in other people's budgets, though circumstances may be entirely different.

Budgeting is a benefit to both single and married people. The business girl, living on her own salary, finds it just as necessary to have system in her spending as the housewife. "My account never comes right" wails many a budget-keeper, and there is no doubt about it, it is difficult to keep it straight at first. With a little practice, however, it grows easier, and it is a sure aid to economy. The very fact of writing down in cold figures the sums spent keeps one from spending rashly, and one soon finds oneself thinking: "I can do without that chiffon scarf, and I really don't need an ice-cream soda every day;" for the person who indulges in the much-loved luxuries surely has to skimp on the necessities unless they belong to the plutocrats. Many a laugh can be had when reading over old items. Some budget books are as good as a diary to read, and certain purchases will often recall jolly times and cause another laugh over the memory of some little incident. If books are kept for a few years it is interesting to compare prices with the present day.

Not long ago we read an article in a paper dealing with percentages in budgets, allowing a certain percentage of the income for "1, food, which includes all food materials, meals taken out and ice; 2, shelter, including rent or interest on mortgages, taxes and upkeep and insurance; 3, clothing, including materials used in sewing; 4, operating expenses, which includes fuel, light, water, telephone, laundry, household help, insurance on furniture, cleaning supplies and repairs to equipment; 5, advancement, which includes church and charity, doctor, dentist, medicine, education, travel, reading matter, postage and stationery, entertainment, club dues, toilet articles, carfare, gifts, candy, tobacco, etc.; 6, savings, which include bank deposits, investments, life insurance and home development."

The division by percentages was described as ideal, but, as the writer said, "there are no ideal people, so it can't very well be put into practise." Nevertheless, it is a valuable suggestion in working out a system. When one views the number of demands on the family purse it is astonishing how well some people with small incomes manage. These are the people who plan wisely and well, remembering to provide for the big things first. It is the little things that upset the balance of the budget; the unexpected little items that pop up almost every week and that seemingly cannot be disposed of, yet it is the habit of keeping an account that does more to dispose of these incidentals than anything else, for then we know just how much we dare to spend on the unexpected.

There are ways of aiding the budget and keeping down expenses. One is the garden. The man who has a garden has a great advantage over the other fellow. It may mean earlier rising and time after office hours, but it pays, and what a joy it is to be able to step into one's own garden and pick fresh vegetables with the dew still on them! The man with a family living in a small town or village will also find it pays to keep a cow and some hens. If the family is a fair-sized one, groceries should be bought in large quantities as a considerable saving may be effected in this way. It is like ordering the fuel early before the price goes up. The housekeeper's ability to make over dishes, conserving the left-overs and yet disguising them sufficiently to make them tempting and palatable is an important one in household economics and is an art in itself. Most people like the warmed over dishes if properly prepared and many a delectable "goddie" comes to the table bravely concealing the fact that it is made from odds and ends that could not be wasted. If children are trained to take small helpings and to eat all of the food on their plates it is also a saving, besides being excellent training for the child. It is better to give two small servings than an over-loaded plate on which some of the food is sure to be left. So, though a budget may be used by the family it will largely depend upon the mother to see that it is followed.

To the business girl on a salary the problem of clothes is often a puzzling one. To be suitably and becomingly dressed requires thought and ingenuity. As the salaried girl generally has to make one coat or suit do for at least two years it pays to buy good material. Some girls adopt the plan of buying late in the season when the more expensive apparel is reduced. By not buying garments cut in extreme styles, it is possible to have well-cut clothes of good material at a more reasonable price. Good judgment in this matter is a money-saver to the girl who finds it imperative to economize. The girls who can make their own clothes have the advantage as they can usually afford to have more clothes and still keep the cost down.

If a household budget is to be a success it should be planned jointly by the husband and wife, and each should take their fair share in seeing that it is carried out. Like all other good things the budget should not be allowed to become predominating, else the budget will rule the family and not the family, the budget. Life can be made miserable by one person who has a bent for sticking slavishly to plans, like the man who plans to cover so many miles a day while on his holiday motor-trip, and who insists on covering those miles no matter what unforseen event urges him to turn aside, even though it may mean the pleasure of the rest of the party.

It reminds us of a family we knew at one time who were so given to law and order, that when starting on a day's pleasure trip, each one planned the luncheon he or she would like. These individual luncheons were prepared, and that each one was meant to be satisfied with the results of his own ordering was manifested one day in the following conversation:

"Mother, may I have a piece of your toast?"

"No, indeed, Mary. You may not. You ordered sandwiches to-day."

"But your toast looks so good, mother. I would like a piece."

"I am very sorry, Mary, but you ordered sandwiches and you must eat them. I wished toast to-day and I have just enough for myself. If you wanted toast, Mary, you should have asked for it instead of sandwiches."

So mother ate her toast and Mary ate her sandwiches, and no deviation from their original plans was ever allowed, and this system was carried out in all the comings and goings of the family. An unusual family? Yes, but the illustration serves for the traits of many families, not at all unusual. Budgets must have a certain amount of elasticity, and yet remain firm enough to be a guide and a means of saving a sufficient sum for the rainy days or the old age, one of which is sure to come. One must strike a happy medium as in all other things of life, and as the "Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath," so also let the budget be made for the family, and not the family for the budget.

Marrying On a Budget - Continued from Page One

often than not, the wife rather than the husband. The important thing is not who handles the money, but how it is handled. When a proportion that entails a sacrifice to the rest of the family is spent upon one member's wants and wishes, then, it is time for a business-like talk that will more fairly adjust the income.

It is remarkable how one is stimulated to stop the many small leakages in a household—turning out the electric lights when not in use, careful use and oiling of household mechanism and the hundred and one little economies that can be effected, when a tangible result of such effort is presented by the figures of reduced costs shown in a statement of expenditure.

The plan of spending made in advance of actual money handling is endorsed by all home economists. It shows how the income should be apportioned to cover the six divisions—food, clothing, shelter, operating, savings, advancement—which must be met by every individual and family. Under the heading food, might be placed the cost of all materials used in home preparation of meals; or board or meals eaten in restaurants. Clothing covers the cost of ready-to-wear garments, or materials of those made at home; dressmakers' or tailors' bills, cleaning, repair and supplies. Shelter covers rent of house or room; if the house is owned, then the total items of the investment coming under this head, such as taxes, insurance and repairs—should be divided by 12 and this result set down under the budget of each month. If farm and parsonage is free, its value should be included. Shelter also covers car-fares, or cost of gas to school or business. Heating may be placed under this head, or under operating.

Operating covers any paid service, and the food used by such service: laundry and its supplies, fuel and ice; furnishings and their upkeep.

Savings includes money paid for beneficiary insurance, property bonds and stocks, savings accounts, stamps and loans.

Under advancement may be placed education, books and newspapers, holidays and amusements, club dues, doctors' fees, sanitation, church and missionary subscriptions.

Advancement is the all including heading under which one's personality in choice is given greatest leeway. Fifteen to twenty-five per cent is the average that is given to advancement; no one other than the spender can determine how this amount should be spent in order to be of the greatest possible benefit. A radio may afford the most satisfying recreation to one family; another may spend a large proportion of the advancement fund on a summer holiday. Suffice it to say that no one of the sub-divisions, physical, mental, social or spiritual should be neglected. Living entirely without books or music in order to buy a car is just as wrong as spending so much on sport or cosmetics, that an overdue visit to the dentist cannot be financed.

A good plan can be made by following the record of previous expenditures. Keeping accounts is the only way to make a plan work out successfully month after month, and to furnish a basis for the next year's estimates. It is worthy of notice that the lower the income, the greater must be the proportion that must be spent on food, clothing and shelter; the larger the income the greater will be the amounts that can be given to advancement, savings and the items that tend to raise the standard of living.

Food requirements may be measured definitely and scientifically in calories Accurate price lists are issued from the Government Departments at Ottawa, so that it is possible to find out just what is the cost of the minimum dietary requirements of the average family. Food is the most important item in the family budget. From 45% to 55% of the entire income should be apportioned to food. The life of the individual depends upon his nourishment," says Tyrrell; "the shelter may be poor, the clothing inadequate—but food he must have. Upon it depends his capacity for doing work and doing it well."

Clothing standards are very hard to establish definitely, as they vary widely according to climate, age, occupation and individual health needs. The amount spent on clothing almost invariably increases with the rising of income. Prosperity is reflected in the clothing. People dress better as they earn more. "Clothing allowance," says an expert, "should not exceed 20% of the income; whenever possible should be lower."

The proportion spent on shelter usually varies between 15 and 25% of income.

In general, as income increases, the items included under operating and advancement also move upward, but, according to many of our best investigators the same upward trend in savings does not follow, higher earning powers as often as might be expected. Operating expenses are usually about 10% of income; advancement ranges from 15 to 25%.

Ten per cent is often quoted as a good amount for the average wage-earner to save, but this may be by necessity much reduced, or it may by circumstances be increased to forty per cent for the young and prosperous Savings for the young couple should be all they can afford.

A budget is fairly easily made, but not so easily lived by. If it is to be of any real value, accounts must be kept and comparisons made at regular intervals. A monthly balancing is usually sufficient, provided the record shows amounts spent allowed by the budget, and a regular balancing of income and out-go.

SEEN AMONG SOCIETY

Seen at fashionable balls and receptions: Lady Crewe wife of the British Ambassador to France, wearing a white satin gown with crystal fringes and a tiara and ornaments of diamonds and rubies—The Duchess of Sutherland in black with sequined fringe and wearing diamonds and emeralds—lady Millicent Hawes, the Duchess of Alba and Berwick, in white satin with pearl fringes with ornaments of emeralds and pearls.

GLASS FASHIONS.

Sparkling sequins, which are the glass of fashion for the moment, give a shimmering effect on the dance frocks in London's ballrooms, but after the dances are over the floor swepers have a busy time clearing them up from the floor.

CALF-SKIN HATS.

The "colyumists" of the country may now prepare for a busy day. The subjec is the calf. Long identified with the leg, it is now identified with the head. Calf-skin hats, in other words, are all the rage on New York's Fifth Avenue. Pert, neat, compact, dyed and au naturel, they are appearing everywhere.

NEW DRESSING GOWNS.

The new English dressing-gowns and wrappers are cut on unorthodox lines and are more like a man's dressing gown. Some are of quilted red satin with silver tissue let in bands in the style of an eiderdown. Others are of salmon pink crepe-de-chene with satin cuffs and wide bands at the hem, prettily stitched and quilted.

When it comes to bank rolls, "roll your own" is a fine motto.

Like Clothes She Wears, Fashion Model Soon Goes Out Of Style

BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer.

Harry, the sheik salesman in the wholesale dress house where I worked as a model, came up behind Dolly and kissed on the back of the neck as she was leaning over.

"Is that nice?" snapped Dolly. Without looking around she continued to moisten the run in her stocking.

"Oh, awfully nice," smiled Harry.

But Harry never asked Dolly for a date. He never took her to lunch. Neither was unusually interested in the other. This was simply the comradery of the house.

Between the salesmen and models there existed a friendly banter and light, meaningless love-making.

Part of Her Work.

A Gotham model comes in contact with many kinds of men. And, as I learned in two weeks as a model in one of the large wholesale dress houses, she has a different "defense and attack" for each.

She may smile and flirt with an out of town buyer, but that's business. It's the same smile that the chorus girl flashes across the footlights. If the dress house manager asks her to have a date with a particular buyer, it is simply part of her work.

Each wholesale house has from three to ten models, depending upon the size of the organization.

One of the girls is the sample model. All dresses made in the work rooms of that house are fitted to her. Alice was our sample model, a perfect size 16. Every new dress planned by the designer was literally made on Alice, and at the end of each season she was entitled to the dresses she wanted, for her own wardrobe.

January first and July first opens the wholesale buying season, and the summer peak for New York houses comes about August first. Designers for the large houses go to Europe three months before the season opens to get designs and ideas. The dresses they design upon their return, must be approved, material purchased, and made before the season opens.

There was a light, meaningless love-making between salesmen and models.

Some of the designers get their ideas from buyers who have bought dresses in Paris and returned to this country with them, to sell the styles.

One woman buyer with an import shop charges $100 just to show her dresses to designers in the wholesale business.

If one of these designers wishes to copy a Parisian frock, he must pay $35 in addition to buying the material and making the gown. Consequently most wholesale houses find it more satisfactory to either retain a permanent designer in Paris or send their own, twice a year.

Buyers for retail stores in all parts of the country come to the New York wholesale houses twice or four times a year.

Make Their Choice.

From the dresses shown on the models they pick the style and designate the size and particular color in which they want the dress. The order is then placed in the dressmaking rooms and the bill of goods sent to the customer two to three weeks later.

The sidewalks in the wholesale district are piled high with brown cardboard shipping boxes, going out every hour of the day to all parts of the country.

The dress that is planned by the designer in Paris, made by the wholesale house in New York, modeled in the showrooms, sold to a buyer, eventually reaches the thousands of retail stores, and is purchased by women in California and Maine.

What becomes of the fashion model? She either works into the business, before her modeling days are over, o marries. Few models are over 28 years old.

Where The Money Goes - By Alma Whitaker

A short year ago the wife told me they were having a difficult time of it, that they barely had enough to live on, that her husband's occasional lectures brought in very little—and that at long intervals.

But I met them again yesterday. He had secured a position as technical adviser to the film producing company at $500 a week. This seemed like dizzy wealth to them after their years of economizing. He has had that job just two weeks—but I read in this morning's paper that they have bought a grand house, grand furniture, and were about to "entertain" considerably.

Now this has obviously been achieved with "small payments down." I know they had no capital no assets before this. So they have blithely mortgaged their future for immediate "style." They must in the nature of things, have undertaken payments totalling more than $1000 a month. The house must be worth at least $30,000 The furniture could scarcely be secured for less than four or five thousand. The upkeep of the place must be prodigous. The garden alone will cost a good income to maintain. Guests cannot be entertained in such a home "on the cheap." What with interest, taxes, a car, etc., they cannot hope to get out of debt on their present purchases under ten years.

Yet his motion picture contract is for one year. Even that is drawn so that the employers can break the contract almost at will. Nothing is quite so elusive as a motion picture contract, or work in the motion picture industry. Hollywood is chock full of people who once drew dizzy salaries for a brief spell, and have now been out of work for months, years.

And it is also full of people who have just secured their first highly paid job, and are launching out into sumptuous style—on the time payment system. Many of them buying the "repossessed" houses and cars of those whom they have supplanted, the style that had to be discarded when Fate began to play its tricks.

But all these people justify their expenditures, their style, as necessary to their standing in the motion picture colony. They insist that these glories are necessary investments for their prestige's sake. They say they must have grand houses and stylish cars and sumptuous clothes, and servants, and entertain lavishly in order to "hold their own."

But such a small percentage ever are able to "hold their own" for any extended length of time. Such a few of them make wise investments while the big salary is coming in and provide against those inevitable "rainy days." They not only live up to these huge incomes, but live way beyond them—and it nearly all goes in "style."

Most of them, like my friends, have been quite poor before. They know all about poverty—and they don't like it. But a big salary turns their heads. They can never believe that poverty will come again. They pay press agents enormous fees to boost their talents, keep them in the public eye—and they always seem to think that if they get enough "publicity" the rest is safe, the future assured. I should say that 75% of filmland's celebrities are weighed down with debt, paying huge interest—for style. And they are always persecuted martyrs when the crash comes. It was never their fault. Someone else is always to blame. But they had their brief spell of sumptuous style and that's where the money goes.

Making Money At Home Is No Dream

This is a story for the woman who can't make any money because she is "so tied down" at home.

It is a saga of the dairy and the barnyard and the kitchen range. And since every story must have a struggle, this one has a combat between a plucky farm wife and the ill luck which has dogged the steps of South Carolina farmers ever since the lean cotton years set in.

May Shannon is the heroine, a woman "tied down" by poverty, farm work, two children and a discouraged husband. She fought her fight with cakes as ammunition—rich devil's food, flaky angel cake, cocoanut drop cakes and bride confections.

By wielding the lightest wooden spoon in South Carolina, May Shannon has saved her home from mortgage, her family from starvation and herself from despair. Last year she sold 2200 pounds of toothsome delicacies, without leavin g he own kitchen, except to go to market.

Orders came from every state in the union, the papers began to send reporters into the Carolina hills in search of this cake wizard, and Mrs. Shannon gave out her story along with hunks of fresh cake to every hungry journalist who came.

Bride cakes are her specialty, and many a society belle in Washington and New York has plunged her silver knife into a fruit cake which came from the bare little kitchen in Carolina.

Question of Quality.

"It's just the old story of the man who made a better mouse trap, and brought the world to his door," says Mrs. Shannon. "My cakes ARE better, not necessarily because I am so smart, but because only the richest and best materials go into them.

May Shannon.

Any baker can make good cakes if he will buy the most expensive butter and baking powder and eggs. 'Store' cake is bad because somebody has tried to economize on material while pushing up the price."

In addition to baking a ton of cake last year, Mrs. Shannon did all of her own house and dairy work, looked after her chickens and made her own clothing.

Good Exercise.

"Things can't tie you down, if you won't let 'em," she says. "Many a time I worked till after midnight, cutting fruit and nuts and shredding cocoanut for next day's baking.

"Of course I had to get up early, too. But it didn't hurt me. You can always do what you want to do. In fact it made me healthier. Look here!"

She bares a right arm bulging with muscles of which an athlete might be proud. "Cake beating did that! I worked up from beating a small bowl of batter to a great big dish pan of it. I'll challenge any man in the state to a cake beating endurance contest."

But the men of South Carolina are none too eager to take her on in such a contest. She has already succeeded in making a good income, where most of them have failed.

Nerves Broken by Overwork

Was weak, nervous, sleepless. Restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The restorative power of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is truly remarkable as is proven by the experience of the writer of this letter. And yet this is only the usual experience of people who put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test.

Miss Jennie Kent, 189 Northumberland St., Brantford, Ont. writes:—"The strain of nursing my mother through a long illness left me in a weak, run down condition which affected my nerves. I had severe pains in the nerve centres of my arms and limbs which often kept me awake for hours at night. I also had a heavy dragging pain across my back and felt all the time as if I would not be able to keep on much longer. A treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has removed these symptoms, however, and built me up wonderfully."

RADIO the Voice of the Air

A Vagabond Roams The Air

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

There's a vagabond on the air, and "he's" a woman!

A pretty, pert little woman radiating the life and the music of this age with the brilliance and pep of the finest of flappers.

Yet a vagabond, a hobo!

June Lee is her name. It's an alias, of course. But that's all we know of her. She won't divulge her family name.

And the most little June Lee will tell us of her life is that she was born in Missouri—the city doesn't matter, she insists—and she calls San Francisco her home town.

Beyond that she's just a vagabond, flitting from station to station, singing her songs, broadcasting her merry laughs and her geniality everywhere.

Her only education was gained from the school of experience, she says, where at least she succeeded in solving many of the mysteries of human psychology.

A Struggling "Steneg."

Life at first was drab and difficult for her. She was a legal stenographer for some years. But her heart sang out and her mind rebelled for the merriness of life.

She submitted. She wrote verses of all sorts—some bought, others wasted. She sang at amateur musical shows and did some dramatic work in the Little Theatre at San Francisco.

In August of 1924, June Lee started her vagabondage. With no funds, except her fare, she went to New York. Her personality got her a job almost immediately in the chorus of a Hammerstein production.

It took her on a six weeks' tour to Chicago, and then it "flopped."

Lucky flop! Chicago made her. Radio took hold of her. She become Chicago's radio pet.

"My activities as a performer decreased as my radio activities grew," the vagabond reminisces. "I lost interest in working to visible audiences, partly because it took me off the air and partly because, in developing a radio personality, my stage style deteriorated."

But June Lee had to eat, and skipping from one radio station to another didn't bring her the shekels. So she kept on performing for a living, playing occasional club engagements, picture houses, vaudeville and radio shows.

Once definitely established as a radio personality, she returned to the coast and began her real life of vagabondage in California. She toured the State and sang from all important broadcasting stations there.

New York and Europe.

Then back across the country, stopping at intervening radio stations, until she got to New York. WOR, one of the pioneer stations, picked her up and made much of her for a while. Then followed the rest in the big city, and after she was through with them, she went out into the country itself.

The United States, however, wasn't big enough for her, so she worked day and night until she scraped up enough money to go to Europe.

There she broadcast from the Eiffel Tower and from station 2LO of the British Broadcasting Company in London. Other foreign broadcasters sent out her voice often before she came back.

Now she's still vagabonding. She has already sung from more radio stations than any other broadcast entertainer, she says. But she wants to "make" every radio studio in the country before she'll be satisfied.

"I have spent all my savings," she says, "very often refused lucrative work, in order to stay on the air. I even borrowed money to carry on my pioneering campaign.

"It has been a glorious adventure."

Radio Whistle Due To Waveband Crowding

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (Associated Press).—If a strange whistle is emitted by the family radio this winter, it may be useless to climb to the roof to inspect the aerial or to search for the source in the hook-up.

The new disturber probably is the sound of two or more radiocasting stations fighting it out for supremacy in the same or adjoining wavelengths.

Reception Is Jumbled.

If several transmitters are on the same wavelengths their output comes from the receiver as a jumble of unpleasant sounds, or with a whistling background that virtually ruins reception.

Since the Department of Commerce has relinquished its authority of wavelength assignments, some of the new stations and others that have changed their wavelengths have taken channels which overlap those of other transmitters, resulting in inter-station interference. The crowding of the stations into the same waveband makes itself known by a heterodyne or a whistle with a varying pitch.

No More Wavelengths.

In its original plan of wavelength assignments the Department attempted to give a band ten kilocycles wide to each station. When stations became too numerous for that, a plan of segregating stations by class was devised. The better grade were given the ten kilocycle channels, while those of lower range were grouped upon various wavelengths on the lower side of the band.

Radio men believe that the situation will not improve until Congress gives authority to some agency which would have control over broadcast. The Department of Commerce sought relief a year ago by refusing to license additional broadcasters but later discarded this idea.

RADIO STATIONS MAKE CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Reports from Government supervisors of radio in charge of the nine districts for the period July 1 to Oct. 15 show that during this time 63 new stations beban operation.

Of the old stations, 25 have changed their locations and 63 have increased their power. Sixty-two stations have changed their wavelengths, most of them changing from a low wave-length to one within the 280 to 545 meters band.

Forty new stations are under construction. Arrangements are being made to increase the power of 46 existing stations.

MORSE CODE MAY PASS OUT

Beam Wireless Soon to Replace Code Method of Communication.

OPERATING NOW

Now that the Beam transmitters between Great Britain and Canada are actually in working order, the next thing to be done is to speed the service up. So far the regular working speed has rarely exceeded 100 words per minute, but Senatore Marconi hopes to see 1,000 words per minute touched in the future. Another headache for the operator! It certainly seems that hand-operated Morse will die right out in a very short time indeed!

BROADCASTING HAS TERROR FOR SCOTTISH ACTOR

Harry Lauder Discusses Radio and "Mike Fright."

FIRST FAREWELL TOUR

No Easy Task to Smile and Laugh When You Are Unheard.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Stage fright is nothing compared to "mike fright," even to so tried a veteran of the stage as Harry Lauder, the "bonnie Scot" humorist.

Lauder, in this country for what he calls his "first farewell tour," still is wary of appearing before any of the microphones in the New York studios.

"Believe me," Harry declares, "it is one thing to stand before a crowded house on the stage, aided by footlights, makeup and the healthful atmosphere of the theatre, and quite another thing to stand in a large, hushed, draped room and crack all your best stories to a cold and passionless piece of apparatus that gives you no encouragement."

Twirling his crooked stick, doing the Highland fling, casting a wink or raising a knowing eyebrow are lost to the radio audiences. Lauder does these things, even in the studio, with only one or two looking on, but he's ill at ease the while.

"I know of no more eerie experience," he says. "The very thought that one's voice, which will not carry much more than a couple of hundred yards unaided, can be flung across half the world without any visible means, and picked up perfectly by millions of listeners, is sufficient in itself to give a poor, simple old Scot mike fright.

"It it no easy task to call up smiles which are unseen and laughter which is unheard."

RADIO TERMS DEFINED

(From "Life")

Loudspeaker—The man that claims he got France on a crystal set.

Distant Station—Anything west (or east) of Schenectady.

Program—See static.

Ground—What you have for divorce when your husband keeps the loudspeaker going until 3 a.m.

Novice—One who listens to a program without getting the name of the station.

Expert—One who gets the name of the station without listening to the program.

Transformer — The man that talked you into buying a set.

Static—Hear program.

Tube—For ages the cause of much discussion. Illustration: "Tube B or not tube B."

Selectivity—The ability to tune out a program after a minute and a half.

Oscillator—One who deliberates between a five-tube neutrodyne and an eight-tube superhet.

DX Hound—The only known type of canine that runs to horns.

THOUGHTFUL

At a recent meeting of the Peterborough Radio Club, a very thoughtful suggestion was made by one of its members, that of placing radio sets in each of the old people's homes, the House of Providence and the Protestant Home. This, if carried out, would form a very nice consideration, as well as bringing sunshine to those encumbered with old age. However, it is under discussion to find, if possible, a way and means of raising this appropriation.
